NINE PERSONS KILLED IN EXCURSION TRAIN WRECK

Twenty-five Were Injured, Two Perhaps Fatally—Seven Coaches Were Derailed on Pennsylvania Road at Onley, Va.—Broken Rail is Believed to Have Caused the Accident—First Time in 45 Years That a Passenger Has Been Killed on the New York, Philadelphia and Norfolk Division of the Road.

NORFOLK, Va., Dec. 1.—(AP)—Nine persons were killed and 25 persons injured, two perhaps fatally, in the wreck of the Norfolk-New York excursion train on the Pennsylvania railroad at Onley, eastern shore of Virginia, last midnight, Pennsylvania officials announced in a list issued this afternoon Several others claimed to have been less seriously hurt, it was said.

Mrs. M. E. Dixas, Negro, Norfolk, Va.

H. Smith, U. S. sailor, Middletown, R.

Julia Coogs, Norfolk, Va.

Mrs. Frances Breyer, Negro, Norfolk.

Leah Meyers, Negro, Edenton, N. C.

Grace Rady, Norfolk.

Mrs. L. Abrams, Norfolk.

It was not known whether the rail had been tampered with or broken as a result of extremely cold weather. Officials believed the rail broke before the train reached it although the engine and two coaches passed over it without mishap.

Seven coaches left the rails and tore up the track for a great distance. The first two coaches to leave the rails were badly smashed by those following behind, the steel construction of the cars preventing a larger casualty list. There was 488 passengers on the train, most of them from Norfolk and Portsmouth, taking advantage of week end excursion rates to New York.

Some of the injured were brought to Norfolk today and others were expected tonight. Those too seriously hurt to be moved were in hospitals at Onley and other points adjacent to the wreck. Passengers who were uninjured were taken to New York arriving there at 12.10 today.

Randolph B. Cooke, general agent for the Pennsylvania railroad at Norfolk said the Onley wreck was the first time in 45 years that a passenger had been killed on the New York, Philadelphia and Norfolk division of the railroad.

CONGRESS CONVENES IN REGULAR SESSION TODAY

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1.—(AP)—Congress convenes tomorrow in the first regular session of the Hoover administration with a host of old and new problems commanding attention.

Tariff revision, coming over from the extra session called last April by Mr. Hoover, and tax reduction, recently proposed by the administration with the approval of the democrats, head the list of subjects and will receive first consideration.

So varied are the legislative proposals facing the session, however, that congressional leaders predicted today the meeting would carry on until at least next June. By that time the regular biennial congressional election campaigns will be underway and the top-heavy republican majorities elected with President Hoover a year ago will be up for the first test of his administration at the polls.

The sessions in both house and senate tomorrow will be confined to the opening formalities. On Tuesday, the 18,000-word message prepared by Mr. Hoover on the "State of the Union" will be read and then the work will begin.

ICE DELAYS SHIPPING IN LAKE MICHIGAN

SAULT ST. MARIE, Mich., Dec. 1—(AP)—Twenty-nine of the 91 lake freighters held in Lake Superior by the early descent of winter have passed through the Soo locks and started for the lower lakes. Nineteen were reported late today to have passed the most dangerous part of the trip down the St. Marys river.

The ships were being convoyed by six powerful, ice-breaking tugs.

The grain carrier Quuedoc was aground tonight in the upper river 15 miles above Sault Ste Marie. The tug Favorite and the lighter Resolute were standing by. Part of the cargo of wheat was being lightered to free the Quedoc, which was lifted 18 inches when it was aground.

Seven ships, which sought shelter during last week's storm in Portage lake at the eastern end of the Portage canal, near Houghton, were freed today, according to reports reaching here. Four cleared for Duluth and three were down bound for Sault Ste Marie.

UNPRECEDENTED DROUGHT IN PACIFIC NORTHWEST

SEATTLE, Wash., Dec. 1—(AP)—With no relief in sight for the unprecedented drought which has prevailed in the Pacific northwest this fall, tentative plans went forward today for the rationing of electric energy, possibly under a power administrator appointed by the governor, Roland H. Hartley. Appointment of a power supervisor was postponed at a meeting in Tacoma, Wash., Friday and another conference on the matter is scheduled to be held in the office of Mayor Frank Edwards here tomorrow.

The airplane carrier Lexington still is being held in Puget Sound due to a request sent by the cities that they be permitted to use the generators of the ship as an auxiliary plant. The navy has withheld permission so far on the ground that the power situation has not yet reached a crisis.

Weather bureau records show that the precipitation from January 1 to November 30, 1929, was 14.77 inches as compared with 22.11 inches for the corresponding period in 1928.

MICHIGAN'S WAR DEAD ARRIVE IN DETROIT

DETROIT Dec. 1.—(AP)—The last of Michigan's war dead came home today. A cortege that started in the dark swamps of north Russia came to rest here this afternoon in a blinding snowstorm. It brought the bodies of 56 men who lost their lives in stern Arctic fighting, 11 years ago.

A special train, festooned with mourning crepe, transported the solemn burden A long row of flag-draped caskets were escorted from the station to the city hall to the beat of muffled drums and the muted strains of a funeral dirge. Church bells tolled as the procession moved slowly through the streets. Sidewalks were lined with bareheaded crowds.

Marching beside the hearse were the comrades of those who slept so many years in the desolation of north Russia. Ahead and behind them strode hundreds of uniformed representatives of veterans or ganizations and the regular army.

A casket containing the body of an unknown soldier was placed on a dais before the reviewing stand.

On behalf of the people of Michigan Gov. Fred W. Green received the bodies of those sons of the state who did not return until today.

FEAR FOUR HUNTERS HAVE BEEN DROWNED

BLUE HILL, Me., Dec. 1.— (AP) — Fears that four local hunters were drowned in Thursday's squall were entertained here tonight. The missing men were Elwin Hooper, 45, his two sons, Guy, 18, and Elmer, 20 and Leon Grindal, 22. They left their homes in the southern section of the town Wednesday afternoon for a hunting trip to Long Island.

When they failed to return today, a few men started out to investigate. Upon reaching Long Island, they were informed that the four had left for their homes. Then it was realized that they undoubtedly had been caught in the treacherous waters between the island and the mainland by the holiday storm.

NEW HAVEN, Dec. 1.—(AP)—Ernest H. Cherrington, general secretary of the World League Against Alcoholism, said in an address here tonight that "it would be impossible to modify prohibition without modifying our prosperity, our national health, economic leadership and our stability as a self-governing nation."

"The choice today," he asserted, "is not between prohibition and legalized liquor, but between the highest type of an onward-moving civilization and a slower and a lower type."

The real menace in this new age, the speaker said, is not the "old soak" but the so-called sober drinker, who takes a few drinks and drives his car, his airplane, or controls any one of the hundreds of newly invented machines of transportation or production.

NEW YORK, Dec. 1.—(AP)—The Radiomarine Corporation of America tonight reported its station at Chatham, Mass., had received messages from the liner President Roosevelt saying a third class passenger had jumped overboard and that search for him had been abandoned.

Two messages, the Radiomarine corporation said, were sent from the President Roosevelt, which left here yesterday, to the steamer Milwaukee.

The first, sent at 7.30 p. m., said: "Have lost a man overboard and are searching for him now." The second, transmitted an hour later, thanked the Milwaukee for aiding in the search and said, "Have given up search for third class passenger who jumped overboard."

Neither message gave the identity of the man.

WESTFIELD, Mass., Dec. 1.—(AP)—Police here were confronted with a mystery as the result of the finding here today of the unidentified body of a man between 40 and 45 years of age. The body, well dressed and groomed, with wounds about the neck and shoulders, was found by Lawrence J. Blancock at the bottom of an embankment off the City View road.

A pool of blood in the center of the road and a trail to the embankment led to the belief that the man might have been hit by a hit and run driver and then rolled down the embankment.

Attempt To Kill Foe Of King Of Albania

Kotchi Tassi Was Shot and Wounded as He Was Walking in a Park in Athens.

ATHENS, Dec. 1.—(AP)—An unidentified assailant, believed actuated by political enmity, shot and wounded Kotchi Tassi, former minister of justice in Albania, late night as he was walking in Zappeion park here with Ali Kleisoura, formerly a deputy in the Albanian parliament.

The gunman fired four shots, two of which struck Tassi and then escaped. Both Tassi and Kleisoura were opponents of King Zog I, and have lived in Greece since he was crowned "king of the Albanians."

The internal feuds which raged in Albania from the time the country gained its independence from Turkey in 1912, until a degree of order was restored after proclamation of the republic in 1925, have bred intense hatreds and much disorder. King Zog himself, then Ahmed Bey Zogu, was forced to flee to Belgrade, Jugoslavia, when his enemies rose against him in 1923. One attempt was made to assassinate him before that time.

Zogu organized a well equipped force, with Jugoslav assistance, and returning to Albania, expelled Fan Noli, who had set up a revolutionary government. Zogu was first president of the republic, and September 1, 1928, was proclaimed king.

WOMAN ARRESTED BY FEDERAL DRY AGENTS

CHICAGO, Dec. 1.—(AP)—Mrs. Anna Rench, wife of the president of the board of suburban Stickney, reputed Capone stronghold, was arrested today by federal prohibition agents when she claimed ownership of a road house where a quantity of liquor was seized.

A warrant for the arrest of Anton Rench, the president, will be obtained tomorrow, according to Assistant United States Attorney Edward A. Fisher, in charge of the raiders.

Complaints that henchmen of Al Capone have seized the administrative offices of the village and appointed hoodlums to the police force and other law enforcement agencies, have been under investigation for sometime by federal agents, Fisher said. He indicated further arrests were contemplated.

Rench, charged in subsequent court action with having been the Capone candidate for the presidency, took over the office several months ago. His defeated opponent, Edward Kabella, filed ouster proceedings, charging ballot box stuffing and terrorism. The county court ruled Kabella was the rightfully elected president, but Rench continues to hold office pending an appeal to the state supreme court.

FEDERAL FUND OF $477,893 FOR ROADS IN CONNECTICUT

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1.—(AP)—Secretary Hyde today ordered an apportionment among the states of a fund of $73,125,000 authorized by congress as federal aid for construction of roads in the fiscal year of 1931.

Calling attention to President Hoover's suggestion for acceleration of public building programs to promote business, the secretary said state highway departments would be given authority to make immediate preparations for expenditure of the money. He added there still was an unexpended balance of $23,000,000 from funds previously apportioned, which added to the new fund, made a total of $101,125,000.

All of the 48 states and Hawaii share in the appropriation on the basis of their respective areas, populations and mileages of post roads.

With an allotment of $4,545,330, Texas will receive the largest amount under the secretary's apportionment. Next in order are New York, with $3,605,965, and Pennsylvania with $3,314,707.

The funds allocated to New England states follows:

Connecticut, $477,893; Maine, $875,106; Massachusetts, $1,090,022; New Hampshire, $366,628; Rhode Island, $365,625; Vermont, $366,625.

Seven Miners Were Killed By Explosion

Were Tearing Up Tracks of Mine in Illinois Preparatory to Abandonment.

WEST FRANKFORT, Ill., Dec. 1.—(AP)—Seven coal miners were killed and 15 others escaped injury in a localized explosion in a drift at Old Ben Mine No. 8, near here at 2.30 a. m. today.

The bodies of five of the dead were brought to the surface late today while rescue parties still sought the two other bodies. Rescue work was delayed because of smoke and gas fumes.

The death list announced by officials of the mine follows:

James Tabor, Thomas McDermott, Veto Geridino, Jewell Baker and his brother, Lewey Baker, Earl Beardon and Henry Isaacs. All resided at West Frankfort except Isaacs, who was said to have lived at Johnston Cityy, Illinois. Isaacs was about 50 and McDermott about 60. The other victims were young men.

The bodies of Tabor and McDermott had not been recovered tonight but mine officials said it was certain the men had been killed as they were at work in the drift when the blast came.

The 15 other miners were saved by safety devices which automatically released shale dust to localize the explosion in the one drift, about one and one-fourth miles back from the bottom of the shaft. None was injured and all were brought to the surface soon after the explosion. The given opinion was that the blast was due to an accumulation of coal dust gas.

PRISONER IN SING SING WAS FATALLY STABBED

OSSINING, N. Y., Dec. 1.—(AP)—Reuben Kaminsky, a 17-year-old prisoner of Sing Sing penitentiary, crumpled to the ground from a line-up of 1720 prisoners today and died in the prison hospital 15 minutes later of four stab wounds. Prison officials said neither the slayer nor his weapon has been found, nor has any motive been determined.

The prisoners had just completed their recreation and were formed in lines in the old prison yard, preparatory to marching up the hill to the new building where a play was to be presented for them.

Fred Vetter, a sergeant of the guards, saw a prisoner fall from the line. An examination disclosed Yaminsky had been stabbed four times, all of the wounds being near the heart.

Kaminsky was one of the youngest prisoners in Sing Sing. He was sentenced from Brooklyn to seven and a half to 15 years for robbery, and was received at the prison on February 15 last. His mother lives in Brooklyn.

SOVIET TROOPS ACTIVE IN WESTERN MANCHURIA

PEIPING, Dec. 1.—(AP)—Reports from Harbin today said soviet troops were continuing military activities in western Manchuria, despite Moscow's announcement Nov. 28 that an agreement had been reached to negotiate with China regarding the Chinese Eastern railway dispute.

Since that announcement there have been a number of conflicting official statements—and lack of statements, particularly on the part of Mukden, which have added to the bewilderment of representatives of foreign powers who are endeavoring to keep their governments posted on developments.

I., Dec. 1.—(AP)—Four fine cotton goods mills in various parts of Rhode Island employing 2,200 hands, will shut down between Dec. 9 and 30 because of lack of business, Goddard Brothers, agents, announced. SHANGHAI, Dec. 1—(AP)-Bombs, cabbages and bags of soot are being dropped by Russian aerial raiders on the city of Pokotu and on the eastern Manchurian frontier, south of Pogranich-Naya, said dispatches from Chinese sources at Harbin today.

The dispatches said there was heavy property damage and considerable loss of life. Dropping of the cabbages and soot bags were intended to effect loss of morale among Chinese troops, it was believed.

MISSING R. G. BROPHY, FORMERLY WITH EXPLORER BYRD, FOUND IN OMAHA

OMAHA, Dec. 1—(AP)—The Omaha Bee-News, in a copyrighted story today says Richard Gale Brophy, formerly second in command of Commander Richard B. Byrd's Antarctic expedition, who disappeared in New York last August after leaving a suicide note, has been found in Omaha.

The former business manager for the famous Arctic explorer has been working as a copy reader for the Omaha Morning Bee under the name of C. Manning Mitchell, the paper says, and adds:

"Identity of Brophy was revealed by a startling coincidence almost at the instant that the news was flashed of Byrd's flight over the South Pole.

Brophy severed connections with the Byrd expedition in New Zealand last March, and returned to New York. Then he disappeared, leaving the following note:

"I am going to Coney Island. I am going to walk into the waves until they cover me and then I will be no more."

"When the news of Byrd's epochal flight was received, Brophy was reading copy in the Bee-News office. The night editor looked over a group of photographs of Byrd's crew. In one of them he recognized C. Manning Mitchell standing beside Commander Byrd and Mayor Jimmie Walker."

"He looked at the picture again, then at 'Mitchel,' busy at the copy desk. There could be no doubt that 'Mitchel' was Brophy. All the time 'Mitchel' was unaware that he had been identified as Brophy, unaware even that his former commander had flown over the South Pole.

Telegrams were sent to New York, and Brophy's life was traced.

Confronted with the evidence gathered by the night editor, Brophy admitted his identity, the story says. With tears in his eyes, he told a story of how he had been besieged with trouble after leaving the Byrd expedition, and had sought solace in masking his identity.

"I only wanted to rest," he is quoted "My nerves were shattered. I was tired, distraught, unable to find relief from the pressure that seemed to hem me in.

"So I foolishly considered suicide. I say foolishly, because realization came to me while I was in the water at Coney Island that problems of this life are not to be solved by such an act.

"Having come to his conclusion I burned behind me all my bridges save one. I shall explain to my good and dear friend Commander Byrd just what this bridge was. At that time I shall divulge my thoughts of cowardice, and my three contemplations of ending it all.'

"I have found rest in Omaha, but now that my secret has been discovered, I'm going back to New York and get my tangled affairs straightened out."

SOUTHERN NEW ENGLAND SHOWS LOW TEMPERATURES

While New Haven Reported a Minimum Sunday of 18 Degrees Above Zero, Eastport, Me., Registered 30—Low Temperature Saturday at Boston Was 12 Above, Sunday Noon 38—Slowly Rising Temperatures in the Next Few Days is the Forecast.

BOSTON, Dec. 1.—(AP)—Cold weather which gripped New England during the past two days lessened in intensity today and indications were that thermometers would show slowly rising temperatures in the next few days. Clear weather prevailed throughout the region with the exception of Vermont where there were occasional snow flurries.

The snow in Vermont came on the outskirts of a disturbance over western Quebec, according to officials of the United States weather bureau. Absence of high winds and the appearance of the sun did much to dispel the discomfort experienced by New Englanders in the first real cold spell of the season.

Reports to the weather bureau here showed that minimum temperatures today ranged from 18 to 30 degrees above zero. As the day progressed the mercury mounted in most places from 15 to 25 degrees. Contrary to general conditions, the lowest temperature was in southern New England. New Haven, Conn., reported a minimum mark of 18 above. The highest minimum was 30 at both Eastport, Me., and Burlington, Vt.

Boston felt the benefit of the change. Whereas the minimum yesterday was 12 above today it was 22. At noon it had reached 38. Minimum readings in other places showed Portland, Me., 22, Concord, N. H., 24 and Nantucket, 26.

Meanwhile word has awaited from scores of hunters marooned in the woodlands of the Michigan peninsula. At mid-day a temperature of 25 degrees of above zero was recorded in Chicago with similar readings registered throughout Illinois and adjacent states. Bismark, N. D., two above.

COLD WAVE FROM ARKANSAS TO ATLANTIC SEABOARD

WORK ON NEW WATER STORAGE TANK BEGINS

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Dec. 1—The water department has begun the reconstructing of the city water supply system. On Saturday wood-choppers were engaged in clearing the 100 feet by 80 feet tract of land on Oak hill, acquired by the city last Friday afternoon, on which the one million gallon steel standpipe will be erected. Mayor Charles A. Richard said this afternoon that the foundation for the tank will be laid within a few weeks. When asked when the Providence contracting firm holders of the contract for the erection of the foundation, would commence work the mayor said "as soon as Consulting Engineer Henry P. Symonds sees fit. It is understood that Mr. Symonds has instructed the board of water commissioners to order the work started while favorable weather conditions exist," the chief executive further stated.

The work involved in the laying of the foundation is expected to consume about forty working days. About a month will be required for the concrete to "set," it was said today. After a thorough examination and testing by engineers, the building of the large steel water container will be started, providing weather is favorable. WHEN THE QUINEBAUG ENDED BEAR MAN'S HOPES

The race with high water in the Quinebaug promises to be a clean win for the M. A. Gammino Construction company. Many local and near-by illustrations of the pranks of this erratic river are well within the memory of people whose homes are situated on its banks today.

Some persons have noted the fine growth of young timber on the quite sizeable island that lies just in the wake of one of the new bridge piers. Not many years ago, there used to live in this section, a man commonly known as the "Bear Man." Following an early spring freshet, E. F. Burleson, who owns the island, sold for a small sum, a quantity of logs and driftwood that had caught on the island, to the Bear Man. The purchaser piled over from the main land and after working a week or more, had cut and piled upwards of 20 cords of wood. Within less than a month, and while the chopper waited for low water that he might ferry over his fine lot of wood, there came a two days' southeaster. The third night the Quinebaug performed one of its accustomed stunts. The next morning the swollen current ran six feet deep over the island, with the Bear Man's fortune on the way toward Long Island sound.

CONGRESS AGAIN

This is the day when the 72nd congress meets in regular session. It would have been under ordinary circumstances the first gathering of the congress but for the special session which ended only a few days ago. And the remembrance of that session creates the quandary as to whether the same tactics will be employed that were so conspicuous in the senate then.

This will be a session of much business. It will not be confined to the few matters that confronted the special session and were not completed. Right away at the start the senate will give its attention to the Vare case, a matter which should have been settled long ago in justice to Pennsylvania and the senator-elect and following that it is expected that there will be a resumption of the tariff discussion.

It will be interesting to note what the senate's attitude is going to be. The coalition must understand by this time that the responsibility for the failure of tariff action in the special session is being charged to it and it has heard the claim that it was responsible to a certain degree for the stock market disturbance. It knows that it can continue its policy of obstruction if it so desires but it remains to be seen whether it considers that a wise thing to do in view of the fact that it blocks action on the things it favors quite the same as on those it opposes.

Scheduled for early action by congress is a vote on the reduction of federal taxes, in keeping with the recommendations which have been made by the president and the secretary of the treasury. This is a matter which appeals to the whole country and one which congress will have no reason to sidetrack for the purpose of embarrassing the administration.

The vacation which congress has had has been a short one. Whether it has been sufficiently long for the coalition members of the senate to come to their senses and realize their duty remains to be seen. This session will be decidedly different from the special one, for there will be a raft of business and the policy of obstruction will create serious difficulties. From the negative results of the special session there are good and sufficient reasons for turning about face and getting together on a constructive policy.

THE BYRD FLIGHT

Recognizing that if it were to be accomplished there must be careful and adequate preparations, Commander Byrd looked well after the necessary details and may have taken a lot of precautions that were not actually required, but they gave greater assurance of success and protection in case of accident on his trip to the south pole.

Commander Byrd now holds the distinction of having reached both poles through the air. He had plenty of perils in front of him on both trips but he advanced with unbounded confidence and was as successful in his trip to the south pole as to the north pole, though his flight was about three hours longer.

In this accomplishment too much credit cannot be given to the preparations. It would likewise be impossible to overlook the faithful support which he received from his entire party, those at the base as well as those who actually accompanied him to the pole and, while the radio did not give aid to those who were flying, it kept others in full touch with what was going on, where they were, the conditions being encountered and the performance of the motors.

Commander Byrd wasn't the first to reach the south pole, since two others had preceded him, the other two, Scott and Amundsen, having proceeded over the ice on long and uncertain expeditions of which nothing was known until they returned to civilization. Going through the air made it possible to get a different view of the conditions and to see for longer distances and yet one shudders to think what might have been their fate in case they had crashed on the polar plateau. They had the possibility of being able to let the base know of their plight and location through the radio, that far-reaching means of communication with which the other explorers were not blessed.

Happily their radio was not required to send any other than pleasing messages. It was a means of inestimable value in giving information as to their location, however, and one which cannot fail to be regarded as a highly necessary part of every explorer's equipment. The Byrd undertaking was a big thing to plan and anticipate but it was a much bigger thing in the accomplishment.

STEAMSHIP TERMINALS

Because conditions are constantly changing and new demands are being made, there are frequent demands for greater and better accommodations for steamships at New York. Because there is a limit to which the big city can go in the building of longer piers and the restrictions which the government places upon their extension into the river, it is often urged that steamship lines get away from New York and establish terminals at some other point that would be nearer Europe and that would avoid the slow and crooked channel in New York harbor.

Invariably these discussions prompt other localities to trot out their facilities, give them an airing, become enthused over the possibilities of development that would accompany the new terminal and actually bask in the hope that they will be successful in their effort. There are many points where excellent ocean terminals might be established with good harbors, good rail connections and assurance of shorter time in crossing the Atlantic, but they are, of course, away from the big city and there is no disposition on the part of New York to let that happen if it is possible. Furthermore, steamship companies understand the importance of terminals at the big port.

Right now there is keen rivalry for pier construction among the available localities in New York harbor. It has been the opinion of the port authority that the new and longer piers for the accommodation of the big vessels should be constructed on the Jersey shore. This indicates that Manhattan has done all that it can in this direction, but no sooner is the decision of the port authority made public than a wail comes from the South Brooklyn front because it has not been selected. There is even a disposition to chide the port authority for thinking of giving to Jersey what should be kept strictly in New York. Brooklyn feels that it has been snubbed since it is inclined to the view that it could accommodate any pier development that might be required for the next dozen years, so that it becomes evident what chances there are of any of the big steamship lines getting away from New York in the immediate future.

BACKING THE PRESIDENT

One cannot help being impressed by the excellent results attending the conferences which have been held by the president with leading bankers, business men, utility heads, farmers and labor, looking to the maintenance of sound business conditions during the ensuing year.

Even though conditions are and have been fundamentally sound there has been an inclination to feel a bit uncertain ever since the stock market disturbance. Nevertheless, the president has gotten a ready response to his efforts and a general endorsement of his plan. He has recognized the fact that while many projects were contemplated there was the possibility that they would be held up to await developments with the result that such a policy would have a harmful effect. It has not been his purpose for business to rush into unwarranted activity or to plunge into construction projects heedlessly. He has recognized the beneficial effect which construction projects in many directions will have upon general business and he asks that they be carried out prudently. If there is no reason to wait to see what the other fellow is going to do, why wait?

Since his call for the conferences, the president has learned that there are many projects which can be and will be put through in the coming months. This represents activity which probably would have resulted anyway but it has been recognized by those who are in command that there is no reason for delay and when it is disclosed that $10,000,000,000 will be spent by railroads, utilities, building trades, industry, municipalities, states and the government it shows a general appreciation of the attitude and plan of the president and a determination to give him the support asked.

In other words, the president has gotten busy on a forward movement of business and has gotten assurances of that cooperation which he had good reason to expect.

NEEDLESS FIRES

While this is the season of thin ice and icy highways which make it bad for man as well autos, it is also a time of year when there are many fires as the result of overheated stoves and heaters.

Whenever the cold gets worse briskers fires are kindled. Sometimes there have been those precautions taken which will justify the speeding up of the heater, but too often there has not. The result is that there is an overheated furnace pipe that comes too close to woodwork, a chimney fire or the ultimate results of a defective flue. It has also been the case that overheated furnaces have kindled wood or rubbish that has been piled up close to it.

It is deplorable, in spite of the too frequent demonstrations, that attention is not given to these conditions until after there has been a fire. It simply goes to support the claim that the great majority of fires are needless, the direct result of lack of attention to conditions or carelessness. One might suppose that the result of negligence brought home in such a pointed way to others would be sufficient to warn all householders, all property owners, all, in fact, who have anything to do with heating apparatus or conditions from which fires might result, to err, if they err at all, on the side of safety. But such doesn't appear to be the case. They seem unable to profit from anything but personal experience and under such circumstances the wonder is that there are not more needless fires than there are.

HOW TO IDENTIFY THE NEW BIRDS VISITING

"Absolutely," the lady of the house declared. "It must be something that stands out, that's different! If I have to spend money for a wedding present when I had expected to buy myself a new dolly set instead, I'm going to get some glory out of it. What we send to the Selery-Bapple wedding is going to be spoken of for its originality. All that is necessary is a little thought."

The man of the house seemed quite impressed. "Whachu going to send?" he inquired.

"I haven't quite decided," she admitted. "But it won't be anything done in new art paint. The presents at the Jones wedding last week looked like an explosion in an enamel factory. Wedding presents run in cycles as you very well know. When you and I were married cut glass was the rage and considering what arrived at my house one would have thought that any wedding guest refusing to purchase cut glass was executed at 10 a. m. sharp, daily, by order of the court!

"No human family can use more than one cut-glass bowl at a time, but we still have ten packed away in the attic waiting for the eleven in the pantry to be broken. There were twenty-two cut glass jelly dishes—and for years they have used nothing on tables but the tall compotes—so they all are in the lower drawer of the chest upstairs waiting for whoever inherits our things.

"Then, too, there was the cut-glass lamp and the cut-glass water pitcher and glasses and I haven't the remotest idea now who gave us what. They are submerged, obliterated in cut glass. I wish them all cut-glass tombs.

"There came a time when every bride received gold-etched crockery, the kind solidly covered with gold. China closets and dresser tops looked like little brothers to the mint and when a piece was broken it was the same as having the bank burgled—but my guess is that what is now left of the gold-inlaid china is down cellar or sent off to the rummage sale. A gold painted dresser set with dabs of forget-me-nots is about as up to date as Caesar's wife's hairpins. Not one of those bestowers of largess on brides tried to think up something different as I am doing. You would think they were afraid of notoriety if they gave a—a——"

"Yes?" urged the man of the house with deep interest.

"Oh something quite different from the usual run of gifts!" his wife declared. "All it needs is a little thought and ingenuity. Why, think of the time when nothing was so swagger for a gift as a framed picture. They have been turning up ever since in dozen lots at the charity rummage sales.

"I knew a bride with a large living room and she was the envy of all her friends because she could crowd fifty-odd assorted pictures onto its four sides. Nobody could tell what any one pictur was, but there they were, fifty-one scenes surrounded by glittering gilt and carved frames, and maybe she wasn't proud and haughty!

"I am trying to avoid making a present which will allow Cissy Bapple to say things about me in years to come—I hate to think of those bridegrooms of the framed picture era having to chop up all those frames eventually for kindling wood, meanwhile voicing their private opinions of the persons who had bestowed them.

"Just a few years ago, when a wedding invitation blighted one's mail, one grabbed the newspaper to look up the last ad concerning colored glassware. Brides received glass in amber, rose, green, blue and petunia shades and skirted brain fever trying to set their tables with the conglomeration and avoid setting their teeth on edge. Still, glass does break.

"Right now it's painted furniture. The world has gone crazy on furnishings enameled Chinese red, green, black and gold, lavender, pink or what have you. A splotch of bright color does so lend tone to the living room—so they send brides cornar cupboards, tables, footstools, magazine racks—the painted magazine rack fills the place occupied by the cutglass bowl in earlier days and is the last resort of the feeble-minded. They come in colors that collide with the chints she has picked out for hangings.

"The rich aunt gives a painted bedroom set, the wealthy uncle furnishes the sunroom in enameled wicker and in odd corners are tucked the painted atrocities showered on her by school friends. Yet there doesn't seem to be a living thing to give any more except painted furniture. Of course, some of it is different. I saw—"

"Well, but haven't you any idea for a gift at all?" demanded the man of the house, somewhat worried. His wife wrinkled her brow and thought.

"I've considered the question from all sides," she said. "And knowing Cissy Bapple and how she always wants to be right in style, I think, after all, we'll get one of those darling painted magazine racks I saw down at that new gift shop. They're really quite new and sort of different and I'm sure it will fit in somewhere."

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1—In the death of Senator Francis E. Warren of Wyoming, the senate has lost its patriarch both in age and service.

His 37 years in the senate exceeds by a year and a half the record of the next longest service, tht of Allison of Iowa.

In the history of the senate only 11 men have served more than 30 years. In order of long service they were Warren, Allison, Morrill of Vermont, Lodge of Massachusetts, Sherman of Ohio, Frye of Maine, Morgan of Alabama, Cullom of Illinois, Hale of Maine, Cockrell of Missouri and Jones of Nevada.

"All were wonderful men," Senator McKellar of Tennessee said in the senate last June in a voluntary tribute to Senator Warren on the eve of his eighty-fifth birthday.

"Their names are household words throughout the country. And perhaps none of them has accomplished more for his state and nation than has Senator Warren. His splendid physique, his strong constitution, his handsome appearance, have stood him in good stead.

A Democrat's Tribute.

McKellar spoke as "an unswerving and fighting democrat, not believing in many of the things Senator Warren believes in," yet esteeming Warren as "one of the great men of our country" and a man "honorable, upright and courageous—a man who believes in the right and is willing to fight for the right as he sees it."

That was a rather remarkable tribute to come from across the political noman's land of the center aisle; and it took Warren utterly by surprise. He showed signs of deep emotion as he rose to make his thanks while the senators—republicans, democrats and irregulars alike—stood to applaud McKellar's tribute to the aged field marshal of the G. O. P. old guard.

He looked the part to his last day in the senate. A heavy shouldered, tall figure, held in soldierly erectness that bent very little under the growing weight of his years, Warren was the very beau ideal of a military generation that has all but passed on.

His thick white hair and the flowing hussar mustache which marked a sweeping double curve across his dark face, made him an unforgettable figure. He must have been a striking sight all those years ago when as an enlisted man in a Massachusetts infantry regiment in the war between the states he won the congressional medal of honor for gallantry in action at Port Hudson.

Perhaps it was his own decoration and his pride in it that inspired Senator Warren to offer the bill that created the distinguished service medal and cross for men of the world war. It was the Warren bill that passed the senate in July, 1917. It was a tribute from a fighting man of the '60s to those of 1917-18.

Laboratory Tests Are Lifesavers.

By J. M. Wicks, M. D.
Jamaica, New York.
(From Gorgas Memorial Institute)

Laboratory tests in the diagnosis of diseases of the human body occupy a position of considerable importance and trustworthiness. Without the information furnished by them it would be impossible to diagnose and treat disease intelligently.

Disease manifests itself in a multitude of ways. Many diseases present almost identical symptoms and physicians know that symptoms have the very bad habit of being deceptive. The recital of one's complaints rarely gives sufficient information, while the most careful examination often fails to elicit all the data necessary to make a correct diagnosis.

Before the final decision is reached the results of laboratory tests must be submitted as part of the evidence. These, in conjunction with the symptoms, establish the diagnosis. They assist materially in the treatment and if necessary, are repeated to keep informed of the progress of the disease and to estimate its probable outcome.

Laboratory tests are many and varied, each test seeking specific information. For example, certain blood tests may reveal the presence of the anemias, of infection of malaria, typhoid fever and syphilis. Other blood tests aid in the control of diabetes and determine the degree of damage to the function of the kidneys. And so it is with examinations of stomach contents, urine, feces, pus, sputum and spinal fluid; important information, hidden from the eyes and the examining fingers, become known. Thus a comprehensive survey of the disease is made, assuring an intelligent mode of attack.

Laboratory tests have also been of great service by placing in their proper category as symptoms of disease instead of causes of disease, the conditions known as indigestion, dyspepsia, congestive headache, rheumatic pains, neuralgia, neuritis, biliousness, chills and fever, and a host of others often attributed to "nervousness."

The widespread use of laboratory tests in health as a "check up" will prevent the development of serious diseases by detecting them in their incipience; particularly those diseases which being without the usual symptoms of fever, pain and prostration.

Furthermore, the routine use of laboratory tests in seemingly slight disturbances of health will eliminate harmful self-drugging. It will cripple the activities of patent medicine promoters and silence the ever-ready dispensers of worthless advice to the sick.

Laboratory tests have taken the practice of medicine out of the realm of guesswork and added it to the rank of science, the sole object of which is to increase the comforts and lessen the pains of human existence. So give them a chance by telling your family doctor that you are willing to give time and spend money for a real health audit every year, and are no longer satisfied with a superficial feeling of your pulse and glance of your tongue.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORY

Reddy Fox Makes a Discovery.

By Thornton W. Burgess.

He'll ne'er find much who stays at home;
Rewards are for the ones who roam.
—Reddy Fox.

Reddy Fox was hungry. It was nothing new for Reddy to be hungry. If any one knows what hunger is, it is Reddy Fox. There are times when for long periods Reddy has very little to eat. But Reddy is not the kind to be discouraged just because he is hungry.

Reddy stood in his doorway and tried to make up his mind where he would go hunting that night. Winter had come and winter usually means hard times for many of the little people of the Green Forest and the Green Meadows. This is especially true of the meat eaters, for they cannot store up food; it will not keep.

"It is going to be a fine moonlight night," said Reddy to Mrs. Reddy, who had just joined him. "I think I'll go exploring tonight."

"What do you mean by exploring?" asked Mrs. Reddy.

"I mean," replied Reddy, "that I'll go hunting where I have never been before; or at least where I have not been for a very long time. The Green Forest and the Green Meadows haven't given us much of late and it seems a waste of time to hunt over the same old ground. So I think I'll go farther from home this time."

"A good idea, Reddy, a very good idea," said Mrs. Reddy. "Shall I go with you?"

"No," replied Reddy, "No, my dear. Why don't you go in a different direction and explore? That will double our chances of finding a good hunting ground. Then tomorrow night we can go wherever the hunting is best."

Mrs. Reddy nodded her head approvingly. "That suits me," said she. "You go one way and I'll go another way and between us we ought to find something. My, my, but I am hungry. A mouse, a good fat mouse, wouldn't be a bite. I want a good fat hen or a good fat duck."

Reddy grinned. "I feel much the same way," said he. "I can't think of anything in all the Great World that would make me quite so happy as a good fat hen, unless it was two good fat hens. Well, it is time we were off. Watch out for dogs, my dear, watch out for dogs. Don't take any chances."

Mrs. Reddy chuckled. "That's good advice, Reddy," said she. "That's very good advice, but if we didn't take any chances, I'm afraid we would starve. Life seems to me very much like one chance after another. Well, here's good hunting to you."

Reddy knew just where he was going. There was a distant farm he had once crossed a long time ago. He had not hunted there, but he had always kept that farm in mind as a place where he would hunt some time. There were chickens there. There were ducks there also. Reddy had heard both that time when he was crossing the farm. He didn't know anything about how well they were protected. He meant to find out tonight.

So Reddy trotted along, keeping always in the shadows. It was a long way to that farm and several times he was tempted to stop and hunt by the wayside. But he didn't. And so at last he reached that farm. Then Reddy became very, very cautious. There were lights in the farmhouse, so Reddy waited. He wouldn't go too near until those lights were out. Not far from the barn was an orchard. They were old apple trees, big ones. Reddy made his way over to the Old Orchard. As he stole along in the shadows he heard a movement above him. He looked up. He saw a dozen great dark masses against the sky. He knew what they were.

"That's good advice, Reddy," said she.

Little Talks on Thrift

Hard Work and Thrift.

One of the ill effects of the recent era of over-speculation in this country rested in the fact that it proved a serious interruption to the routine work of a very large number of persons.

It is reported that many men and women actually gave up good positions because, due to their temporary success in the market, they felt that their days of work were over. They had discovered the philosopher's stone. They could make an ever increasing amount of money without really working for it.

While the number of persons who actually did this might have been comparatively limited, the excitement due to the speculative activities of the market caused many others to neglect their work. They performed the labors for which they were being paid with only half a mind and perhaps in many instances not quite that. Their thoughts were on the market—on the great profits they were reaping and the great wealth they were going to acquire without the usual processes of hard work and careful saving.

It would not be possible to estimate the value of these losses to the business world during the last year or more. Time is money and when a considerable percentage of our population wastes time day after day to no good purpose, the loss in terms of dollars, if it could be so computed, would be prodigious.

The least that can be said is that during the intensive era of speculation there must have been a very serious let down in individual efficiency upon the part of many.

But we are now facing a new era—an era in which thrift and hard work will be given more attention. It brings us back to the old fundamental fact that only through these practices can permanent, personal progress be realized.—By S. W. Straus, President American Society for Thrift.

FOLLERIN' THE BAND

WHO hasn't "followed" the band up Main street, or up Broadway or Michigan boulevard? Heart pumping joyously, feet beating the ground in time! Grandly intoxicating moment of childhood!

And—later in life—who hasn't felt a thrill as the conductor lifted his baton for the overture to begin? A moment pregnant with the glamour of the theatre! Music casts its spell throughout all the Ages of Man.

Is it wise then, in this enlightened and prosperous day to countenance substitution of a shadow of music for the real thing in the theatre?

Imagine the Irish following a Music Box on St. Patrick's Day! Or fife and drum music by a Machine on Memorial Day! Incongruous? Of course, but not more so than a mechanical overture in the theatre.

Talking pictures—a new dramatic form; the radio—which transmits music directly and DOES reflect the artist's mood of the moment; the phonograph in the home—where living music usually is not available—are not at issue here. We are discussing only the SUBSTITUTION OF MECHANICAL MUSIC FOR REAL MUSIC IN THE THEATRE, in consequence of which Real Music is being eliminated in theatres.

POETRY

Truth Stands, God Reigns

Truth stands, God reigns, Christ walks today,
Love lives within the hearts of men;
The things that seem to pass away
A little while, return again,
A little while the shadows fall
And that is all.

The night comes down, and mountain peaks
Are lost to view, the grassy slope;
Yet, at the darkest, memory speaks
The lovely prophecy of hope:
No peaks at midnight we discern,
But they return.

The rising sun again will gild
The summit that is lost to sight.
When darkness shuts around you, build—
Yes, keep on building in the night.
Still undiscouraged, since you know
These things are so.

Doubt not, fear not; work on and wait;
As sure as dawn shall conquer dark
So love will triumph over hate,
And spring will bring again the lark.
Yes, if for truth you labor here,
You need not fear.

—By Douglas Malloch.

How Old Is She?

(Being one of those black moments which occur in the lives of those who won't admit they remember the World's Fair.)

When I was six I wore a ferris-waist
A dull affair I buttoned up alone.
My mother was most elegantly laced,
And gasped behind a fence of herring-bone;

At twenty I was fashionably choked
By collars curved in front and wired high
Beneath my ears they being spoked
Like banisters, which could not twist awry;

At twenty-five I stood in dumb despair
Bitter . . . disheartened to the very core—
I simply could not flop my sullen hair
Into a large, imposing pompadour;

At thirty all my locks were barber-shorn,
My ears became a myth . . . my legs appeared
(Unbeautiful, yet legs were being worn),
And mine were even worse than I had feared;

Today my last year's clothes are merely duds,
A swaying line of under-nourished things—
Will there be "wing-glass" waists . . . and solid pugs
Of hair . . . and bustles soon . . . and bonnet strings?

DEAN OF DRUGGISTS RETIRES FROM BUSINESS

A business partnership of 23 years in the drug business was formally ended Saturday night when Albert T. Utley senior member of the firm of Utley and Jones, retired from the firm and from active business life in this city. He is to make his home at Neptune Park, New London, and it is with poignant feelings of regret that those who have been associated with him so long in the drug trade here realize his withdrawal from it.

He came to the Lee and Osgood firm in 1866 and was continuously with them until he left them to form the Utley and Jones partnership. DISCUSSED METHODS OF SEARCH FOR RELIGION

In part he spoke as follows:

Certain accompaniments of organized religion are made so prominent that we are apt to assume they are a vital part of religion itself. Both the Pharisees and the Sadducees demanded of Jesus a miraculous sign to confirm his presumed authority. The Florentines executed Savonarola when he failed to validate his claims to leadership by a supernatural sign. In our own midst today are men who strongly insist that to deny the supernatural is at the same to rob him of his credentials, for to them there is no Christ without the supernatural.

Again, some people identify religion with the power to heal bodily sickness etc. The modern hospitals are today healing intelligently most of the diseases reported as common in New Testament days; it is also true that today we recognize the power of mind and purposeful personality over muscular energy; at times we feel better because we will to be better; we do things when the house is afire which are impossible at other times.

At the shrine of St. Anne—near historic Quebec—for many years the vestibule was stacked high with crutches of the cripples who had sought the shrine for the healing of bodily ailments. Within the last month or two, literally thousands of persons—of contrasted ages and of varying disabilities—from nearby and from thousands of miles distance—have assembled at Holy Cross cemetery, Malden, Mass., at the grave of a young priest who died some 60 years ago. These devotees who bean flowers and precious trinkets on the grave believe that the waters of a nearby spring have the power to heal of all disease. Interest may center not in these who leave the place in the same condition as before but rather in those who declare themselves partly cured; a condition not without possible commercial advantage and not without buoyancy of hope to the victims.

The search for religion must not be confined to those who yearn for the magical and the spectacular nor to such as may be afflicted by grievous disease; it must be the effort of the normal and healthy soul to acquaint itself with life's varied aspects and to find the strength and share the peace which comes from an absolute confidence in the inviolable laws of great nature.

Shall you seek religion undefiled beneath fretted vaults and towering arches; shall you seek it before some distant great white throne, where sits a sovereign Judge? How remote is such a thought from the teaching of Him whose lips spoke the parable of the Good Samaritan by the roadside. The ancient Psalmist tells of the worship of the "humble and contrite heart"; Isaiah rejects the ceremonious plea and gives the ethical command "Wash and be clean"; while as an echo from Jesus, the epistle of James records—"pure religion and undefiled is to visit the widow and the fatherless and to keep oneself unspotted from the world."

DEBATE WHETHER 18TH AMENDMENT IS AGAINST SPIRIT OF THE CONSTITUTION

If Christ were living in the United States today, He would be subject to a possible fine of $10,000 and confinement for five years, said John Sergeant Wise, Jr., a New York attorney, in an interesting and forceful debate on the resolution, That the 18th Amendment is Opposed to the Spirit of the American Constitution, which was held at 8 o'clock Sunday evening at the Central Baptist church under the auspices of the Woman's Crusade of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union before a large and interested audience. Mr. Wise argued the affirmative side of the question, while Prof. Albert Levitt of Redding, Conn., took the negative side.

Mayor Robbins Presides

The debaters were introduced by His Honor, Mayor Lee Roy Robbins, who also presided after the opening exercises, which were in charge of Rev Joseph Cooper, pastor of Trinity Methodist Episcopal church. Prayer was offered by Rev. Percy Kilmister, pastor of the First Baptist church. In introducing the speakers Mayor Robbins said that Prof. Levitt was no stranger to a Norwich audience, having appeared here twice previously, but that Attorney Wise was making his first appearance.

Both of them are war veterans, said the mayor, Attorney Wise being a veteran of the Spanish American war, and Prof. Levitt being a veteran of the Philippine Islands and World wars. Mayor Robbins said that "I know of no question which has agitated the land since the time of slavery as has the subject of prohibition." "We are all interested in this subject," said the mayor, "and we all should take a stand." The mayor explained that it had been agreed that the debate would last for one hour and 10 minutes, the time to be divided up as follows: Prof. Levitt to speak 25 minutes, on the negative, and Attorney Wise for 20 minutes on the affirmative; in the rebuttal 15 minutes for the affirmative and 10 minutes for the negative.

Argument For The Affirmative

Though the thirteen colonies represented practically thirteen segregated and separated religious psychologies, there was one common ground and bond of unity, and that was the doctrine contained in the Declaration of Independence. The whole purpose of the Constitution is embraced in the preamble: "We, the people of the United States, in order to form a more perfect union, establish justice, insure domestic tranquility, provide for the common defense, promote the general welfare, and secure the blessings of liberty to ourselves and our posterity, do ordain and establish this Constitution for the United States of America."

The seven articles following are merely prescriptions of administrative methods of accomplishing these purposes. In all the conventions, the arguments against making a more perfect union were the dangers of impairing the local sovereignties of the states and the dangers of subjecting men to extra governmental forces.

It was pointed out and understood beyond equivocation that in the federal government there was and could be no sovereignty that all sovereignty remained in the people, and that as to all matters not necessary to the general welfare and defense of the Union, the several states should retain their absolute control. It was the solicitude for this local sovereignty that the supreme court of the United States was composed, charged with its first obligation to protect the people against any aggressions of this central government and to enforce the provision in the Constitution that every state was guaranteed a republican form of government. It was to make assurance doubly sure that they insisted upon the eighth and ninth amendments being added to the constitution: "Amendment IV. The enumeration in the constitution, of certain rights, shall not be construed to deny or disparage others retained by the people. Amendment X. The powers not delegated to the United States by the constitution, nor prohibited by it to the states, are reserved to the states respectively, or to the people."

These were not only definitions of exclusions of that power from the constitution, but were injunctions that the supreme court of the United States would defend the people against any construction that invaded their state fields of government or sought to deny or disparage any of those rights proclaimed in the Declaration of Independence.

All of the mind and thought of the people of the day was unequivocal in that direction, and until the decision of the national prohibition cases, it was never dreamed that any such construction could be resorted to.

Demosthenes, in his second Philippic said:

"There is one safeguard known generally to the wise, which is an advantage and security to all, especially to democracies against despots. What is it? Distrust."

In Volume IV of the Secret Journals of Congress, 1818 to 1820, pp. 185-287, we find the report of John Jay, secretary for foreign affairs, October 13, 1786, reading as follows:

"By the common law  every man (has a right) to eat and drink what he pleases  Admit that * a certain gentleman injured his health by intemperance; admit these facts; would it thence follow that every or any good natured efficious man, who might think himself more judicious and prudent has a right to hinder * the bonvivant from indulging his appetite? Surely not."

So on from time to time, the subject came up.

Mr. Wise went on to quote at length from many legal opinions bearing on the line of his argument.

In bringing his side of the debate to a conclusion he said:

As late as June 8th, 1918, the present chief justice of the supreme court of the United States is quoted as saying: "I am opposed to national prohibition because it is a mixing of the national government in a matter that should be one of local settlement.  I think it will rest in the national government and those who administer it will have so great a power as to be dangerous in political matters."

No one has a sounder denunciation to prohibition than Chief Justice Taft. It was addressed before the Yale alumni in 1923. He charged it was keenly sumptuary, hard to enforce, takes no regard of international consideration and puts into jeopardy all national, state and local issues because it has created a party strong enough to wreck any legislation it opposes whether it be in the field or outside. In his book, "Liberty Under Law," (1922) he says:

"This is not a referendum to the people. It is a referendum to the people's representatives. We may reasonably infer that the framers of the constitution did not intend to have our fundamental law amended by any temporary wave of popular frenzy."

Priestcraft has ever been the wickedest and cruelest of tormentors and persecutors of people, when they have been known to gain ascendency in temporal affairs. The dark ages were the products of priests. Today we have its manifestations in the prohibition law. We have the Anti-Saloon league boasting of the church in action, and the Methodist church boasting that it has a majority of the senate and house of representatives of the United States, and while they call themselves Christians and boast their faith in the divinity of the Saviour, and proclaiming his perfection, they are passing statutes under which today they would make Him a criminal and subject Him to a possible fine of $10,000 and confinement for five years and their myrmidons of torture. They cheer on the floor of congress at the report that another citizen has been shot and killed for doing what from the time of the beginning of the world has been lawful and paid licensed taxes to the government.

In a speech at Trenton, Abraham Lincoln said he believed popular liberty was more important than national liberty. Well might he for without it man gains nothing and may lose all by being subject of a despotic tyrannous nation though such nation be free of other governments.

When the Revolution was fought for the principles of the Declaration of Independence, Britain of which we were subjects, had national liberty.

This, your own state, and Rhode Island have refused to ratify the eighteenth amendment.

The bar associations of Philadelphia, the Cradle of Liberty, of Boston which encompasses Bunker's Hill, and of New York, your great commercial center, of Phoenix, Arizona, and of Waterville, Connecticut, have solemnly passed resolutions declaring their sense that the amendment, the Volstead act and all orders and regulations for their enforcement, should be repealed and the subject of prohibition be remitted to the sole regulation of the several states on the ground that the eighteenth amendment is inconsistent with the spirit and purpose of the constitution and in derogation of the liberties of the citizens and rights of the state guaranteed by the first ten amendments thereto.

These resolutions stand as the deliberation of great bodies of men peculiarly equipped to consider this subject.

They arrived at this opinion notwithstanding the decisions of the supreme court in the national prohibition cases and after observing about nine years of the despotic tyranny in the efforts at pretended enforcement.

Argument By Prof. Levitt

Prof. Levitt spoke in part as follows in his negative arguments:

The "Spirit of the American Constitution" means the purpose for which the constitution was created. This purpose is to be found in two places; first, in the preamble to the federal constitution, and; second, in the several articles of the federal constitution, including the first 17 and the 19th amendments. The 18th amendment is to be tested by reference to these two factors. And the questions are: 1. Is the prohibition amendment opposed to the spirit of the preamble of the constitution? 2. Is the prohibition amendment opposed to the spirit of the express provisions of the constitution? The answer to both these questions is: No.

The ninth amendment reserves to "The people' rights not enumerated as theirs in the various other provisions. The tenth reserves all rights not expressly given to the United States nor prohibited to the states to "the states or to the people." Neither of these solves the problem as to whether or not the prohibition amendment is contrary to their spirit. Both give final power to the people to do as they wish. The 18th amendment does not in any way interfere with that power. It cannot be assumed that the tenth amendment puts prohibition in the province of the states only. The language is expressly added "or to the people." If the entire people wish to act on prohibition they may. And they did when they passed the 18th amendment. Whether prohibition should or should not be left with the states is a question which cannot be decided by the tenth amendment at all. The answer to that question depends on what is best for the general welfare.

The preamble shows the entire purpose of the constitution, said Mr. Levitt, and he proceeded to show how he claimed that the provisions of the preamble do not in spirit oppose the prohibition amendment. In part he said:

"Establish justice." The prohibition amendment does not touch that. The only possible thought that comes to me is that the liquor interests were put out of business without compensation. But that is always done when the general welfare calls for it. Local option did it. All things which are evil may be destroyed without compensation.

"Insure domestic tranquility." It is a commonplace of knowledge that those who are under the influence of liquor are more likely to disturb the peace than those who are sober. If prohibition does reduce the amount of inebriety then it favors the insuring of domestic tranquility. It is not opposed to domestic tranquility.

"Provide for the common defense." Here we can definitely say that our experience in the World war proves that prohibition did provide for the common defense. The wisdom of using only sober men for fighting was proven again and again by the kind of fighting our men did. The spirit of common defense was better served by prohibition than by its enemies.

"Promote the general welfare." Here we come to the crux of the entire discussion. Does prohibition promote the general welfare? It does.

In support of this contention Mr. Levitt said that prohibition has abolished the saloon and all its concurrent evils, had reduced the consumption of alcoholic liquor and helps to abolish the drinking of alcohol altogether.

Further, he declared that investigations show that the health of the people has improved, prohibition being a marked benefit to women and children. Big business wants prohibition he said, instancing Ford, the duPonts and the railroads as putting the ban on drinking employes. Prohibition has led to investigations which show that the moderate drinker is a serious menace in these days of high-power automobiles. The man who takes just a drink or two and then drives his automobile endangers the countryside. The economic benefits of prohibition have been great. Bank deposits have increased. More and better homes have been built. Greater educational advantages have been created for children and young people.

In conclusion, he said: "Secure the blessings of liberty to ourselves and our posterity." The blessings of liberty are such opportunities which allow each citizen to develop his highest and best without harming the rest of the people. Liberty is not license. Liberty is not absolute freedom to do as one wishes without regard to the consequences of one's acts. Liberty means freedom under law. Personal liberty stops where the possibility of harm to the rest of the people begins. If an individual wishes to do that which hurts the community he is prevented from doing what he wishes to do. If liquor drinking and the liquor traffic hurt the general welfare, liberty does not exist, and never did exist, to drink or to engage in the liquor traffic.

There seems to be no section of the constitution of the United States which is opposed in spirit to the prohibition amendment.

Rebuttal By Wise

In rebuttal Attorney Wise said that the voters corrupted the barrooms, "you wouldn't elect decent people to office: you picked men who wouldn't be honest: they made the business corruptible." He said that "500,000 speakeasies have taken the place of the 125,000 saloons in the country," and went on to speak of the federal interference. He said that "all over the country it is generally reported that you can get pretty nearly what you want."

Levitt Makes Answer

In his remarks in rebuttal, Prof. Levitt said that "whatever corruption there has been you (meaning the voters) have been responsible in part," agreeing with Attorney Wise's contention. He said "the situation in Washington is like this: That the wet men are voting dry and the dry men are voting wet." Prof. Levitt said that "I disagree with Attorney Wise in that does it not matter to Connecticut whether New York is wet, or North Carolina is dry, etc." "What concerns Connecticut concerns the rest of the nation," he said. He contended that interstate commerce is something for federal interference.

In closing Prof. Levitt said "Do you think individually as you are drinking that you are furthering the development of freedom in your soul or freedom as an American." He asked the question "are you saying that I do because I am a free born American?"

At the conclusion of the debate a representative of the Woman's Christian Temperance union urged that the congregation be liberal in their offerings as the union had somewhat of an expense in holding the debate. She said that within the past three years the union has been instrumental in bringing to Norwich a number of noted speakers, who have spoken along educational lines.

At the suggestion of Rev. David A. Pitt, D. D., pastor of the church, a rising vote of thanks was extended to the speakers for their very interesting and instructive talks.

40 SCOUTS BRAVE WINTRY BLASTS AT FORT SHANTOK

Despite the "ten above zero" weather, two score scouts hiked along, singin' a song to the Fort Shantok, State park, Saturday morning and afternoon and had one big time. Troop 7, Duwell Athletic club troop, left the scout office at 9:30, carrying with them a 20-quart milk can in which they prepared more cocoa than the hikers could drink. At 1:15 the main body of scouts left Franklin square led by Scout Commissioner A. L. Peale and Scout Executive John L. Sullman.

Reaching the end of the "first fare," the hikers alighted from the trolley car and hiked the two miles to Fort Shantok. On the way they played a game of Ceasar Borgia's ring, in which Grant Dennison and Edward Lichenstein managed to keep the ring away from the rest of the group for almost half an hour. In the name of the scout oath, law and scout motto, I demand the dread ring of Ceasar Borgia," again and again could be heard as the scouts demanded the ring from each other. The prize for locating the bandits possessing the ring was a handful of eats.

Arriving at their destination, the scouts divided into two groups with Grant Dennison and Edward Lichenstein as captains. There occurred a hard fought battle between the "reds" and the "blues." Each side tried to tear off the "scalp," an arm band, from the arm of an enemy. The Blues finally won with a margin of four scalps. Then followed a game of strategy, capture the flag, in which neither side won, for neither side was able to carry away the "enemy's" flag.

Scout Commissioner A. L. Peale, Assistant Scoutmaster John P. Boldrighini, and Assistant Scoutmaster Robert Burke, succeeded in locating the old site of Fort Shantok. The scouts gathered around three big fires and cooked steaks, weiners, and marshmellows. Quite a few made twists, camp bread, and every one drank as much hot cocoa as they could hold. Even the mascot dog was given a pan full of cocoa and lapped it up thankfully. The scouts hiked back via the Indian cemetery where Scout Commissioner A. L. Peale gave a brief account and description of the habitat of the Indians who had formerly lived on the site. The scouts reached Franklin square at 6:15.

SERMON ON EUCHARIST BY REV. FR. GALVIN

December in St. Patrick's church began with large congregations at the four masses. There were hundreds at communion, beginning with the mass at 7:30, when the numerous penitents going to the altar were led by the Children of Mary society, Miss Coleman president. Rt. Rev. Msgr. M. H. May, who read the low mass having the aid of one of his assistants in giving communion. At the Italian Catholics' mass at 8:15 it was the same, also at 9, when Rev. John J. Reilly required the assistance of Rev. Myles F. Galvin. The sermon was delivered by Father Galvin. At all the services of the day the offering was for the Catholic University of America at Washington. There is special local interest in this great institution of learning since the Dean of the Sisters' college there is Rt. Rev. Msgr. Patrick J. McCormick, whose home is on Prospect street, Norwich.

Rev. Father Galvin continued his instruction on the holy eucharist, that sacrament which Roman Catholics firmly believe is in substance the body and blood, soul and divinity of Jesus Christ under the appearance of bread and win. Father Galvin took up the word substance. Certain branches of the Christian church still continue to receive both bread and wine in continuing Christ's command, "Do this in commemoration of Me," but with the Roman Catholic church the laity receive holy communion under the form of bread alone.

In the church we are in the presence of God the second person of the blessed trinity, Who so loved men that He gave His life for them. The Jews of old set modern Christians an example by their reverence in the temple, where they had but the ark of the covenant—merely the promise of Christ. Catholics have Christ Himself, yet they will remain in church often in distraction, indifference and inattention. Only the high priest of the Jews might enter the holy of holies—and that but once a year. The other priests were barred this privilege and the laity remained at the entrance. The preacher impressed the point of the reverence and attention, the love and recollection which all Catholics should manifest during mass and in their visits to their churches, where they believe themselves in the very presence of Christ, their Redeemer.

The "Y" team, after losing its first two starts of the season by single points, won from the Thread City "Y" Saturday night by the score of 42-29.

The first half of the game was fairly even, first one team being in the lead and then the other team forging ahead. At half time the score stood 17-16 in Norwich's favor, but after the start of the second half the Norwich quintet was never headed.

The local "Y" displayed a much improved passing game over the first two games but needs a little polishing up for their entrance into the State league which starts Dec. 7, at which time Norwich will go to Greenwich.

In Saturday's encounter, Harris and Pingree played brilliant games while Meikle was the outstanding feature for Willimantic.

NATIONAL P. G. A. PLAY STARTS TODAY AT LOS ANGELES

LOS ANGELES, Calif., Dec. 1—(AP)—Over the well trapped fairways of the Hillcrest course tomorrow will troop the greatest figures of the professional ranks in the opening skirmish of a six day battle that will decide the 1929 championship of the Professional Golfers association.

Led by the incomparable Walter Hagen, the field that will seek both gold and glory in a golfing way is the most brilliant ever assembled in southern California for tournament play. Hagen, five times wearer of the crown he will start after again tomorrow, and present British open title holder, is the "big gun" of the pro golfing clan. His is expected to be the sternest challenge to the home of Leo Diegel of Agua Caliente, defending champion.

Closely trailing these two outstanding favorites are such contenders as Gene Sarazen, Horton Smith, Tommy Armour, Johnny Farrell, Abe Espinosa, William Mehlhorn, Harry Cooper—names that are by words in the annals of the royal and ancient pastime.

Sarazen captured the national open and P. G. A. titles in 1922 and successfully defended his P. G. A. laurels a year later. Smith showed that he must be reckoned with, winning the $6,000 Berkeley open Saturday with 280 strokes for the 72 hole event.

Diegel, a slight pre-tourney favorite over the field, won the title last year after eliminating Hagen in the third round. Although not rated on a golfing par with Hagen, he is far more familiar with the Hillcrest course.

The financial incentive is $10,400 in prizes, the largest purse ever played for before in the far west. A 36 hole qualifying round tomorrow will bring out 67 sectional qualifiers. Tomorrow's 32 low scorers will make up the championship bracket. Match play of 36 holes will be held with the finals on next Saturday.

SMITH WINS BERKELEY OPEN; MILLER DROPS OUT

Smith posted par 280 for the 72 hole grind while Burke, Ryder cup star, was three strokes behind. In a finish filled with birdies the world's most consistent professional speeded up in each round to close with a rush at 74-71-69-66—280. Burke took a steady 71-69-71-72—283.

From the outset yesterday it was a duel between Smith and Burke. While fair weather stars fell by the way, Smith pierced a thick fog in the morning with 17 pars and one birdie for a card of 69 one under par and buffeted a cold wind in the afternoon for a record breaking 66, his most brilliant golf of the tournament.

Smith started five holes behind Burke and was three behind at luncheon. He went three ahead on the first nine holes of the final round, taking the turn in 31, four under par while Burke faltered to 37, two over par. Both came home in par 35.

Third money went to Johnny Perelli, former caddy from the Berkeley Country club, who turned in 288.

Mannie Miller, after getting an 81 in the morning round failed to turn in a card in the final 18 holes played in the afternoon. Miller was in 11th place at the half-way mark.

LITTLE ACTION IN N. Y. RINGS THIS WEEK

NEW YORK, Dec. 1—(AP)—With Madison Square Garden closed to boxing because of the six-day bicycle race, the national cauliflower industry strikes a sharp slump this week.

The only first-rate fight on the national schedule will be held at Chicago tomorrow night when Jackie Fields, welterweight champion, meets Billy Light of St. Paul, in the ten round windup of the weekly White City card. Fields' title, however, will not be at stake as the fight will be at 149 pounds, one pound over the welterweight limit.

A Philadelphia favorite, Benny Bass, crack junior lightweight, takes on Jose Martinez of Spain in the ten round feature at the Philadelphia arena tomorrow night. Eddie Shea, Chicago featherweight contender, meets Young Montreal of Providence in a ten rounder at St. Louis Tuesday night and Tommy Grogan, Omaha, and Joe Glick, Brooklyn, lightweights, will furnish the chief ten round entertainment at San Francisco Friday night.

Other bouts on the national schedule include:

St. Nicholas arena, Bob Olin, New York, vs. Joe Banovix, Binghamton, N. Y., light heavyweights, and Andy Divodi, New York, vs. Jackie Phillips, Canada, welterweights, each ten rounds.

Tuesday—At St. Louis, King Tut, Minneapolis, vs. Joey Kauffman, New York, lightweights, and Jimmy Hackley, Indianapolis, vs. Lou Terry, St. Louis; at Los Angeles, K. O. Christner, Akron, O., vs. Les Kennedy, Long Beach, heavyweight, ten rounds.

Friday—At Toledo, Kayo Morgan, Toledo, vs. Happy Atherton, Indianapolis, featherweights, ten rounds.

HINKLE IS LEADING SCORER IN COUNTRY

NEW YORK, Dec. 1—(AP)—Clark Hinkle's Thanksgiving day spree totaling eight touchdowns and two extra points in a game Bucknell won from Dickenson by 78 to 0 enabled the Bucknell battering ram not only to take the eastern individual scoring leadership from Al Marsters of Dartmouth but also to shoot into first place in the country-at-large. Hinkle's stampede for 50 points against this minor college opposition sent his season's total to 128, twenty points more than Marsters accumulated before suffering a fractured vertebra in the Yale game.

Hinkle just falls dto set a season's record for points by one player in a game. Ringle of Gallaudet scored nine touchdowns and five extra points against Shenandoah some weeks ago for a total of 59 points.

Although Marsters failed to hold the top against Hinkle's spurt, he did remain second by a rather comfortable margin over Dowler of Colgate, who scored two touchdowns in his final game against Brown to run his total to 90. Ringle finished fourth with 83 points, and Niles of Lowell Textile, sixth with 79.

Albie Booth, the Blue streak from Yale, who finished in a tie for twelfth in the individual list, was the only one near the top flight to score a goal from the field. The ten high eastern scorers are:

ERO PETERSON TO BE DARR'S OPPONENT

Vic Darr, the unique, but nevertheless clever local boxer, will meet Ero Peterson of Worcester in the six round preliminary on the Shvuna club card at Parish hall on Friday evening. Darr was originally matched with Billy Muir of Worcester, but Muir received a bad cut over his eye in a training bout recently and will not be able to go against Darr.

Peterson, who comes from the same stable as Muir, is perhaps a better opponent than Muir would have been. Peterson is no stranger to Norwich boxing fans having shown his wares here two winters ago at the amateur bouts put on by the Duwell club. It will be remembered that Peterson, even as an amateur, was quite some boy and gave plenty of action during his stay in the ring. Since leaving the amateurs he has been going just as well and has a long string of victories to his credit, winning 20 out of his 21 last bouts. Among his victims are Joe Knapp, Jackie Dupont, Frankie Jenkins, Johnny Delano and others.

By substituting Peterson for Muir the matchmaker has added considerable to the attractiveness of the card.

A bout between he and Darr should be a mighty fine appetizer for the three star bouts that follow. Darr is training hard for his bout and has developed a shift that gives him another potent weapon.

The way Vic developed the shift is interesting. Darr, as everybody knows, is a natural left-handed fighter, and always led with the right hand. When Johnny Kop was training for his professional rise he could get no one to train with him but Darr. Kop, who was going to fight a right hander did not get much of a workout against the left handed stance of Darr. So the natural thing to do was to have Darr change to right hand boxing. At first it came mighty hard for Darr to box from the right side but as the workouts continued he became more proficient.

Finally when Kop was ready for his bout Darr had acquired as pretty a shift as anyone would want to see. The result is that Darr can box as well right handed as he can left, which means that any opponent is going to be completely upset if Darr suddenly shifts from one style to the other.

Sussie Says

The other day I read a report of a lecture by Prof. Robert E. Rogers, of M. I. T., in which he said "Bridge playing is the lowest depths to which the human being can fall."

There, you bridge fiends, mull that over for a coupla minutes and be ashamed of yourselves. And you folks thought you was being highbrow when you was playing this low form of amusement.

He says the game is "a combination of reflex sections and mental telepathy from which no great nourishment is obtained," whatever that means.

The last crack of his is where I think he's all wet. Believe me, if I could work that mental telepathy racket in a game at a cent a point I'd have enough nourishment to last me as long as I lived.

Looks to me like this professor had biz five no-trumps with a singleton and the opposition had run him razzed. A break like that sure would make any man think it was a low form of amusemnet.

But it sure was a surprise to read that bridge was such a degrading game. I supposed that anybody that played a decent game of bridge was an intellectual giant.

I know before I sunk to the "lowest depths" I would watch a foursome at bridge and think that if I ever could learn to play the game I'd feel as proud as a kid with his first long pants.

But after hearing what the prof says about the game I ain't so sure but that I oughta core in for dominoes or seven-up. And many's the time since I tried to play the game that I felt it was a low sort of game.

At least, it may have been me that was low instead of the game. But just the same what would we do without our bridge clubs? How would we learn all the dirt about the neighbors if it wasn't for bridge?

And what would some of the men do for alibis if they couldn't say that they had been playing bridge all the evenings? Believe me that game has saved as many reputations as it has wrecked them.

Well, I hope they don't pass an amendment against it just the same.

TIGERS STRENGTHEN HOLD ON FIRST PLACE IN C-A LOOP

BOSTON, Dec. 1—(AP)—The Boston Tigers, by winning two of last week's three games, strengthened their hold on first place in the Canadian-American Hockey league standing. A week ago, the Boston sextet, last season's champions, shared the top position with the Providence Reds.

Three of the other four clubs in the circuit were deadlocked two full games behind the leaders. Philadelphia, beaten here last night by the Tigers, was unable to better its standing during the week and was again at the bottom of the list.

The official standing including games of November 30 follows:

	g	w	l	t	pts	gf	ga
Providence	6	3	2	0	6	13	27
Boston	7	5	2	0	10	40	22
Philadelphia	4	1	3	0	1	11	19

New Haven	6	3	3	0	6	15	14

TO REQUEST THAT GAMES NOT BE BROADCAST

ST. LOUIS, Dec. 1.—(AP)—P. D. C. Ball, president of the St. Louis Browns, today announced his intention to request the American league to prohibit radio broadcasting of American league baseball games next season.

He plans to lay the matter before the American league meeting in New York the week of Dec. 9. The Browns permitted broadcasting of their home games last season and it is Ball's theory that this cut down attendance at the games.

Dolan To Lead Westerly.

William Dolan, guard, has been elected captain of the 1930 Westerly high football team. The election was held last week with 26 members participating. Dolan's work was a feature of the Westerly season, when they copped the conference title for the first time in many years. Dolan has had two years' grid experience.

PITTSBURGH, NOTRE DAME AND PURDUE LAY CLAIM TO NATIONAL FOOTBALL TITLE

NEW YORK, Dec. 1.—(AP)—Football's frozen finish today finds the gridiron forces ready for winter quarters and one of the biggest debates yet waged for championship honors.

All factors considered, Notre Dame, Purdue and Pittsburgh probably can claim the biggest share of the gridiron laurels for a season of spectacular individual performance and record-shattering crowds in nearly every sector of the battle front. These three great arrays each finished tough schedules without defeat or a tie. Each displayed a powerful line and great backfield.

Purdue, winner of the Big Ten title for the first time, was hard pressed only by Iowa and Michigan in sweeping through the eight games triumphantly. Pittsburgh's closest call was against Nebraska but the Panthers displayed perhaps the greatest all-around scoring punch of any team in the country against first class opposition. Notre Dame dashed through a more exacting schedule than either Purdue or Pittsburgh, running up against a tough foe every week, but the Fighting Irish also came closest of the three to defeat. They beat Southern California by a single point and were hard pressed in their final game to conquer the Army with Jack Elder's 100-yard dash to a touchdown accounting for the only score of the spectacularly hard-fought game.

Notre Dame, Pittsburgh and Purdue not only figure in a three-cornered argument which has no definite basis for settlement, but they have to contend with the claims of at least four other outfits. Tulane in the south and Utah in the Rocky mountain area also topped off a fine season without the trace of defeat or tie. Texas Christian in the southwest and St. Mary's on the Pacific coast had only a single tie apiece to mar otherwise brilliant campaigns. The same thing was true of Tennessee.

No matter where they may be rated nationally, all all have strong claims for considerations. Tulane, Texas Christian, Utah and St. Mary's dominated the performances of their respective sections.

St. Mary's turned in a better record than any one of the famous California "Big Three" to make it a great year for the boys tutored by "Slip" Madigan, old Notre Dame star.

Last season the New Year's day game at Pasadena helped end a good share of the debate in favor of Georgia Tech, victor on that memorable occasion over California, but there appears no prospect of any post-season settlement this winter, even with a number of interesting games yet to be played in the west and south. To show how big the turnover can be in only a year's time, Georgia Tech, the dominant team of 1928, finished the campaign of 1929 far in the ruck, beaten no less than five times.

Jack Elder's sprinting, coupled with Old Man Opportunity, was the chief factor in saving Notre Dame from being rudely jolted from the top in its final game against the Army before a record eastern crowd of 82,000 at the Yankee stadium. With Captain Red Cagle and Johnny Murrel leading a sensational charge, the Soldiers threw a real scare into the Hoosiers with a drive that failed only because one of Cagle's aerials found a nesting place in the arms of the fleet Elder, with yards of clear space ahead of him.

It was a great victory for Notre Dame's line, which with the bare-headed Jack Cannon and pugnacious Ted Twomey, kept the Army from capitalizing three scoring chances.

Nevertheless, it was a climax to the tough luck campaign of the Soldiers, for they outplayed Notre Dame most of the game. Cagle said farewell to eastern gridirons with a great all-around performance. Murrel turned in one of his finest kicking and plunging exhibitions and the Army line, playing without a single substitution, gave the Irish forwards a gallant fight. It was typical of a season of bad "breaks" for the Cadets that when the critical goal line pass was intercepted, the job was done by the fleetest player of the enemy. Elder, who can do the "100" in ten seconds in his football togs. Besides furnishing the climax to a spectacular season, Army and Notre Dame shared honors as the greatest drawing cards. The Irish beat Southern California before the biggest gathering of American football history, 128,000, at Soldiers' field, Chicago, and played before more than 500,000 spectators in nine games. The Cadets filled the stadiums at Cambridge, New Haven, Champaign and New York, with another capacity crowd awaiting them in the Christmas week game at Palo Alto against Stanford.

Whatever the influence of the famous Carnegie report on subsidizing and recruiting of college football stars, it obviously had no effect upon the drawing power of the gridiron game. Nor did the much discussed new fumble rule extract the long-run thrills from a sport that in the east alone witnessed such climax runs as Dick Gentle's 102-yard gallop against Cornell and Jack Elder's 100-yard dash through the Army. Booth, Cagle, Marsters, Hinkle, Follet, Uansa, Fesler, Wolgast, Carideo, McEver, Banker, Leland and Lom were among the stars who registered long dashes for touchdowns in a season notable for its swift turns and "breaks." Tie games broke up two of the most successful marches of the season. Texas Christian ran wild through the southwest until held to a 7-7 deadlock yesterday by Southern Methodist but the Horned Frogs won the conference title anyway because S. M. U. previously had been tied by Texas. Tennessee ran neck and neck with Tulane all season for the Southern conference lead until stopped by Kentucky Thanksgiving day in a 6-6 tie. Thus for the second straight year, Kentucky kept its rival from sharing the Dixie lead.

Utah and Nebraska alone were able to retain major conference titles in a campaign otherwise featured by upsets. The Utes were not in much danger in the Rocky mountain sector as they won the title for the third time in four years. Nebraska led the Big Six again in spite of ties with Missouri and Oklahoma.

FEWER EGGS IN FOURTH WEEK IN STORRS CONTEST

In the fourth week of the Storrs egg laying contest all breeds showed a decrease in egg production. The total decrease for the week was 358 eggs less than last year. The hens in this year's laying contest seemed to go true to form as there was a decrease in last year's production for the same week. The total production for all pens was 4,129 eggs or a yield of 59.0 per cent. As a class White Leghorns had a higher batting average than any of the other breeds for the week. The per cent production for the Leghorns was 66.1 and their nearest competitors were the Rhode Island Reds with 61.2 per cent.

A pen of Rhode Island Reds owned by Harold G. Colt was an easy first for the week with a lay of 64 eggs. Second honors went to a pen of Barred Rocks and a pen of White Rocks. The former were owned by R. W. Davis & Sons of Rockland, Maine, and the latter by Harold F. Barber of Dover, Mass. These two pens laid 62 eggs respectively. The only look in that the White Leghorns had was third place. This was won by a pen owned by Toivonen Leghorn farm of Girard, Pa., that laid 61 eggs. No less than three pens were tied for fourth honors. These were distributed between a pen of Barred Rocks owned by R. Walter Bishop of Guilford, Conn., a pen of White Rocks owned by Davidson Bros. from Upton, Mass., and a pen of Rhode Island Reds owned by Homer R. Rowell of Groveland, Mass. These three pens of birds all laid 60 eggs each.

Running true to form, the leading pens in the principal varieties are swaying back and forth and at the present time there is no indication that any pen will be in first place two weeks from now. In the Barred Rock class, a pen owned by Lewis farms of Davisville, R. I. has jumped into third place. It is temporarily replacing the pen owned by David Dealerly of Fayette City, Pa. In the White Rock class E. H. Rucker's pen from Attumwa, Iowa, has passed the record of Kalerok farm of Westford, Mass. There are no changes among White Wyandottes but in the Rhode Island Reds the pen owned by W. Otis Day, of Westford, Mass., has advanced one step thus being in third place. In the Leghorn group a pen owned by Toivonen Leghorn farm of Girard, Pa. came through with 61 eggs for the week thus placing the pen as the third best in the Leghorn group. Otis T. Gregg's pen of Leghorns from West Willington, Conn. which held fourth place last week has dropped out of the running temporarily. It should be stated, however, that a pen owned by Tom Barron of England is tied with the pen owned by Fox & Sons of Little Falls, N. J. for fifth place.

FRENCH PRESS PLEASED WITH REICHSTAG VOTE

PARIS, Dec. 1—(AP)—The French press was virtually unanimous today in hailing with satisfaction the German reichstag's vote against the national referendum on the Young plan, describing it as "a crushing defeat for the nationalists."

The general impression in Paris is that a good majority is certain for ratification of the Young plan.

11 BODIES RECOVERED FROM WRECKED BUILDING

MARSEILLES France, Dec. 1.—(AP)—Eleven bodies had been recovered this morning from the wreckage of two adjoining three story apartment houses, which collapsed yesterday and it was feared that other victims might still be in the ruins.

Relief workers yesterday were spurred on by the cries of two children who were not freed until more than five hours after the accident.

Still Dry Warrior

Twenty-eight years ago Mrs. Lucy Willhoyt, of Upland, Cal., with Carrie Nation, broke a barroom mirror and kindled the beginning of a fight that ended with the passage of the eighteenth amendment, although they were jailed for their act. Today Mrs. Willhoyt, at 73, is still an active prohibition worker. She is shown as she attended a W. C. T. U. convention at San Diego.

GET LIQUOR IF ILL, SO THEY STAY SICK

HONOLULU (AP)—If the line that forms each Saturday at the government liquor dispensary is a correct barometer, Norfolk Island, British possession, has an "ailing" population.

For to get a bottle of liquor, one must be ill. One need not imagine any special type of ailment. So long as the adult applicant has not had an issue for two weeks he may apply for a certificate that "for purposes of general health" and under the provisions of the liquor prohibition law of 1913, he is entitled to a bottle.

It is the island's novel way of handling the prohibition question. Efforts are made to avoid excess. Drunkenness seldom occurs, but when it does the culprit quickly sobers under the suggestion by the administrator that stopping his issue for a month or two might help.

Minors are barred and beer is served only to persons under 30 years of age. Each person is expected to drink his or her own liquor. Islanders have long given up trying to get a second bottle through any pretext whatever.

EIGHT THIEVES WERE ARRESTED IN CHICAGO

CHICAGO, Dec. 1.—(AP)—Arrest of eight men and recovery of merchandise valued by authorities at $100,000 today, marked police efforts to break up what they termed a nation-wide ring of thieves. Warrants to search a warehouse here will be asked tomorrow, police said, adding that they expect to recover upwards of $500,000 in stolen merchandise.

Included in the merchandise seized was a carload of handkerchiefs stolen in New York and valued at $80,000. The loot had been sold for $3,000.

Among those under arrest are three employes of the railroad express agency, whose operatives aided in working up the case.

MAN BROKE THROUGH ICE AND WAS DROWNED

SHARON, Dec. 1.—(AP)—Breaking through the ice on a pond near his home, Arthur W. Bartholomew, 41, was drowned here today.

Bartholomew left his home shortly after dinner to inspect a spring nearby. When he failed to return two hours later, his wife became alarmed. A jagged hole in the ice in the center of the pond warned her of her husband's fate. The body was recovered soon after.

LENS MARKS LIFETIME OF SCIENTIST'S DEVOTION

WASHINGTON— (AP)—Crystal-gazing into thier own creation, the greatest optical lens ever made in America, bureau of standards experts have seen the measure of one man's devotion to science and humanity.

The 72-inch telescope reflector mirrors the amazing 91-year lifetime of the late Prof. Hiram Mills Perkins, Ohio Wesleyan university. It is the third largest in the world.

It is now in Pittsburgh, to receive its final reflecting coat, and is expected to be installed next summer to reveal the stars to modern youth in the Perkins observatory, named after the donor, at Ohio Wesleyan, Delaware, Ohio.

Far back in his own pinched youth, Perkins looked through a telescope and decided that if college boys and girls "could see with a greater eye the wonders of the sky, they would find the Creator and serve Him mor acceptably."

How he brought about that "greater eye" was revealed by A. N. Finn, of the bureau's optical division, whose successful experiment it was to produce the monster lens, when he took a last long look at a rare biographical document, before he closed the file of his task:

Hiram Mills Perkins, born 1833. Entered Ohio Wesleyan at 17; "worked through," along with his sister, Sarah. On graduation, he turned faculty member. He married a fellow science teacher. She joined him, his sister, and her husband in a strange and secret enterprise.

A "Mr. X," model of thrift and systematic saving, appeared on the university accounting books, building a school fund. Only the trustees knew that "Mr. X" was Professor Perkins.

For more than 60 years Professor Perkins ate what grew in his garden, living in a humble cottage, and wore poor clothing. So did his wife. His salary was $80 a month most of the time. It never exceeded $1,800 a year.

Every penny was turned to work itself into more. They would save, invest, re-invest—constantly working for an ideal, a college observatory. "Mr. J" saved and built up $250,000. To this Sarah and her husband added $93,000.

Professor Emeritus Perkins wanted the trustees to place over the door of the place he donated: "The Heavens Declare the Glory of God."

But they decided on "The Perkins observatory."

Never having sampled the comfort that money brings, he died January 22, 1924, two years after the bureau of standards undertook the task of making the lens.

CAMEL BOWS TO AUTO FOR DESERT TRAVEL

BAGDAD (AP)—The modern Aladdin in the near east has no magic carpet, but America's industrial djinns have provided him something as useful — the automobile.

Bagdad sees the camel bowing to progress. It has become the center of automobile routes and thousands of motor cars nose out into the desert where, before 1923, not a single tire track had been made.

Eighty-five per cent of the vehicles operated from Bagdad are of American make.

COMMUTER CROSSES COUNTRY TO HIS JOB

HOLDEN, Mass.—(AP)—Thomas H. Skinner, 78, believes he is entitled to some kind of record for long distance commuting.

For seven years he has traveled each spring from Yakima, Wash., to the forest fire observatory on Mt. Wachusett, Mass. There he remains until the annual danger of brush fires is past after which he returns home.

Mr. Skinner was born at the base of the mountain and lived most of his boyhood and young manhood there. He was organist in the Congregational church in Princeton for many years and has been credited with several compositions.

He conducted a farm within sight of the mountain for years and, when he tired of farming, became a patrolman on the Wachusetts reservation.

In 1919 he resigned and went to Yakima to live with a son. In faroff Washington he read of the death of the observatory lookout and applied for the position, which was promptly given him.

Pleading guilty to participation in a holdup in which no shot was fired, Ted Cole, 20, of Russellville, Ark., has been sentenced to die in the electric chair by District Judge Saul Yager at Tulsa, Okla., a state where robbery with arms is a capital offense. Cole admitted using a revolver in the robbery which netted less than $100.

NEW YORK, Dec. 1—(AP)—Transactions in raw hide futures on the New York Hide exchange during November established a new high record. Sales for the month totaled 49,320,000 pounds, an increase of more than 33 1-3 per cent over October, the previous record month.

Orders for lumber booked by 554 leading hardwood and softwood mills during the week ending Nov. 23, as reported to the National Lumber Manufacturers' association, were only 77 per cent of production, compared with 82 per cent a week ago. The 334 mills gave total production as 275,690,000 feet, while 338 mills the week before gave production as 362,505,000 feet.

New high records were established by the Associated Gas & Electric system, which in a consolidated statement of earnings of properties since dates of acquisition shows a 92 per cent increase in gross earnings for the 12 months ending Oct. 31, a 111 per cent jump in net earnings, and a balance for dividends and surplus more than double the amount reported for the previous 12-month's period.

American National Company, Inc. and C. F. Childs & Company, Inc., are offering $500,000 territory of Hawaii, 4 3-4 per cent gold bonds, due 1952 to 1958 inclusive, at prices to yield 4.30 per cent.

EASING THE BURDEN OF A MEDICINE CHEST

Why Not Have More Shelf Space in the Bathroom?

By Elsie Drew Kennedy.

A renaissance in decoration the last few years has turned bathrooms, kitchens and even cellars into enchanting color harmonies and toned effects.

The old blue and white standard of "immaculate beauty" has passed into the discard, along with other fads. And so the bathroom in the average home or apartment now plays a double role, in that it does duty as a dressing room for the men as well as for milady.

The average woman, realizing the importance of health and beauty in social and business life, pays more and more attention to appearance, and consequently buys more essentials for the performing of the daily beauty ritual. To derive the greatest benefit from such practices time and patience count. And here is where the well-planned dressing table counts in saving precious minutes.

In the accompanying design the decorator has selected a bathroom typical of those found in the average modern home in respect to colored fixtures, plated hardware and wide floor tiling with contrasting base of the high-lustre type. He has used this for the background of the effective treatment of modern and entirely practical cabinets. These can be incorporated in the original plans of a new house or can easily be installed at little expense.

The decorator has taken advantage of the lost wall space in the corner to extend the line to the basin and on the other side to fill in what would otherwise be lost space.

With a deep and interestingly shaped mirror as the central unit, a compatibility of line and fine proportion is at once established with the two cabinets.

The upper parts of the cabinets are a miracle of skillful design and nice partitioning. The outside sections are composed of a series of open shelves to hold the more decorative bottles and jars, while the side sections are fitted with doors that open directly over the basin and thereby afford ample space for the numerous bottles and "what nots" which usually fill the medicine chest.

One section may be devoted to holding medicines and supplies and the other for general or personal items. The lower sections are fitted with doors and nicely elevated. Bath towels, wash cloths or other linens, along with bath brushes and other accessories, may be safely kept in order.

Kentucky 'Lady Sheriff' Will Tame Mountaineers

BARBOURVILLE, Ky., Dec. 1—(AP)—Up in the rugged Kentucky hill country, where men are mountaineers, the women put 'em in jail!

Knox county, heart of the mountain region, has upset tradition again by electing Mrs. Jennie Lee Mealer Walker sheriff for the next four years. The county already had the nation's only woman jailer.

She is a slight little woman, the "lady sheriff," 40 years old and mother of six children. By training she is a bookkeeper and stenographer.

But the quick vigor of her campaign leaves little doubt that she can handle a mountain sheriff's hard boiled job in a fashion few men could equal.

Mrs. Walker, who is a great great niece of Robert E. Lee, got into the race when her husband lost a court contest for the nomination.

Quietly she filed her petition as an independent candidate. She didn't pass out any cigars, but she rolled up her sleeves and made a hurried canvass of the county. She sought out every vote possible and put her plea before mountain folk up and down the valleys.

Her opponent discovered too late that he had a whirlwind on his hands, instead of just some of the womenfolks' foolishness, and Mrs. Walker won by more than 200 votes, a big majority.

She is familiar with the sheriff's work. Her husband was chief deputy for seven successive terms.

MRS. JENNY WALKER

As soon as she was elected she made her only announcement of policy. It was: Only sober, honest and fearless deputies will be employed.

Knox county isn't just sure, but if the "lady sheriff" doesn't make things buzz it will be disappointed.

CHINESE GOODS NOW SHOWN IN U. S.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2—(AP)—American women in China are making it possible for Chinese women to be self supporting for the first time in history, says Miss Blanche Haley, manager of the Peiping exchange.

The exchange was started in 1919 by a group of American women living in China to promote the sale of articles made by Chinese women. Vocational classes are also conducted.

Two hundred women are given daily employment. Not only do the women support themselves but, in many instances, whole families.

Chinese women are expert in making the cross stitch, so popular with many American women, says Miss Haley. They do it without the aid of canvas background.

Fancy bridge sets elaborately embroidered by the Chinese women are bought in this country by richly-gowned women.

WINTER FUR FASHIONS INCLUDE BLACK ERMINE

PARIS, Dec. 1—(AP)—It takes more ermines than it used to for an ermine coat.

Wraps are longer on the whole, and sleeves are larger than they used to be. But the chief reason is that some of the most exclusive furriers are dovetailing the skins so that the seams do not show, a process which entails much wastage.

Black ermine is the newest thing in the fur market. Most of it is Japanese ermine dyed a raven black. Much Japanese ermine is used in the natural white, also. Thousands of ermine tails are being used for trimming on coats and dresses otherwise furless.

"PETTICOAT SHOWS," HEARD ONCE MORE

After years of non-existence, petticoats are being bought and sold. The up-to-date version is a flared, lace-hemmed affair on a fitted yoke or a princess costume slip with shoulder straps.

FAMOUS WRITER'S SONS ALL BECOME BENEDICTS

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2—(AP)—With the marriage of Frederick Roberts Rinehardt December 14, all three of Mary Roberts Rinehardt's sons will have joined the ranks of the benedicts.

Mrs. Rinehardt lives in Washington with her husband, Dr. Stanley Rinehardt.

Her three sons are in the publishing business. Frederick Roberts Rinehardt will marry Miss Elizabeth Sherwood of Geneva, N. Y., Alan Rinehardt married Miss Gracia Houghton, niece of Alanson B. Houghton, former United States ambassador to England. She made her debut in Washington. The wife of Stanley Rinehardt, Jr., formerly was Miss Mary Doran of this city.

COUNTESS ALICE SZECHENYI IN CAPITAL DEBUT DEC. 19

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1—(AP)—Countess Alice Szechenyi, daughter of the minister of Hungary and Countess Szechenyi, will make their debut December 19 at a tea.

Original plans had been made for her presentation November 20 but the date was postponed owing to the official mourning for Secretary Good.

On December 3 she will go to New York with her sister, Countess Cornelia. They will be guests of honor at a dinner given by their grandmother, Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt. Countess Cornelia made her debut here two years ago.

Crystal as Trimming.

PARIS, Dec. 2—(AP)—An evening hat of black tulle sewn all over with leaves of crystal is suggested by a dressmaker of ultra-modern tendencies. At another style house, crystal flowers are used as coat and dress accessories.

Car Wrecked by Mouse.

SIKESTON, Mo., Dec. 2—(AP)—Mrs. Vernon Dorough was driving her two children to school when she saw a mouse at her feet. The car was wrecked; she and the children were injured. The mouse escaped.

TYING BOWS.

When tying their ribbons or sashes for the children, you can get an even bow if you leave for the knot and final loop, the end of ribbon that is on top when the two ends are first slipped through each other.

Creamed Beef and Vegetables on Toast

4 tablespoons butter, 4 tablespoons flour, 1 1-2 cups milk, 1 1-2 cup gravy, 1-4 teaspoon salt, 1-4 teaspoon pepper, 2-3 cup diced, cooked meat, ½ cup cooked peas, 1-4 cup diced, cooked celery, 2 tablespoons chopped onions, 4 pieces hot, buttered toast.

Melt the butter and add the flour. Blend well and add the milk. Cook until a thick, creamy sauce forms. Add the rest of the ingredients excepting the toast and cook for 2 minutes. Serve on the toast. This is an excellent recipe to use up left-overs. Other vegetables can be substituted for the peas.

Cookies

2-3 cup fat, 2 cups sugar, 2 eggs, 4 tablespoons cream, 1 teaspoon vanilla, ½ teaspoon lemon extract, 1 teaspoon nutmeg, 1-4 teaspoon salt, 4 cups flour, 1 teaspoon baking powder.

Cream the fat and sugar. Add the rest of the ingredients, mixing just enough to hold the ingredients together. Shape into 2 balls and chill. Roll out one of the balls and spread with the raisin filling. Roll out the other ball of dough and place on top. Press down into the filling. Use a sharp knife and cut into 2-inch squares. Use a spatula and carefully place the squares 3 inches apart on greased baking sheets. Bake for 12 minutes in a moderate oven.

Raisin Filling

1 cup raisins, 1 cup mashed bananas 1 tablespoon lemon juice, ¾ teaspoon salt.

Chop the raisins and mash the bananas with a fork. Combine and add the lemon juice. Mix well and use a filling between two baked layers of cake. This is a moist filling for cakes or cookies.

To prevent cornmeal mush from lumping during the cooking, mix the uncooked meal with cold water, using 1-3 as much water as usual and then add the boiling water and cook in a double boiler.

Always store baking powder in a tightly covered container. If it is exposed to the air some of the strength will be lost.

GLAD RAGS REFLECT REVIVAL OF ROMANCE

PARIS Dec. 1—(AP)—Romantic clothes are back in fashion.

Psychologists of the haute couture explain it by the theory that post-war depression, which made women want to appear as inconspicuous as possible, is finally ended.

Now, they say, things are going to swing the other way and every woman wants to dramatize herself in her clothes and intensify her personality to the utmost.

Velvet and fur concoctions, labeled "5 to 8" ensembles look like models made for the Princess of Tonight, at one of the most conservative old establishments in the Rue de la Paix.

Skirts are toe-length, fur bordered and full, on such costumes.

There are wasp waisted little violet jackets, bordered with fur, to wear with long velvet princess frocks having fur hems. The same type of ensemble, also fur bordered, is made in chiffon and georgette crepe.

The designer responsible for these romantic clothes reminiscent of the days when there was such a thing as "carriage trade," says that he hopes such words as seductive, enchanting and stunning will be revived in smartly dressed women's vocabularies.

He wants to see women revive good dressing to a full time occupation.

BRITISH SCIENCE GROUPS GAIN IN WOMEN FELLOWS

LONDON, Dec. 2—(AP)—Women "Fellows" are on the increase among the members of British scientific bodies.

The British Institute of Chemistry has 186 women fellows and the Institute of Physics, 14. Women scientists obtain many important positions in Great Britain, particularly as university professors and as directors of industrial research.

Two women assist professors in the department of aeronautics in the imperial college.

WOMAN IN LIFE AND IN THE KITCHEN

SUGGESTIONS FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

Slices of angel cake can be cut much better if a fork is used instead of a knife.

Oyster dishes and fish platters need garnishing to make them appear more appetizing.

To prevent mold on uncooked ham, rub the cut end thoroughly with vinegar, or spread lard over the lean part.

An economic furniture polish, and one that is good, can be made by mixing equal parts of turpentine, kerosene and vinegar.

Pears stuffed with chopped nuts and creamed cheese make a delicious salad when served on crisp lettuce leaves.

Dot the top of squash with small pieces of butter before putting it into the oven to bake. It gives it a delicious flavor.

Bend the hollow tin handle of the dustpan to a right angle with the pan and insert a discarded broom handle. It avoids much stooping.

Hot-water bottles should always be light. Don't make the common mistake of filling them to the bursting point.

To clean the broiler and inside of a gas oven rub the surfaces with steel wool moistened with ammonia, then wash with a cloth and warm water. Do not close the door until the oven has thoroughly dried.

Ice on cement steps—Sprinkle several handfuls of saltpeter on the cement or stone steps to thaw the ice on them. To keep ice from forming on steps, wash them with hot water in which a handful of salt is dissolved. This is better than sprinkling with salt.

HOT GINGERBREAD.

An excellent dessert for the first cold days is hot gingerbread served with whipped cream. Children love it, especially if there are raisins in the gingerbread.

CAKE WON'T STICK.

The cake will not stick to the tins if you use unsalted fat to grease the tins and after greasing them dust them lightly with flour and shake out all loose flour.

CENTERING SALAD.

When you remove a gelatine salad upon the serving plate, sometimes it slithers in the wrong direction and is difficult to move without breaking. Put your serving plate under cold water, shake off all visible dampness, before sliding the gelatine upon it. There is just enough moisture left to make the gelatine less reluctant to move and you can center it easily.

HEALTH AND BEAUTY.

Never let a wrinkle get a real start on you. Once it becomes a deep line in your skin, it's a job to smooth it out. But when it's in its early stages you can get rid of it.

Here is a tonic for the eyebrows and eyelashes: Yellow vaseline, 2 ounces; oil of rosemary, 15 drops; oil of lavender, 15 drops. Mix thoroughly and apply with a tiny brush. It promotes their gloss.

Blackheads should be treated immediately. If permitted to remain they may irritate the skin, become infected and develop into pimples. Bathe the face with warm water and soap, using complexion brush. Scrub thoroughly the affected parts. Rinse with warm, then cold water.

DISTURBED DIGESTION.

Unpleasant breath results from your disturbed digestion. Eat freely of green vegetables and fresh fruits and drink six to eight glasses of water every day. Be sure to get eight hours of sleep every night, and some exercise every day.

LAMPSHADES.

For living room lampshades plaited georgette over colors is lovely, using fringe for the flat, spreading shades, and some sort of finishing braid. For the rather close-fitting shapes the finish is often some sort of flat trimming or a binding of grosgrain ribbon. Then there are the lovely brocaded materials that are put on plain.

WALLPAPER.

Whatever the type of your own particular rooms may be, the wallpaper must not be chosen lightly. It must be remembered that whereas the furniture in a room may be shifted about occasionally to relieve monotony, the wall paper must stay exactly as it is when first put up for an indefinite length of time. It is essential, especially in a room which is to be lived in a great deal, to use a pattern and coloring which will not quickly become tiresome.

CRACKED SHADES.

Heat often makes parchment lampshades so brittle that they crack easily. If they are already cracked, hold the crack together and shellac over it several times both inside and out. The clear, white shellac fills in the crack. When this is thoroughly dried, shellac the whole shade inside and out and you will be delighted to see it come out shining and looking like new.

OLIVE OIL.

If you add a pinch of salt to the wineglass of olive oil taken internally it will, it is said, be much more palatable.

DICTATES OF FASHION.

White, green and black are the three leading colors for evening with smart Parisians.

Slippers to match gowns is a rule which well dressed French women make no exception this season.

Long sleeves are being added to many dinner frocks.

Brown accessories compete with black in autumn chic. The glove of brown is correct for ensembling with the brown costume.

Lace is much in use for both afternoon and evening, and for the latter the new coarse mesh silk tulles are most attractive.

Sports gloves use a variety of leathers this fall. A pingskin gauntlet, fur-lined, with only fine stitching on its back, is a favorite.

The big flat cape collar that is easily and charmingly adjustable about the neck when the weather requires it, is a youthful type used on cloth and fur coats.

Since the vogue of tweed is outstanding, it is not surprising to see that many of the new felt hats for sportwear have taken on the character of tweed.

HATS, BAGS, SHOES MATCH RAINCOATS

One of the season's novelties is a two-piece, rain day suit consisting of a rubberized jersey skirt and coat of three-quarter length rather than the usual full-length raincoat.

The wrap-around skirt buttons protectively over any skirt its owner may be wearing. It fastens at the belt, at the left side of the front, by means of three buttons. Thus it can be quickly discarded on coming indoors.

The straightline coat is lined and faced at the neck with a lighter shade of the brown and beige jersey used for the skirt and looks just like any other smart suit jacket. There are slant pockets at either side.

SUNDAY EVENING FROCK.

The latest fashion whim is the "Sunday evening frock." It is a picturesque frock, usually, with unusually lovely sleeves and neck treatment. Soft garnet velvets, tawny gold brocaded lames and other glamorous fabrics fashion it. It is the counterpart of the old-time Sunday "best dress." But it has a party air, rather than a church one.

HAT PINS.

New jeweled vanities are hat pins. One, worn with a black felt of infinite grace and beauty, is of diamonds, rubies, emeralds and sapphires working out a tiny nosegay, against a platinum flower pot of lovely filagree work.

AFTERNOON BAGS.

For the more formal afternoon costume, and afternoon costumes this autumn and winter will be very formal, the smartest bags are those of suede or antelope, in black, or if the costume is brown, in matching shade. Some have simple crystal ball buttons, others are mounted with enamel, marcasite or real semi-precious stones.

LAUNDRY HINTS.

After washing fine muslin, silk, or crepe de chine, rinse the articles in a strong solution of salt water and they will acquire a slight stiffness when ironed.

If delicate colors are likely to run in the wash, first soak the material in a strong solution of salt and hot water until the water has cooled.

Wash a chamois packet in warm suds to which household ammonia has been added—about one teaspoon to a quart of water. Do not rinse too much. Stretch it to shape while it is damp.

Never put damp clothes or towels into the clothes hamper. Hang them in a good draught of air and let them become thoroughly dried out before putting them in. Otherwise you are almost certain to have to get rid of mildew and disagreeable odors and these are not pleasant things to do.

LINOLEUM.

In laying linoleum the first move is to see that the floor, whether of wood or concrete, is thoroughly clean and dry, says American Home. If it is of cement or concrete every crack should be filled with plaster of paris and allowed to dry for at least two months before linoleum is laid. If the floor is of wood all tacks and nails should be hammered down thoroughly or removed.

The next step is to take up the quarter-round molding at the base board, so that floor covering can be slipped under it, and hence leave no edges under which dirt and water may creep. A layer of felt made for the purpose is then pasted to the floor.

After the felt has been laid, the linoleum is cemented on top of it. To prevent water from seeping under the edges waterproof cement should be used to fill all the cracks and for about six inches around the edges.

PRESSING CLOTH.

If you use a dark cloth over worsted frocks or suits when pressing them, they are less likely to become shiny. Put the dry cloth over the garment to be pressed and then spray a very light spray of water before pressing. Never soak the cloth.

LINOLEUM CARE.

Since soap is hard on linoleum if you use two tablespoons of paraffin in a pan of water it will clean the floor thoroughly without soap. Varnishing linoleum is another saver.

A SUBSTITUTE BODKIN.

A smooth safety pin for thin or lacy material makes an excellent bodkin. The pin holds the material securely.

CONCERNING WOMEN.

Approximately 12,000 women belong to labor unions in Japan.

Almost half the states in the union now allow women to serve on juries.

There are upwards of 400,000 girls in India who are widows before the age of 15.

Women are seen sweeping the streets of Paris, France, as well as delivering bread and selling newspapers.

Madame Chiang, wife of President Chiang Kaishek, is a graduate of Wellesley, a master of French and English, a student of western science who represents the new womanhood of China. She has unbound feet and Parisian frocks, silk stockings and high-heeled American shoes.

ENGLISH SOAPS.

Those who prefer the haunting fragrance of garden flowers will delight in soaps made by a famous English chemist, which come in such odors as violet, heliotrope, mignonette, vervaine and lily-of-the-valley.

RECIPES.

Chicken Puff: To two cups of minched uncooked chicken breast add one beaten egg, beating for about a minute, then add another egg, then a third one. Add salt and pepper to taste, then fold in two cups of whipped cream. On the bottom of a pan place sheets of paper or cloth and pour in hot water for about an inch. Bake the mixture in timbale molds in the pan for about twenty minutes, then unmold. Serve with a white sauce.

Special Cottage Pudding: Beat together one egg and a cup of cream, then add three-fourth cup of brown sugar and beat again thoroughly. Mix and sift one and two-thirds cups of flour, one and one-fourth teaspoons each of ground cloves, cinnamon and cocoa, a pinch of salt and two teaspoons of baking powder. Combine the two mixtures and pour into an oiled tin. Bake for 25 minutes in a moderate oven. Serve hot with creamed sauce made by adding a tablespoon of cornstarch mixed with a cup of brown sugar to one tablespoon of butter melted. Stir over a hot fire until the sugar is melted, then add a cup of boiling water and cook until thick.

Guiding Your Child

By Mrs. Agnes Lyne

Bedtime Play With Baby.

In many homes it is customary for the family to devote the half hour before baby's bedtime to playing with him.

This is the best time of the day for just the sort of talk and play which draws close the bonds of family affection and understanding.

The time is such a happy one that instead of being a proper preparation for going to bed, it is apt to become a wild and hilarious frolic. The baby himself readily leads the gay romp. It is as though his realization that he is soon to be consigned to the exile of his little crib makes him indulge in the sociability of the last hour of the day with all the intensity of his nature.

Baby's bedtime hour should be happy and friendly but not uproarious. With the very little child, there should be rhymes and jingles and finger plays. The child of a year or more begins to enjoy the simple primer stories, involving much repetition, and picture books with large, appealing pictures.

Generally speaking, it is not good for the child to be the center of family attention yet the half hour before going to bed is one in which he may well feel that the stage is his.

This is the time for him to tell daddy the wonderful happenings of the day, to recite for him the new words he has learned, and to show off the other new accomplishments which he has acquired during the day.

This sort of friendly, interesting conclusion to the day which has been filled with activity helps to fix in the child the feeling of his own achievement, and makes him regard himself as a person with his own place in the family group.

CURVE CULTIVATION IS NEW PARIS FAD

PARIS, Dec. 2—(AP)—Flat chested women, once the envy of fervent fashionites, are flocking to gymnasiums and exercise salons here try to develop curves and contours.

Fattening diets are chic today. Many society women are combining a fattening fet with exercises meant to make their bodies more supple and their waistlines smaller.

The haute couture's glib phrase "natural waistline" proves a misfit so far as most women are concerned.

The average woman finds that the high waisted, form fitting styles are only possible atop corsets which make a waistline for her.

As a result, corsets which pinch the waist, by means of stays and laces, are in growing demand here. Corsetiers are having their biggest season since the war.

BED SPRINGS.

To thoroughly clean the bed springs set them out in the yard on a sunny day and apply the water with the hose. The sun and wind will dry them rapidly.

CHINTZ SETS.

Shoe-trees and pads, hangers of different sizes and boxes are all covered with star or polka-dotted chintz, which makes the chintz used for bags that holds one's clothes. The result is a closet that is a charming sight when the door is opened.

AIDS CHINESE WOMEN.

Mrs. Feng Yu-hsiang, wife of the "Christian general" takes an exceptionally active part in improving the condition of the women of China, her particular work being to foster education and hygiene among the peasants.

MOP.

If you use a dish mop for washing dishes you will find it will become sour and unpleasant unless you take good care of it. It must be dried out and sunned to keep sweet. Try standing the handle in an empty bottle with the mop part out like a bouquet. Then place out on the back step in the air and sunshine.

Sports Ensemble

This charming ensemble consist of a white blouse with open collar. The pockets of the short black coat are lined with white tape, and the lower part of the skirt is pleated.

Imported sports sweaters make nice Christmas gifts for young women, be they daughters, sweethearts, wives or sisters.

NEW GOWNS BOOM CORSET TRADE

The revival of the wasp waist in modified form has presaged a renewed vigor in the corset industry. The gown of the early 1900's (left) and the Princess frock of today (right) are modeled by Joyce Colese, dancer. Two col. 18 pt. hd.

The return of the princess gown is expected by leaders in the industry to carry the production of stays in 1930 to its highest peak of any time.

Some observers might have thought the boyish figure vogue had worked a hardship on them that they couldn't recover from quickly.

Apparently that was not a true deduction. Statistics show that, although the corset makers seemed lonely and not invited to the party, they were there just the same.

They made close to $80,000,000 worth of girdles (wholesale value) last year, and one mail order house has piled up sales of $2,000,000 to September 1, this year.

The renewed fad of the wasp waist was just beginning to get under way about that time. And it now is steadily increasing the volume of an article which really never has gone out to the extent it might have appeared.

Girls who grew up with the idea that there wasn't such a thing as a curve any more and smiled sophistically at girlhood pictures of their mothers, are learning that fashions move in cycles.

The result of their discovery has helped the federal department of commerce to frame its optimistic forecast for 1930 in its biennial survey.

There is an example of how the reaction of flappers wields its influence on trade conditions.

Then, statisticians estimate that at the outset of the princess style revival about 20,000,000 women in America were corseted, with the average woman buying two of the articles a year.

Women Favored by Labor Head To Settle Workers' Strikes

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1—(AP)—Because he believes women often are more valuable than men in the field of labor conciliation, James J. Davis secretary of labor, entrusts some of his most knotty strike problems to feminine solution.

He argues that a woman is very likely to be best able to handle woman strikers and that a woman certainly can handle men.

"Sometimes the smile of a woman can do more to settle a strike than all the arguments a man can make," said the secretary. "Sometimes a capitalist very 'set' in his mind looks at a woman's smile and says 'maybe I'm wrong.'

"A woman has the same soothing way of pacifying the contentious mind of a labor leader that she has in managing her business employer. She is used to taming the wild beast at home, and wherever we men are she sets us right."

As an example of the able way in which a woman commissioner of conciliation adjusts strikes in which men workers are concerned, Secretary Davis cited the record of Miss M. Emmeline Pitt of Pittsburgh.

A woman of independent means, an ordained preacher of the United Presbyterian faith, Miss Pitt entered conciliation work six years ago because she was interested in its humanitarian aspects.

Her ability to deal with men workers was discovered through an error. A telegram to Washington told of a "fabric workers'" strike. Department of labor workers thought the fabric workers were women. They sent Miss Pitt, who promptly settled a strike of men making steel fabrication for street cars.

In the last five months, Miss Pitt has adjusted six strikes, all involving men workers.

Entering government service at almost the same time as Miss Pitt, Miss Anna Weinstock of Boston, who was once a member of a neckwear workers union, devotes her time to women strikers. She was hailed a heroine when she was instrumental in settling the Elizabethtown, N. J. textile strike.

ELECTRIC CORDING.

Connect and disconnect all heating and cooking appliances where the plug connects with the appliance after the other end of the cord has been plugged into the outlet.

In handling the cord always grasp it by the plug, not by the cord itself. Rough handling will eventually cause the fine wires inside the cord to break.

Don't store your cords tightly coiled up or in a drawer where there is danger of their becoming knotted. The ideal way to keep them is laid across two hooks spaced about six inches apart.

CAUSES JELL TO CLOUD.

If partly green fruit is used in making apple or crabapple jelly, the starch in the fruit is likely to cause the jelly to be cloudy.

LINENS.

Don't use the same linens over and over again, letting others remain in the linen closet and turn yellow. Use them in turn so that each one is laundered occasionally.

TRUNK

If your steamship or wardrobe trunk looks shabby from traveling give it a coat of clear varnish. It will make the trunk look like new, prolong its life and make it waterproof.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Palace Theatre

Are they as bad as they're painted, these night club queens, or are they after all, really painted angels? That is the question which the general public has been asking itself ever since the New York night clubs with their scores of pretty girl dancers and famous hostesses have come into being. Who is to say that the average queen of a cabaret is not a good woman? Who will dare to say it after having seen the smashing hit of the season, "The Painted Angel," which, with Billie Dove starred, plays at the Palace today and tomorrow in the end of a four-days' successful run here?

Miss Dove, the star of "The Painted Angel," was born in New York city of parents of Swiss extraction. As a child her extraordinary beauty attracted attention, and there were many who foresaw a career of screen glory for this slim little girl in whose veins flowed the adventurous blood of Alpine mountaineers. At the age of 15 she was posing regularly for the photographers and painters, and finally the management of the Ziegfield Follies sought her out and offered a place in that year's edition of the Follies. Thus did Billie make her debut on the stage.

The beginning of her career in the talkies came in "Careers," a picture in which she was exceedingly tempting. In "The Painted Angel" she not only acts in dialogue but sings and dances for the first time since she was a glorified Follies queen with Ziegfield. Her work is entrancing and should on no account be missed.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Broadway Theatre

Enthusiastically received by overflowing audiences Saturday and yesterday, "The M-G-M Hollywood Revue of 1929," proved itself entitled to Metro's claim of the "biggest production ever attempted in talking pictures." With 25 outstanding stars, all of whom have been independently starred in their own productions, the cast forming a salary list hitherto impossible in one picture, and with the assistance of a supporting cast of stage celebrities, a picked chorus of 200 dancing and singing beauties, the world-famous Albertina Rasch dancers, and an augmented orchestra of 100 actually playing the show from start to finish.

Scenic effects of marvelous beauty, enhanced by the liberal use of technicolor, follow one another in bewildering array, the wonderfully trained chorus and ballet vie for spectacular effects, the musical numbers, already popular on records and over the radio, thrill the most blase auditor, and the stars outdo themselves in offering new and hitherto unsuspected talents to an admiring public.

The many chorus numbers, "Singin' in the Rain," a beautiful and striking ensemble, "Strike Up the Band," "Orange Blossom Time," "Your Mother and Mine," sung—and how—by Charlie King, help to make up a program of two solid hours of pure enjoyment, never equalled and establishing a precedent that will stand untouched for many a season of talking pictures. "The Hollywood Revue" will remain at the Broadway with three showings daily, closing with Friday night's performance.

Bread Theatre

Those who like their drama speedy have their inning at the Breed theatre where Radio Pictures' all-talking production, "Side Street," treated eyes and ears at the initial showing of this romantic and dramatic offering yesterday.

Of all the talkers that have been seen to date, it is quite correct to say that "Side Street" has more interest—only you spell it "Moore," not "more." This is because the three leading roles are played by Tom, Owen and Matt Moore, with the wife of Owen, Kathryn Perry (Moore) furnishing the romantic love interest.

There is a finesse to the photography, direction and acting that lifts the production to a high place in the cinema sun. Romance, plotting, intrigue and thrills punctuate the opus from start to finish.

George O'Hara, who is known both as a screen actor and a screen writer, deserves high credit for the story. Mal St. Clair directed with distinction. Owen Moore contributes a song, "In Our Little Home." The chorus made up of Radio Pictures' girls give dash and verve to "Take a Look at Her Now." "Side Street" is refreshing entertainment and there are many times when it will have you gripping your seat.

WILL TRANSFER BUSINESS TO BAKERY HE BUYS

The large bakery building, ovens and land, long known as the Andrews bakery property, located in Norwich at the West Side on Summit street, lately advertised in The Bulletin for sale by Nicholas Tymcheck of Norwich, the real estate dealer, was sold on Saturday by Mr. Tymcheck to Samuel J. Miller, the West Main street wholesale baker. The terms and price of sale were not made public. Large improvements and new equipment to the bakery are to be made by Mr. Miller, the purchaser, who will very soon occupy the property and transfer his own baking business to the purchased property.

Love may come and love may go, but self-love hangs on forever.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Mitchell Memorial Concert

All arrangements have been completed for the memorial concert to be given in honor of Archibald Mitchell. While much has been said about Hugo Kortschak, the soloist and Felix Hukpa, the accompanist, Dr. Drago, by his own request, kept in the background, working very hard for the success of the symphony with a desire not to attract public attention. In justice to Dr. Drago's interest in the Norwich Symphony orchestra it is timely to say a word about his musical attainments and activities. Dr. Frank Drago was born in Catania, Italy, in 1898. He came to the United States in 1910 at the age of 12, settling in Hartford. He soon began seriously to study the violin, making rapid and marked progress. By the advice of critics he began to study with Emanuel Andrichek, a famous Bohemian violinist residing in Boston.

In 1923 Dr. Drago became a pupil of Hugo Kortschak, then at the Institute of Musical Arts in New York, spending several years under Mr. Kortschak's tuition. At the same time Dr. Drago continued his studies in the theory of music, graduating with highest honors from the university extension conservatory of Chicago, Ill., with the degree of bachelor of music. In addition to his musical studies Dr. Drago paid marked attention to the cultivation of his literary education and was graduated from the College of Divine Metaphisics, with the degree of doctor of psychology. Dr. Drago was a member of the Hartford Philharmonic orchestra for several years, playing under eminent conductors. He also conducted the Young People's Symphony orchestra in Hartford.

Since Dr. Drago's coming to Norwich he made a large number of friends and the Norwich Symphony orchestra originated in his mind, in appreciation of the friendly welcome which he received from local musicians.

The personnel of the orchestra, with very few exceptions, is the same as at the first public appearance at Slater hall last May. Walter W. Lang will again occupy his post of concert-master. Mr. Lang has given Dr. Drago most invaluable assistance and whole-hearted support in coaching the strings. His unfailing presence at every rehearsal and his personal friendly relation with all local musicians has been greatly instrumental in enhancing the enthusiasm of the members of the orchestra.

Now that the date of the concert is near at hand and the success of the concert is assured, as evident by the large advance sale of tickets, the Norwich Symphony society is indebted to the members of the Norwich Arcanum club for kindly donating their club rooms for the rehearsals of the orchestra.

TREES ARE MUZZLE ON MICHIGAN DUNES

EAST LANSING, Mich.—(AP)—West Michigan again looks to the tree to stop the advance of the shifting sands from the shoreline of Lake Michigan.

Eleven years ago Michigan State college sponsored a reforestation program to plant 500,000 trees along the lake shore frontage to keep back the sands from the dunes which had covered farm property, churches, and parts of villages.

Today the college contemplates a similar program extending from the Indiana line to the tip of the upper peninsula o nthe west. More than 1,000,000 acres will be affected.

The main purpose a decade ago was one of economic consideration. The farms had to be saved from the advancing sands. Today the interest is mostly that of beautification. Resort owners anxious for the tourist trade look to the tree to add beauty to the lake shore by stopping the march of the lake sands.

Sand dunes along Lake Michigan are not more than 300 or 400 feet wide but may extend more than a mile in length. Trees serve as a windbreak. Their leaves form a humus over the soil which keeps it compact, and the roots bind the sand more closely together. Farm land is enriched by the addition of organic matter.

BUFFALO TO BE SOLD FOR HOLIDAY STEAKS

One hundred animals will be culled from the herd of 375 on the federal bison ranch north of here, to be butchered and sold. The reserve is overloaded.

The animals, according to Maj. E. A. Goldman of the United States geological survey, are fat and in excellent condition.

Preaching Brothers.

SWEETWATER, Tenn.— (AP) —The Stevenson brothers have the church situation well in hand here. The Rev. F. D. Stevenson, a former Methodist, is pastor of a Presbyterian church, and the Rev. M. A. Stevenson, a former Presbyterian, is pastor of the Methodist church.

Twenty-eight glaciers, or rivers of ice, flow down the sides of Mount Rainier in Washington.

The visit of the officers to the drinking resort revealed the existence of an immense quantity of liquor, particularly home brew beer. Ninety-seven cases of beer, 38 pints of whiskey, one keg partially filled with whiskey five gallon jug containing gin, case of malt, two bags of sugar, box of caps, five crocks two cases of empty bottles two capping machines and a slot machine were captured. The seizure caused the police patrol and a delivery truck to be brought into service to transfer the liquor, stock for making beer and the slot machine to headquarters. Carl Bitters, employed at the club room, was arrested on three counts, of violation of the liquor law and another charge of maintaining a gaming device. Bitters furnished a surety on his bond of $1000 and will be in court tomorrow. Charles F. Hall, R. L. Howard, Fred C. Noles, Adam T. WESTERLY

PAWCATUCK CO. HOSE BURSTS AT CRISIS OF SUNDAY FIRE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WESTERLY, R. I., Dec. 1.—Two alarms each for fires were responded to Sunday by both the Westerly and Pawcatuck fire departments. The two Westerly alarms, Nos. 19, Newton avenue, were for the same fire, which caught from sparks on the shingle roof of the greenhouse on Newton avenue of George L. Stillman, dahlia specialist. The first of the soundings of this number followed but a few minutes after No. 62 had been turned in on the Pawcatuck fire alarm signal service at 8:15 a. m. This was turned in by Eugene P. O'Neil, Jr., residing at 21 Stillman avenue, Pawcatuck, when he discovered a fire in the roof of the large two-family apartment frame house, 21-23 Stillman avenue, owned by his father. It was his opinion that the fire caught from sparks falling from the chimney to the shingle roof. Flames were shooting high from the rear gable of the house nearest Liberty street, while his father was at church. Before this fire was finally put out most of the roof had been burned off and the interior of the house was soaked with water. The second Pawcatuck alarm from No. 62 was at about 3 p. m., when the fire apparatus made a needless run to an auto which had taken fire on Lincoln avenue. The recall was heard almost as soon as the last rounds of the alarm were sounded. The Westerly recall sounded at 9 a. m. and the recall for the fire on Stillman avenue was not turned in until 11:30.

While the Seagraves pumper of the Westerly department was responding to the first 19 alarm Assistant Engineer Robert Bonner directed the pumper to go over into Pawcatuck, not knowing that there was a small fire on the greenhouse roof. The mistake proved a fortunate one for the Pawcatuck fire fighters for the Westerly apparatus was over on Stillman avenue, asking where it was to be located, much to the surprise of the Pawcatuck firemen, who had not sent in a call for help from the Westerly side of the river. As the Pawcatuck company laid their hose for a hydrant stream to be directed upon the blaze some five lengths of 50-foot lengths of hose burst one after another at short intervals and the nozzle end of the fire hose was without the needed pressure. Before the lengths could be substituted the Westerly firemen, from their Seagrave pumper, had two powerful streams playing on the rear roof of the house and kept the flames down until the Pawcatuck men could get their streams restored. Ladders were raised and the last vestige of flame put out at close range, but not until much of the water had frozen where it fell.

When the second alarm from Box 19 was sent in the Ahrens-Fox pumper of the Westerly department, held in reserve at the fire station, was on its way to the Stillman greenhouse manned by Supt. Nelson G. Himes and Officer Frank E. Knight. When they reached the greenhouse blazing shingles were cut away and this fire was put out. With this fire out, Assistant Engineers Bonner and Pasetti, who came back to care for the Westerly fire, returned to assist Westerly Fire Chief Egger and Assistant George McKenzie who were aiding the Pawcatuck firemen. The fire was stopped when the jet above the second story was reached and at the time four streams of water were being poured upon the house.

Eugene P. O'Neil, Sr., stated that the loss, which will amount to several thousand dollars, was partly covered by insurance both on the house and contents. The apartment at 23 Stillman avenue was occupied by Joseph J. O'Neil, and there were seven small children at the house when the fire started. Not much furniture or furnishings was taken from the house before the contents were soaked by water.

Caught Freak Fish

Capt. Peter Grant and Mate Flash McDonald of boat Yellow Wash went out to the fishing ground recently. Their luck was not so good like the rest of the fishing men, and only about two boats went out to the fishing grounds, setting the net. There was a heavy load of about seven barrels of fish. Still they found fishing good and over went the net again. Mate McDonald's eyes were popping when it had 17 barrels. But the next drag they got hung up on an old steamer sunk there about 35 years ago. It shot the net to pieces and they got only enough fish for the house cat Sparkplug. Getting a new net out to try again, it was getting late, as those two sea dogs were out there since the birds had sang their 3 o'clock song to the fisherman, again about 10 barrels of fish were taken, making 34 in all. Capt. Grant said: "What is that kind of fish? 'Looks like a mule!" Rubbing off his glasses and stretching a few hairs on his head, he was stuck, athough he knew every wrinkle on the salt water for 29 years. It was new to his mate, McDonald, for he is only a short time at that game. "Gee!" the mate said, "One has a little head with real hair on top and all the little feet like a half mule and weighs 29 pounds!" It was 19 inches long and had a funny wrinkle in its eye and would roll it toward Mason's island. All the fishermen went home for the boat got to Moran's dock late the next day. About 40 fishermen saw the queer fish and they could not tell the name. The fish gave them all the salt water laugh. It was put no exhibition at Doll street fish market where 500 people came from all over to see the queer fish. Some call it a southern fish and others claim it was half mule and half fish. One old whaler, Capt. Peter Jackson of Gloucester, Mass., who happened to be in town visiting, got a look at the fish and said "That beats anything I ever saw! How can such a queer fish live up in these parts?" A fishermen's book from New York came with about 1000 pages telling all the kinds of fish that swim but the freak fish was not among them. Capt. Dave Sterry looked for two hours with his nose glasses on then gave it up. The freak fish was going to be put in a large building near the Battery with the rest of the fish family but the sad news came that the freak fish, without a name, had passed away, for he was out of the water too long. This village claims to be the leading fishing center in Connecticut and holds a record of sending to New York by trucks 950 barrels of fish in one week. The men also caught a large sword fish that tipped the scales at 720 pounds, said to be the largest one every caught around here. Capt. R. and B. Brocky, brothers, were the men that caught it.

MYSTIC

MRS. GEORGE H. GRISWOLD BURIED AT BREWSTER'S NECK

Funeral services for Ettabelle Maria Woodmansee, wife of George H. Griswold, 43, who died at her home, Friday, after a long period of failing health, were held at her home on the Noank road Mystic, Sunday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock. Rev. Louis J. Shepler, pastor of the Union Baptist church conducted the services. Many relatives and friends were present, with delegations from Charity chapter, O. E. S., Liberty council, Daughters of America, Mystic Rebekah lodge and Thames Past Noble Grands' association. There were beautiful floral tributes. The bearers were Seymour A. Stoddard, Latham Packer, William VanPelt, George B. and William Lewis and Hollis Price. Burial was in Brewster's Neck cemetery, Preston. Mrs. Griswold was a member of the local Baptist church, having joined in April, 1903, a member of the Friendly league of that church, a teacher in the Sunday school, and while health permitted, was a willing worker. She had a pleasing personality being a favorite with all. Heartfelt sympathy has been extended to her husband, her son, Arthur S. Griswold, her mother, Mrs. Georgia Woodmansee and her sister, Mrs. Georgie May O'Brien, all of Mystic.

As already mentioned in The Bulletin, the old Toll gate house, which has stood by the highway leading from Old Mystic to New London, just beyond Center Groton, for 100 years or more, has been moved by a contractor, across and up the road, and placed on its new site. This house was built at the same time that the highway was built, was owned by the Dabell family and later by Nathan Lamb. The last owner was William Hempstead, Mrs. E. V. Whiting, of East Main street, Mystic, was born in the house, her parents being the toll collectors at that time. She lived there for two years. Pedestrians were charged 5c each and those not wishing to pay went around by the road now known as the Pleasant Valley road, some three miles out of their way. This road was known then and by some of the old-timers even now, as Skunk's Lane, having been named that on account of the above people. It was decided some time ago that the house should be moved, as it offered a very dangerous obstruction to the view of the road. The state purchased it, then giving it to anyone who would move it. It was given to James Clark and is now on his property. The second toll house on this route, was on the North Stonington road, just above Old Mystic. After the collecting of tolls was given up, Frank Randall, a colored man bought the property. The door on the side of the house, which was where the toll was paid, was closed up later, and a door and porch added on the front of the house. Eugene Goodwin, now of Broadway, Mystic, was also an owner of the house and with his family lived there until he sold the place to Mr. and Mrs. Dewey, then moving to Mystic. The latter family lived there until the death of Mr. Dewey. Mrs Dewey, some years later, married Arthur Daboll and they reside in Old Mystic. She still owns the house. The third Toll House, that the writer knows about, is on the side of the road which crosses the two roads, one from North Stonington to Westerly and one from Pendleton Hill to Westerly. It is nearly opposite the residence of Herbert Vincent, of North Stonington. It is now owned by Mrs. Fannie Hart, who lives there with her two children. This house has not been changed as much as the one above.

The annual December supper given by the Ladies' Aid society of the Union Baptist church here, is to be given this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Jones of Old Mystic held a family gathering Thursday, at their home. The dinner consisted of two turkeys, a duck, white and sweet potatoes, turnip, pickles, celery, cranberry sauce, squash, apple and mince pies. Those attending were Mr. and Mrs. Frank Sebastian, Sr., son Earl, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Sebastian Jr., and family, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Sebastian and family and Miss Gladys Sebastian, all of Old Mystic and Mr. and Mrs. Fred Randall and family of Norwich.

This cemetery contains several of the ancestors of the Burrows family in Mystic. At the time Mr. Tompkins purchased this piece of land, it was impossible to get into the grounds, there was so much undergrowth, briars, etc. But it is kept as clean as possible now.

ELKS PAY MEMORIAL TRIBUTE IN THEIR ANNUAL LODGE OF SORROW

"The grave is a bridge over which two hands still meet, the hand of the flesh touching the hand of the spirit. That is our memory tonight," said Rev. Alexander H. Abbott, pastor of the United Congregational church in an address Sunday evening at the annual memorial service of Norwich lodge, No. 430, Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks. The impressive service, held in the beautiful lodge room at the Elks home, was attended by 100 or more of the members and their friends.

The service was opened at 7:45 o'clock with a march, Coronation, by an orchestra conducted by William J. Malone, a member of the lodge. The overture was Nebucodonosa. A trio, Wilber Judson, Lewis Lupez and Harold Doran, Leo J. Roy accompanist, sang Lead, Kindly Light, following which the opening ceremonies took place, Exalted Ruler Frank P. Donnelly, presiding, assisted by Esquire George A. Twomey. The invocation was by the lodge chaplain, William H. Aldrich and was followed by a selection, Some Blessed Day, by the trio and "For Thee" by the orchestra.

Secretary Lawrence E. Millea called the roll of those members claimed by death the past year. A deep toned bell tolled as each name was called and the esquire placed a lily on the altar in memory of each of the "absent" brothers. This year's mortuary list contains ten names as follows, with the date of death:

Fred W. Hutchinson, January 18; John Heath, January 18; Hugh Kinder, March 27; Dr. Francis J. Harper, April 8; Arthur H. Lathrop, April 11; Stephen J. Kehoe, P. E. R., May 18; John J. Sullivan, June 12; Andrew F. Connor, July 2; Angus Park, September 17; James W. Kilday, October 25.

After a selection, Beautiful Land on High, ritualistic ceremonies were conducted by Exalted Ruler Donnelly. The memorial address was delivered by Rev. Alexander H. Abbott, pastor of the United Congregational church, who was introduced by the exalted ruler.

"One cannot help but be impressed with the tenderness and dignity of such a memorial service as this," said Rev. Mr. Abbott. "Memory is stirred tonight because death has come to dear friends. When we look at death from the outside it seems only a thing of grief and terror. From death may come something that is like a new illumination. These things which we look at from the outside, these remembered glances from the eye, these remembered handshakes have their own messages to us tonight by way of our own memory."

"We look at the grave from the outside. But something comes to us from the grave itself. Death is just an epoch in the exchange between souls. It is the moment when this exchange stops. But life does not stop. When we stand beside some grave that houses the body of a dear friend, we say, Oh, friend, my bosom says all things through thee take nobler form. The grave is a bridge over which two hands still meet, the hand of the flesh touching the hand of the spirit. That is our memory tonight."

At the close of Rev. Mr. Abbott's address, a selection, "Longing," was played by the orchestra after which all sang Auld Lang Syne. The service closed with a brief prayer by Chaplain Aldrich. The memorial committee comprised James T. Egan, Daniel Polsky, Paul H. Zahn, Otto F. Ernst, Charles McIntyre and James E. McCormick.

LIMIT OF $14,000 IN EAST HAMPTON SHORTAGE

The audit of the town tax collectors' books of East Hampton for the past 16 years as presented by H. N. Alexander, shows that the shortage cannot be less than $7,000 nor more than $14,000. Mr. Alexander finds that 300 taxpayers who received statements for uncollected taxes have not had the statements checked and he cannot tell whether they have cancelled check or receipts unless the statements are checked.

The tax collector's report which appears in the annual town report for 1922, shows that the uncollected taxes from the years 1913 to 1922 during the terms of Leon Tracy and N. W. Purple amounted to $3,632.36. If there is a shortage during the terms of these two collectors the shortage could not be more than this amount. The greatest shortage occurs from 1924 to 1929.

The trial of Herbert D. Watrous will be held today (Monday) at 10.30 before Justice George H. Hart. Mr. Alexander, Grand Juror Thomas and Mr. O'Connor of the United States Guaranty and Fidelity company of Baltimore, Md., which holds a bond of $12,000 for the former tax collector, will confer before the meeting.

C. V. TRAINS GIVE WOMEN SMOKERS' PRIVILEGES

"Women passengers on Central Vermont rail trains have the same rights, to the club and lounge cars for smoking purposes as men passengers." J. W. Hanley, general freight and passenger agent, has officially ruled and by so doing settles a question repeatedly raised by train crews.

The ruling came as a result of inquiries made to train crews by women passengers on the "Washingtonian," "Montrealer" and "New Englander" as their right to use the club and lounge cars on these trains for smoking purposes. The train crews had no specific instructions so were at a loss to answer the questions with absolute authority.

Mr. Hanley's ruling, however, recognizes the right of the fair sex to enjoy smokers' privileges with the men in the public apartments on the through trains over the Central Vermont.

FEDERAL SUIT AGAINST GROTON TO BE TRIED

The case of the United States against the town and borough of Groton is among the civil actions on the docket of the United States district court which will be in session at Hartford in the federal building, commencing Dec. 3.

The case arises out of an agreement between Groton and the Emergency Fleet Corp. in 1919, relative to the houses in the Groton Park, whereby the municipalities were to refund $50,000 with interest at the rate of five per cent from Aug. 31, 1918, to the Emergency Fleet Corp. This was intended to be a refund of taxes, in that the corporation was to send its check to the municipalities and they were to endorse it and return same.

The municipalities, it is alleged, failed to refund the money after 1923 and the government brought suit for $45,000.

Attorney Harry C. Brogan represents the town and borough and it is likely that the case will only be assigned for trial Tuesday, Judge Warren B. Burrows is presiding over the court, and it is believed that, inasmuch as he is a resident of Groton, he will feel that he is disqualified to hear the matter.

DEPUTY SHERIFF BRINGS SUIT AGAINST BONDSMAN

Suit against Samuel Zabarsky, who gave a bond in an attachment case has been brought by Deputy Sheriff Manuel J. Martin in the superior court for $2,500 damages.

The claim is made in the complaint that on May 17, 1929, Zabarsky delivered a bond for certain property under attachment and that on Oct. 28, there was obtained against P. Adelis judgment for $1,873.33 and costs of $30. On Oct. 29, 1929, the plaintiff demanded of Zabarsky the payments of the costs and judgment, in that he signed for the property under attachment and the defendant refused to pay it.

LESSON OF SINCERITY BY Y. M. C. A. PICTURE

A very large audience attended the Sunday service at the local Y. M. C. A. gymnasium Sunday afternoon. After the singing of two hymns and scripture reading and prayer, the beautiful poem "Annabelle Lee," by Edgar Allen Poe, was shown in moving pictures and it proved one of the most impressive thus far this season.

During the service Edwin Hill, general secretary of the Y. M. C. A., gave a brief talk, and spoke in part as follows:

One lesson we learn from this beautiful poem picture is the triumph of sincerity over pretense. In every community there is the true and the false; the genuine and the imitation. You will recall the scripture passage that "man looketh on the outward appearance while God looketh upon the heart." We can deceive our friends but we cannot deceive Almighty God. Some characters are washed white, so to speak, while others are whitewashed, and there is a vast difference. You all know the name of one who put a blot on American history; he was a traitor. Contrast him with the great immortal Lincoln, who gave the last measure of his devotion to his country. Jesus chose 12 men as His disciples, and no parent would think of naming his son after the one of that little company who betrayed his Lord with that sweet sin, the kiss. He pretended to be what he was not. In the long run, the true will triumph over the false. This old world needs more genuine men and women, not that there are none now for there are many, but there are far too many who are not noble and true. Let me say to the large number of young people here, be true, first to yourself, then to your parents and to your country, and most important of all, be true to the great Christ.

George Warren Potter, preached from 2 Cor. 13:8, "We can do nothing against the truth, but for the truth," and the theme was "Science and Religion." He said in substance, "Paul tells us the truth can take care of itself; all hostility is helpless before its appeal. The truth is like a flag in the wind, the harder the wind blows the more lovely it is." The Junior choir, under the direction of Mrs. Lewis E. Aldrich, sang an anthem, "Praise the Lord." Charles Treday was leader at the C. E. meeting, his subject, "Why is Christianity a Missionary Religion. At the evening service the pastor preached on the subject, "The Safety First Victim." NEW ORGAN DEDICATED AT UNCASVILLE CHURCH

Rev. Joseph Cooper, pastor of Trinity Methodist Episcopal church, this city, gave the address at the dedication of the new organ of the Methodist Episcopal church, Uncasville, which was held at 3 o'clock Sunday afternoon at the church with a beautiful and impressive vesper service. The new church building was dedicated on Oct. 13, 1929, but it was not until a week later that the organ was installed. There was a large congregation present.

The services opened with an organ prelude by Robert French, church organist, of Uncasville, followed by invocation given by Rev. Mr. Cooper, in the absence of Rev. Charles Smith, pastor, who was officiating at a funeral. The organ largo was rendered by Howard T. Pierce of New London. The choir then rendered an anthem and the organ solo, The Priest's March, was played by Mr. Pierce. Rev. Gurdon F. Bailey, pastor of the First Congregational church, Norwich Town, gave the scripture reading.

After a solo, O Divine Redeemer, by Miss Charlotte Brooks of Uncasville, an inspiring address was delivered by Rev. Mr. Cooper, which was followed by the solo, Now the Day is Over, by David Merritt Carlyle of New London and the organ solo, Adoration, from The Holy City, by Mr. Pierce. The order of dedication was conducted by Rev. Mr. Smith, pastor, and the prayer of dedication was given by Rev. William D. Barnes, pastor of Montville Center Congregational church. After a hymn by the choir and congregation, the exercises concluded with the benediction pronounced by Rev. Mr. Cooper.

The organ combines the tonal excellence of the European instrument with the mechanical superiority of the American product. Its diapason stop was built on similar lines to that in the parish church in Leeds, England, which has been endorsed by organ experts as one of the finest in the world. It contains imitations of several orchestral instruments as well as a wealth of pure "organ tone." Being built on the unit system of organ construction, unlimited possibilities for stop combination and flexibility are afforded. There are 15 registers, operative on two manuals, or keyboards, and pedal board. In the electrical system are 890 silver contact switches and 250 magnets. An electrical cable connects the key-desk or console with the organ chamber, which is at the right, above the choir in front of the church. The cable itself is 35 feet long and has, together with the organ and console cables, over one and one-half miles of wire. The smallest pipes are about the size of a lead pencil, while the largest are larger than a tall man.

This beautiful organ was given to the church by a friend, whose name is withheld.

TYPHOID FROM MILK FOUND IN GREENEVILLE

Within the last ten days four cases of typhoid fever have been discovered in the Greeneville section of the city by the health authorities and it has been determined that the infection has come through milk as all the families are served by the same milkman. Last Tuesday this milk supply was shut off by Dr. E. J. Brophy, city health officer, and the milk inspector, who are conducting an investigation to determine what has contaminated the milk.

It has not been determined yet whether the contamination may come from the water supply on the Preston farm from which the milk comes or whether there may be a typhoid carried on the farm.

The milkman has a small business, dispensing about 45 quarts a day to about 20 families.

COST OF AIR MAIL SERVICE EXCEEDS POSTAL REVENUE

Report of Postmaster General Brown Shows the Expenditure Was $11,207,957.07 For 10,212,511 Mileage Up to June Last—The Air Mail Service Shows a Deficit of $7,000,000—The Department Was Far From Making Both Ends Meet For the Year, the Outgo Exceeding the Income by $85,461,176.24.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2.—(AP)— How the romantic duties of the pony express have finally devolved upon the airplane was set forth in cold figures today by Postmaster General Brown in reporting to President Hoover that almost eleven and a quarter million dollars had been expended last year in carrying mail by air over nearly ten and a quarter million flying miles.

But the deficit which has ridden the back of the postoffice department for decades also touched this new method of transporting a share of the postal load. Congress had appropriated $12,450,000 for hiring private lines to do the work which was begun several years ago by the government. The expenditure was $11,207,957.07, for the mileage was 10,212,511 up to June 30 last. Nevertheless it was estimated that the cost of the service was $7,000,000 more than the postage receipts.

Postmaster General Brown said the demands for new routes were far above the annual appropriations but that the department had followed a conservative but progressive policy with regard to this service. He informed the president in his annual report that while the expenditures for the air mail were above the estimated revenue steps were being taken to adjust equitably the rates paid air mail contractors to square with existing legislation on the subject.

The department, on the whole, was far from making both ends meet for the year. In fact the burden of deficits grew noticeably heavier, the outgo exceeding the income by $85,461,176.24, for the previous year the unfavorable balance was $52,121,095.80. The difference was explained by the postmaster general as having been due to expenditures ordered by congress, such as increased postal pay, free mailing privileges, ocean mail contracts, and other such items.

It was shown in the report that the American people bought $527,705,- [illegible] worth of postage stamps and that other sources of revenue brought total receipts up to $696,347,377.- [illegible]. The expenditures were $782,808.- [illegible].

In the maze of big sums set down in the report, it was disclosed that the department spends annually more than $[illegible] in handling free mail for blind persons. This sum was the amount used for non-profitable services. The others, when added totalled $[illegible], which, if paid for, would reduce the actual deficit to $[illegible].

The postmaster general listed other items contributing to the deficit as including handling and transporting free mail, class matter free within counties of origin $8,791,930.83 and differential favoring vessels of American registry under the merchant marine act $[illegible].

Mr. Brown frankly said that he did not like the idea of having the post-office department charged up with the cost of handling free mail and recommended that legislation be passed appropriating $9,931,240 to the department to cover such cost.

A total of 276,773,736 pieces of mail, weighing 35,998,876 pounds, was mailed by departments other than the postoffice department, on which no postage was paid. The revenue which would have been derived from such mail would have totaled $8,169,170. In addition members of congress franked 37,273,276 pieces of mail which would have brought a revenue of $957,964 had postage been paid on it.

Not content with setting down astonishing figures about stamps and deficits the postmaster general turned mathematical again and informed President Hoover and congress there had been a total of 17,863,751,272 distributions and redistributions of pieces, exclusive of registered mail, by railway postal clerks.

The vast extent of the postoffice business had no better yardstick than the fact that the motor vehicle service purchased more than 10,000,000 gallons of gasoline during the year, to say nothing of oil.

SHIPPING BOARD VIEWS ON OCEAN MAIL CONTRACTS

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2—(AP)—Opposing the view that ocean mail contracts should be awarded to the lowest bidder regardless of whether his ships are former government vessels, the shipping board said today that the government is under moral obligation to furnish the mail revenue to purchasers of its lines.

The interdepartmental commission held contracts should go to lowest bidders.

The board in its annual report said that although it had been careful to avoid establishing ship services in competition with existing American-flag lines, American operators of foreign flag tonnage had underbid a purchaser of shipping board vessels.

"It would amount to a further and more serious breach of faith," the report said, "for the government, which through one of its agencies, the shipping board, has sold a service to proceed through another of its agencies, the authority awarding mail contracts, to create a new and competing service by awarding to such service the very mail pay which congress contemplated would be extended to the purchaser of the shipping board line."

The board reported that at the end of the fiscal year (June 30) it had disposed of all but 552 of the original fleet of 3400 vessels left it at the end of the war. Of these 233 were reported in active service and 319 laid up. During the year the board sold for approximately $29,000,000 a total of 269 vessels, including 11 passenger, 168 cargo, three refrigerator ships, nine tankers and 75 miscellaneous vessels. Sale of the United States Lines for $16,062,000 was the principal item.

MONTHLY REVIEW OF N. Y. FEDERAL RESERVE BANK

NEW YORK, Dec. 2.—(AP)—The New York Federal Reserve bank, in its monthly review published today, indicates that the sharp reductions in brokers' loans and interest rates in New York have not been accompanied by similar improvement in credit conditions elsewhere, and tend to give a misleading impression as to general money conditions.

The bank points out that the weekly reports of loans to brokers and dealers made by the New York city banks, both for their own account and their customers, show that borrowings by brokers and dealers for the purpose of carrying securities were virtually cut in half from Oct. 16 to Nov. 27.

It adds, however, that "a very large amount of loans against securities is made, not through brokerage houses, but by banks directly to their customers, and the available evidence indicates that in this period bank loans upon securities made directly to customers have increased rather than decreased and hence the total of security loans of reporting member banks has shown no net decrease from Oct. 16, despite some reduction in bank loans to brokers. The liquidation has been almost wholly in loans to brokers other than banks."

The review points out that New York city banks reduced their indebtedness at the Federal Reserve from $[illegible] early in August to around $[illegible] throughout most of November, while the banks in other Federal Reserve districts made no such reductions in their reserve borrowings.

PUBLIC OWNERSHIP OF LONDON TRANSPORTATION

LONDON, Dec. 2—(AP)—Herbert Morrison, labor minister of transport, announced tonight in the house of commons that the MacDonald government had decided on "a form of public ownership," for all of London's vast network of underground tubes, omnibus, street car and railway lines. The value of these lines is estimated at hundreds of millions of pounds.

Mr. Morrison said the announcement was authorized by Prime Minister MacDonald.

Amid cheers from the labor benches and silence from the opposition, the minister of transport declared that "there must be a far-reaching measure of unification and of public control."

The mayoralty contest in Rockville was decided by 47 votes, Mayor George Forsters, democrat, seeking re-election, being defeated by Albert E. Waite.

CONFESSED ROBBING AND WRECKING TRAIN

PAWNEE, Okla., Dec. 2—(AP)—Tom Vernon, former rodeo rider, who was arrested here last night in connection with the robbery of a train in California, and another later in Wyoming, tonight confessed to the wrecking and robbing of the train in California, Allen N. Jones, Pawnee county sheriff said.

Vernon, Sheriff Jones said, denied any part in the holdup a week ago today near Cheyenne, Wyo., however, and said he would fight extradition to Wyoming on that charge. He told the sheriff he was willing to go to California to face a charge of robbing a train near Saugus, Calif., November 19, and would not oppose extradition to that state.

In his confession Vernon told the sheriff he robbed the train because he was out of work and needed money. He had been promised a job by the railroad company, he said, and "had been disappointed."

Playing a lone hand, Vernon said he wrecked and robbed the train and made his escape without aid.

IN PARTIAL TREATMENT OF NEGRO AT WEST POINT

WEST POINT, N. Y., Dec. 2—(AP)—Alonzo Parham, Negro Cadet appointed to the United States Military Academy from Chicago, in an interview today said the treatment he has received since he entered the Academy July 1 has been absolutely fair and impartial.

The permission granted the cadet to talk for publication broke a policy which had been in effect at the Academy for more than a century.

Parham objected to publicity recently given him and remarked that it was "discouraging to see my position so badly misrepresented and to be singled out as an object for pity".

"Published reports that cadets never talk to me or that my relations with them are strained are absolutely false," Parham said.

SOUND OF CRASH AS NOISE OF PLANE ENGINE CEASED

BELLEFONTE, Pa., Dec. 2—(AP)—Bellefonte air depot officials said here tonight that they had received a report from Stoneboro that an airplane passed over there at 2 o'clock this morning and that the noise of the engine suddenly ceased followed by the sound of a crash. Both sides rested late this afternoon, the defense without having offered any testimony.

CABLED PARAGRAPHS

LONDON, Dec. 2—(AP)—The labor government struggled all day with its unruly left wing while discussing the unemployment insurance bill in the house of commons. Twice it won majorities by only 13 votes.

LONDON, Dec. 2—(AP)—A dispatch to the Mail from Riga, Latvia, today said Princess Sophie Lieven, sister-in-law of Sir Kynaston Studd, who was lord mayor of London last year, had been imprisoned in Lubianka jail in Moscow by political police for her Christian missionary activities in Russia. The chief charge against her was said to be that she read the Bible to children of soviet workers.

LONDON, Dec. 2—(AP)—Sir Henry Segrave, has begun the building at Cowes, Isle of Wight, of "Miss England II" with which he hopes to win back the British international speedboat trophy from the United States and set a new world record at Detroit in 1930. The new boat will be equipped with two Rolls Royce engines developing 4,000 horsepower. Sir Henry said he expected to attain a speed in excess of 100 miles an hour.

SOUTH EXPERIENCING SECOND COLD WAVE

ATLANTA, Dec. 2—(AP)—A second cold wave rode over the south tonight as the number of deaths attributable to the weather since last Frdiay mounted to 25.

Exposure, fires, traffic accidents and one drowning made up the causes of death in eight southern states where unseasonable temperatures prevailed throughout the week-end.

Moderating temperatures yesterday were followed by snow and sleet in Kentucky, Tennessee and parts of Arkansas.

Sub-freezing temperatures were in store tomorrow for even the gulf coast of Louisiana, Mississippi and Alabama, with a minimum of 16 expected in Atlanta, only two degrees above Saturday's low mark.

Snow fell over a large portion of Kentucky today and measured nearly three inches at Louisville at noon. Parts of Tennessee received their third white balnket of the season.

Storm warnings were hoisted along the Gulf of Mexico from Port Arthur, Tex., to Carabelle, Fla., where north winds reaching gale strength were expected.

Temperatures in the Mississippi valley states were expected to begin moderating tomorrow and move rapidly eastward.

MURDER BAFFLES NEW HAVEN POLICE

NEW HAVEN, Dec. 2—(AP)—Although police maintained a strict silence on the trend of their investigation, developments today disclosed that their hopes for a solution of murder of Domenick Zito, 19, lie in a maze of trails that touch the doors of the underworld.

Tonight, two days after the body with two bullet wounds in the head had been found in an open field in the town of Orange, authorities beyond admitting that no arrests had been made declined to discuss the progress of their search for his slayer.

Counterfeiting and bootlegging were included in the activities of Zito into which the police delved today.

Zito was arrested in Hartford last summer on a charge of passing a bogus $5 bill. He received a probationary sentence, and it was said he "squealed" on two other youths who were in on the game.

One of them is believed to be Isacore Arrick, now in jail under a sentence of five months, and the other is Dominick Prete, for whom a country-wide search is being made.

Zito's body was found a week after Arrick went to jail.

ALDRICH DELAYED BY BAD FLYING WEATHER

ALBANY, N. Y., Dec. 2.—(AP)—Robert Aldrich, young president of Flyers, Inc., here, at an extradition hearing before Acting Governor Herbert H. Lehman today, testified that dangerous flying weather prevented his appearance as a witness at Newport, R. I., last Oct. 14.

It was for this failure to appear that Rhode Island authorities caused Aldrich's arrest here Nov. 29. He is charged in an indictment returned at Newport, Oct. 23, with obstructing justice after he did not show up at a trial of two men whom he accused of fleecing him of $40,000 in a wire tapping swindle.

BLINDING BLIZZARD AND WILD SEA OFF NEWFOUNDLAND

ST. JOHN'S, N. F., Dec. 2.—(AP)—A wild sea and a blinding blizzard held tonight the fate of two score Newfoundland fishermen and sailors and the crews of three disabled Norwegian freighters.

The storm threatened also the lives of rescuers in pilot boats, tugs, and steamers, although the crews of four fishermen were snatched from the angry Atlantic.

The captain and four-man crew of the George Kay were rescued by the steamer Holfpleio, which later followed up this feat by rescuing the crew of the schooner, Catherine B, landing them all at St. John's today.

SEIZURE OF LOTTERY TICKETS IN BRIDGEPORT

BRIDGEPORT, Dec. 2—(AP)—Hundreds of thousands of lottery tickets and complete equipment for their printing and preparation for distribution in Connecticut, were seized and three arrests made by state and local police today in a raid upon a printing establishment in Long Hill.

Those who were arrested and later released under bonds of $1,000 for appearance in the December term of the criminal superior court are: Frank Rice, 32, proprietor of the plant; Clayton Gritman, of West Haven, and William Donnelly, of this city.

Police surprised these three men and four women in the plant busily engaged in printing and sewing the tickets for distribution.

BONDSMAN FOR GANGSTERS SHOT DEAD IN ST. LOUIS

ST. LOUIS, Dec. 2—(AP)—Joseph Mogler, 53, state senator and owner of three neighborhood motion picture theatres, who frequently signed bail bonds without charge in befriending gangsters and others charged with major crimes, was shot and killed today by one of two masked men who waited for his arrival at the "Mogler" theatre. The slayers escaped.

As no robbery was attempted, the police investigation tonight centered on the theory that Senator Mogler was killed for revenge in some dispute growing out of his underworld friendships.

Memorandum Sent To Russia And China

LONDON, Dec. 2.—(AP)—Great Britain and the United States have made representations to Russia and China calling attention to their obligations as signatories to the Kellogg-Briand pact in settling their dispute in Manchuria.

The British government tonight issued the text of a memorandum to China and Russia, saying that Great Britain joined the United States in the effort to bring about peaceful settlement of the Manchurian conflict.

Foreign Secretary Henderson announced in the house of commons that the government had agreed to the joint representations at the instance of the American government.

"As to the existence of a state of war, I can only state that as far as I know neither the Chinese nor the soviet government has informed any other government that they consider themselves at war," Mr. Henderson said.

"To the best of my belief the Chinese government has taken no definite step to bring the dispute before the league of nations. But on November 28 the Chinese minister informed me that his government contemplated such an appeal and asked for my view.

"I pointed out that there was a difficulty because the soviet union was not a member of the league, and I informed him of the action of the United States government."

Mr. Henderson's statement was called forth by questions from members. Replying to one of these, which suggested that the league covenant covered the situation Mr. Henderson said Great Britain and the other powers felt it would be much better to take action under the Kellogg-Briand pact because both Russia and China had signed it.

FRENCH AND U. S. NOTE SENT TO RUSSIA AND CHINA

PARIS, Dec. 2.—(AP) —France and the United States, sponsors of the Kellogg-Briand peace pact, have sent notes to Russia and China, as signatories of the pact, calling attention particularly to the pact's provision that all disputes should be settled by pacific means.

In a note that is virtually identical with that of the United States, France expressed her hope that Russia and China would refrain from hostile measures and find a peaceful solution for their controversy in Manchuria.

Early proposals for a collective note were abandoned. Instead, the United States sent a note to China through the American minister and despatched a similar note to Russia through the French foreign office and the French ambassador in Moscow.

The French note recalls that the French government drew the attention of China and Russia to the terms of the Kellogg-Briand pact in July, and that at that time both countries affirmed their determination not to resort to war unless they were attacked.

The note adds that the French government "is persuaded that the credit of Russia and China in the opinion of the world depends largely on the way in which they execute the solemn engagements they have contracted."

MILITIA WAS MOBILIZED OUTSIDE NEW ORLEANS

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 2—(AP)—New Orleanns was thrown into a state of excitement late today by sudden mobilization of state militia at Jackson barracks under secret orders from Governor Huey P. Long, but after 200 men had been assembled they were dismissed with the explanation that it was a "test mobilization."

Investigation, however, disclosed that the governor had ordered the troops mobilized to oust Dr. V. K. Irion from the office of state conservation commissioner and to install his appointee, Robert S. Maestri, but Dr. Irion made such a course unnecessary by voluntarily surrendering the office after the state supreme court had held that Maestri was entitled to the office.

FREIGHTER ON REEF WITH A SCORE OF MEN ABOARD

OSWEGO, N. Y., Dec. 2—(AP)—The freighter Sarniadoc, with a score of men aboard, remained caught in the teeth of a Lake Ontario reef tonight as coast guardsmen fought their way to the scene through a slowly dying northwest gale.

Two coastguard vessels left New York state ports for Main Duck Island, 26 miles north of this city, where the freighter struck in yesterday's blizzard. The sturdy 36 foot motor life boat left here at noon and the 75 foot rum chaser put out from Rochester.

The freighter Valley Camp, of Cleveland, remained near the stranded Sarniadoc throughout the day, but was unable to remove any of the latter's crew. Heavy seas crashed over the Sarniadoc's decks at intervals.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2.—(AP)—The Farmers' National Grain Corp. has been given funds and authority by the farm board to protect elevator owners in the wheat country from having to sign long-term contracts with commission grain dealers or have their loans called by those dealers.

Chairman Legge said today that the grain corporation, or its subsidiary marketing agencies in the northwest and the Pacific northwest, could act promptly if it became necessary.

CHIEF BRITISH DELEGATES TO THE NAVAL CONFERENCE

LONDON, Dec. 2—(AP)—Prime Minister MacDonald today announced the plans and scope of the five power naval conference, which will open on January 21 in the royal gallery of the house of lords and will then hold its subsequent sessions at St. James palace on the invitation of King George.

The four chief British delegates will be Mr. MacDonald himself, Arthur Henderson, the foreign secretary; A. V. Alexander, first lord of the admiralty and Wedgewood Benn, secretary of state for India.

Decision Against Extravagant Wives

Credit Should Not Be Granted Married Woman Whose Husband Gives Her Money to Pay Cash.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2—(AP)—The husband who gives his wife money to pay cash instead of having her buy on his credit won today in a decision by the District of Columbia court of appeals, which excused Representative George Huddleston of Alabama of liability for a $245 debt for furs bought by his wife, Bertha.

The Alabaman had said he gave Mrs. Huddleston $75 in cash each month for her personal expenses and had forbidden her to pledge his credit. She purchased the furs on credit, nevertheless, paying $8 down on a coat and fox scarf costing $253.

Judgment in favor of the husband was rendered in the municipal court, and the fur merchant sued out a writ of error. Justice Charles H. Robb in today's decision said it would tend "to check extravagance (one of the most pronounced modern evils), and at the same time protect husbands who, in good faith, have made such provisions for their wives as their means and station in life warranted, from debts thoughtlessly and needlessly contracted and often beyond the capacity of the husband to pay."

"Moreover," the decision continued, "it does not require the discernment of a Solomon to appreciate that the unauthorized purchase of goods by a wife, whose husband has adequately provided for her, inevitably will have a tendency to disturb and possibly disrupt their conjugal relations."

As for the merchant who makes such a sale as involved in the case, the appeals court held he must learn whether a wife has authority to pledge her husband's credit.

TELL OF ROTHSTEIN AFTER FATAL SHOOTING

NEW YORK, Dec. 2—(AP)—A line of state witnesses in the trial of George A. McManus for the murder of Arnold Rothstein told, one after another, today their story of how Rothstein, bent over with pain, appeared in the service entry of the Park Central hotel the night of November 4, a year ago.

Calling to the stand employes of the hotel and police and city hospital officers, George N. Brothers, prosecuting the case, adduced testimony that the wounded Arnold Rothstein was seen in the servants hallway of the hotel gasping "I'm shot. Get me a taxi and a doctor."

None of today's witnesses, however, would say Rothstein had gained the place where they saw him in a lower hallway by coming from a service stairway, a route the state alleges he took from Suite 849.

Vincent Kelly, an elevator operator, Thomas Calhoun, a watchman and Thomas McGivaney, a timekeeper, were the hotel employes called.

They all told substantially the same story: That the first they saw of Rothstein that night was when he leaned against a wall near the watchman's desk and voiced his plea for aid.

They did substantiate the state's contention that Rothstein would not necessarily have left a trail of blood along his pathway as they said they saw no blood on the floor where he stood and only a little on his clothing, near the place in the lower abdomen when the bullet entered.

CHALLENGES ACCURACY OF REPORT OF BYRD'S FLIGHT

LONDON, Dec. 3—(Tuesday)—(AP)—The mail today says that the accuracy of the report of Commander Richard E. Byrd of his South Polar flight has been challenged by Major Tryggve Gran, Norwegian air man and explorer who was a member of the Scott Antarctic expedition.

Gran said, "in my opinion it would be nothing short of a miracle if the cairns were so well preserved that they were visible from the air against the white snow-plain."

The terrible mountains which Commander Byrd describes according to Gran are a "fantasy". He said his own experience and that of Amundsen, discoverer of the South Pole, as revealed in discussion with himself about the character of the landscape show that there are no mountains.

"When we returned from Scott's expedition we agreed the trip might be made with a motorcycle, the land being on the whole a plain except for crevasses and ravines."

HEAVY SNOW MADE AUTO DRIVING PERILOUS

By the Associated Press

Connecticut's weather changed yesterday from a bitterly cold wave which gripped the state for three days to warmer temperatures and a heavy fall of snow.

Automobile driving became a perilous occupation, and resulted in one death.

Beginning shortly before noon, snow fell rapidly covering city streets and country roads to a depth of more than an inch in about an hour. It had reached a depth of two inches in New Haven last night.

The snowfall, which was general over the state, came from the Great Lakes region, weather bureau officials reported, and followed a rise in temperature.

SHORT SESSIONS OF SENATE AND HOUSE

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2—(AP)—Confronted with a $160,000,000 income tax reduction resolution in the early minutes, the first regular session of the seventy first congress quickly dispensed with the formalities of opening today to make ready for the heavy assortment of legislation facing it.

The booming voice of Chairman Hawley, of the house ways and means committee, gave notice shortly after the gavel fell that the tax reduction resolution was on its way. He obtained unanimous consent for its consideration on Thursday.

Otherwise the tariff-worn senate and the restless house confined their first day's activities to handclasping and the routine of convening. Tonight conferences were under way looking to an arrangement of the program which promises to carry well into next summer.

The hazard of the sleet forced two members of the house-Representatives Hill, of Washington and W. E. Hull, of Illinois to seek medical attention for injuries from falls and kept the gallery attendance in both the senate and house to a scattering few.

Vice President Curtis and Speaker Longworth were attired in formal morning dress as they rapped for order at noon in the senate and house, respectively.

It took the senate just nine minutes to conclude its session while the house met for an hour. Both branches adjourned as a mark of respect for the late Senator Warren, of Wyoming.

The house applauded vigorously as Representative Moore, of Virginia, offered a resolution directing the speaker to convey its congratulations to Commander Richard E. Byrd on his successful flight over the South Pole. It was adopted without debate.

Tomorrow, President Hoover will transmit his first message on "the state of the union," which will include his legislative recommendations. It will be read separately in the senate and house.

INCOME TAX REDUCTION TO BE RUSHED IN HOUSE

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2—(AP)—Congress began a quick step march to the relief of the 1929 income taxpayer today as the simultaneous bang of gavels in the senate and house signalized opening of the regular session.

The resolution of slice $160,000,000 from the tax rolls, sponsored by the administration and already approved by the majority and minority leaders of congress, was dropped into the basket on Speaker Longworth's desk a minute or so before the house was called to order. Within an hour the huse had agreed to take the measure up on Thursday for passage.

The proposal would authorize a one per cent reduction in rates on corporation and normal individual incomes of 1929.

No difficulty is expected in obtaining quick passage in the house. Action on the measure in the senate probably will follow speedily, in view of agreement on the plan between party chiefs there.

Introducing the measure, Chairman Hawley of the ways and means committee explained that hearings would be held Wednesday and it was desired to report the resolution of the house Thursday for action.

Under Secretary Mills of the treasury will appear at the committee hearings to explain the resolution. It does not amend existing laws relating to income taxes other than reducing the rate of corporation taxes from 12 to 11 per cent and the rate on all normal individual incomes by 1 per cent for 1930 reeturns of 1929 taxes.

TILSON PREDICTS PASSAGE OF APPROPRIATION BILLS

(Special to The Bulletin)

He is hopeful the French debt and the tax reduction bills will also pass before the recess. While not certain the two bills are likely to be post office and treasury combined in one bill and either interior or agriculture in the other first to be handled. Tilson has a program framed that will give such bills the right of way. Practically all the Connecticut delegation were in their seats when congress convened this noon. Col. Tilson had a cable today from Mrs. Tilson now in Europe saying she was sailing for home today and will join him here after the holidays.

POSTPONEMENT OF VARE CASE TO BE PROPOSED

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2—(AP)—Postponement of the Vare case in the senate until next week will be proposed tomorrow when the resolution to deny the Pennsylvanian a senate seat comes up by previous agreement.

The delay will be asked to give the elections committee an opportunity to report on the contest brought against Senator-Elect William S. Vare by William B. Wilson, his democratic opponent in the 1926 Pennsylvania election.

Senator Norris, republican, Nebraska, is author of the resolution to deny Vare a seat on account of expenditures of more than $600,000 by his ticket in the senatorial primary race that year. He announced that he would demand immediate action on his resolution.

The elections committee will meet tomorrow to receive a report from a sub-committee which has spent two years investigating the election contest. The sub-committee ended its investigation with a refusal to allow Vare's request for a recount of ballots in 31 additional counties.

TO PROTEST INCREASE OF NEWSPRINT PRICE

NEW YORK, Dec. 2.—(AP)—Canada supplies more than half the newsprint tonnage consumed by American newspapers annually, the American Newspaper Publishers' association announced today in preparing for the emergency newsprint convention of the association called to meet here next Monday.

The association is expected to enter a protest against a movement to increase the newsprint price at Canadian mills, which in keeping with the manufacturers' policy of "one price to all," the publishers pointed out, would force American paper producers to follow suit. The Canadian increase is sought by the provincial governments of Ontario and Quebec.

Newsprint production for the first 10 months of 1929 totaled 3,594,394 tons, according to figures at the A. N. P. A. headquarters here, of which 3,137,325 tons were consumed by American publishers. Canadian mills produced 2,245,795 tons of the first 10 months' production; United States, 1,160,757 tons; Newfoundland, 107,678 tons, and 80,164 tons were imported from overseas. Norway, Sweden, Finland and Germany supply most of the newsprint brought in from countries other than Canada.

American publishers in 1928 used 3,592,539 tons of newsprint and Canadian publishers used 69,032 tons. There are nearly 450 daily papers members of the A. N. P. A.

The publishers said a $5 per ton increase in newsprint prices as advocated by the two provincial governments would mean an added expenditure of $20,000,000 for American publishers next year, based upon an increased useage of paper.

SUPREME COURT TO PASS ON PROHIBITION CASES

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2.—(AP)—Two phases of the powers of the federal government in prohibition enforcement, affecting seizure of automobiles carrying liquor and the issuance of liquor manufacturing permits, will be passed upon by the supreme court.

The questions will be presented in cases which the court today decided to review. One case challenges the right to confiscate automobiles under the internal revenue law instead of the prohibition laws. The other involves the right to set definite dates for the termination of manufacturing permits and thus require firms to renew their permits.

The automobile case was brought by the Richbourg Motor Co. of North Carolina. The case has aroused widespread interest in the automobile industry, especially in connection with the sale of cars on time payment plans.

If an automobile is seized under the prohibition laws, the manufacturer or agent holding a lien on it would be able to protect his interest, as he later could obtain the car if title to the machine was established. On the other hand, should the car be seized under the internal revenue law, the government could not be compelled to give it up.

In the case involving the setting of definite expiration dates on permits the government lost in the lower federal courts in New York, which held in a number of cases that the prohibition bureau had no right to interfere as it proposed with permits it had granted, taking the view that the prohibition act conferred no such authority. The lower courts also held invalid the orders which the secretary of the treasury and the federal prohibition commission had issued in October, 1927, containing such regulations.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2.—(AP)—Representative Tinkham, of Massachusetts, had the way opened today for him to testify before the senate lobby committee about activities of the board of temperance of the Methodist Episcopal church and the Federal Council of Churches, which he has attacked.

Answering the republican foe of the prohibition law, Chairman Caraway of the committee assured him of an opportunity to be heard later. Meantime, Senator Caraway said the committee would conclude the inquiry into activities on the tariff and begin the investigation of those interested in the Muscle Shoals legislation.

Tinkham requested the committee to "unmask the indefensible political activities" of the two organizations.

REPUBLICANS GAIN COUNCIL CONTROL, KING IS MAYO

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Dec. 2.—The republican party riding on the tide of a sweeping majority for Arthur L. Clark, seeking re-election for city clerk and treasurer, elected Walter R. King mayor, and gained control of the common council, 4 to 2, in the biennial city election held today. King's majority over John Reilly, d, was 216.

In his sensational run, City Clerk Clark defeated Roderick G. Dion, d, by a majority of 576 for city clerk and 679 for city treasurer. These officers are combined but voted for separately. Clark ran ahead of his ticket in all four wards, his nearest competitor for high honors in any one ward being Alderman Cyril A. Lamoreux, who received 286 votes in the third ward, where he has been a resident for a number of years. In that ward Clark received 207 for city clerk and 214 for city treasurer.

The republicans gave a good account in three of the four wards, the normally democratic third ward giving its candidate for alderman, Louis C. Vegiard, a majority of 170 against James M. Smith, r. Robert A. Hanna, r, running against Henry Boucher, d, in the normally republican first ward, entered into office by a majority of 100.

In the second ward, which has frequently been rated as a doubtful ward and is the largest of the four, John P. Carlsen, r, a former alderman, secured a majority of 252 over Walter Costello. Alderman Eugene B. Lewis, seeking re-election in the fourth ward, gained his objective with a majority of 99 over John T. Meikle, d.

The vast popular vote for City Clerk Clark came as a repetition of the tremendous majority accorded him on his first entrance to office two years ago when the republicans, with Mayor Charles A. Gates at the head of the ticket, took the election by storm.

The aldermen-at-large on the republican ticket, Cyril A. Lamoreux, who secured the next highest majority to the city clerk, and William E Webber, both present aldermen, were elected by respective majorities of 422 and 249. Alderman Lamoreux defeating James E. Gavigan. Herbert I. Sanderson, d, running against Alderman Webber, goes into office by virtue of securing a larger vote than his running mate. Three of the four candidates for this office are elected. A similar condition exists in the positions of city assessors, where Gerard E. Loiselle and Charles R. Cone, rs, and Joseph F. Gaudreau, d, are elected, Mrs. Loretta Costello being the defeated candidate. The office of city sheriff, Ralph J. Lussier, incumbent, gained a majority of 354 over William W. Gilford.

All but a handful of voters took the pains to act on the matter, the special act of the 1927 legislature increasing the salary of the mayor from $500 to $1,000 annually and giving the aldermen $200 annually, which was presented as a referendum, and voted 301 to 175, a majority of 126. The voters in the fourth ward were opposed in numbers to the proposed salary schedule as indicated in the vote of 72 yes and 68 no in this respect. The majority in favor of the new salaries in the remaining three wards was substantial.

The weather proved inclement for ideal voting conditions, a snowstorm that started in the morning hours continued throughout the day and by night had deposited nearly three-inches of wet snow. The downfall hampered the efforts of party workers somewhat and the voting in all wards was slow during the early hours, although gaining considerable impetus during the noon hour and early afternoon. Many who had awaited the abatement of the snowstorm plodded to the polls at 4 p. m. The polls had opened at 6 a. m.

With 3,462 names on the city voting list, the total number of voters registered on the eight voting machines used today was 2,429, slightly over 63 per cent. The vote cast in the election two years ago was 2,237 or 192 less than today's total. The report of the lists and number voted in each ward follows:

1—list 1,116, voted 691; 2—list 2,214, voted 1,371; 3—list 573, voted 570; 4—list 1,209, voted 797.

The various ward returns were taken to the second ward voting place in the old town hall on Church street, where the final figures were compiled by L. N. Gery and Romeo Benoit. The first ward, which was last to present its figures, reported at 5:30 p. m., and the finals were announced about 6 p. m. by Chief Moderator John J. Sullivan. Moderator Sullivan declared the successful candidates elected and then on a motion adjourned the annual meeting until 2 o'clock Tuesday afternoon in the town hall.

Shortly after 5:30 o'clock Monday morning, a barn in the rear of the residence owned by Mrs. Fannie Rose Bennett of South Coventry, about one-half mile north of the Nathan Hale monument, was destroyed by fire of unknown origin. The blaze was discovered by Mrs. Bennett who was alone in the house at the time. The timely arrival of Engine Company No. 1, of the local fire department and their efficient work saved the residence, located in close proximity to the barn from destruction. The rear end of the dwelling was scorched. About 100 chickens were burned to death in the barn. Other contents included grain, lumber and farming implements, all of which were destroyed. When the local firemen arrived the burning structure was enveloped in flames, so they confined their efforts to saving the house. The loss is estimated at about $2,500 and is fairly well covered by insurance.

Temperature Drop due Tonight!

protect your car NOW

BR-R-R! LOOKS COLD, DOESN'T IT? And this is just a sample of the freezing weather just around the corner. "Snow and Colder" will be forecast soon ... and that means trouble for motorists who forget to fill their radiators with Denatured Alcohol ... the universally approved anti-freeze.

Here's how to protect your car against "freeze-ups" in less than 2 minutes with Denatured Alcohol

TONIGHT, car owners! That's what the weather man says! Winter's due ... with a sharp drop in temperature!

Maybe you think your car is protected ... but just to be sure drive now to the nearest garage or filling station. Tell the man you want Denatured Alcohol.

He'll look at a chart that tells him how much your car requires. Then put in that amount. As an extra check, he tests the solution ... and you drive away, knowing your power plant is fully protected ... and less than 2 minutes required!

Think how simple it is! Far less bother than changing oil ... no more time than filling the gas tank!

And you've followed the procedure most automobile engineers recommend ... used the only anti-freeze with a backing of 20 years of successful use!

Safe, Sure, Economical!

Denatured Alcohol is fully tried. It protects your car against cold weather ... without the danger of damage to the motor. No corrosion of metal parts. No rotted hose. No damaged pumps. No risk of shorted electrical circuits.

You use it as you need it ... a little or more as the climate calls for. You pay only for what you need. You have no needless servicing charges to meet, no inconvenience from unnecessary lay-ups.

More ... your cooling system requires no more attention than you normally give it. Your service man will check your solution any time ... and tell you as often as you wish to know just how much you are protected.

As for cost, Denatured Alcohol is by far the cheapest anti-freeze on the market. In the severest climates, a full winter's supply will cost you only a fraction as much as certain other anti-freezes.

Remember ... Denatured Alcohol is the universally accepted anti-freeze for motor cars. Use it ... and you are following the experience of 20,000,000 motorists who know how safe and sure it is.

Look for the orange and green sign.

The Industrial Alcohol Institute, Inc., Graybar Building, New York City.

WISER MAN NOW ... He thought that he was protected, but his substitute anti-freeze had leaked away. Now a frozen motor right when he wanted the car badly. He'll take no more unnecessary chances he says. A dollar or two buys all the Denatured Alcohol you'll need all season. Look for the orange and green sign at the first indication of colder weather. That's the place to buy.

ALL THERE IS TO IT! Just pour in Denatured Alcohol. The Alco-Tester shows you the strength of your solution.

SIX INDISPUTABLE FACTS

You've heard a lot about anti-freezes. Here are the real facts in the case ... the indisputable reasons why more motorists use Denatured Alcohol than all other anti-freezes combined.

1 An entire season's supply of Denatured Alcohol usually costs less than half as much as one filling of some preparations.

2 Denatured Alcohol is harmless to radiators, engines and electrical systems. It will not corrode metal parts or attack rubber hose and does not cause leaks.

3 No special service is required to make your car ready for winter. Just put Denatured Alcohol in your radiator as it is.

4 Every car manufacturer approves Denatured Alcohol, and the firm that made your radiator is also emphatic in its endorsement.

5 If your protective solution is lost through accident or carelessness, the cost of replacement with Denatured Alcohol is usually one-sixth that of replacement with some preparations.

6 You can get Denatured Alcohol anywhere, anytime. Service when you need it, wherever you are.

Slo-baking means better bread

A modern development of an old baking principle

OLD home cooks would tell you that the delicious goodness of home-baked bread came from the long ... slow baking of good ingredients.

And if they, today, could taste but one slice of slo-baked Wonder Bread they would tell you its goodness is due to the same old-fashioned baking principles.

Every year we pay two million dollars more to get the super-quality ingredients we demand for Wonder Bread. Short patent flour ... which is made from the heart of the wheat berry ... pure sweet milk with a high butter fat content, pure salt, granulated sugar, and yeast.

Then every loaf is touched by the magic of slo-baking. Slo-baked to seal in the appetizing fragrance of these super-quality ingredients ... and to seal in their body-building, nourishing qualities.

And more. Just as old-fashioned home bakers used to put fresh bread aside before allowing anyone to eat it, we put slo-baked Wonder Bread aside to cool before wrapping. Not chilled, but carefully and slowly cooled for cleanliness and safe-keeping. Continental Baking Company.

DANIELSON

FIRST HEAVY SNOW IS CAUSE OF AUTO ACCIDENTS

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Dec. 2. — Old Man Winter, adding a storm phase to his first offensive of real cold weather period, raised old Ned with automobile traffic all through this territory this afternoon during the course of a snowstorm that was of such a nature as to make traveling in a motor car over the hard surfaces of trunk line highways a most hazardous and dangerous undertaking. The storm had not been underway an hour when reports of cars being damaged by skidding began to come in. And similar reports kept coming throughout the afternoon.

The worst mixup in nearby territory had its inception about 2:30 on the Danielson-Wauregan highway, just below the north entrance to the power station of the Connecticut company at the Dyer dam on a long S curve. A light truck that skidded and tore off a wheel started this jam, which eventually resulted in other cars being damaged or being driven off the highway and up embankments or into the brush as drivers tried to stop them as they found that there was danger immediately ahead.

This tangle eventually became such that as many as 30 cars were held up at one time, some of them headed south, some of them waiting to come north. The danger to moving traffic was so great that volunteers from among the stalled motorists sallied forth above the bends of the curve to act as traffic officers and slow down and halt uncoming traffic. After a time a one-way traffic arrangement was put into effect past the jammed area. A particularly fortunate circumstance was that no one was injured in the unusual series of happenings, though some of the cars did not come out without damage.

The Dodge truck that was involved in the affair was owned by F. A. Maycott of Putnam. It was towed to a local garage. Also to the garage went a Chevrolet coach that was being operated by Rev. Fritz Soderberg, of North Grosvenordale. Another machine, owned by Earl Gilbert, Jewett City, a Cadillac, was damaged when it skidded and met up with a pole. A car operated by Rev. A. E. Gallup, of Danielson, also went off the highway, but was not damaged.

Cashier Francis E. Storer of the Windham County National bank of Danielson, was today elected president of the Thames Bank and Trust company of Norwich and will soon leave Danielson to take up his new duties.

Mr. Storer has been a resident of Danielson since the spring of 1915, when he came here to take his present position, leaving another one with the Shawmut National bank of Boston to do so, as more fully set forth in the Norwich city news this morning.

Mr. Storer is a highly efficient banker, an indefatigable worker and of an unusually appealing personality. In Norwich the same degree of success, multiplied by the opportunities he will have in a larger field, are practically certain to be his. Danielson regrets losing such a valuable citizen, but therein Norwich gains.

Announcement was made today of a business change under which the business conducted here for the past ten years by John M. Dowe becomes Dowe's, Inc. Frederick A. Jacobs has been elected president of the corporation, Muriel C. Dowe as secretary, and Arthur A. Dean, as treasurer. The board of directors is made up of the president, manager and secretary and of Harry W. Clarke and Obadiah Butler. Mr. Dowe is to be manager of the company, lending his experience and ability to further the success of the concern. There are no immediate plans for expansion, but rather a program of making more highly efficient the operation of the business and the giving of the best possible service. Mr. Dowe has long since demonstrated his ability to work hard and intelligently in his chosen field of endeavor. The concern is doing business in the Dowe building, erected two years ago and made ready for occupancy in December of 1927.

Two Cadillacs, one operated by Waldo Wood, of East Franklin street, the other by Isadore Blais, who drives for the Danielson Taxi service, crashed early this afternoon at the junction of South Main street and Tiffany street on the West Side. Wood was turning into Tiffany street at the time the accident occurred, and State Officer H. Theodore Strand, who investigated the accident, ordered Wood to appear in court, in the town of Brooklyn, to answer to a charge of failure to grant the right of way. Neither Wood nor Blais were injured in the accident, which occurred on a slippery highway surface, but both cars were considerably damaged.

Sunday marked the beginning of the fifth year of motor coach service through this area by the Connecticut company. Trolley service was discontinued Nov. 30, 1925, and meanwhile much of the trackage of the line has been taken out between Central Village and the Massachusetts line. The coach service has functioned with entire satisfaction from the first, being regular, dependable and comfortable, and the coaches make better traveling time than the trolley cars did between different points.

Mrs. William Young and Mrs. Louis Rhodes will be hostesses when the Wesleyan circle of the Methodist Episcopal church meets Tuesday evening. A Camel Ride with Dr. Kahn, will be the subject of the evening.

A curious little incident is that having to do with cards received here from children formerly resident in Danielson, but now of Albany-Decatur, Ala., where their parents went with the removal of the Connecticut Mills company. Bearing requests that read "Please send us some ice and snow." The suggestion is that they miss the white-clad winters of New England that are memories of their very early years.

The borough has practically completed its sidewalk building operations until next spring, and has to show for its activities during the fall a fine walk along the easterly side of Mechanic street from Academy to a point near North street. Next spring the borough will proceed with further construction. It has a special fund of $15,000 available, and with abutting property owners paying half the construction cost of the walks another $12,000 worth of work can be done.

With football togs put away after last week's final game of the season the Killingly high school athletic activities will now center about basketball. The season's schedule will be announced in the not distant future.

Charles Webb of Allen Hill, who was knocked from the bicycle he was riding on the West Side, Thanksgiving eve, by a passing automobile, is more seriously injured than at first was apparent. His scalp is lacerated, his face cut and his ankle quite badly hurt. He is confined to his bed.

Friday afternoon of this week, when a large attendance is hoped for, the Civic federation is to meet in the Community room of the Brooklyn Savings bank building.

Danielson's second snowstorm of the season set in this afternoon shortly after noon. Within an hour careful motorists were using tire chains on their cars for the first time since last winter.

Rev. Ansel E. Johnson of New York, is to speak at the morning service at the Westfield Congregational church next Sunday. Rev. Mr. Johnson is one of the experts of promotion of the denomination, and his visit here will be coincident to the Every Member canvass.

Christmas seals are now appearing on some of the mail being received through the Danielson office. As the sale of them here opens this week much local mail will carry them from now on to Christmas.

Miss Elizabeth Dunn, of the Danielson central telephone office, is at New Haven this week attending meetings of the general conference board as commercial representative from this area.

PUTNAM

REPUBLICAN TICKET ELECTED BY LARGE MARGIN IN PUTNAM

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PUTNAM, Dec. 2—The republican ticket scored a sweeping victory in the biennial city election today. While the campaign had only one contest the election was punctuated with a record turnout of voters despite the inclement weather. A total of 984 ballots were cast, 450 of which were straight republican and 308 democrat. There were 234 split tickets.

Following the counting of ballots it was revealed that Mayor Charles A. Richard, candidate for re-election, had as his opponent Walter N. Mr. King's name was written in the blank column on six ballots.

In the race for tax collector Harvey Grinsell, republican candidate, defeated James J. Charron, democrat, by a majority of 66 votes. Grinsell poled 526 to Charron's 460.

The remaining candidates elected without opposition were Warren S. Ames, republican, alderman-at-large, 570; Charles H. Brown, republican, city treasurer, 928; auditors, Lucius Merriam, republican, 555; John J. McGarry, democrat, 378; registrars of voters, Herman G. Edward Duffy, democrat, 365.

Nelson Frink has been officially appointed director of instrumental music in the schools of Putnam, according to an announcement made today by Superintendent of Schools Leon M. Farrin. No salary will be attached to this office, but Mr. Frink will receive reimbursement from pupils instructed, who will pay small individual fees for class instruction. Participation by the pupils will be entirely voluntary Mr. Farrin said. Mr. Frink is presently directing the newly organized Putnam high school band, which made its initial appearance at the Putnam-Killingly football game on Thanksgiving day.

ELKS LEASE PERRY POND FOR PUBLIC SKATING

PUTNAM, Dec. 2—Putnam is to have a community winter playground at the Perry pond on Grove street annex. It was announced this afternoon by Lionel H. Charron exalted ruler of the Putnam lodge of Elks who stated that the community welfare committee of the lodge had negotiated with George E. Perry, owner of the large pond and had procured a lease entitling the public to use it for winter sports.

In past years the pond has been available to the public for skating purposes, though it was made dangerous for this pastime at certain winter months when the harvesting of the ice crop took place. Mr. Charron intimated this afternoon that rights purchased by the Elks lodge include a clause, whereby no ice may be harvested this year.

The public has been enjoying the skating for the past two days. Water in the pond has frozen to an average depth of almost four inches. The thickness is such, that a large crowd may be accommodated on it without fear for their safety.

Attorney A. Macdonald, Jr., is chairman of the community welfare committee of the order of Elks. The efforts of this committee are largely responsible for the bringing about of the city's first community enterprise, fostering winter sporting activities on the part of the general public.

On next Monday evening the Elks and Masonic clubs become friendly enemies with the season's first battle over the green felted tables, to mark the opening of the annual Elks-Masons winter season indoor sports tournament. The "Brother Bills" will invade the Masonic club rooms on South Main street, the Masons returning the visit the following Monday evening. The players of both lodges will meet to select the season partners Monday. Luncheons will be served by the entertaining club at the close of each meet. This year's engagement will be the fourth annual clash of the two clubs. The Elks have taken three straight tourneys and are outto clinch a fourth in order to keep their record unmarred, while the opposing Masonic forces are determined to play better roles this season.

Three well known state officials in educational circles have been engaged to speak at meetings of the Putnam teachers club during the next three months, F. S. Camp, state supervisor of urban education will talk on interpreting the course of study at the December meeting. Dr. Charles Prohaska, state director of health and physical education will talk on his field, at the January meeting, Russell Lund, who is state director of nature study will be the speaker at the February meeting. He will give helpful suggestions on his highly interesting subject. All meetings of the teachers club are held at the Putnam high school building on the second Wednesday of the month at 2:35 p. m.

The Columbian Players, dramatic group of the Cargill Council K. of C., are to make their fourth annual stage appearance in this city on January 17, it was said today following a meeting of the players held at K. of C., rooms on Main street. Next year's presentation will be a comedy in three acts, entitled, "Skinner's Dress Suit." The cast of characters with the exception of a few changes will be the same as last year. The play will be given in the Bradley theatre.

At an early hour tonight a four inch blanket of snow covered the city with prospects of a continuation of the fall during the night. The light, fine flakes began to fall shortly after noon and continued until a late hour tonight with no indications of a let-up. Traffic was thrown into low gear, with several collisions being narrowly avoided by skidding cars thrown out of control by sudden applications of brakes. The state highway department's local headquarters were prepared with an increased force of men and trucks to combat the forces of nature. The state highways hereabouts were to be plowed and sanded for the first time this year. According to data on file at the local bureau of the highway department, the snow forces were not called upon until a much later day in the season last year.

With the arrival of the first substantial snow of the season, Captain William J. Jarvis tonight issued orders to all patrolmen to keep a sharp lookout for boys and girls coasting on public thoroughfares. Many accidents were averted through this police order last year and such precautions are being taken by the police to safeguard the lives of children. Coasting will be allowed only on private streets where there is no motor vehicle traffic.

Putnam is gradually moving to the spirit of the approaching Christmas season. Within a few days savings deposits on record in three local banks totaling almost a $100,000 will be released to depositors. Much of this money will be expended locally, while a goodly amount will be returned to the banks for re-deposit. The merchants bureau is making arrangements for the decoration of the business section with colored lights. Relief committees of fraternal organizations and other societies are investigating conditions in order to compile lists for the distribution of Christmas charity. It appears that within the passing of another week the city will be in the full glow of the Christmas season both commercially and socially.

Frederick Alvord of Walnut street left Saturday for Putney, Vermont, where he has accepted a position with the United States department of agriculture. Mr. Alvord is a graduate of Putnam high school class of '27.

Several members of the Anslem Mayottee post, American Legion and members of the post auxiliary were in Danielson yesterday where they attended a meeting of the 4th district of the Legion.

At a service of communion held yesterday afternoon at the Congregational church several new members were admitted to the church. Those who were enrolled were William Moss, Dorothy Dow, Miss Jessica Macdonald, Mrs. Sarah Gifford, and Allen Keith. Those who were admitted by letter were Herbert Dow, James White, Marion Eliza-

LEAVING GERMANY

Reports disclose that there was great rejoicing in Germany at the departure of the French and Belgian troops from the Coblenz bridgehead. It was a natural reaction. It was in keeping with the expression following the withdrawal of the Allied forces from Coblenz. It meant the approach of the end of that foreign occupation which has prevailed since the close of the war and it gave visions of that day next year when the third bridgehead will be given up, that at Mainz.

Germany has been anticipating the day when the treaty terms would be carried out and foreign forces would be recalled. It has endeavored to bring this about earlier than at first provided for. It has disclosed a better attitude, one that would give encouragement to the Allied countries to listen to and grant such requests. It has now succeeded in two-thirds of its desires and if everything goes well next June will see the retirement of the last of the occupational force.

If the troops are withdrawn from Mainz next year it will be in advance of the time originally set. This means that Germany has given the Allies reasons for believing that such withdrawal can be made without fear of harmful results. It means that there has been an improved relationship among the nations and with Germany disposed to do the right thing the Allies will do likewise.

That the withdrawal from Coblenz should be carried out without any ill expressions indicates the temper of the people. They were, nevertheless, happy to see them go and after they had departed a celebration was in order. Probably an even greater jubilation can be expected after the troops are recalled from the remaining post next June. Germany can, of course, see itself regaining possession and there are other favors which it is certain to ask and which it has reason to think will in time be granted.

One indication of the sentiment of the German people and the determination to meet the situation according to existing conditions was furnished by the recent vote in the reichstag to refuse to support the legislation that was aimed at the Young plan. The war is over and there is a desire to get back to normal as quickly as possible.

NEW JERSEY'S SENATOR

Because of the situation in the United States senate and the changes which have taken place there for one reason or another, there is bound to be interest in the developments in New Jersey relative to the representation from that state in the upper house of congress.

When Senator Edge was named as ambassador to France it remained for the governor of that state to name his successor. He did this by appointing David Baird, Jr., a prominent political leader in that state, the expectation being that he would fill out the unexpired term and stand for reelection. Because of the rivalry for that office a heated contest was assured for the republican nomination when the time comes. Whether the governor has tipped that contest in the bud remains to be seen, but there was more than New Jersey interest in his announcement that Ambassador Morrow, who has been named a member of the delegation to the London conference, will be the successor to Senator Edge as soon as the conference is over, if before the plan of Senator Baird, now in office, to resign for that purpose.

Dwight W. Morrow has made such an excellent impression by his work at Mexico City that it can be appreciated that he would make an equally valuable member of the United States senate. The rest of the country as well as New Jersey can appreciate that. There remains, however, the possibility of a contest when he seeks renomination, inasmuch as former Senator Frelinghuysen wants the chance to go back. Gossip has it that the latter may be offered a place in the cabinet or elsewhere. That being so, and in case it accepts, it would bring to an end a political contest among the republicans of New Jersey which could be adjusted in no better way.

It is certainly a gracious act on the part of Senator Baird in displaying a willingness to step out of the office after holding it only a few weeks. That he would make a good senator and be a strong supporter of the administration is certain, but it would also mean keeping alive the republican row in New Jersey. The opportunity for that state to get the representation that would be assured by Mr. Morrow is one that ought not to be missed and the self-sacrificing action by Senator Baird shows that he places the interests of the state above his own desires.

THE PRICE OF AVIATION

When the Schneider cup races were held in England this year the air race was won by the English entrant. The winner developed great speed and because the machine was built by the same concern that constructs the British fighting planes one of the latter was purchased by this government for the purpose of studying its features and testing its merits.

It was in this plane that Lieutenant Cuddihy was flying when something went wrong and he fell to his death after a drop of 10,000 feet. This affair terminated the career of one of the navy's best fliers, the department having declared that "he personified in the highest degree all of the best qualities of the American naval officer. His professional ability marked him for duties of great importance; his personality made him a successful, beloved leader. Since his connection with naval aviation, his name has been linked with outstanding feats of aviation. His place in the navy and aviation will be difficult to fill."

Whether the investigation which has been set in motion will be able to ascertain anything concerning the cause of the crash is a question. Nevertheless, it should be put through for whatever may be learned, for it was in quest of knowledge concerning the plane and its performances that the navy purchased it and put it in the hands of one of its best men for the test, and though the test was a fatal one there is reason for determining the cause for that quite as much as there would have been for a successful outcome.

Lieutenant Cuddihy gave his life in the same way that others have done while making tests at high altitudes in the interest of aviation. There may be criticism because of the fatality but it was one of those instances where no foolhardy stunts were apparently being performed. In recent years much comment has been heard because this country has not kept up with other countries in the development of the airplane. We allowed others to outdistance us and we lagged behind. In the test of the British fighting plane it would appear that the navy was endeavoring to keep abreast of the times and aid aviation in this country and particularly in the navy. Whether anything can be determined from the wreckage is uncertain, but there is no doubt as to the serious loss the department has sustained in the death of Lieutenant Cuddihy. That is fully apparent without any inquiry and it indicates one of the prices of aviation.

PUSHING TAX REDUCTION

Congress can display speed in the enactment of legislation if it wants to. It can put through measures which are recognized as necessary and which do not mean half-baked legislation when it desires.

In connection with the plan for the reduction in federal taxation there is every reason why there should be prompt consideration. It has been indicated that both houses are prepared to dispose of the bill without delay. Such assurance from the house means that there will be no trouble encountered in that direction. The senate has indicated that it would expedite consideration, but there's no telling what it will do. It was going to hasten action on the tariff but only opposite treatment was accorded it.

The bill that would provide a reduction of 1 per cent in the federal taxes means that the taxpayers would be saved $160,000,000. It will be surprising if some of the obstructionists do not bring forth a plan for bringing about a bigger reduction or obtaining it in a different way, but aside from the fact that there is an opportunity for obtaining this tax cut at this time, and aside from the fact that it is a desirable move just now, it is also good politics to support what means so much to such a large number of people. Thus there are the best of reasons for not only giving all possible assistance to its early consideration but of getting out of the way what is so generally agreed upon as a worthy proposition.

With indications pointing strongly to the probability that the house will act favorably this week there will be opportunity for the senate to handle it in such a manner as to get it to the president before the holiday recess. What this senate will do few are willing to predict in advance.

PEACEFUL ADJUSTMENT

Has the war between Russia and China ended? If we can rely upon the reports it would seem so, that is, the developments have been such that there is promise for the first time that there will be serious negotiations for the adjustment of their differences in accord with the provisions of the Kellogg peace pact.

Both countries have subscribed to it and both have agreed to forego war. Nevertheless, it had been impossible for them to come to an understanding in regard to negotiations up to the time that the Russians forced their way along the Chinese Eastern railway in such a manner as to threaten the control of Manchuria again. This brought China to a realization of the position in which it stood and made both countries realize that even though China started the trouble by seizing the road and expelling the Russians, and Russia followed it up by sending a punitive expedition into Manchuria to recover the much-coveted line, they were obliged to settle their dispute by arbitration rather than by force of arms.

The Russian invasion served to bring the situation to a focus. It brought renewed warnings from other nations regarding the peace pact and the upshot was that the Chinese officials at Mukden and Nanking agreed to such terms of negotiation as were satisfactory to Moscow. China realized that the Russian menace was serious and its course was to come to an understanding with that government. This not only had the effect of stopping the advance but brought about the retirement of the invaders and probably shut off action in the way of intervention by other countries.

It is to be hoped that this means the ultimate settlement of the trouble between the two countries in Manchuria. It is the wise thing to do; give negotiations a real chance.

EDITORIAL NOTES

The man on the corner says: Once again we have reached the season of shovels, chains and plenty of sand.

Because of the showing in the recent recount the mayor-elect of Boston favors voting machines. It is a good decision.

What a lot of sickly sympathy is wasted on those individuals who are trapped into making confessions of horrible crimes! The idea that they ought to be surrounded with every possible safeguard in covering up their crimes is an underlying cause of just such criminality.

WASHINGTON AFFAIRS

WASHINGTON, Dc. 2.—Connecticut shares with Massachusetts the highest honors of advancement in matter of shorter hours for wage earners. They run far ahead of other states. This is especially noticeable in regulation of night work laws for women. This is shown by a record put out by the woman's bureau of the department of labor. It refers to the wide diversity existing in the various sections of New England as to climate and surroundings, and remarks that such difference is shown in the labor laws of the different New England states. Maine and Massachusetts have nine hour laws for working women, Massachusetts a 48 hour law for some kinds of work; Connecticut and Rhode Island ten hours, but New Hampshire has a 54 hour law, although to that state belongs the distinction of being the first state in the country to pass laws regulating the working day hours. The lead in night work laws was taken by Connecticut with Massachusetts practically in the same line. They are among the ten states where night work for women is prohibited in some of its manufacturing plants.

Many of the states have prohibitive laws concerning work for women before and after childbirth. In Connecticut the limit by law is four weeks before and four weeks after. There are many other protective and prohibitive laws existing in the several New England states, with Connecticut standing very high on the list for care and welfare of women workers.

Massachusetts and Connecticut are carrying on the fight regarding the taking of water from the Connecticut river to give added supply to the city of Boston and vicinity through tapping the Swift and Weare rivers. Within a week motions and counter motions have been presented to the U. S. supreme court by the attorneys of the two contesting states. But thus far no new situations have developed.

The so called Grundy piggly wiggly table in the senate brought to the front the splendid musical talent of the junior senator from Rhode Island, Mr. Hebert. There was a brief recess one day, and senators gathered round the table, commenting on the display—somebody took up a violin, and passed it to Senator Hebert, saying, "Here, Hebert, see what you can do with this." Hebert quietly accepted the challenge, and to the amazement of the senators and the crowded galleries, played wonderful melodies and gave an impromptu concert. The chamber was filled with melody, in place of the bitter and angry discussions over the tariff.

It happens that Hebert is a trained violinist, and the family are also all trained musicians. Mrs. Hebert is noted as an organist and piano soloist; the five children were all trained for music, as soon as they could comprehend what the notes meant. The eldest daughter plays the piano, the youngest daughter the 'cello; the three boys are excellent violinists, and the informal evening musicals given by the Heberts are very popular.

It is interesting to watch the wide difference in manner that marks the press conferences with President Hoover as compared to those held by President Coolidge. When Coolidge wanted something to be made public he quietly said so, and "the boys" made note of it, or usually he handed over to them a typewritten brief statement so there should be no misunderstanding as to its purpose. Usually they were as brief as his famous "I do not choose to run." Mr. Hoover plainly says, "I want you to make this known. You may quote me." He tells "the boys" how he wants it done very much as he would have told any of those at the department of commerce whom he wished to carry out his ideas. But at other times Mr. Hoover says practically nothing. Last week, at the conference just before Thanksgiving, there were the usual number of correspondents present, but the questions put to the president were so few they could be counted on the fingers of one hand. The president stood at his desk, a half smoked cigar was in his right hand, and that hand was tightly clinched behind his back, as he addressed the group after a three minutes "conference." This is what he said: "I don't know of anything to tell you except I have had more turkeys sent me than I can eat."

I recall just before Thanksgiving last year, some one of the correspondents asked Mr. Coolidge, "How are you going to spend Thanksgiving?" The president replied with a smile, "Guess you didn't read my proclamation. I shall do as I told others to do."

I watched the diminutive Senator Simmons, democrat, from North Carolina, as he took a stormy part in the tariff debate. Simmons was ranking member of the finance committee when the Fourdney bill was passed. He is a wonderfully able man, and makes up in brains what he lacks in voice and stature. When Simmons makes a speech, it takes mighty sharp ears to follow. He leans over his desk, chin tucked well down into his collar; speaks in a low monotone and seems to be conversing with his copy, and taking only his desk into confidence. But once in a while he gets roused to near-violence in voice and gesture. That is when the opponents are raking his party and its policies fore and aft. Then Simmons blossoms out into shouts and gestures. But all the same you get more pep out of Simmons' speeches as you read them, than from straining your ears to catch his phrases.

Senator Morris Sheppard, father of the prohibition amendment, keeps a record of his attendance at the senate. In the past seven years he has not missed one day, and in the 16 years of his service, has missed so few they can be counted in two figures.

New President and Mrs. Hoover have arranged for a state dinner in honor of the vice president, and given it priority over the one for the speaker of the house, the questioned status of Mr. Curtis and Mrs. Gann is fixed beyond doubt. For as the white house leads others follow, and the white house has given the vice president and his sister hostess the place of official honor second only to the white house itself.

The innovation of the president in ordering a month of official mourning for the late secretary of war, upset all official function in the administration and diplomatic set. Things will be straightened out this week, and new dates probably announced for events of officialdom that were cancelled on short notice.

The Coolidges felt their personal bereavements should not in any way interfere with their official duties, and so they "went right along" no matter how broken were their hearts over the death of their son. Mr. Hoover takes the opposite view of his office, and gangs his own way. "They say" he did not even consult or notify in advance the cabinet and the diplomats of his changed plans, even though their own plans would be entirely changed by his decision. But they all fell in line, though there was much grumbling.

GOING TO THE DICKENS

Archibald Weather emphatically agreed that afternoon that all grandsons were a bother. You never could find them when you wanted them and when you didn't want them they always managed to pop up. Just when he was going fishing, too. Of course, not so much fishing as reading with his line hanging over. It was all the same. Archibald Weather, president of the Society of Charles Dickens Memorial, didn't neglect his sports for his reading, nor his reading for his sports. No, he whimsically combined the two.

Yes, grandsons were a bother to a man just slipping into his early 70s and who was hardly aware of it. Besides, Archibald Weather had been a little piqued the last time he played golf with his grandson, Frank. It seems that the old gentleman would become seated at the end of every two holes on a ridiculous camp chair he carried for that purpose and would read a snatch of a Dickens novel to the open outbursts of his grandson and companions. A young upstart at times, he thought and quite incapable of appreciating an honest interest in good literature.

But Archibald Weather drew down his firm lips and glanced at the letter again: "I'm bringing down Kathleen for your final sanction. Of course, if you don't consent, I intend to marry her, anyway, next Tuesday. You'll find she's a pippin and far too good for me. FRANK."

A pippin, repeated the old gentleman. And too good for him, was she? Sarah had said that to him, too, some fifty years ago. Well, he'd give up the fishing this time. It would just mean that he'd finish that new biography without a trout on his line.

Later in the day Archibald Weather thought casually about this new young woman who would sit at his right that evening at dinner; however by the time the grandfather clock said "six" he was thinking what an exceptional young lady she was. And quite pretty, too, with an intelligent face, lovely brown eyes and a well accentuated voice. He let her talk about the country and the green hills until the plum pudding. And then he began a little mental scrimmage. About books, of course.

"Glad to hear you like the modern writers," he replied after hearing, a little painfully, her praises of some present-day topnotchers, as she called them. "I find them amusing at times. I read the best sellers, too, but only as an after thought to the old masters." Then, with deliberation he added, "It is impossible sometimes to agree with these moderns, you know."

Frank whistled. A delightful old man with very set opinions. He hoped there wouldn't be anything disagreeable said about Dickens. The old man might get terribly wrought up. And Kathleen was really making a good impression.

But there wasn't anything said about Dickens. Frank was astonished to watch the progress grow between the young girl and the old man. They were almost leaving him out of the conversation, with their criticisms of this and that, things that went sailing over his head. Finally at 11 o'clock he left them to their discussion, which had reached Greek mythology and Mercury with his winged-ankles. He couldn't stand much more. He'd watch the moon from the terrace.

The next morning, earlier than he expected his two guests to be down, Archibald Weather walked into his library and discovered Frank there.

"Well, sir," coughed Frank, a little worried, "get it over about Kathleen. I want to hear how much you disapprove of her!"

"Disapprove? Why, if you don't get her into the family next Tuesday I'll know the reason why!" His face became very red, but he smiled. "Frank, she's what you call a pippin. Got a sister named Dorrit, a brother named Dombey and a second uncle named Barnaby Rudge. What more could you want?" Frank wondered, too. What a coincidence.

"Say, Frank," the old man went on, "did you tell her by any chance who I am? About the memorial, of course."

"Heavens, no, sir," Frank confessed, "I told her you were an old stick about fishing and completely ignored the old masters, most of all Dickens!"

"And what did she say then?"

"That she'd make you love Dickens if it was the last thing she ever accomplished!" The two men burst out laughing. A stick about fishing and ignorant of the old masters! What a jolly prevaricator. He'd never forgive them for that.

And two hours later, with "Pickwick Papers" under one arm and his fishing rod under the other, Archibald Weather disappeared down the road.—Exchange.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Thanksgiving

Mr. Editor: Another Thanksgiving day has passed along and is now just a memory. May I ask the readers if their turkey was good? Due to the very dry season just passed there were many turkeys raised. New England has always been the greatest section to raise what was considered the best, and for years Connecticut and Rhode Island were the place where were raised the finest, and the name Horace Vose was known all over the country as the greatest dealer in turkeys that had a market value a little ahead of the others. He, it was, who would always send one of the biggest and choicest birds as a present to the chief executive of the nation. Now apparently, this honor has shifted to the Golden Gate for I note where a raiser in California had presented President Hoover with a bird that weighed 35 pounds. This must have looked like a young ostrich.

Thanksgiving, it seems to me, is more peculiar to New England than other sections although it is observed all over this nation, but not with the same snap that is carried on in New England. Here it was first observed in 1621, and we all, no doubt, have read the story where Governor Bradford, due to a wonderful harvest, had asked the people to set aside a certain day to offer up thanks to God for his goodness to all the people during the year. Thanksgiving was observed from time to time but only spasmodically, but in 1864 the immortal Abraham Lincoln issued a proclamation that the fourth Thursday in November should be set aside as a national holiday and this in turn was followed by the governors of the states and has continued from that date.

By the way, how was your turkey? Pretty good? What? Me, too. This is a great day for the "kids" and an end to the watching of the household. ers for this is the time when young America carries away everything that isn't nailed down. This was the day when the grown ups would go out somewhere to a turkey or chicken shoot. Sometimes they would bring back a turkey or chicken as a reward for their prowess with the gun. How the youngsters would hang around the kitchen and watch the operation of getting a bird ready for the oven! Don't you recall how you would get hold of a turkey leg and get hold and pull on the sinew and make the feet move just as though it were alive, and with a string tied to them you would sneak up behind some one of your pals and scratch his neck? Just a little innocent fun but it gave you something to laugh at when your pal would jump as though scared. You could buy a good bird for about 18c a pound, and I have bought them for as low as 11c a pound. Boy, when these birds came on to the table,—well I don't think I am in a position to tell you anything about it— and with a pitcher of real good cider as a side attraction it wasn't so bad. Now here in the city they sell something that is labeled genuine sweet cider but why they call it genuine is more than I can answer, unless it is to hide behind a smoke screen and try to make you think it is real cider, when it is a concoction created from water, citric acid, glucose and stewed hemlock.

I am reminded here of a man driving up to the door of a small mill. A man came to the door and asked "What have you?" The man answered, "Apples." The mill owner said we can't use them for this is a cider mill. All right, this is where you smile.

Well, anyway, those old Thanksgiving days had their advantages for then company would come, and the front room would be thrown open and the company would sit in there and talk very interestingly about the many things that had happened during the year, how Uncle Silas had the rheumatics but is getting better now and how Uncle John lost one of his cows with the colic. All very interesting but not to me when my whole thought was centered on the turkey; and would it never be done? When the order was given to fall in, well I wasn't the last one, and do you remember how we "kids" had to eat in the kitchen while the older ones had theirs in the so-called sitting room that is now dignified by the name of dining room? And in the hurry and the excitement we managed to get the second piece of mince pie? Well, we had a good time, but I wouldn't want it to come every day. —Would you?

Reddy Takes Home a Feather

For all you say, pray offer proof,
Lest people think you try to spoof.
—Reddy Fox.

Reddy Fox could feel his mouth watering. Perhaps you know what that feels like. Perhaps you have seen something good to eat that you have wanted so very much that your mouth would water at the mere thought of having it. Reddy was sitting under an apple tree looking up at 12 big turkeys roosting in the tree. Mistress Moon was shining her brightest and Reddy could see almost as clearly as if it were daylight. Now and then one of the turkeys would move a little. He could see the big gobbler off a little at one side. Some of the turkeys were smaller than others. This meant that they were younger birds. My, how good one of them would taste!

Reddy sat there for a long time. He knew it was useless. He couldn't climb a tree. Those turkeys wouldn't come down until daylight. There was no use in sitting there licking his lips and wishing for one. But somehow he couldn't leave. There were no turkeys at any of the farms near Farmer Brown's. Reddy had never tasted a turkey, and, oh, how he did want to taste one of these!

But at last he reluctantly left. He took a hasty look at the henhouse and decided that it would be possible to get into it if ever the farmer was at all careless. But he was too wise to try to catch a chicken that night. He wanted a turkey and if he caught a chicken his chance of getting a turkey would be very slight, for the farmer would be on his guard. So Reddy went over to a meadow and hunted mice and caught enough to take the edge off his appetite. Then he went back for another look at the turkeys and finally started for home.

When he reached home Mrs. Reddy was already there. She was waiting on the doorstep. She saw that he was carrying something in his mouth and her eyes sparkled. But when Reddy laid it at her feet, all the sparkle disappeared. "Is that all you've got?" said she disappointedly.

"All except a few mice," said Reddy.

"But what is the idea of bringing home a feather to me?" snapped Mrs. Reddy crossly.

"Do you see what kind of a feather it is?" replied Reddy.

"I don't know what kind of a feather it is and I don't want to know," replied Mrs. Reddy. "A feather is no good; and I'm still hungry."

"Didn't you have any luck at all?" asked Reddy.

"Four mice," replied Mrs. Reddy.

"That's one more than I caught," said Reddy. "But this feather, my dear, just look at this feather! It is a feather from the wing of a turkey. I have made a discovery, my dear. There are 12 turkeys over at that farm that I visited and they roost in an apple tree."

"Well, what good does that do us?" demanded Mrs. Reddy.

"None now, my dear. None at all. I must admit," replied Reddy. "But where there are turkeys there must be a way of catching one. My, my, my, what a feast we would have if we could get just one turkey!"

"Well, if they roost in trees, we can't; so that settles that," said Mrs. Reddy.

"Not at all, not at all," replied Reddy. "If the two of us together are not smart enough to get one of those turkeys, we are not as smart as I think we are. Tomorrow night we'll both go over there and see what we can plan. There must be some way and if there is we'll find it."

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2.—Throughout the last regular and the succeeding special session of congress, the Bystander thought he detected a growing tendency in Senator George Norris of Nebraska to wax satirical in debate.

As a chronic revolter against old guard republicanism, the senator always has been exceedingly frank; but it seemed to the Bystander that he was letting himself go even more freely than usual.

One explanation might have been that Norris viewed himself as serving his last term in the senate. He had made no secret of his desire to retire from public life. Not until his opponents out home began making a great fuss about arrangements to beat him if he did run, did the Nebraskan announce his intention to be a candidate next year.

And he did that with something like a sigh of regret but with the comment that he would not deny the enemy a chance to beat him—if it could.

Tariff His Chance

Norris is about the only man in congress, since John Sharp Williams of Mississippi abandoned public life, who ever contributes metrical jingles of his own rhyming to the Congressional Record; and he does not do that often.

When he does, they are invariably in the satirical vein. And when there was spread in the senate chamber a table laden with imported manufactured exhibits, Norris was in his element.

That was when he coined the phrase "Joe Grundy's department store" to describe the display. Between times for days he was poking and puttering about that table, always finding some new point of sardonic attack upon the industrial schedules of the tariff bill.

In almost the last gasp of the special session tariff debate, Norris got another chance. That was when the item of cotton rags bobbed up for prolonged debate.

The Rag Business

"As I understand it, a protective tariff is for the purpose of increasing production in our country," Norris said. "So we are going to levy a protective duty on rags to increase production.

"The best rag factories I know of are poor families with 10 or 12 children. In the course of a year there are more rags produced there than anywhere else.

"Is the senate spending its time—is this great group of statesmen spending its time—levying a duty on rags?

"I suppose our immigration inspectors, if we levy heavy duties on rags, will be watching incoming steamers and every poor fellow who has not a spick and span clean looking suit of clothes will be grabbed and his clothes will be taken from him. He will be compelled to pay a duty on his old clothes because they are rags.

"Are we not carrying the protective tariff principle a little bit to extremes?"

All of which was quite typical of Norris in his satirical mood; but it moved the senate not a jot. The rag duty was duly approved, 23 to 27, most cotton state democrats and republican old guardsmen lining up together on that vote.

But one of the odd things about the vote was that Smith of South Carolina, cotton specialist of the senate, agreed with Norris.

That did not mean disrespect or disloyalty to the late secretary, whom they all admired, but they felt the innovation was so great that they should have been forewarned. At least that is the way "rumor" puts it here.

The Pan-American conference on customs procedure and port formalities just held here was conducted in four languages, English, Spanish, French and Portuguese. Young Jose Tercero, a member of the Mexican staff of the Pan American Union was assigned to the task of translator. He stood by and promptly translated into fluent language of the attendants, whatever language was at that moment being spoken. They are all like his native" language to him.

The cough may be so tantalizing that you can't sleep nights and your days may be filled with racking torture yet that's just the kind of a cough that Bronchuline likes to tackle and conquer.

Many times a few doses will stop the hacking and loosen things up and you can depend upon half a bottle to make a two months' cough quit cold and disappear.

Ask Lee & Osgood or any wideawake druggist for a bottle of Bronchuline Emulsion. There's no dope in it—or chloroform, and a couple of teaspoonfuls will usually end any ordinary cough.

Two courses of stones, four inches in depth, have been laid in this stretch. The top dressing will be applied the first thing in the spring.

At the city meeting the amount of $5,000 was voted with the understanding that the work commence at the southeast corner of Hamilton avenue cemetery and extend westerly as far as the appropriation permits.

The newly formed Thames Bank and Trust company, which was constituted by the merger of the Thames bank and the Bankers Loan and Trust company, took its important place in the business life of Norwich and vicinity in its first day of business Monday at the banking house of the Thames bank on Shetucket street. There was a busy scene of activity all day in the bank with the inflow of customers of the Bankers Trust making new contracts and the regular patronage by those who had been affiliated with the Thames.

In the afternoon at 2 o'clock, the directors met, for the election of officers, first electing a chairman of the board. This choice fell upon Arthur M. Brown, former president of the Thames bank.

The New President.

President Storer, who is 45 years old, has been recognized in Danielson as the administrative force of the Windham County National bank while he has been its cashier for a dozen years and is looked upon as an outstanding business man of energy and initiative which will fit in well with the policy that it is understood will be followed in the Thames Loan and Trust company in having the president an active participant in the business of the bank. Mr. Storer was born in Boston and obtained his early education there after which he attended Dean academy and subsequently Lowell Institution at Lowell, Mass., where he took a course in industrial accounting and also in electrical and mechanical engineering. Prior to 1907, he had done vacation work with the National Shawmut bank of Boston, and thereafter became regularly affiliated with that bank, until he went to Danielson in the spring of 1915, as cashier of the Windham County National bank, where he has since remained and made a splendid success. When he went to Danielson, deposits of the bank were a little in excess of $500,000 whereas the current deposits are $3,400,000. He was elected president of the Thames bank in January, 1927, to succeed the late Oliver L. Johnson and has held the office up to the consolidation. Mr. Brown has been a director of the bank since 1915. He is well known in Masonic circles, having been grand master of the grand lodge of Connecticut. He is also known for his ability as a lawyer, and is president of the State Bar association.

Mr. Brown is a prominent member of the Norwich Rotary club, president of the Jewett City Savings bank, director of the Chelsea Savings bank, vice president of the Ashland Cotton Co., director of the Attawaugan Co., director of the New London County Fire Insurance Co., and director of the New London Northern Railroad Co.

The consolidated bank has capital of $1,100,000. It brings together the Thames, which is a financial institution 104 years old, and the Bankers Trust which was organized in 1921.

In the last published statements of the two banks, made early in October, the assets of the Thames were shown to be $4,891,303.94 capital $1,000,000, surplus $700,000, general deposits $1,996,017.32 and savings deposits $118,211.87.

The financial statement of the Bankers Trust showed assets of $1,644,337.57, capital $100,000, surplus $40,000, general deposits $591,402.62 and savings deposits $748,132.42.

Police Guarded Securities Transfer.

The transfer of cash and securities from the Bankers Trust company in the Thayer building on Franklin square to the Thames bank building on Shetucket street was made on Sunday morning under police guard.

Police Chief George Linton detailed a squad of officers with the motor patrol wagon to assist the bank officers in the transfer and at 10 o'clock the wagon was drawn up in front of the Bankers Trust, the boxes containing the cash and securities were loaded into it and it was driven around to the Thames bank building. A squad of officers stood guard when the boxes were taken out to be put into the vault and another squad was waiting at the Thames bank building when the wagon arrived there to see that the transfer was made without a hitch.

Employes of the Bankers Trust Co who go to the consolidated bank are Clarence C. Disco, Walter F. LaFontaine, Russell E. Crowell, Peter Lukoff, Wilson Larsen, Mary W. Tylenda, Isabel H. Shaw and Agnes M. Dougherty.

ORGANIZATION COMMITTEE OUT FOR FOUR NEW SCOUT TROOPS

According to C. V. James, chairman of troop organization of the eastern Connecticut council, his committee will make every effort to establish four new Boy Scouts troops before January 1. The first troop to be organized will be an American Legion troop. The American Legion has long desired a troop to sponsor and now Carl Brand, legionnaire and member of the training course, has offered his services as scoutmaster. Edward W. McKay and Commander McMahon will call a meeting this week of a sponsoring committee and in all probability the first troop meeting will be held next week. Sons of legionaires who are of scout age and others will be invited to make up the first unit of the troop.

The second troop, it is planned, will be organized in the Elizabeth street school. Edward Fedell, well known locally for his Y. M. C. A. work and a frequent visitor of the training course, a Red Cross life saver and Red Cross first aider, has volunteered to become scoutmaster of this troop. Upon the return of J. B. Stanton, principal of the school, steps will be taken to secure a sponsoring committee and a troop will be started immediately. Eben Learned is responsible for starting this troop.

The third troop it is hoped will be started at the Hebrew school. Dr. Solomon plans to call a meeting of a sponsoring committee this week. According to Scout Executive Sellman over twelve Jewish boys have asked to become scouts during the past three months. There is considerable demand also for a cub group and a leader has already been found to head up the cub scout group in this school.

The fourth troop it is hoped can be organized in Greeneville. Frank Quinley and C. V. James are both working either towards the formation of a school troop or towards the formation of a Catholic troop.

Many requests have come to the local scout headquarters for reorganization of troops in Taftville. Taftville is large enough to sponsor two troops and at one time had two of the best troops in Norwich. According to C. V. James the boys in Taftville are anxious for scouting, the difficulty lies in securing sponsoring groups and leaders.

Three new troops are being organized in Columbia, Lebanon, and Versailles, according to H. D. Larrabee, chairman of territory, and it is hoped that by January 1, applications for charters from these troops will have been received at local headquarters.

MOTOR OIL WHOLESALERS SUMMONED BY STOECKEL

Eighty-four wholesale distributors of motor oil operating in Connecticut have been invited to meet with Robbins B. Stoeckel, commissioner of motor vehicles, to discuss plans for administering the lubricating oil act adopted by the 1929 general assembly. The meeting will be in the new senate chamber at the capitol on Monday, Dec. 9, at 2 p. m.

The policy of the department in the administration of this law will be outlined. Various factors affecting the dealers, such as matters of procedure, will be presented for discussion.

"A large number of dealers are affected by the provisions of this act, Commissioner Stoeckel states. "While the main purpose of this act, which is the protection of the public in the buying of oils, must be carried out administration should be made as simple as possible for the distributor. Red tape should be avoided. Distributors should be able to supply valuable suggestions which will be of assistance in making this law effective to the best advantage of everybody."

The lubricating oil law prohibits the sale or exposure for sale of any lubricating oil for motor vehicles in a nature designed to deceive the purchaser as to nature, quality or identity. It prohibits the sale of one oil from a container which is specially marked for another. It prohibits the substitution or adulteration of any oil. All oils must be "equal to or better in quality and specifications than that known as United States Government Specifications for Motor (Class D) Lubricants."

A further provision specifies the manner in which oils shall be tested by the state to determine quality. A guarantee of quality is also required by the act in calling for a printed tag for each container specifying that the grade or quality of oil is equal to or better than Class D of the government specifications. The act also allows the purchaser the right to demand an invoice which shall contain a guarantee similar to that required on each container.

Broke Through Ice With Sail

William A. Ricker, of No. 73 Peck street, who has a fondness for ice-boating, skating and the like, tried out a skate-sail Sunday afternoon at the lake of Senator Hiram Bingham at Salem and broke through the thin ice, receiving a proper drenching. With some difficulty Mr. Ricker reached the land by breaking the ice ahead of him and after a change of wearing apparel was none the worse for his experience.

NEW ENGLAND GAINED 251 INDUSTRIES IN 1928

A survey just completed by the community development committee of the New England council shows that for the third successive year New England has gained more industries than she lost. The 1928 survey covered 262 communities with a population of 5,559,274, or about 95 per cent of the total urban population of New England. These 262 communities reported 584 new manufacturing concerns, employing 29,762 workers, as against a loss of 333 manufacturing concerns, employing 20,419 workers, of which 224 failed or suspended operations, while 109 moved to other centers. The net gain for New England during 1928 was 251 industries and 9,343 employes.

Twenty industries, including branch plants, moved into New England from other sections of the United States, while only five moved away from New England, the 1927 survey shows.

In 1928, the council's committee United States survey points out as significant the fact that, of the industries moving to other communities, only five, employing 155 workers, moved to points outside New England. As opposed to this, 23 industries, employing 1,913 workers, moved into New England from other sections of the United States.

The committee says that during the past four years there has been greatly increased activity on the part of New England interests to promote the development of New England communities. It was in order to determine the actual results of this activity that the committee, beginning three years ago, has conducted annual surveys of the movements of industries in New England.

1. That New England is maintaining a favorable balance in the exchange of industries with the rest of the United States.

2. That the development of new undertakings and the acquisition of branch plants and industries from other communities leave a net gain, both in number of plants and number of employes, after taking into account those industries which have suspended operations or moved to other communities.

3. That the growth of industry in New England can best be promoted by local enterprises financed by local capital.

4. That a new industry acquired by a community will provide employment, on the average, only to four-fifths of the number of workers previously employed by an industry which has failed or moved elsewhere.

5. That there is too much migration of industry from one New England community to another, that the number of plant relocations in New England is on the increase, and that individual communities can and should check this trend by devoting more attention to the welfare of their established industries.

As compared with the rest of the country, in migration of industry in 1926 and 1927, New England gained more industrial plants and more employes than any other section of the country except the middle Atlantic states, comprising New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania, according to a report made co-operatively by the policyholders' service bureau of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co. and the civic development committee of the National Electric Light association.

The most frequently occurring reason for plant location in New England, according to this survey, was "advantageous labor conditions." "Available factory buildings" was second in rank and was the most important factor affecting relocation.

WINTER ARRIVES WITH BLANKET OF SNOW

Winter covered Norwich with a five-inch blanket of snow Monday. The storm the first real one of the season, delayed trolley traffic somewhat and made hard going for automobiles. Snow started to fall about noon and continued until early evening. Many automobile drivers whose machines were not equipped with chains encountered difficulty in negotiating hills. This was especially true on Laurel Hill, West Main street hill and Broadway.

The fall of snow let up about 5 o'clock but shortly afterwards a mixture of rain, sleet and snow added to the difficulties of pedestrian, auto driver and trolley cars. The Connecticut company plows were put into action for the first time this season, and for several hours laborers were kept busy clearing the heavy, wet snow from Franklin square.

Sleds, put away last winter, made their appearance on the local hills as soon as the schools closed the afternoon session and throughout the evening Young America was busily engaged in enjoying the old New England sport of "coasting" on the hilly sections of the city and town.

Despite slippery conditions and more or less precarious driving no accidents of any consequence were reported. During the early evening the storm ceased and late at night the stars were again shining.

Henry J. LaFontaine and Joseph H. Hall, of Norwich, were among the guests Sunday evening, when Dr. and Mrs. E. A. Henkle, of Ocean avenue, New London, entertained the Lyceum Players at their home.

The meeting of the Monday Sewing club was held with Miss Audrey Gernon.

Henry F. Parker motored Monday to Cooperstown, N. Y., accompanying his daughter, Miss Deborah Parker who was returning to the Knox school following the holiday recess spent at her home on McKinley avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. William T. Crandall have returned from Schenectady, where they were holiday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Ayres.

Opposing the view that ocean mail contracts should be awarded to the lowest bidder regardless of whether his ships are former government vessels, the shipping board said that the government is under moral obligations to furnish the mail revenue to purchasers of its lines.

PALMER AND STROUT GOT NURSE TO BUY FAKE STOCK IN NEW LONDON

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 2—A fraudulent scheme to dispose of fake stock was revealed today in the arrest and presentation in the police court of Henry E. Palmer, 95 Vauxhall street and Ralph L. Strout, 249 Broad street, on a charge of fraud. However, with the return of the money to the unsuspecting victim, the woman, who supposed she was buying legitimate stock, withdrew the complaint and the court ordered the case nolled.

A year ago this month Palmer and Strout approached Miss Margaret Murphy, a nurse and offered stock purporting to be legitimate and in a commercial electrical company. Miss Murphy believed that she was making a good investment and paid $200 for the stock, which was never delivered to her. When Miss Murphy could not obtain her stock and failed to obtain the return of her money, she made complaint to Prosecuting Attorney Max Royer. When that official heard Miss Murphy's story he arrived at the conclusion that Palmer and Strout were frauds and issued a warrant for their arrest. The two men could not be found until 1 o'clock this morning when Detective Sergeant Nelson Smith, Sergeant Samuel Hick and Automobile Patrol Officer Elwood Bailey arrested the pair at their homes.

Case Continued

The case of John Lawsky, 31 Shapley street, charged in the city court on two counts of violation of the liquor law, possession and manufacture, was continued until tomorrow and he furnished a surety on his bond of $1,000. Edward Sprow, colored, charged with indecent exposure, was fined $25 and costs and went to jail. He was arrested on North Bank street Sunday by Automobile Patrol Officers Augustus Ray and William Corcoran.

E. N. Fitch, submarine base, charged with intoxication and breach of the peace, was fined $10 and costs on the first count and on the second charge judement was suspended. Fitch was arrested by Patrolmen Clarence Wells and George Bruhns Saturday night, upon complaint of L. Bove, 577 Bank street.

Ernest Johnson, colored, charged with breach of the peace, was fined $10 and costs on a charge of breach of the peace preferred by Laura Fulford, also colored, of North Bank street. Johnson went to the Fulford woman's home, where he abused her.

Several cases of intoxication comprised the other cases tried and in most instances fines were imposed.

BEEBE GIRL, QUAKER HILL, ARRESTED WITH SAILOR

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 2—Raymond Trump, sailor and Loretta Beebe, about 25 and residing at Quaker Hill, were presented in the police court this morning charged with lascivious carriage. They pleaded guilty and were fined $10 and costs by Deputy Judge John McGarry. Neither had $19.23 with which to pay the respective fines, but Trump obtained this amount from his base, but the Beebe woman was remanded to jail, but with the assurance of Trump that he would secure the money necessary for her to obtain her liberty.

Trump and the young woman went to a local hotel about 10 o'clock and registered as man and wife. Their act and deception was noted by Patrolman Edward Riordan, who went to the room and identifying the Beebe woman, arrested the pair, who remained prisoners at police headquarters the balance of the night.

The Beebe woman entered the spotlight of sailor love two weeks ago, when Charles Gore, United States Coast Guard sailor swallowed a dose of bichloride because the former rejected his love-advances. Gore survived but a few days, succumbing at Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital. In imposing the fine Judge McGarry advised the woman to leave the city.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Retail Coffee Prices Drop Sharply!

The Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea company operating a chain of 15,000 grocery stores in the United States and Canada announced Monday drastic reductions in prices of coffee.

This sharp lowering of prices, affects A. & P.'s three nationally-known brands of coffee—Bokar, Red Circle and Eight O'Clock. A. & P. prices are the first to follow the recent tumble in prices in the wholesale coffee market.

A. & P. is enabled to take immediate advantage of the drop in wholesale coffee prices because of its foresight into market conditions. A. & P.'s buyers handle their purchasing commitments in accordance with A. & P.'s traditional policy of giving its customers the immediate benefit of lower prices in the commodity markets.

Some idea of the saving at retail effected by these reductions in coffee prices may be gained by the fact that A. & P. sells 2,750,000 pounds of its own coffee every week. This huge quantity of coffee sold at retail will mean a savings of approximately $110,000 a week for A. & P.'s customers.

The Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea company is the world's largest retailer of coffee. Its Eight O'Clock brand is the world's largest selling high grade coffee, while the sale of its two other brands amounts to millions of pounds annually. In its successful efforts to provide better coffee at lower prices for its millions of patrons, A. & P. established some years ago, coffee buying offices in the greatest coffee producing countries of South America — Colombia and Brazil. A. & P.'s buyers purchase direct from the coffee planters the choicest grades of mountaingrown coffees. By purchasing their coffee direct, transporting and roasting it themselves, A. & P. effects great economies. As a result of this, prices on A. & P.'s own brands of coffee are uniformly lower than coffee handled and sold through usual trade channels. The sharp price reductions now in effect make the prices of Bokar, Red Circle and Eight O'Clock, lowest yet announced.

WESTERLY

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., Dec. 2.—Lewis Stanton McNeil, 60, Westerly contractor and builder, dropped dead Monday morning at 8 o'clock while cranking his automobile at his home on the Watch Hill road. Dr. J. Gordon Anderson was called and pronounced death due to a rupture of the heart.

Contractor McNeil was especially well known to Westerly summer visitors as much of his work was building, repairing and remodelling seashore property at the Westerly beaches, Watch Hill, Misquamicut and Weekapaug. He first came to Westerly as a finisher on the Westerly high school building, corner of Broad and Granite street in 1902 and continued to live here.

He was born in Prince Edward Island, the son of Mr. and Mrs. George McNeil, and is survived by his wife, who was Mary E. Tremayne of Constantine, Cornwall, England, having been married twice previously. They had no children. He leaves a brother, Artemus, of Prince Edward Island, and five sisters, Miss Alma McNeil, Boston; Miss Nellie McNeil, Providence; Mrs. Fanny Storey, North Scituate, R. I.; Miss Minnie McNeil, Los Angeles, Calif., and Mrs. Maude Gilchrist, of Haverhill, Mass.

Mr. McNeil was an active member of the First Baptist church, of which he was for many years chairman of the board of trustees and at one time superintendent of the Sunday school. He was greatly interested in the prohibition movement.

His collapse Monday morning in front of his automobile was discovered by George and Ernest E. Coon, who were engaged in painting at his home and they notified Mrs. McNeil of her husband's condition.

ABOUT 300 ON STRIKE AT BRADFORD MONDAY

Following rumors of a strike at the Bradford Dyeing association plant, nearly 300 workers did not report for work Monday morning. A strike vote was passed at a meeting of the workers Saturday at which time Francis J. Gorman, international first vice president of the United Textile Workers of America, and Joseph Sylvia, secretary of the Rhode Island Textile union, were present. A mass meeting of the strikers was held Monday morning in Burdick's hall, Bradford, attended by the strikers and members of their families. Addresses were made by Vice President Gorman and Secretary Sylvia. A picketing committee and strike committee were appointed at the meeting. Thirty-two pickets have been assigned for duty at the mill and will picket the grounds from 5:30 a. m. to 9 o'clock each evening. They will work on two-hour shifts.

Dr. Donald S. Ashbrook, manager of the plant, stated Monday: "All hands will be given an opportunity to return to work within a reasonable amount of time providing they are willing to abide by the rules. If they have not returned within that time their places will be filled by others." A mass meeting of the strikers has been called for Wednesday afternoon.

Monday night, after Chief of Police Thomas E. Brown had returned to Westerly from the superior court in Kingston, a request was made for police protection at the plant of the Bradford Dyeing company. Early this (Tuesday) morning members of the Westerly force will be detailed for patrol duty at the plant. The company is erecting flood lights for illuminating the plant grounds.

TOWN COUNCIL SESSION WITH ALL MEMBERS PRESENT

Monday morning all seven members of Westerly town council were present for the December meeting. A delegation of Westerly physicians, present to present bills for surgical care and attention, included Dr. John H. Rand, $185 for emergency operation upon an indigent woman, and Dr. John Champlin, Jr., with a bill of $125 in the Gencarelli case. These were handed the council fathers by Oliver P. Crandall, director of public works, for approval. President Horace A. Burdick stated that these bills were not a matter for council action as it had no authority but should be left to the audit of the director. On Councilman Naccarata's question as to the nature of the doctor's bills Director Crandall said that Dr. Champlin's bill was for services rendered when he had a request for a needed operation upon a woman. When Director Crandall said two previous bills of Dr. Anderson's and one of Dr. Scanlon's) had been ordered paid by the council, he was informed that these were police department matters and had been paid for as such. Mr. Crandall declared that some of the statements "looked fishy" as in one of the so-called emergency cases a boy had been injured for three days before an operation was performed by a doctor and the patient died 15 minutes after the operation. Mr. Crandall said he had asked doctors to care for indigent cases and that previously they "did not get a nickel." On motion of Councilman Broughton the bills were referred to Director Crandall to do with them as he saw fit. The director of public aid immediately okd them and they were passed back to the council for payment. Councilman Isaac G. Smith said Director Crandall should apply to the state for re-imbursement of the town and the matter should be gone over with Town Solicitor Ferguson.

When other town bills were before the council for payment Clerk Wilcox said that none of the miscellaneous bills with the exception of the first item could be paid as there remained only $22.10 in that budget account. Four town directories, used by the town clerk, town treasurer, police and building inspector, were voted paid for. There did remain sufficient balances to pay town hall, town officers, and lighting bills but in the police department budget there was only $25 balance. This police department account was cared for by a personal note to the amount of $2,— now signed by all members of the council, for which the Industrial Trust Co. granted sufficient funds to pay the salaries of police officers until next year's funds were available.

To pay preliminary bills incurred by the building committee of the new junior Westerly high school, Superintendent Willard H. Bacon presented a number of bills for approval. Town Treasurer James M. Pendleton stated that with the sanction of the council he could negotiate a note of $1,000 for six months, due June 2, 1930, to be taken up when the regular registered notes for construction are issued, and the council voted him authority.

The council voted approval of the taking up of the town of Westerly water works construction notes in amount $23,000 for the extension some years ago of water works to Pleasant View, now Misquamicut, and Weekapaug.

Councilman Joseph Fraser was named a committee to confer with Postmaster Thomas Lenihan relative to the renumbering of houses on Union and south end of Hobart streets.

The report of Chief of Police Thomas E. Brown for November showed arrests: Wayward person 1, idle person 1, driving auto while under influence of liquor 2, non support 1, intoxication 1, revelling 1, assault 1, driving with improper auto brakes 1, leaving scene of auto accident 1, taking auto without owner's consent 1, and passing auto traffic beacon showing red 2; a total of 13 for the month. Six were taken into custody and two doors were found unsecured.

A representative of a company from Providence appeared before the council to ask cooperation in the printing of their Rhode Island business directory.

D. E. Roode was voted a milk dealers license.

The matter of amending town ordinances to include a penalty for turning an auto around at the junction of High and Canal streets, was continued with other amendments, as having bicycles equipped with lights and alarms and other amendments until all could be considered together.

A letter of appreciation was received from Miss Randall, director of Mothers' Aid. Action in the establishment of a new building line at Weekapaug was taken on request from the W. C. Hiscox Co., who have not received a building permit, until the matter can be adopted.

Before the council finally adjourned a lengthy discussion was held relative to allowing autos to make right hand turns, it being the general opinion that where a street was of sufficient width to allow two lanes of traffic it was desirable in some cases.

In the Superior Court

In the Washington county superior court Monday morning at West Kingston before Associate Justice Charles A. Walsh, in the criminal case of State, vs. Raymond A. Roberts, charged with being a vagrant, the defendant was given a suspended sentence. Judge Walsh gave him six months in which to pay the costs of court.

A fine of $200 and costs was imposed upon Richard Wilcox of Westerly which he accepted in lieu of 30 days at Providence county jail on the charge of operating an automobile in Westerly while under the influence of liquor Feb. 16, 1928. Wilcox had been found guilty by a jury in the superior court and was up for sentence Monday.

Joseph Girard of Hopkinton, charged with operating an automobile without a license, pleaded nolo and was fined $15 and costs.

Raymond Peters, aged 17, and William Anthony, aged 16, who were involved in the driving off of an automobile at Wakefield, July 19, 1928, were given deferred sentence each. Judge Walsh warned them that if they ever came into court again they would get 18 months in state prison. Attorney Jackvony stated that Henry Warnsley had been sentenced to one year on the same offense.

Lets Sentences Stand

Chief of Police Thomas E. Brown and Deputy Sheriff Fred W. Bull of Kingston were complainants in four cases against Alexander Taylor, charging larceny of automobile tires and two cases brought against Wm. Johnson, charged with larceny of tires. These were disposed of when the defendants, represented by Attorney Clarence E. Roche, pleaded nolo. In two of the cases Taylor had been fined $25 and costs in the district court in Westerly and $25 and costs on the cases in the Second District court in Wakefield. Similar fines were imposed against Johnson in the two cases against him.

The other man was Clarence Brown who had pleaded guilty and was fined in the district court. Judge Walsh said he would let the district court sentence stand in each case.

Monday afternoon a jury was impaneled in the case of State, Thomas E. Brown vs. William H. Jackson, charged with reckless driving of an automobile. A machine operated by Jackson collided with a jitney of the Pickering service near the Seventh Day Baptist church.

Men in the employ of a Providence construction company were engaged Monday in lowering the topmast to the large flagpole in the lawn on Broad street in front of the Westerly high school building. A part is to be cut off the top of the pole until sound wood is found on which will be placed a metal case and the top surmounted by a bowling ball which will be gilded. When the pole was first placed in position on the school lawn a large wooden eagle which served as a weathervane surmounted the top. After a perch of many years at this lofty elevation a part of a wing became broken and fell and later more of the wooden bird was torn off by the elements and the remainder was taken down by a steeplejack and the pole left without ornament.

Taunton police officials came to Westerly Monday to return with a man wanted by authorities in the Massachusetts city for non-support of his wife who resides there. TRAINED DOG GETS HIS OWN TURKEY DINNER

A hound named Pal, owned by Elliott Bennett who has him trained, can do tricks. His master will say, "Go and get my pipe." The dog will jump through his arm and with a note in his mouth will go down to the meat market and bring home the family dinner. Mrs. Bennett will play the piano and Pal will sing with his strong pair of lungs sweet as a bird in a tree. Pal is a great rat catcher; he pinned 12 on one day around the shore and in an open field where the rats run wild. Mr. Bennett was offered $150 for the dog but money cannot buy Pal. The dog has been with him for nine years, and is better than an alarm clock. At 6 o'clock he will stand at his master's bed and bark until his master hits the deck. Pal can almost read and he sure can read his master's lips. If a telephone call comes for a neighbor Pal will take the message over and knock on the door with his head until the woman or man comes. His master takes Pal in his truck every day and if one tries to get into the truck what a mean bark the trained dog will let out.

It was Wednesday morning when the meat man had on his truck a load of western turkeys. He was in a hurry for he had a busy day ahead. Pal was sleeping in the sun but the noise of the truck had him wide awake. The meat cutter went into a house and Pal was working around as if nothing was on his mind, and his tongue was hanging out, when he saw a head of a turkey. Quick as a flash Pal had Mr. Turkey running down the road. Soon the meat cutter was after him. But no use. Pal could do the mile in 9 3-4 seconds. So the meat man hunted up Pal's master and said, "Who owns that chestnut dog?" "I do." Mr. Bennett said. "You owe me $6.50 for a 12 lb turkey."

"Well," his master said, "I cannot help it if the dog ran away with the turkey. He has a right on the road. That is one new trick Pal learned today without being trained."

The meat cutter said, "You will get a bill for the turkey for a lady, Mrs. Nellie Starr, is out her Thanksgiving dinner," and the meat man drove away mad as a wet hen. About one hour and a half afterwards, Pal came back. He could hardly walk he had so much turkey. His master looked at his trained dog and said: "Aren't you ashamed of yourself to steal that lady's turkey?" Pal looked up with a sad look in his 11 eyes, enough to say, "I am tired of eating bones of turkey every Thanksgiving day and I wanted a whole one like every one else does for that day." His master told Pal "Well I have got to whip you for that and it hurts me more than anything I know of." So Pal took his whipping and then went over in the sun to lay down after his big turkey lunch, and his master went back to work. Later in the day Pal went for a walk and came back with a wild rabbit in his mouth. He had caught it near to the woods and it must have weighed 7 lbs. He barked at his master and gave the rabbit to him.

"Well that beats anything I know of. A turkey, now a rabbit. But Elliott is going to have a rabbit pie for Sunday dinner. Well Pal, you'd better call it a day."

Elliott was working on a roof of a house and Pal walked up the ladder to see him.

"That dog is sure well trained and if I lost Pal I would not know what to do. Some day Pal is going on the stage with me and travel the world over."

Both went home after their day's work and Pal was some happy to get his turkey dinner ahead of time.

PRESSURE IN MARKET DURING A DULL AND GENERALLY COLORLESS SESSION

NEW YORK, Dec. 3.—(AP)—Traders were still disposed to stick close to shore as operations were resumed on the stock market today after its four-day recess. While the trading machinery of Wall street had rested, it appeared that nothing had developed to revive bullish enthusiasm.

The market was subjected to considerable pressure, of a professionally bearish character, during a dull and generally colorless session, but the general list displayed considerable resistance, and short covering during the last hour lifted several leading shares substantially above Wednesday's final levels. Total sales were but 2,832,240 shares.

Monetary conditions continued to improve. The month end interest and dividend requirements, variously estimated up to $700,000,000, were met without causing a ripple, aided by the stock exchange closing. Call money was unchanged at 4 1-2 per cent, but was available in the outside market as low as 3 1-2. Time money was easier, with funds offered as low as 4 1-2 to 4 3-4 per cent for the shorter maturities. The reduction of $137,000,000 in brokers' loans announced Friday carried the total to the lowest level in two years.

Business news, however, was in part of a character to inspire speculative caution. Steel mill operations were said to have been curtailed to as low as 50 per cent of capacity in several instances. Several more of the smaller corporations declared extra or increased dividends. Merchandising reports were largely favorable. Montgomery Ward reported November sales at record levels, and Safeway Stores raised the annual dividend rate from $3 to $5.

The slackening in industrial activity, while seasonal at the time of year, is being watched very closely by Wall street in hope of finding definite indications of the 1930 trend. Until the current uncertainty is dispelled, few traders felt that extensive stock market operations will be arranged. Also, the statement in the National City bank's monthly review that the banking pool which aided the market last month had not yet liquidated its holdings, was rather discouraging.

Chemical stocks were rapidly bid upward, with Columbia Carbon running up nearly 30 points in what appeared to be urgent short covering. Allied Chemical, Union Carbide, United Carbon, and U. S. Industrial Alcohol rose from 3 to 7 points.

General Electric, after sagging 3 1-2 points to 212, rose to 221 1-4, and closed near the top. American Telephone dropped to 218 1-4, then rallied to 224 1-3, up 1 1-4 net. American Can converted an early loss of nearly 3 points into a gain of a point. U. S. Steel fluctuated uncertainly, touching 159 1-4, rallying to 162 1-2, and closing at 161 1-2, off 5-8. Columbia Graphophone was an active feature, rising about 2 points in a turnover of more than 120,000 shares. Radio was also fairly active, and made a similar gain.

Fox Film dropped nearly 7 points in selling based on the anti-trust suit, but it had reduced its loss to 2 3-8 points by the close. Some of the investment rails were conspicuously heavy, such issues as Atchison, Pennsylvania and Union Pacific losing about 4 to 7 points. Curtiss Aero, very little of which is still outstanding, dropped 20 points to a new low at 60 on a small turnover.

In the commodity markets, wheat futures sagged 1-4 to 1-2 cent on disappointing cables, while corn mounted a cent and more, reflecting unfavorable weather and better cash inquiry. Cotton futures moved in a narrow range, closing slightly lower.

Foreign exchanges were steady to firm, with sterling cables again quoted at $4.87 15-16.

THE CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, Dec. 2—(AP)—Stock prices drifted about rather aimlessly in today's curb market. Most of the leading issues rallied slightly in the early trading, lost their gains before mid-day, made them up or increased them by mid-afternoon and then backed and filled towards the close, with final quotations irregular.

Lack of public interest in the market was reflected by the light volume of trading, the day's sales aggregating only 1,070,300 shares. Most of the orders now being received for curb stocks are reported to be so far away from the market that there is little chance of there being executed while prices are moving within the narrow trading range of the past week.

Electric Bond & Share and Cities Service, two of the most active public utility issues, closed with fractional gains. Cities Service recently announced it had increased its stockholders list by 50,000 names, or 20 per cent, in the period the stock fell from 68 1-2 to 29. Duke Power soared 13 points but lost nearly half its gain. American & Foreign Power warrants advanced 1 3-4 cut Associated Gas & Electric issues were heavy.

Interest in the oils centered largely in a few pipe line shares, particularly Eureka and Illinois which advanced about 7 points each. Humble Oil, which was placed on a regular $2 annual basis today, closed fractionally lower.

Further weakness developed in the mining group. Newmont dropping 8 1-2 points. Several soft spots also cropped out in the aviation group. Curtiss Aero Express dropped 20 points to a new low at 10 on one sale. It had sold as high as $2 7-8 this year. Aviation Corporation of the America's dropped nearly 3 points and National Aviation 1 3-4.

New low prices for the year were registered by American Ivette, Arcturus Radio Tube, Carman Co., International Textbook, Fred T. Ley, Paramount Famous Lasky (when issued) and Sterchi Bros.

Deere & Co. jumped 15 points on a few sales. Associated Rayon preferred 6 1-8 and Aluminum Co. of America 4.

TWENTY-NINE BUILDING PERMITS ISSUED DURING MONTH OF NOVEMBER

Building activities in Norwich and vicinity showed a marked decrease during the month of November when only 29 permits were granted by Fire Marshal Henry R. Taft. The permits were largely for additions and alterations to present frame structures. There were two permits for new dwelling houses and five for new garages. The fire marshal's report for the month is as follows:

New frame houses	2
New frame garages	5
New frame greenhouse	1
New frame henhouse	1
New frame shed	1
Alterations to frame buildings	13
Alterations to brick buildings	1
Total	29

Estimated cost as given in applications $11,225.

The total amount of expenditure as given by the applicants is only a little over $11,000 which is the smallest figure of any month during the year.

During the last week in November there were eight permits granted including one for a small six room bungalow on Woodmansee avenue to be erected by John Senetyki at a cost of $2,500.

The permits issued were as follows:

To Meyer Simon to erect a frame one-story shed to be used as a place to store motor oil, at 489 Hamilton avenue. The shed will be 6x10 feet. The estimated cost is $25.

To John Senetyki to erect a six-room frame cottage on Woodmansee avenue. The cottage will be 24x26 feet with cement cellar and foundation. The exterior finish will be in clapboards and shingles and the interior in hard wood and plaster. The plumbing will be of brass. The estimated cost is $3,300.

To Dr. N. B. Lewis to add another exit to the Strand theatre on Water street. The construction will be of metal lath and plaster. A few alterations to the dressing rooms over the stage are being made. The estimated cost is $250.

To E. Walter Phillips to build an addition to the present garage at 422 Laurel Hill avenue. The addition will be 8x22 feet and will be of frame construction. The estimated cost is $75.

To Harry L. Armstrong to build a frame addition to the present house on Fountain street. The addition will be 8x22 feet and will be of frame construction. The estimated cost is $75.

To Joseph Skowronski to build an addition to the present frame barn on Hoover avenue. The addition will be 2x13 feet on one end and 5x23 feet on the other. The estimated cost is $100.

To Matteo Scollaro to build a two-room addition to the present house on Mohegan road. The addition will be 16x32 feet and will be of frame construction to conform to the present dwelling. The estimated cost is $200.

To William H. Oat to add a glass and frame vestibule to his home on River avenue. The estimated cost is $200.

REAL ESTATE SALES AND MORTGAGE LOANS

In Norwich during the past week there were six sales of real estate as compared to seven sales for the corresponding week in 1928. The mortgage loans for the respective weeks were $12,200 and $25,845.

There were four sales of real estate in New London during the past week as compared to three sales for the same week a year ago. The mortgage loans were $47,289 and $19,300.

NE WLONDON.

That four-family houses can be built in the B residence zones of the building zone ordinance was given as the opinion of Building Inspector Gunn at a recent hearing of the council committee on administration which was concerned at the time with a petition asking that a part of Nathan Hale street be changed to B residence zone instead of A residence zone as at present.

In the appended schedule limiting the height and bulk of buildings, made a part of the new building ordinance, the schedule provides for two families per building in the B residence zone and the opinion has prevailed among many that only a regular two family house could be erected in this zone.

In contrast to this Mr. Gunn points out that the wording of the ordinance specifically states that "no dwelling shall be erected, altered or used except as either a one or two family detached or semi-detached dwelling." The latitude claimed by Mr. Gunn comes in the words detached, or semi-detached. In other words the interpretation of Mr. Gunn is that a semi-detached house, consisting of a duplex structure with a separating wall of concrete or similar construction, can be built to house two families on each side of the separating wall which makes the structure a semi-detached structure which can house four families in accordance with the ordinance.

The importance of this interpretation is seen in the fact that if an A residence zone is changed to a B residence zone four family houses can then be built there whereas only single family detached houses can be erected in the A zones.

A Dutch Colonial house in Parkway being built for Francis J. and Anna E. O'Connor has been plastered. The new house has a stone foundation, and the exterior is finished with wide clapboard siding painted white, and a green shingled roof. Private plans provide tapestry red brick steps leading to the front entrance and improvements and conveniences, including steam heat, tiled bathroom, hardwood floors, automatic hot water heater and built in features.

WESTERLY.

Two building projects in Westerly, one just begun and one nearly completed, have attracted the interested attention not only of Westerly residents but also favorable comment and commendation by Westerly visitors.

At Watch Hill on the high hill off Westerly road and bordering on East Beach, near the coast guard station, the eminence known as "Watch Hill" and for many years a popular picnic place with the title until recently resting with the Atwood family of Stonington, a summer mansion has been staked out. Here Mrs. George G. Snowden of Philadelphia, who has recently purchased the site will have built a two and one-half story house which will cover a ground area of 92 feet by 197 1-2 feet with Robert Roder McGoodwin of Philadelphia the architect. The summer home will be of wooden frame construction with stone and cement foundation, with steel beams, rock lath and plastered with roof of red cedar shingles. Some idea of the proportions of the "summer cottage" can be obtained when the 36 rooms included in the building do not include small hallways and cubby holes. There will be 16 bathrooms, some with tubs and showers, some with showers and others with lavatories. Scattered throughout the various rooms of the house will be at least 10 fireplaces.

In Wilcox Park in Westerly and facing the Westerly town hall building and fronting Broad street the work of establishing a monumental main entrance and memorial fountain is nearly completed. Its completion is assured before the end of the year unless severe cold prevents. All cement work was finished last week and it only remains to continue the flag-stone laying about the fountain and connect the fountain court with the park paths. Seeding of the new lawns and their final grading will be done next spring.

The new entrance to the park leads in from Broad street between the Westerly Public Library and the high school. It is a memorial to Mr. and Mrs. Stephen D. Wilcox who donated land for the park years ago and whose later financial gifts made its completion and maintenance possible.

The new entrance is opposite the Town hall. Two granite steps from Broad street sidewalk lead up to an ornate flagstone walk 15 feet wide and extending 110 feet into the park. At the park end the walk broadens out into a court 10 feet wide and 90 feet long, forming a great T. A balustrade of white Westerly granite borders the park side of this court. A flight of eight steps leads down from the court into the park. The steps are 21 feet long with low granite balustrades.

To be eventually electrically lighted and located about 30 feet from the foot of the steps is the octagon fountain, a cement structure some 30 feet in diameter and three feet deep in the centre. A broad flagstone walk surrounds the fountain and will eventually connect with park walks diverging from it. New lawns will be laid out between the fountain and the rear of both the library and high school and appropriate shrubbery will be planted. Lawns borders the walk in from Broad street have already been completed. From the walk and court above the fountain extends an unobstructed view through the centre of the park, across the great lawn and as far as the pond and grove at the northerly end.

For the last of November Westerly Building Inspector Thomas Wills and Zoning Inspector Louis J. Rossi have issued the following building and zoning permits:

Nov. 30—Westerly Automatic Telephone company, Champlin block, 38-44 Main street. Construct copper cornice over present iron cornice on Champlin block and erect temporary sidewalk scaffolding for the placing of the same.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, Dec. 2—(AP)—Bending under the weight of nearly 10,000,000 bushels of wheat delivered here today on December contracts, the Chicago wheat market temporarily showed considerable strain. Buying support, largely from eastern sources, developed however on the price setbacks, and rallies were in progress at the last. Today afforded the first opportunity for a test of willingness of speculators to take actual custody of wheat bought for delivery this month, and the fact that the amount of wheat tendered was of a magnitude not often excelled had an evident tendency to depress values.

Chicago closing quotations on wheat were unsettled, 1-8c to 1 cent net lower than Saturday's finish. Corn closed 1c to 1 3-4c net higher, oats unchanged to 1-8c up, and provisions at 3c to 20c again.

Wheat values here displayed their greatest weakness today in the early dealings after announcement that initial deliveries for the current month in Chicago were upward of 3,000,000 bushels, a total which of itself was greatly in excess of what in some quarters had been expected. The downward trend of the Chicago market was emphasized at this stage also by word of cooler temperatures in Argentina likely to check the spread of black rust damage. On the other hand, something of an offset was a decrease of 4,304,000 bushels in the amount of wheat on ocean passage and the fact that December deliveries today at Liverpool were next to nothing.

Besides, British trade authorities were quoted to the effect that the falling-off in the total of wheat afloat had brought the ocean supply near to the lowest point for European importers, being the smallest in recent years.

Price rallies which afterward were witnessed in the Chicago market temporarily lifted quotations to a little above Saturday's finish, but fresh weakness ensued when the fact was revealed that huge additional deliveries here on December contracts made the day's total 9,141,000 bushels. Hands of higher prices for wheat were anticipated that the United States wheat visible supply decreased 2,837,000 bushels was smaller than in general had been looked for. Subsequent upturns in prices, though, were somewhat facilitated by figures indicating that export business today in North American wheat was larger than early estimates and aggregated 1,215,000 bushels.

Corn subsided in harmony with wheat to somewhat that stocks of corn in commercial channels are at the lowest point and that the first big movement of the new crop will find a ready market.

Provisions were responsive to a rise in hog values, and also derived strength from late buying for warehouse interests and packers.

HOME OF W. S. SPENCER ON CARROLL AVENUE

The accompanying cut is a picture of the home which W. S. Spencer, contractor, built for himself recently at 48 Carroll avenue. This house which has eight rooms and two bathrooms is situated on the side of a hill and was designed to set snugly under a great oak tree which is in front of the house.

The living room and kitchen extend along the southerly side which arrangement gives these rooms the sun all day. The dining room being on the northeasterly corner gets the morning sun. The easterly end of the living room is fitted with steel casement windows giving the effect of a sun room. The house throughout is finished in the old Colonial style with painted woodwork and oak floors. There is an ample fireplace in the living room; this being finished with the old Colonial panelling and with bookcases extending from the floor to the ceiling. There being no pantry, the kitchen is equipped with plenty of closet space and the sink is underneath the casement windows. This makes an ideal place for a woman to work. There is a good sized den near the dining room which can be used either as an office or a lounging place. On the second floor there are three large bedrooms, a sewing room and a bath.

The exterior of the house is finished with wide Colonial shingles stained gray with green shutters. The house is heated with steam.

A short distance from the house in the rear is a playhouse which would delight the heart of any boy or girl. The size of this is about 6x8 feet and it is built similar in design to the main house having the green stained shingled roof and the gray stained shingles on the sides. It is fitted with small casement windows and flower boxes and there is a heart shaped design worked in the shutters and on the door. The inside has electric lights and a small electric heater for cold days. The furniture is of a size to match the house. It is a very popular place with the young folks.

GIVES ADDED INSULATION

If you have a coal-burning boiler did you ever notice the cloud of dust which arises when the grate is turned? All of this doesn't remain in the cellar. Far from it! Much of it seeps through the floor into the rooms above, to the detriment of draperies, linen and upholstery. Lining the under-sides of first floor beams with insulation will keep much of this in the cellar where it belongs, and also will tend to insulate the floor against drafts.

SMOKELESS FIREPLACES

The most effective way to prevent a fireplace from smoking is to see that it is built properly in the first place. Second-hand methods are expensive and not always successful. The flue should be directly above the fire-place opening and should be at least 8 by 12 inches, although a flue 12 inches square is even better. A tile flue lining and throat damper should be regarded as essentials. Likewise, the depth of the fireplace should be at least two thirds the height of the opening.

COMBINATION RANGES

With all due respect to the cooking properties of electricity and gas, the value of a combination kitchen range—either coal and gas, or coal and electric—is recognized fully as much if not more today than ever before. As an auxiliary heating unit it is an economical substitute for the main boiler in early autumn and late spring, while for slow roasting and baking it continues to serve as a useful auxiliary for the gas and electric ovens.

PORTABLE COOKERS ARE CONVENIENT

Portable cookers of various types have grown tremendously in favor since the merits of electricity as a cooking heat became known. Their popularity is due to the fact that they give the convenience of electric cooking to homes where for one reason or another it is not desirable to install electric ranges.

The first electric cookers were modeled something like the style of the fireless cooker, which is merely an insulated compartment wherein cooking is carried on by stored heat, the heat being introduced into the compartment (usually) by placing heated soapstones inside it. In the electrical "fireless" cooker, the moveable soapstone was replaced by an electric cooking unit. Thus one could cook in this compartment either by using the heating unit continuously, until cooking was completed, or by heating up the compartment to start the cooking, then turning the current off and leaving the food to finish cooking by stored heat. The advantages of this type over the non-electric fireless cookers are obvious. It gave opportunity for a pleasing variety of cooking procedures.

It was not long before this device was improved, changed, given more and more additions, until today a portable electric cooker may be something approaching closely the full cooking service of an electric range; with the added feature of operating from an electric outlet, instead of requiring special heavy-duty wiring.

While this appliance has been evolving there has remained the small portable cooker which serves many needs, and which is still no more than a glorified "fireless" or stored heat device. Between the two there are a variety of models of slightly different types, efficient and furnishing electric cooking service that is quick, clean, economical and appropriate to be carried on in any kitchen, kitchenette, or other room where there is electric wiring.

Some of these devices are appropriate as supplementary cooking equipment in homes which use electric ranges. The flexibility of the small portable makes it serviceable in unique ways.

CRYSTAL FIXTURES RETURN TO FAVOR

An interesting development in electrical lines has been the return to favor of the crystal fixture. Years ago this type had such a vogue as to cause the public ultimately to become fed up on it, and gradually it fell into disuse.

Now, however, it is coming back but in more subdued patterns and with an eye for the artistic. The newer and more appropriate designs take the size and needs of a room into consideration. Some, intended for large and formal dining rooms, for example, are almost as ornate as the old-time chandeliers; but to balance these are small wax fixtures, or other small ones intended for hallways and stair landings, designed in exactly the proportions suitable for a particular use. Some boast just a few crystal ornaments—just enough, in fact, to deflect a proper amount of light. Others require more, with little fabric shades to screen the lights.

Like most art lighting fixtures, they are now being designed to harmonize as perfectly as possible with interior decorating designs and with furnishings. They cannot be selected without thought for those other elements, and quite frequently will not be found suitable. But when the surroundings are right they produce a pleasing effect.

RADIATOR COVERS TO ADD HARMONY

Apparently the old cast-iron steam and hot water radiator is destined to disappear from sight. Not that it will disappear from us, but merely from the sight of mortal eyes. Several enterprising manufacturers have been turning out types of radiator covers which, while they do nothing to retard the distribution of heat, convert these more or less ugly household necessities into something artistic, attractive and useful. The usual method is to provide a screened panel in front which completely covers the radiator topped with a cover which is insulated sufficiently to make it available for use as an extra table top. They make ideal places for flower and plant holders and can be used, also for bookends.

Through interest taken in radiator covers by furniture manufacturers, they are being turned out in designs which can be selected to harmonize perfectly with a room's furnishings. The old, time-honored furniture patterns can be matched with radiator covers following the same general lines; while even interior decorating can be carried out so thoroughly as to include radiator covers in the scheme of things. In this way the entire arrangement of a room may be brought into perfect harmony, by enveloping the radiator in a cover which forms a definite part of a perfectly artistic whole.

MODEST VERSION OF STONE AGE IN HOME BUILDING

The stone age is with us again. There are certain minor changes in the setting, but the fact remains that the men and women of the 20th century are getting back to some of the basic principles which governed the lives of men and women of Neolithic days.

For it has been discovered that the qualities inherent in stone are essential to the safety, beauty and satisfaction of a home, just as they were half a hundred thousand years ago. But there is this important difference. Where the old stone age man had to hew his stone out of the stubborn landscape, modern stone age man makes his stone as he pleases—makes it small or large, solid or hollow, light and heavy—and does it very neatly by canny mixtures of cement, water sand and stone.

In the days when Portland cement was relatively new, Thomas Edison forecast the building of homes out of solid concrete monoliths. Some day, this type of building may prove best, but at present it has been found more economical and satisfactory to use concrete in masonry form.

With modern concrete masonry, which is made under rigid factory control to insure uniform quality, it is possible to build a home very quickly and the result is the utmost in permanence, beauty, economy and general all-around satisfaction.

Concrete masonry is to be had in a great variety of sizes and special shapes, but the standard unit measures 8 by 8 by 16 inches, a size which accounts for the speed with which the units are laid up. Incidentally, it accounts, too, for the mortar economy which is characteristic of concrete masonry construction. From 30 to 50 per cent. of the volume of various kinds of masonry is confined airspace, a feature which adds to the insulating quality of a wall built up of these units.

Ordinarily, an exterior finish is used over concrete masonry walls—a finish such as Portland cement stucco which is essentially, concrete and bonds naturally with the masonry. Recently a number of experiments have been made in which the masonry walls were left exposed and the results were completely satisfactory. With the smaller masonry units, such as tile, it is the usual thing to leave them exposed, with only a wash of neat cement over them.

PROPER CHOICE OF WALL PAPER SOLVES PROBLEMS

Nearly all builders, whether occupied in remodelling or modernizing homes built 20 years ago or erecting new ones equipped with all of the modern appliances and present-day comforts, realize the necessity of giving these empty houses a semblance of comfort and cheer. They know that the prospective buyer is more interested in a house with its walls pleasing to look upon than if they were cold and cheerless with unfinished walls, and so they pay much attention to the wall paper, the floors, woodwork, lighting fixtures and bathroom appliances.

The wall paper, since it supplies the most color as well as design, is really the most valuable of them all. Even an empty room finished in a cheery rambling floral paper is bright and inviting. The decorated walls half furnish the room and the variety of impressions which the prospective buyer receives as he passes from room to room of a tastefully papered house supplies new interest and adds immensely to the charm of the house. He unconsciously suggests to himself color and design for the further finishing of each room. He begins to think how his table, or his curtains, or upholstered furniture would fit into this room. In this way he works up a personal interest in the house and sees himself and his family living there.

Proper wall paper also can counteract errors in planning or difficulties due to location that cannot be overcome in construction. For instance, if the house being remodeled or modernized is dark, shaded by trees or other buildings, it is possible by using light clear-colored wall paper to give a semblance of sunlight and space. Yellow, light grey, tan, rose, orchid, gold, black and white, all add light. Papers with large spreading designs showing a good deal of light background, papers drawn with perspective—that is, scenics, foliage papers showing tree trunks with sky behind them, or branches with clear space showing through; all these papers add a feeling of space to a small, dark room.

On the contrary, if a house is built in a new part of town, or a new development, unshaded by trees where the spaces around it are bare and uninviting in the glaring sunlight, such a house can be made much more charming by the use of the cool shady colors; soft green papers with gray or darker green designs, woodsy papers, darker in color than the light gray and green scenics we spoke of, more leaves and touches of brown and dark green in the design. Cool rich blues are good in such a house, as are lavender, mulberry and dark gray. The designs may be quite strong and heavy, for the house needs weight. It must be made to look permanent and settled to counteract the feeling of crude newness in its neighborhood.

Color is very obviously the keynote now in our new homes and those which are being modernized, and the builder who bears this fact in mind goes far toward pleasing the prospective woman buyer. All other things being equal this may be the deciding factor in selling a new house; and the easiest and least expensive way to add color and charm and proper design value, is by choosing consistent wall papers. It is wise to study the location and type of house you are building in selecting papers for it. Consult, and get the advice of your leading wall paper merchant, who will understand your problems and aid you in solving them.

VARIED FOUNDATION PLANTINGS.

Landscape architects tell us that, while foundation plantings can be confined to evergreens, it cannot be considered particularly good judgment. The solid green, unrelieved at any time of year by color, or even by lighter shades of foliage, becomes quite monotonous. Heather plants offer a relief, especially as there are numerous varieties whose foliage and blossoms offer a lively variety.

BOOK ENDS LEND "TONE" TO A ROOM

A set of book ends, carefully selected, can do much to give a room a cultural "tone". This does not mean a pseudo culture, by creating an atmosphere not in conformity with the general atmosphere of a room. But if one has a mantel, a table top, or even a small alcove, which needs something to give it a finished look, a set of book ends can accomplish this fully as well as a well-selected piece of pottery or other art object.

The younger school of artists is doing much to lend these small, finishing touches to the home, and this applies to book end in particular. Tiny bronzes or imitation bronze figures containing real artistic merit are being produced and sold at figures which are well within the reach of the average man or woman. Some are excellent copies or reproductions of well known masterpieces, while many others are entire original in subject and line. Others, of course, are extremely original—too original, in fact; but these seem to be the exception.

Within a mile of the Arkansas line the land began to rise and we soon got into a hill country.

It seemed to us more like home, as we had driven nearly two hundred miles in Arkansas without seeing a single elevation.

We saw wheat straw piled as high as the Newent church and in piles about three times as long.

This is a wooded country and the leaves are still on the trees. The magnolia trees along the streets are very green and will stay green all winter.

We are in the foothills of the Ozark mountains. A train that we kept along with consisted of 85 cars, all loaded with oak logs. Our house in Wellesly was floored with oak from the country north of here.

We did not see any razorback hogs within 50 miles of this place. These hogs know when there is a machine coming and will hurry off the road.

The cows on the highway and in the woods all have bells. No fences to keep them off the road.

This hotel is heated by the water from the springs—steam coming out of the ground in many places.

We stay one day here.

Mr. and Mrs. William Kallenberger and grandson were week-end visitors in New York.

A Surprise Snowstorm

Last year, the first week in December there had been no snow, plenty of rain, and the local ponds were open. Monday morning the Dorville ice fields were covered an inch thick. At early evening four inches of snow had fallen, with the wind in the southwest. All snowstorms that amount to much in this section come from the northeast. One of the local weather sharps said Monday, if there comes but little rain during the fall, it is sure to be a snowy winter and lots of it. Ten years ago, one snowstorm was followed by another within a week, all winter. There was from two to three feet of snow on the ground for 10 weeks.

The work was completed by working all Sunday night, when the movement of water in the 12-inch delivery pipe is very small. Local bird lovers have hardly noticed the winter juncoes and chickadees until the storm of Monday afternoon. As soon as the snow began to gain a little, both these hardy birds were noted in the trees about the borough streets.

Their guests were served a turkey supper, the menu including grapefruit cocktail, roast turkey with chestnut dressing, mashed potato and turnip, cranberry sauce, pickles, olives, relish, cake, pie and coffee. After the supper games and dancing were enjoyed. Particularly enjoyable was the buck and wing exhibition by Alec Raney. Linen, cut glass, pictures and a gold piece were among the remembrances left by the guests, who were Mr. and Mrs. Homer Boule, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Lefevre, son and daughter; Mrs. Rose Boule, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Raill and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. John Medick, Mr. and Mrs. John Carroll and son, Mrs. Natalie Fontaine, Homer Fontaine, Alec Raney, all of Jewett City; Marie Gordon, of Providence, and Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Boule, of Taftville. ANNOUNCEMENTS

A great actor in a great play comes to the Palace theatre for a brief engagement—all too brief, unfortunately—when George Arliss opens there in "Disraeli," one of the finest of the recent Warner Brothers' products. Cast in the role of England's famous prime minister, Arliss gives a magnificent performance. The picture starts at the Palace on Wednesday and will be continued through Thursday and Friday.

Disraeli's master stroke of diplomacy, the crowning of Queen Victoria as "Empress of India," comes as the climax of this great picture. We see the mighty premier, faced with what looks like certain disaster. We see him take a long, long chance—and finally win, and we see, for the first time in English history, a sovereign—Queen Victoria, coming to a reception given by a premier. British rules of court etiquette are even more strict than those at the white house and it is a well known fact that the president never dines out. He invites his guests, but nobody is ever permitted to be host to him.

Today for the last time the Palace presents that thrilling epic of the night clubs and cabarets, "The Painted Angel," starring beautiful Billie Dove in an all-talking, singing and dancing role that is a knockout.

Broadway Theatre

The sharp rap of the conductor's baton and one hundred trained musicians swing into the opening measures of "Singin' in the Rain," heralding the opening of Metro's marvelous all-talking production, "The Hollywood Revue," now delighting audiences at the Broadway. Reflecting the "speaking-likenesses" of more Hollywood stars than ever before appeared in one production, the Broadway screen presents an ever-changing galaxy of chorus numbers, dancing ensembles, scenes in natural colors, and comedy "bits" by the more than a score of film and stage stars, in a fast-moving revue of song, music, dance and comedy.

A symphony orchestra of 100 plays the entire show, one sequence showing an intermission with the entire orchestra in the pit, playing the overture for the second part. The latest Paramount Sound news rounds out over two hours of solid enjoyment. Three shows daily are provided so that everyone is assured of a seat.

Bread Theatre

St. Clair is six feet, three inches tall, and appears daily in a fresh pair of white flannels. His cravat invariably matches his coat and vest, with the brown, blue or black motif extending to socks and shoes.

St. Clair has never known to appear on a set otherwise than correctly dressed, it is said.

Among the best known of St. Clair's directorial efforts in the past have been "The Grand Duchess and the Waiter," "A Social Celebrity," "Breakfast at Sunrise," "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes," "The Fleet's In," "The Canary Murder Case

FOOTBALL TEAMS IN AMERICA SET NEW RECORD FOR POINT-SCORING

NEW YORK, Dec. 2.—(AP)—With the "Cagles, Booths, Maxsteds and McEwers" of 146 elevens scampering over America's gridirons for a new scoring record, the offensive pendulum of the 1929 football season swung to its farthest extreme.

Breaking all records of the last eight years, the country's average team, determined from the records of 146 representative elevens, scored a total of 136.9 points in the course of the season for an average of 15.45 points a game, while the team average was the highest by nearly three points. The average per game ranked only third, being exceeded by the 1923 eleven, which scored 19 points a game, and the 1923 team, which rolled up 15.5 points.

Playing in 1294 games the 146 schools used in compiling the average, rolled up an aggregate score of 19,994 points while holding their opponents to 12,574 for a season's average of 93 points.

Southern California's high powered attack piled up the largest score of the year among those considered, counting 460 points in 10 games. Delaware scored only 18 points to take possession of the cellar position. If points scored by opponents are any criterion of a team's defensive strength, then Hobart and Vermont were the weakest of the major colleges, 209 points being scored against the former and 300 against the latter. In winning only two of its nine games, Vermont scored 25 of its 31 points. Hobart counted 33 points and failed to win a game.

St. Mary's, the mighty little school of the Pacific coast, went through the season without having its goal line crossed until the last game, then Oregon turned the trick once to spoil the otherwise perfect record of the Gaels.

The scoring records for 1922-29 inclusive:

Year	Teams	Games	Total Points	Av. Per Team	Av. Per Game
1922	88	592	11,000	133	19
1923	106	814	12,684	127	15.5
1924	95	759	11,268	119	14.5
1925	108	895	13,130	122	14.7
1926	129	927	13,960	116.3	14.6
1927	138	1,180	15,015	130.5	15.3
1928	139	1,351	20,242	127.3	14.98
1929	146	1,294	19,994	136.9	15.45

LOU YOUNG RESIGNS AS PENN FOOTBALL COACH

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 2.—(AP)—The University of Pennsylvania will have a new football coach next season. Louis A. Young, who has been head coach for the last seven years and whose contract expires with the end of the year, today announced he had declined re-election and will become assistant to the chairman of the council of athletics.

It had been reported that Young would be appointed graduate manager of athletics at Pennsylvania to succeed Ernest B. Cozens, who died last spring, and the announcement he would become assistant to Sydney E. Hutchinson, chairman of the athletic council, came as a surprise.

No announcement was made as to who would succeed Young as coach. Chairman Hutchinson said the football committee would meet the latter part of this week to select a football team manager and the question of a coach may be taken up then. It was possible, he said, that no action on a coach may be taken until the athletic council meets late this month. In the meantime, he added, the field would be carefully scanned.

Among the names mentioned as Young's successor were Lout Little, coach at Georgetown university, a former Pennsylvania football star; Bert Bell, who until last year was an assistant coach at Penn; Lou Jourdet and Harold Gaston, former Pennsylvania players. Glenn Warner's name also has been mentioned.

Lou Young said he regretted that he had to refuse a new contract as football coach, but was glad that he would continue his connection with the university as assistant chairman of the athletic council.

"I have spent seven seasons as head football coach," he said, "and during that time I have been fortunate enough to have my teams meet with their own full share of success. However, the time has now arrived when business and economic reasons force me to turn to my life work and to leave the coaching field."

Young was captain of the 1913 football team and played on three Pennsylvania elevens. At one time he was division engineer for the American Association of Portland Cement manufacturers in this district.

Aggies Start Practice

STORRS, Dec. 2.—(AP)—Basketball practice started in earnest today at Connecticut Aggie college. Informal workouts have been going on for some time but today the football men who play basketball reported.

Several combinations have been tried out, the best one being on the floor this afternoon and consisting of Ryan and Darrow, forwards; Chubrzak, center; Duffy and Osterling, guards.

Miller Fails to Qualify

Maggie B. Miller, professional at the Norwich Golf club, failed to qualify, finishing eight strokes behind last place in the select 32. Miller went out in the morning and turned in a card of 76, five over par, but slipped badly in the afternoon round when he took 82 strokes to finish with 157. Work on the tricky and fast greens was the undoing of Miller as it was to many other pros.

NOTRE DAME-PITTSBURGH GAME PLANNED FOR 1930

NEW YORK, Dec. 2.—(AP)—It should be big news that Notre Dame and Pittsburgh are going to play football. They have already signed contracts but, unhappily for those who would like to have the debate over the strength of these rivals for national honors settled this season, they do not clash until next fall at the Pitt stadium. The Panthers will return the compliment by engaging the Irish in the new stadium at South Bend in 1931.

Unfortunately, too, many of the outstanding stars of these two great unbeaten teams of 1929 have played their last college game, unless some sudden arrangement for post-season conflict develops.

Pitt loses Toby Uansa and Tom Parkinson, the two backfield aces, as well as Captain Dimeolo, Ray Montgomery and Joe Donchess from one of the mightiest Panther lines ever developed.

Notre Dame loses only Jack Elder, the hero of the Army victory, from its backfield array, but Jack Cannon, Ted Twomey, John Law and Tim Moynihan, the "big four" of the Irish line all have completed their varsity careers, along with two regular ends, Vesie and Colerick.

Jack Elder's 100-yard dash to triumph for Notre Dame was due just as much to "smart" defensive football as it was to any fortuitous circumstance or "lucky break," to judge from the inside story of the famous play.

The Army's maneuver, on fourth down, with Red Cagle threatening either an end run or a pass, was designed in part to mislead Elder, whose defensive job was to watch the Army's right end, Messinger, meanwhile the left side of the Notre Dame line rushed Cagle. When Messinger cut diagonally across the field, Elder stuck to him, at the same time that Hutchinson, Army left halfback, raced over as an alternative receiver. The combination of Elder's alertness and the fact that Cagle's pass was hurried and somewhat short, as a result, gave the fleet Notre Dame halfback the chance to intercept the ball and start for a touchdown.

With the selections for the annual New Year's day football classic at Pasadena still unannounced, the possibility of Colgate being chosen to play California has loomed in the discussion. Colgate, although beaten early in October by Wisconsin, finished its season as impressively as any team in the east. The Maroon has never figured in the intersectional blue-ribbon affair.

Notre Dame has indicated unwillingness to extend its season, even if invited to go west again, but Pittsburgh and Tulane have been under consideration for the Rose Bowl affair.

BANOVIC GIVES OLIN HIS FIRST DEFEAT

Olin went down for a count of two in the fifth round.

Andy Divodi, of Harlem, stopped Jackie Phillips, of Toronto, in the second round of the ten-round semi-final. The referee halted the struggle after one minute and 24 seconds of fighting in the second round. Divodi weighed 146; Phillips 143.

Jackie Schweitzer, of the East Side, barely shaded Mickey Genaro, of Waterbury, Conn., in an eight-rounder. The weights were Schweitzer 134; Genaro 134 1-2.

You've all heard that old saw about the "right church but the wrong pew," haven't you?

Well, there's a certain young woman in Norwich who has changed this to the "right street but the wrong house."

It seems that the young woman had been out riding with her cousin during the evening and when they returned the cousin stopped the car in front of what she supposed was the right house.

The usual good nights were said. (It might be well to say that the cousin is a married woman.) Then the young woman turned and dashed up the walk and on to the porch.

She fumbled in her purse for her keys and then tried to find the keyhole. The keyhole was not to be found, somebody had apparently moved it.

She knew it was there when she went out but it certainly wasn't there when she came back. She looked all over that door but she couldn't seem to locate it.

So she decided that she'd have to call her mother down to let her in. She rang the bell and in a minute or so she heard the tread of a masculine foot on the stairs.

She then started to wonder but before she could really get collected the door opened and there was her next door neighbor. He said good evening and she managed to mumble a good evening in return.

Then it burst upon her suddenly that she was at the wrong house. She says very brilliantly to her neighbor, "Why, this isn't my house, is it?" "No," he replied, "your house is the one down there."

Well, if there had been a knothole in that porch floor she could have fallen right through it without touching either side. She thanks the man and goes to her own house.

She found the keyhole on the first try and in the exact place where she left it. But where she made her mistake was in telling a few of her friends about the incident.

And if you've had anything like that happen to you, you know how hard it is to explain it. This young lady has had the devil's own time trying to explain just how it happened.

The thing is that the two houses are identical and the cousin didn't know one from the other, when she drove on to the street.

And folks, the young woman doesn't touch a drop of anything stronger than cocoa. I can vouch for that, I've known her for over 30 years.

HORWEEN WILL COACH HARVARD TEAM NEXT YEAR

CAMBRIDGE, Dec. 2.—(AP)—Arnold Horween, head coach of the Harvard varsity football team since 1926, today agreed to return next season which promises to be one of the brightest in the Crimson's long gridiron history.

He will have a wealth of seasoned material to work with and it was understood that William B. Bingham, director of Harvard athletics, had no great difficulties persuading him to again drop his Chicago business interests for the fall of 1930. During the past three years, Horween has never accepted Bingham's re-appointment offer with such promptness.

During Horween's four years, Harvard has won 17 football games, lost 13 and tied two.

Horween will have Ben Ticknor, of New York, as his team leader next season. This brilliant center, whose play during the past season entitled him to all-American consideration, was elected captain this afternoon when the players who participated in the Yale game sat for the official team photograph.

Ticknor has been varsity center for the past two years and played fullback on the class of 1931 freshman team. He prepared for Harvard at Milton academy. Five other members of the eleven that started the Yale game will be available next fall, as well as most of the Crimson's great replacement strength.

NOTRE DAME TEAM GIVEN ROUSING WELCOME AT SO. BEND

SOUTH BEND Ind., Dec. 2.—(AP)—More than 2,000 Notre Dame students and South Bend townsfolk stood in a driving snowstorm and biting wind this afternoon to give a rousing welcome to Notre Dame's undefeated football squad, upon its return from its triumph over the Army at New York Saturday.

With the train bearing the Ramblers delayed more than an hour a seething crowd of boisterous welcomers stamped and shouted, and sang Notre Dame songs in an effort to keep warm. The Notre Dame band entertained the crowd with the Notre Dame "Hike" song until the train arrived. As the members of the squad fought their way through a narrow lane, the greeting was so vociferous that the players took almost as much of a beating from enthusiastic admirers while running the gauntlet, as they did in their conquest of the Army Saturday.

The return from New York officially closed one of Notre Dame's greatest football seasons—a campaign that produced nine straight victories over representative elevens from all sections of the country.

Coach Knute Rockne, of course, could not go out to meet his boys, due to the leg ailment which has kept him in bed most of the season, but started holding unofficial receptions as soon as the players could arrange to get to his house.

COOPER AND GUEST ARE BARRED FROM P. G. A.

CHICAGO Dec. 2.—(AP)—Alec Pirie, president of the Professional Golfers' Association of America, tonight declared Harry Cooper, of Buffalo, N. Y., and Charles Guest, of Los Angeles, were ineligible for the national professional championship tournament at Los Angeles.

He said he had called J. A. Paterson, chairman of the tournament committee at Los Angeles, instructing that the scores of both players be dropped from today's qualifying list, neither having played in his sectional qualifying tournament.

Bass Kayoes Martinez

MORRISON TOPS QUALIFIERS IN P. G. A. TOURNEY WITH 136; MILLER OUT OF IT

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 2—(AP)—Stroking his way through the most brilliant competitive round ever hung up for the Hillcrest Country club course, Fred Morrison, tall Los Angeles pro, posted a 65 this afternoon for a total of 136 to capture medal honors in the 36-hole qualifying round of the 1929 Professional Golfers association championship.

Off to a steady start in his first 18 with a par 71, Morrison cut loose with a dazzling brand of golf in the afternoon round that chopped six strokes off perfect figures for the course. Ten birdies and an eagle in the 36 holes brought the Midwick Country club entrant medal honors over one of the finest fields ever assembled for the big event.

Strictly a local product of the game, Morrison showed the way to the "biggest guns" of the professional golfing world. His play was flawless all the way while his tee shots boomed out for yardage unequalled by most of the other sixty-three sectional entries who teed off in the final qualifying test today.

Four strokes behind the leader came Leo Diegel of Agua Caliente, Mexico, defending champion and pre-tourney favorite to repeat for his title. Diegel covered the rolling golf layout in 71 in the morning and trimmed the card by two strokes in the second round for a total 140.

Walter Hagen, five times P. G. A. ruler; twice national open champion, and present British open titleholder, barely worked his way into a tie for 32nd place, his 149 enabled him to share last place with William Mehlhorn, New York; Henry Ciuci, Mill River, Conn., Al Houghton, Rockville, Md., and Waldo Crowder, Kirtland, Ohio.

Hagen had a 70 for his morning round, but on the afternoon stretch, his putter failed completely and he turned in a card of 79.

Darkness left Hagen's fate undetermined. In the play-off Houghton and Crowder were eliminated but Hagen, Ciuci and Mehlhorn still were tied at the fourth hole. The trio will continue the play-off tomorrow morning.

Three of the old-timers tied at the 141 stroke station. They were Gene Sarazen, former national champion and twice winner of the P. G. A. title; John Golden, Paterson, N. J., and Tony Manero, N. Y. Sarazen registered from the Fresh Meadow Country club, New York, sailed over the course in 69 in the morning but went one stroke over par 71 in the second round. Golden had a 71, 70, and Manero a 70, 71.

Johnny Farrell of New York, a former national open champion, qualified at 148, with rounds of 76 and 72. Two prominent members of the clan failed to meet the test of Hillcrest. They were Ed Dudley, Wilmington, Del., and Tom Kerrigan, New York. Dudley had a 78-72—150, and Kerrigan turned in 75-77—152.

Exceptionally fast and tricky greens proved the undoing of many entrants and mounted the scores of several of the veterans.

Survivors of today's qualifying trial will start tomorrow in 36 hole match play with the finals on Saturday.

NEW ENGLAND FIGHTS TO PROTECT MARKETS

"Connecticut and all New England have no intention of letting their markets go by default," said Sidney A. Edwards, director of the Connecticut Bureau of Markets, in part, in an address at the opening of the eleventh annual meeting of national marketing officials in Chicago Monday. "The New England farmer," he continued, "is naturally thrifty, intelligent and accustomed to hard work, but he is human and has been a victim of circumstances.

"Living in a region which produces far less than it consumes, he has been slow to realize that this is not a perpetual land of milk and honey so far as he is concerned. Until the advent of the refrigerator car and the recent development of motor transportation lines he has been able to hold the fort against all comers, but today the situation is rapidly changing. The men of the south and west have brought about this change. They have appreciated our markets more than we have, or at least have taken more pains to find out what the New England consumer wants. This is all having an invigorating effect upon New England as a whole which is exemplified in many and diverse ways—not the least of which is the New England farm marketing program adopted by the six New England states and supported by industry as well as agriculture. The program, a means to a more fruitful end, is making every effort to have our farmers specialize and concentrate on producing those products that the consumer wants, prepare them for market so that they pass a most rigid quality test and identify them properly so that there can be no possibility of misrepresentation."

TOPORCER APPEAL IS BEFORE ARBITRATION BOARD

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., Dec. 2.—(AP)—Baseball shoved football out of the sports picture today for four days at least, when the hosts of the minor leagues gathered in their annual meeting. The National Asociation of Professional Baseball Leagues holds its first session Wednesday but the ball was started rolling today when the National Board of Arbitration, the supreme court of minor leagues baseball, convened.

The board of arbitration will meet again tomorrow afternoon when the appeal of George Toporcer, of the Rochester club of the International league, will come up, with the appellant appearing in person to ask a review of the action of M. H. Sexton, president of the National association in suspending him from organized baseball for one year. Toporcer was fined $200 and suspended as the result of a disturbance he is alleged to have created during the "Little World Series" at Rochester. Billy Southworth, manager of the Rochester club, was fined $500 and he joins in the appeal to the board. Southworth, too, is in Chattanooga for the hearing tomorrow.

EATING PLACES MUST MEET SANITARY RULES

Revised regulations governing the operation of public eating places, adopted at a meeting of the public health council Nov. 21, have been prepared by Dr. Stanley H. Osborn, state commissioner of health, and will become effective Jan. 1. The regulations cover any eating place where food is served to the public, including roadside stands.

The new regulations follow:

"No person, firm or corporation shall operate or maintain within the state of Connecticut, any eating place where food is served to the public except after compliance with the following regulations:

"Any water supply available for drinking or washing dishes shall be of safe sanitary quality.

"Water-flushed toilets with a system of sewage disposal approved by the local health officer shall be provided for the use of employes and all toilets or privies shall be maintained in clean and sanitary condition. In the case of toilet facilities provided for the public, separate privies or toilets shall be provided for men and women. No toilet shall open directly off the kitchen nor shall be so located that flies would have ready access from toilet to food.

"Garbage shall be stored in fly-tight depositories and premises shall be kept clean of any accumulation of garbage or rubbish.

"Floors, walls, ceilings, windows, counters, tables and chairs shall be kept clean. Windows and doors shall be screened against flies.

"All foodstuffs stored or exposed for sale must be protected from flies and dust by suitable covers. The term foodstuffs includes both raw and cooked foods, candy and any other food not sold in single service fly-tight containers, except food in the process of cooking. All exposed food shall be stored at least 18 inches above the floor.

"Single service cups, dishes, spoons and drinking straws shall be protected from flies and dust. All glasses, knives, forks, spoons, cups or dishes that are subject to repeated use, shall be thoroughly washed or cleansed by some process approved by the local health officer.

"Storage of food directly in contact with ice is prohibited. All ice boxes and refrigerators shall be kept in a clean and sanitary condition.

"All drinking beverages not bottled shall be kept in fly-tight containers from which the liquid may be removed only by faucets.

"No person who has any communicable disease shall be allowed to work in any public eating place."

BROUILLARD-RUSSO GO PROMISES ACTION

Any boxing fan that craves action in their bouts should not pass up the Shyma club show at Taftville next Friday night. Promoter Leo P. Flynn has certainly collected as great a bunch of fighters for his three star bouts as ever stepped into the same ring in the same night. You notice we did not say boxers, we said fighters, and fighters we mean. There isn't one real boxer in the three star bouts, each and every one being a slugger from the first gong.

JOE RUSSO

Topping the card is the Koziol-Leo Ledoux bout, next the Johnny Kop-Alex Tourain bout and last, but far from least, the Joe Russo-Dynamite Lou Brouillard set-to. Ledoux is really the only one who can lay any claim to being a boxer.

Of these three bouts the Brouillard-Russo bout promises the most whirlwind action and hardest punching of the three. Brouillard did not get his nickname of "Dynamite" by boxing his opponent, he got it by putting them on the floor for the count. In the past 40 fights he has won 36 and 25 of the 36 victories have been knockouts, which goes to show that he has a mighty potent kick in each hand. Brouillard will be remembered as a hard hitter when he boxed here in the amateurs a year or two ago and since entering the pro ranks he has developed even greater hitting power.

Joe Russo of Westerly is the welterweight champion of Rhode Island and he gained the title via the knockout route. Russo has won 20 of the last 21 fights and the greater part of them have been only a round or two in duration because of Russo's knockout habit. When two such sluggers as Brouillard and Russo meet in the same ring there's bound to be plenty of action. It is safe to say that whoever emerges from the ring a victor will leave the other prostrate on the floor. There seems little chance that the bout will go to a decision.

Then there are the other two star bouts which should prove as interesting with plenty of punching. Kop and Koziol, the local boys, are also sluggers and both are going in to try for quick knockouts.

An Old Tree Talks

Tonight, in the November dusk I heard
An old tree whisper low;
The street was dark and still, the sky seemed near;
Close by, a lighted window's mellow glow.

Fierceness of summer's heat,
How every fall yellowed his crown of leaves—
Of gaunt arms winter-filled with snow and sleet.

When hot the sun-rays burn;
While nesting birds, whose little homes he hods,
Season by season, joyously return.

Old tree, at moonset, when the stars have gone,
Tell me what do you whisper to the dawn?

—Agnes Choate Wonson in Boston Transcript.

Why I Teach

Because I would be young in soul and mind,
Though years must pass, and age my life constrain,
And I have found no way to lag behind
The fleeting years, save by the magic chain
That binds me, youthful, to the youth I love,
I teach.

Because I would be wise and wisdom find
From millions gone before, whose torch I pass
Still burning bright to light the paths that wind
So steep and rugged, for each lad and lass
Slow-climbing to the unrevealed above,
I teach.

Because in passing on the living flame
That ever brighter burns the ages through,
I have done service that is worth the name,
Can I but say, "The flame of knowledge grew
I teach.

"Really?" asked the druggist, softly. "Well I'm sorry, but I never keep enough rouge in stock to cover a cheek like yours!"—London Answers.

The guards began shooting, and with each shot the bull became wilder and wilder, and died only after the forty-sixth shot had been fired.

Construction of a marriage pavilion in Peiping, where Chinese of all classes may celebrate wedding ceremonies, is suggested by Chen Kuo-chen, a member of the Kuo-mintang as a solution of the high cost of weddings. Chen urges the municipality to build this pavilion, and suggests that prominent people hold their weddings there to make the place popular. Then he believes middle-class and poor people will take up the idea, and thereby save themselves the disproportionate amounts now spent on weddings. Poor people sometimes spend the equivalent of an entire year's cost of living upon a single wedding.

A lake covering 900 acres, situated 3,000 feet above sea level, and capable of developing 45,000 horse power of electric current for pulp and paper mills has been discovered in Alaska by a naval aeronautical survey party. The party, headed by Lieutenant-Commander Arthur W. Radford, U. S. N., was organized by the navy, interior and agriculture departments to make aerial maps of Alaska. The lake, the party reported, is located on the eastern shore of Taku Inlet between Greeley Point and Jaw Point. So abrupt is the lake's descent to sea level, the reports said, that hydroelectric power may be developed within the use of a dam.

The Crusaders Mission band of the Third Baptist church gave a very interesting and instructive playlet entitled "Color Blind" in the chapel on Friday evening before a large and appreciative audience. The leader of the Crusaders band, Mrs. Harry P. Brothwell, was in charge of the affair and was ably assisted by Mrs. Haisch and Mrs. Gallup. Much credit is due the committee for the excellent way in which the children performed in their respective parts. The cast included: Miss Tracy, an artist of rare ability, Miss Marilyn Lund; Mrs. Newton, who has met with a great bereavement in the loss of her little daughter, Miss Elsie Laycock; French maid, who speaks poor English, Miss Lillian Hill; two city Jewish children, recently arrived here, Miss Winifred Hayden and Donald Raven, known as Izzy and Ikey. The rest of the cast, which included Chinese, Indian, Negro and other peoples, were: Phyllis Raven, Louise Haisch, May Brothwell, Mabel Brothwell, Althea Haydon, Helen Savage and three children from the county home. An orchestra composed of Miss Doris Lund, piano; Harold Kinney and Clarence Parkhurst, saxophones, and Chris Wunderlich and Woodrow Sebastian, violins, furnished music throughout the evening. Miss Elinor Howard and Leroy Sebastian sold home-made candy and the treasury of the Crusaders was swelled with over $17, which will be given to the Ladies' Mission circle, to be used for White Cross work.

DITCHING IN OLD LYME TO CHECK MOSQUITOES

Both Old Lyme and Old Saybrook, which together have the largest salt marsh area in Connecticut, are making arrangements with the Connecticut agricultural experiment station to have it ditched as a means of mosquito elimination. This area of more than 2700 acres, located at the mouth of the Connecticut river, affords breeding places for the obnoxious salt marsh mosquitoes.

Old Lyme this fall appropriated $5,000, in addition to $5,000 which was spent last winter for ditches. Old Saybrook spent $1,000 last winter and has appropriated an equal amount for this winter's work. The cost is approximately $14 an acre. Old Lyme has completed 300 acres and Old Saybrook has ditched 186 acres.

CITY HAS NO MONEY TO PROVIDE CHRISTMAS LIGHTS FOR STREETS

Owing to the fact that the city's $1,000 celebration fund is exhausted, the court of common council at its December meeting, Monday evening, was obliged to turn down a request, by petition, from a number of the local merchants for an appropriation of $1,500 to provide for the stringing of colored electric lights through the main streets during the Christmas season. The petitioners, James F. Fleming, and others, were given permission to withdraw. In previous years the merchants have paid for the expense of the erection of the colored lights and the electric power has been donated by the gas and electric department.

The council meeting was called to order at 9 o'clock by His Honor, Mayor Lee Roy Robbins, and, as usual, the minutes of the previous meeting were accepted without reading. Petitions were received and acted upon as follows:

Wants Pole Removed

From H. S. Bailey, by George E. Pitcher, his agent, calling attention to two iron poles which have been erected in front of the Bailey property at Burnham square. One of the poles, the petitioner claims has a legal location and the other has no legal location. He asks the removal of one of the poles. Referred to the corporation counsel.

From Charles Scinkiewics, asking for the installation of two electric lights on Hillcrest street. Referred to the police commissioners with power.

From James F. Fleming, et. al., asking an appropriation of $1,500 to provide for the stringing of colored electric lights on the city's main streets during the Christmas season. Referred to the finance committee and corporation counsel for investigation and report. The committee later in the evening informed the council that the $1,000 celebration fund voted at the annual city meeting has been exhausted and that no funds are available to take care of the expense of stringing the electric lights. They recommended that the petitioners be given leave to withdraw and the recommendation was adopted.

Tax Rebates

To Adelard Morin, $208.26; reason, tax laid on October 1928 list was included by error in the city list.

To Gottfred Zachae, $25; reason, tax was laid on an uncompleted house which burned to the ground before it was ready for occupancy and from which Mr. Zachae derived no use and no income.

To Everett D Morrill, $9.99; reason, soldier exempt.

To Fine Feather, Inc., $27.95; reason, through error the tax list was in excess of the real value of the taxable property.

On recommendation of the finance committee, the council adopted a resolution settling, for $60, the claim of Philip Korr for damage to his premises by the overflowing of a sewer on Spring street, July 10th last.

Supernumerary Appointed

The council, on recommendation of the police commissioners, appointed, by ballot, Charles S. Kotecki of No. 5 Golden street, a member of the supernumerary police force of the city. The clerk was instructed to cast one ballot in favor of Mr. Kotecki's appointment.

Alderman Maurice Looby, reporting for the public works committee, stated that the committee had decided not to accept Page street extension as a city highway. He also reported progress on the petition of Catherine Skindger for a drain in the rear of No. 66 Hamilton avenue.

Department Bills

After accepting the monthly reports of the city treasurer and street commissioner, the council approved the following department bills:

Police department, $6,795.08; park department, $370.27; cemetery department, $871.35; public works department, $14,823.30; water department, $3,429.33; Deep River reservoir, $147.25; gas and electric department, $76,451.48; finance department, $61,634.26; fire department, $7,588.09. The council adjourned about 9:15 o'clock.

FAREWELL GIFTS TO SUPT. ERNEST MOSS

Ernest Moss, superintendent of the Uncasville-Shelton Co. at Uncasville, severed his connections with the plant Saturday and his going has brought many expressions of regret, not only from the workers in the mill, but from many outside of the plant. Mr. Moss came to Uncasville two years ago and at once became popular with all classes, irrespective of race or creed. He was the idol of the younger element. He organized the Uncasville-Shelton team of the Montville Industrial Twilight league last summer and gave freely of his time to make the league a success. He was also instrumental in getting together the basketball team that has been formed recently.

On Friday afternoon, Mr. Moss was summoned from his office to the mill on pretext that his presence was requested there regarding the work. When he reached the mill he found all the operatives congregated in one of the departments ready to greet him. K. Richard Johnson, superintendent of weaving, stepped forward and in a few well-chosen words assured Mr. Moss of the sorrow and regret the operatives felt over his leaving, and of their heartfelt wishes for his future success and happiness, and presented him with a desk set, comprising electric lamp, penpan and pen, also a Masonic emblem watch charm, which in later years would serve as a reminder of the amiable relations that existed between him and the employes of the Uncasville-Shelton mill. Mr. Moss was visibly affected and it was with difficulty that he thanked the donors, assuring them that he would never forget their kindness and would for all time treasure their gifts.

POSTAL FORCE BIG HELP IN CHRISTMAS SEAL SALES

Mrs. Richard B. Snow, chairman of the Christmas seal committee, says: "Too much credit can not be given the letter carriers of Norwich for their part in the great work now going on. If it were not for the letter carriers it would be almost impossible to have a Christmas seal sale. It was a postal clerk who first thought out the idea of the Christmas seal and since that time he has been one of the hardest workers for it. The letter carriers of our city not only delivered to 6,000 homes and offices the letters containing the seals but we hope he will deliver to the Christmas seal headquarters before Christmas day a generous response to those 6,000 letters."

TAFTVILLE MAN WENT TO BED IN NEIGHBOR'S HOUSE

At the city court session Monday morning a Taftville man who got into the wrong house and went to bed Saturday afternoon, was fined $5 and costs for intoxication. His bill was $17.76.

It was late Saturday afternoon that Constable Paquette was called to a South B street house because a stranger had walked into the house and gone to bed. The constable found that the man lived in a house of similar appearance nearby. While in an intoxicated condition he had got into the wrong house for mistake.

POSTMASTER SPEAKS FOR EARLY CHRISTMAS MAILING

With President E. O. Rodier in the chair, the weekly meeting of the Contact club was held at the Waureegan hotel Monday noon. There was the usual large attendance. Alex Pasnik was the song leader and Frederick Geer presided at the piano. Several new members were introduced by the president and Max Hanover spoke briefly of the coming Mitchell memorial concert.

Louis M. Crandall had charge of the entertainment programme. Miss Helena Crandall gave an artistic costume dance, "The Riggley Dance," accompanied by Mrs. William H. Stebbins, and responded to an encore.

Postmaster Casper K. Bailey was the speaker. Mr. Bailey spoke of the need of cooperation by the public in Christmas mailing. He said that ordinarily the post office force have plenty to do and that the Christmas mail will increase their work by more than 200 per cent. Especially so as there will be no mail delivered on Christmas morning, except special delivery. Mr. Bailey pleaded that the citizens pay attention to the proper wrapping of packages and to affixing the proper amount of postage. He also spoke about the strenuous work on the hands of the clerks who receive the parcel post packages for Christmas delivery, and the great amount of time this branch of the post office service takes up of the office force. Mr. Bailey also said that the public can help a lot by properly writing the full address on mail and on packages and also the return address in the left hand corner. The speaker also asked his listeners to be sure to write the address only on one side of the package, because the writing of the address on both sides of a package or letter necessitates twice handling and often causes confusion and unnecessary work and delay. The special delivery was also brought to the attention of the listeners, likewise perishable articles, which Bailey said should be marked "perishable" in plain letters so that it might be given special attention. The postmaster also spoke about fragile articles which should be packed with care so as not to break in transit, and not to lay the responsibility upon the post office help who are not at fault in the matter.

In closing Mr. Bailey made a plea that the citizens ought to do their Christmas mailing not later than Dec. 21, so that not to put too great a burden upon the post office employes who are making a super-human effort to serve the Norwich public in the best way possible.

CONTEST IS BROUGHT OVER LANGENBACH WILL

At the hearing held Saturday in the Norwich probate court on the admission to probate of the will of Mrs. Riksta Langenbach, who died last week at her home, 38 Lafayette street, leaving an estate estimated at $10,000, opposition to admission to probate was raised by Mrs. Langenbach's grandchildren and by Mrs. Appledorn of New London who took care of the aged woman.

The grandchildren are Frederick James, Rexta Jane and Frederick Earl Langenbach, to each of whom is left $500 to be paid at the age of 21 to each. It is the claim of Mrs. Appledorn that Mrs. Langenbach had promised to take care of her in her will, but she is not mentioned in the instrument that was presented for probate. The will leaves $1,000 each to the three children of the testatrix, John, Lottie and Fred, and $1,000 in trust to Charles T. Potter of this city for the benefit of the Holiness mission of this city.

The will in dispute was drawn in Oct about a month before Mrs. Langenbach died. It was witnessed by Attorney Hibberd R. Norman, who drew the will, Frank B. and Julia A. Adams, both of 32 Oneco street, and Ida Williams of 122 Mt. Pleasant street.

It is claimed that there was another will made shortly before this one in which Mrs. Langenbach took care of Mrs. Appledorn and gave more to her grandchildren.

At the request of counsel, Judge Nelson J. Ayling postponed the hearing for a week.

Attorney Max Boyer of New London represents Mrs. Appledorn, while Attorney Harry Back of Danielson is counsel for the grandchildren.

Mrs. Langenbach's estate is said to comprise two tenement houses on Lafayette street and about $2,000 in cash in local banks.

THIEF FOUND MONEY HIDDEN IN STORE

The police were notified Monday morning that over the week end the Atlantic and Pacific store at No. 205 West Main street, was broken into and about $15 in small change stolen. A window in the rear of the store was forced and the money taken from a hiding place where it was left by the store manager when he closed Saturday night. It is believed that the store was broken into Sunday night as the manager was in the store Sunday and found nothing wrong at that time.

This is the fourth time within the past few months that local A. & P. stores have been broken into and small amounts of money taken. The A. & P. store on East Main street was broken into three times.

FATALLY INJURED IN ROAD WORK AT MOOSUP

Crushed by a steam shovel while engaged in construction work at Moosup, about noon Monday, Aldo Giannini, 21, of Torrington, died here an hour and a half later at the W. W. Backus hospital. Death was caused by shock, compound fracture of the thigh and lacerations.

Giannini was employed by the Joseph Mascetti Construction Co., of Torrington. Just how he became caught in the machinery is not definitely known. He was brought to this city in the ambulance and attended at the hospital by Drs. James J. Donohue and George H. Gildersleeve.

OLGA ZUNDEL, VIOLONCELLIST, GAVE CHARMING PROGRAMME

Olga Zundel, violoncellist, who had her New York debut recital last January when she was the winner of the Naumburg Foundation award, gave the programme Monday evening at Slater hall annex for the December meeting of the Norwich Music association. She had a programme well chosen to display her musicianship and her performance made the evening one of the best in the season's series for the association. Her tone was warm and mellow, and her playing was infused with emotional intensity which found a ready medium of expression through her technical proficiency and charm of interpretation, that was delightful.

The programme was given as follows, with two extra numbers added at the close when her audience manifested a compelling desire to hear more of her artistic playing:

PRESIDENT IS EXPLICIT IN HIS MESSAGE TO CONGRESS

Makes Several Recommendations to Obtain a More Effective Enforcement of Prohibition—Asserts That Measures Taken Recently to Benefit the General Economic Situation Must Be Vigorously Pursued Until Normal Conditions Are Assured—Reiterates Opinions on the Tariff Given in Message to Special Session Last April—Calls For Prompt Disposal of Tariff Controversy, and $160,000,000 Income Tax Reduction—Message Deals in Detail With a Wide Range of Domestic and International Issues.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3—(AP)—Prompt disposal of the tariff controversy, a $160,000,000 income tax reduction, more effective prohibition enforcement, and a host of other recommendations, both domestic and international, were submitted to congress by President Hoover today on his first annual message on "the state of the union."

The 12,000 word document, which was read in both branches of congress by clerks, made known that the president would submit adherence to the world court to the senate "at some time when it is convenient to deal with it" and said the administration held "high hopes" for success of the London naval limitations conference beginning in January.

Exceptionally forceful language was employed by Mr. Hoover in dealing with law enforcement, for the study of which he already has appointed a commission. What the government needs to do, he said, is to "reestablish faith that the highest interests of our country are served by insistence upon swift and even-handed justice for all offenders, whether they be rich or poor."

To obtain more effective enforcement of prohibition, the president recommended a concentration of enforcement agencies in the department of justice, relief for congested court calendars by simplifying procedure in petty cases and codification of the prohibition laws to make prosecution more expeditable. He specifically mentioned the District of Columbia which he said "should be the model of city law enforcement in the nation."

The president asserted that measures taken recently to benefit the general economic situation "must be vigorously pursued until normal conditions are restored." He told congress that adjudication of the tariff controversy now "would be most helpful," more especially since "business and agriculture are both cooperating to minimize future uncertainties."

Repeating the four salient paragraphs of his opinions on the tariff from his message to the special session last April, Mr. Hoover said "No condition has arisen in my view to change these principles." He asked for an effective tariff on agricultural products, "limited changes" on industrial schedules where business has been farming, and retention of the flexible provision which enable the executive to raise or lower rates by a maximum of 50 per cent on after recommendations by the tariff commission.

"There is no fundamental conflict between the interests of the farmer and the worker," Mr. Hoover said. "Powerful of the standards of living of either tends to destroy the other. The prosperity of one rests upon the well-being of the other. Nor is there any real conflict between the east and the west or the north and the south in the United States."

As previously had been announced, the president's tax reduction plan called for a decrease of one per cent in corporation and normal personal income taxes to be collected during the calendar year 1930. Such a program, the president said, "will give a measure of tax relief to the maximum number of taxpayers, with relatively large benefits to taxpayers with small or moderate incomes."

Mr. Hoover also recommended a more liberal public buildings program in Washington and throughout the country, requesting that steps be taken to enable early construction. In keeping with his recent Louisville address, he approved increased appropriations for inland waterways and Mississippi flood control work.

Included in the more than a score of recommendations were those proposing the authorization of a federal power commission composed of three full time officials in place of the three cabinet officers who now serve ex-officio; congressional inquiry to determine the possibility "of prudent action" to give relief to mounting military expenditures; ratification of the French war debt settlement; early return of the bulk of alien property still held by the United States; making permanent the present temporary federal radio commission; and a liberal federal highway program. To the latter was added the statement that congress ultimately must give consideration to work intended to stimulate farm-to-market roads.

The president also informed congress that he soon would lay before it recommendations of the post office department with respect to curtailing the $200,000,000 deficit which that branch of the government now incurs annually.

He recommended legislation enabling railroad consolidation; a special commission to negotiate and complete "some sort of contract or contracts" which would permit the early resumption of activities at Muscle Shoals; the necessary funds for beginning work on Boulder Canyon dam as soon as satisfactory contracts for the sale of power have been made by the interior department; immediate construction of additional federal prisons; the establishment of a bureau of prisons in the department of justice and a reorganization of the probation and parole systems; and an inquiry into how an American immigration policy might be based on a method which will more fully secure this country's national necessities.

THREAT OF FILIBUSTER IN SENATE ON VARE CONTROVERSY

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3—(AP)—Given a large order of business today by President Hoover, congress turned to its task with the strife-torn senate clearing up old unsettled disputes as the administration controlled house toiled to prepare for tax reduction.

A silent and listlessly attentive senate received Mr. Hoover's lengthy legislation program involving numerous domestic and international propositions. As soon as reading of the annual message was completed, the senate plunged into disposition of the three year old dispute over the right of Senator-elect Vare, of Pennsylvania, to a seat.

More demonstrative, the house interrupted reading of the Hoover message occasionally with handclapping. The representatives applauded the president's wish to make Washington a model city in law enforcement and his designation of law enforcement as the nation's "most serious issue."

The first division in the senate of this session saw the tariff coalition of democrats and western republican independents of the extra session in sway again to reject an attempt by the republican regulars to defer the Vare case until next Monday. With those lines intact, the senate went doggedly into this controversy and soon heard threat of a filibuster.

Senator Reed, republican, Pennsylvania, warned that he would insist upon the senate receiving a report from the elections committee on the contest brought against Vare by his democratic opponent, William B. Wilson, before it votes upon the resolution to deny Vare a seat on account of his campaign expenditures. The report is not expected before late this week at the earliest.

A recess was taken tonight after Senator Norris concluded his appeal for a vote against Vare on account of his expenditures of more than $785,000 in the 1926 primary race. The senate voted overwhelmingly to meet daily from 10:30 a. m., until 5:30 p. m., during consideration of the case.

QUICK ACTION ON INCOME TAX REDUCTION PROBABLE

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3—(AP)—Congress prepared for rapid action on the $160,000,000 income tax reduction program, after its enactment was formally recommended today in President Hoover's annual message.

Hearings will be held on the Hawley resolution to put it into effect tomorrow before the house ways and means committee, and it will be reported to the house for action Thursday.

Quick action also was forecast in the senate, where Chairman Smoot of the finance committee introduced an identical resolution to provide for a flat one per cent reduction on corporation and normal individual incomes of 1929.

FORD WAGE INCREASE ABOVE $19,500,000 ANNUALLY

DETROIT, Dec. 3 — (AP) — Henry Ford's proposed increase in wages to Ford Motor company employes "as a stimulus to industry and general business," will result in an increased wage distribution of more than $19,500,000 annually in the plants throughout the United States and of $1,000,000 a year in the Canadian plants.

This was made known today in statements by Edsel S. Ford, president of the Ford Motor company here, and by Wallace R. Campbell, president of the Ford Motor company, of Canada, Ltd., telling of new wage scales.

The minimum wage of $6 a day is increased in both United States and Canadian plants and branches to $7 a day; the probationary wage paid to apprentice employes for the first two months of their employment is increased from $5 to $6 a day and an increase averaging five per cent is made in the wages of workers received more than the $7 minimum.

The increased scale in the plants in the United States was made effective yesterday. In the Canadian plants it will become effective December 5.

The October payroll, Mr. Ford said, registered 144,990 employes, and using these figures as a basis, he said the increase would amount to $1,628,451 a month, or slightly in excess of $19,500,000 a year.

Mr. Ford's statement showed that 24,320 men would be affected by the increase from $6 to $7 a day in the minimum rate. Still using the October payroll figures, he said that 113,643 employes receive increases which bring their daily wage to between $7.20 and $10.00 a day.

MALONEY ELECTED MAYOR OF MERIDEN

MERIDEN, Dec. 3—(AP)—Francis T. Maloney, democrat, was elected mayor of Meriden in the biennial city election today, being swept into office by the largest majority ever given a mayoralty candidate in this city. He defeated Horace F. Doolittle, republican. The vote was 7,257 for Maloney and 5,518 for Doolittle. By carrying every ward in the city the democrats gained control of the court of common council as well as the board of education, and won every major office in the city with the exception of that of the city clerk, who was endorsed by both parties.

Mayor-elect Maloney will succeed Mayor Wales Lines DeBusey, republican, who is completing his fourth year in office. Last year he was campaign manager for Prof. Nicholas Moseley, democratic candidate for congress, who was defeated by Congressman John Q. Tilson.

TILT BETWEEN COUNSEL IN M'MANUS MURDER TRIAL

NEW YORK, Dec. 3.—(AP)—A dull court day enlivened only by a verbal tilt between state and defense attorneys today saw George McManus placed by a state witness in room 349 in the Park Central hotel, his face flushed and his hair disheveled, two hours before he is alleged to have lured Arnold Rothstein in there and shot him down a year ago Nov. 4.

A bell boy at the Park Central, William Morrison, the state witness, testified that "about 8 o'clock" on the night of Nov. 4, 1928, he went to room 349 and collected from a man he identified as McManus $12 for the rent of the room.

There were whiskey bottles and glasses on the table he said and McManus' face was flushed and his hair disordered, although he admitted under cross-examination that the defendant's appearance that night was not much different from what it was in the courtroom today.

The clash between Murray and George N. Brothers and James McDonald, assistant district attorneys, came just before the adjournment for the day.

McDonald and Brothers at the state's table facing the jury box were talking in low tones when Murray rose and said he wished to call the court's attention to the fact that the state's attorneys were discussing the case in a tone audible to the jurors, but necessarily not a part of the court record.

Both Mr. McDonald and Mr. Brothers jumped up and told Judge Charles C. Nott, Jr., that they were discussing what witness to call next and the judge said they had a perfect right to do so.

NAMED HEALTH CHAMPIONS OF THE UNITED STATES

CHICAGO, Dec. 3.—(AP)—Seventeen-year-old Florence Smock, tanned by the sun of her native Florida, and Harold Deatline, 18, an Indiana farm boy, were selected today as health champions of the United States at the National 4-H club congress. They were chosen from 28 candidates, each a state champion.

Miss Smock, who hails from Eustis, Fla., is a junior in the high school there. She is a brunette, stands five feet four and one-half inches in her medium high heels, and weighs 129 pounds. Brown eyes, with hair to match; naturally rosy cheeks and a small, delicate nose set off her oval, smiling face. She is the daughter of Charles Smock, of Lake county, Florida, and "swims, dances and has "dates."

The boy champion is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Deatline, of near Martinsville, Indiana. He finished Martinsville high school a year ago and his ruddy cheeks and stalwart shoulders bespeak a life spent in the open, at hard farm work. He is five feet eight and weighs 150; doesn't care much about dancing or "gadding around," as he calls it, and he doesn't smoke. He hunts and fishes a little, and gets eight hours sleep each night. He doesn't know whether he will go to college.

ARREST IN WATERBURY OF ALLEGED COMMUNISTS

WATERBURY, Dec. 3.—(AP)—Police here tonight were holding seven members of a communistic society on charges of violating a city ordinance in connection with passing out circulars without a permit. All were arrested here today while distributing at factory gates circulars advertising a mass meeting to be held tomorrow night under the auspices of the Trade Union Unity league.

Police regard the appearance of the communists as a ballyhoo for tomorrow night's meeting at which Fred Beal, communist organizer, is scheduled to speak. Beal is now at liberty on bail pendiy on appeal from a verdict of guilty of second degree murder of Police Chief Adderholt, of Gastonia, N. C.

Those arrested here were Rose Ross, 19, Waterbury; Diana Burbank, 18, of 162 West street, New Haven; Nathan Richard, 28, of 38 Howe street, New Haven; Harry Hersh, 18, of 38 Howe street, New Haven; Joseph Jackson, 21, of 38 Howe street, New Haven; William Ferber, 19, of Legion avenue, New Haven; Myer Jacobson, 15, of 41 Dixwell avenue, New Haven.

IOWA FARM BOY WINNER AT INT'L. LIVESTOCK SHOW

The boy was Elliott Brown, aged 20, of Rose Hill, and the steer was Lucky Strike, a grade Aberdeen Angus calf. The pair of them nosed out another Iowa youngster and his steer for the premiere honors of the annual exposition. The reserve grand champions were Waldo Mommsen of Miles, Iowa, a 4-H club boy, and Mike, his grade Aberdeen Angus yearling.

Brown said he slept in the barn with his cattle because he "belonged with them." He admitted he had earned some $5,000 in his livestock work in the last few years. His father, John B. Brown, is recognized as one of the leading Aberdeen Angus breeders in the country. They live on a 360-acre farm at Rose Hill.

For Repeal In Mass. "Baby Volstead" Filed

BOSTON, Dec. 3—(AP)—A petition for the repeal of the Massachusetts prohibition enforcement act, known as the "baby Volstead law", was filed with the secretary of state here today by the Constitutional Liberty league. Appended were 32,045 certified signatures, 12,000 more than the required number.

The next step will be the presentation of the petition to the legislature next month. If that body fails to approve the measure, 5,000 additional signatures must be secured to place the question on the ballot next November for referendum action.

Charles S. Rackemann, of Milton, president of the league, said today, "we consider that bringing about this referendum is part of the general educational work that we have been engaged in for nearly ten years and we feel that the people of Massachusetts are glad to receive information as to their rights and privileges under the constitution and the infringements thereon made by the 18th amendment and the national Volstead law and will not fail to use their knowledge in all lawful ways to do away with prohibition as it is and substitute some better system that will insure temperance."

Pointing out that Massachusetts voted for the repeal of the 18th amendment by a majority of 284,000 votes in 1928, Julian Codman, general counsel of the league, said, "the only way to get rid of the 18th amendment is for state after state to show in unmistakeable terms that they will not go further to support so foolish and so iniquitious a law.

NO GREAT CHANGE IN HOLDINGS OF N. H. STOCK

BOSTON, Dec. 3.—(AP) —The New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad tonight denied a change in ownership of a block of its stock and the Boston and Maine railroad authenticate da report of a sale of a large block of its stock but said that they kno wof no attempt at control of the road by new interests.

Both companies issued statements following a report from New York that the Pennsylvania road corporation, a holding company organized by the Pennsylvania railroad interests this year, had purchased large blocks of stock in each of the roads and that further acquisitions by Pennsylvania road interests were understood to be sufficient to give New Haven and Pennsylvania railroad interests actual control.

The statement of the Boston and Maine was: "It has been known for some months that substantial blocks of Boston and Maine stock had changed hands, but we know of no attempt at control by any new interests."

E. G. Buckland, chairman of the board of directors of the New Haven company, said: "The management has no knowledge of any substantial change in ownership of New Haven stock and the records of the company show no such change."

$195,979 SUIT RESULT OF STOCK MARKET DEBACLE

NEW YORK, Dec. 3.—(AP)—Suit for $195,979 with interest from October 2, was filed today in supreme court against George E. Learnard, of Greenwich, Conn., by the stock exchange firm of Hirsch, Lilienthal and company. The firm also asks for a writ of attachment against Mr. Learnard's New York property. Mr. Learnard, it was said, is now ill in his Greenwich home.

According to the complaint Mr. Learnard was indebted to the firm for $1,074,021, on September 30 and was sold out on October 2, his holdings realizing $848,041 This action was taken, it was said, after Mr. Learnard had failed to make good his promise to place $75,000 additional margin to his credit.

On October 1, it is alleged, Mr. Learnard gave the firm a check for $30,000 which was returned with the notation "not sufficient funds" and on October 17, he deposited gold bonds of a face value of $60,000 with the firm, which is still holding both the check and the bonds.

POLICE JUDGE TO LECTURE JUVENILE COMMUNISTS

CLEVELAND, Dec. 3.—(AP)— Freed today on $100 bond each, 11 members of the Young Workers' Communist league, who with 21 children, were somewhat successful in "shouting down" a city council meeting last night, were facing tonight charges of disorderly conduct which will be heard in police court next Tuesday. The 21 children will be summoned into police court Thursday to receive a lecture from one of the police judges.

The council meeting disturbance started when a resolution was introduced by Mayor John D. Marshall to give the Boy Scouts organization a requested use of the council chambers. Lillian Audrews, one of the communists arrested, requested the use of the room be given to the Young Pioneers of America, the children's branch of the Young Communist league, instead of the Boy Scouts, whom she said were "reactionary."

Better facilities for warming up the planes will be available at Cleveland.

SOVIET AND MUKDEN ENVOYS HAVE SIGNED A PROTOCOL

Provides For Reorganization and Administration of the Chinese Railway in Strict Conformity With the Treaties of 1924—Mukden Officials Carried on the Negotiations With the Knowledge and Approval of the Chinese Nationalist Government—Soviet Government Resents Advice From the United States.

LONDON, Dec. 3—(AP)—The Reuters News Agency reported from Moscow tonight that soviet and Mukden representatives had signed a protocol reorganizing the administration of the Chinese Eastern railway in strict conformity with the treaties of 1924.

The 1924 treaties signed by both Peking and Mukden provided for joint operation of the railway which crosses Manchuria and provides a short cut for trans-Siberian service.

Reuters reported that the delegates met at Nikolsk-Ussurifsky, a few miles north of Vladivostok. Tsai Yun-Shen, Harbin diplomatic commissioner, signed for China and M. Simanovsky, an agent of the soviet foreign commissariat at Khabarovsk, signed for the Soviet Union.

Under the provisions of the protocol the Mukden provincial government would dismiss Chairman Liu of the board of the railway. Simanovsky promised that following this dismissal the soviet government would in accordance with its declaration made on August 29 by Maxim Litvinoff, acting commissar of foreign affairs, to the German ambassador be ready to recommend other candidates instead of A. I. Emshanov, the former general manager of the railway and his Russian assistant manager Eismont.

A stumbling block in previous negotiations both between Nanking and Moscow and between Mukden and Moscow had been the Russian insistence that Emshanov and Eismont should be restored to their former positions as a preliminary to negotiations for final settlement of the dispute. This the Chinese firmly declined to do. They had removed the Russian officials and many Russian employes of the railway early last summer after they alleged they had found evidence that the Russians were using their railway positions to further communist propaganda.

Foreign Minister C. T. Wang announced a few days ago that the negotiations being carried on by Mukden officials were with the knowledge and approval of the nationalist government.

While giving way to this extent, the soviet reserved the right to appoint Emishanov and Eismont to other posts on the railway. Tsai Yun-Shen agreed to this and stated that the Mukden government henceforth would strictly conform to the agreements of 1924.

Simanovsky accepted this declaration with satisfaction and said the soviet government had always fulfilled these agreements and would continue to do so in the future.

WARFARE ON SOUTHERN FRONTIER OF CHINA

By the Associated Press

With most of the nations of the world actively working to avert open warfare on the northern frontier, the war pot of China boiled over again sharply yesterday in the south.

The first wounded from a sharp engagement 50 miles away were carried into Canton, the rich commercial center which has been the prize sought by several insurgent armies during the past few years. This time there was a double threat with the renowned "ironsides" division attacking on the Felkiang while troops from Kwangsi province stormed positions along the Sikiang and tied up shipping on that river.

The government was making full use of its superior equipment in airplanes and issued a statement that it was determined to remove permanently these rebel forces.

Nanking was expected to reply shortly probably within 24 hours, to the American note sent also to Moscow emphasizing the duty of both countries to abide by the Kellogg anti-war pact while seeking solution of their disagreement over the Chinese Eastern railway in Manchuria. Nearly every nation except Japan, which considered the move unnecessary, had quickly supported the stand of Washington.

Negotiations between soviet and Mukden authorities were under way but the pact situation remained obscure because of divergent statements.

SOVIET GOVT. RESENTS ADVICE FROM THE U. S.

MOSCOW, Dec. 3—(AP)—The American note to Russia and China reminding them of their obligations under the Kellogg pact for renunciation of war cannot be considered by the soviet government as a friendly act according to a memorandum handed to French ambassador Maurice Herbette tonight by Maxim Litvinoff, acting commissar of foreign affairs.

The memorandum was an answer to notes from both the United States and Great Britain recently delivered to Moscow, the purport of which had found support with most of the nations signatory to the Kellogg pact with the exception of Japan.

M. Litvinoff emphasized that the United States government had appealed to the soviet government at a time when direct Mukden-Soviet negotiations were being carried on. By strength of this circumstance the American note to Russia was termed an unjustified attempt to influence Chinese-Russian negotiations and consequently could not be considered as a friendly act.

The memorandum stated that the Manchurian conflict could be settled by only direct negotiations on the basis of conditions already accepted by the Mukden government and that the soviet government would not tolerate any outside interference.

The memorandum concluded with expressing surprise that the United States, which by its own desire does not have any official relations with the Soviet Union, should find it possible to give the soviet government advice and directions.

WASHINGTON ASTONISHED BY SOVIET RESENTMENT

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3—(AP)—Word that the soviet government took the position that the move of Secretary Stimson toward pacification of the Chinese-Soviet situation in Manchuria could "not be taken as a friendly act" was received by state department officials tonight with astonishment.

The phrase used by the soviet that Secretary Stimson's action in urging that hostilities be averted "cannot be taken as a friendly act" is generally viewed by diplomats as an especially emphatic and significant term when used in diplomatic correspondence.

The surprise of officials when they learned of the soviet attitude was so pronounced that the only comment immediately forthcoming was a question as to how Mr. Stimson's step could be interpreted otherwise than purely one of peace."

SERVICE

In the Ford Motor Company we emphasize service equally with sales ❧ It has always been our belief that a sale does not complete the transaction between us and the buyer, but establishes a new obligation on us to see that his car gives him service ❧ We are as much interested in your economical operation of the car as you are in our economical manufacture of it ❧ This is only good business on our part ❧ If our car gives service, sales will take care of themselves ❧ For that reason we have installed a system of controlled service to take care of all Ford car needs in an economical and improved manner ❧ We wish all users of Ford cars to know what they are entitled to in this respect, so that they may readily avail themselves of this service.

FROM the very beginning, SERVICE has been the corner-stone of the Ford business. Far back in 1908, when the first Model T Fords were made, there were few people who understood the operation of an automobile and fewer places to which the purchaser might turn for help when repairs were needed.

Frequently in those days, Mr. Ford would deliver the car personally to the new owner and see to it that some arrangements were made to keep it in good running order. Usually he would find the best informed mechanic and explain the construction of the car to him. Sometimes, when no such mechanic was available, the town blacksmith would be pressed into service.

Then, as the business grew, capable men were appointed, in a widening circle of towns, to devote their entire time to the care of Ford cars. These men worked under close factory supervision and according to certain set standards.

For just as the Ford Motor Company was the pioneer in the making of "a strong, simple, satisfactory automobile at a low price," so it was also the pioneer in establishing complete and satisfactory service facilities.

For the first time in the automobile business it became possible for the purchaser of a car to buy parts quickly and readily and to have repairs made at a reasonable cost. Where formerly it had been the accepted practice to charge the highest possible prices for these repairs, a new policy was instituted for the protection of the owner. The unusual character of Ford Service was soon recognized as one of the outstanding features of the car.

Today there are more than eight thousand Authorized Ford Dealers in the United States alone, with thousands of others located throughout the world. Their mechanics have been trained in special schools conducted by the Ford Motor Company and they have been equipped with all the latest service machinery.

The well-ordered cleanliness of the shops and salesrooms and the uniform courtesy of all dealer employees are particularly appreciated by the woman motorist.

Wherever you live, or wherever you go, you will find the Ford dealer prompt and business-like in his work, fair in his charges, and sincerely eager to do a good and thorough job at all times.

His constant effort is to relieve you of every detail in the care of your car and to help you get thousands upon thousands of miles of satisfactory, enjoyable motoring at a very low cost per mile.

That is the purpose for which the Ford car was designed and built. That is the true meaning of Ford Service.

PUTNAM MAN SENTENCED TO NINE MONTHS IN JAIL

WILLIMANTIC, Dec. 3.—The December criminal term of the Windham county superior court was opened here at 10 o'clock this morning by Judge Edward M. Yeomans of Andover to hear pleas on the part of accused and make disposition of other cases on the docket.

The first case taken up today was that of Martin Misiaszek of Putnam who pleaded nolo contendre to driving an automobile while under the influence of liquor and gross negligence in the operation of a motor vehicle, causing the death of Thomas Moran, 33, of Dayville. Judge Yeomans, upon hearing the plea, sentenced Misiaszek to nine months in the county jail at Brooklyn. The accused, who was represented in court by Attorney Irving H. Miron of Putnam, was arrested in Putnam by Sergt. George Liard of the police department there on Oct. 20. His car had struck and killed Moran on the Dayville-Attawaugan highway and the allegation was that Misiaszek had sped away immediately after the fatality. His apprehension by Sergeant Liard came as the result of an alarm spread to be on the lookout for the car.

With the opening of the term, Rev. Frederick C. Williams of this city offered invocation. Nolles in the following cases were announced by State's Attorney Howard C. Bradford: Thomas Devoe, violation of the liquor laws; Robert Richmond, Eva Dupont, Delia Ducharme and Leon Bruckner, blackmail; Ernest Schauffler, breach of the peace, and Harvey Stevens, theft.

Rudolph Lepointe of East Killingly was presented on a charge of theft, to which he pleaded guilty. Judge Yeomans ordered the lower court sentence of six months in jail imposed, then placing the accused on probation. Lapointe and Harvey Stevens, whose case was nolled, were arrested by the state police for theft of brass bearings and other equipment from an abandoned sawmill in the town of Killingly. The mill was owned by Jonathan Smith. State's Attorney Bradford stated that the accused had been persuaded to plead guilty in the town court. He explained that the families of the two men were in very needy circumstances and that the theft of the sawmill equipment was made as a means of providing sustenance for Lapointe's family. Stevens participated in the Argonne drive in the World war. He was wounded to the extent that he practically lost the use of his left arm and is now receiving federal compensation. The state's attorney said that he understood that Stevens had tried to dissuade his friend, Lapointe, from taking the equipment.

Oliver Gobin of Thompson, charged with concealing property sold under a conditional bill of sale, pleaded not guilty and elected to be tried by jury. The trial was assigned for Thursday.

Dr. James C. Maslen, a Danielson dentist, was charged with eight counts of abuse of a female child. He pleaded not guilty and selected trial by the court. His selection of trial was followed by a lengthy recess which resulted in an announcement by Judge Yeomans that the case would go over until the February term when final disposition will be made. Attorney Harry E. Back of Danielson is to supervise the conduct of Dr. Maslen in the meantime and make a report on his observations when the case is taken up in February.

The bond of $50 was called in the case of Reginald Van De Vere of Hampton, charged with cruelty to animals. Sheriff Charles A. Gates called the bond upon order of the state's attorney.

Judge Yeomans adjourned court at noon until next Thursday morning at 10 o'clock when a panel jury will be in attendance for the Gobin trial.

This raised the budget total to $247,155. The only other item of business taken up was a question put by A. L. Gelinas regarding the right of city departments to excavate on private land for the laying of drain pipes. He referred to excavation work now underway on Whiting and Hayden streets and Lebanon avenue. It was agreed that the department doing the work should secure a permit for the purpose. THE PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

In his message to the regular session of the 72nd congress, President Hoover has spoken plainly, expressed his hopes, outlined progress made in certain directions, pointed to the need for action in others and set before the country as well as congress the reasons for his views. Throughout it all he speaks with confidence that successful results will follow.

His message is a straightforward statement of facts such as might be made by the head of a corporation to the directors with the expectation of getting the proper degree of cooperation but, as is frequently mentioned, much depends upon congress as to what action is taken. The president has set before congress a programme that is bound to get general approval with the assurance of further recommendations to come.

President Hoover sees that the foundations for future peace are being substantially strengthened, sees the way cleared for our entrance into the world court and has high hopes for the success of the London conference.

There is a reminder of his predecessor when he calls for "prudent action which will give relief from our continually mounting expenditures" in connection with our national defense, which he regards as our first duty, but explains how that expense has advanced and is even now headed skyward, though the prospects of peace were never brighter.

The importance of keeping the burden of taxation in mind and striving for tax reduction is emphasized and he urges action by congress for tax reduction at this time in accord with previously announced plans for the relief of "the maximum number of taxpayers."

He finds the general economic situation good and is convinced that, through measures taken that confidence has been reestablished, that wages should remain stable and that much industrial unemployment and suffering that would otherwise have followed the stock market action sympathetically has been prevented, but there is need of vigorously pursuing these measures. Furthermore, he shows an improvement in the agricultural situation, not because of the coalition but because of general conditions aided by the farm legislation, and looks for still greater improvement.

As to the tariff, President Hoover quotes his previous tariff views in which he asked for an effective tariff upon agricultural products and a readjustment of some of the tariff schedules, and those who have claimed they did not know his views thereon need pause and read. He finds no reason to change his views. He calls for early action and urges taking into account the broad interests of the country as a whole and pointing out that "even a limited revision requires the consideration and readjustment of many items." At the same time he advances again a sound argument for the retention of the flexible provision of the tariff.

He sets forth the need of public buildings and the work on waterways and flood control and he sees reason for changing certain practices in the postoffice department. He again calls for legislation to simplify and expedite consolidation of railroads and points to the improved situation in the merchant marine but tells congress that there is need of clarifying its action relative to mail contracts and purchasers of shipping board vessels.

While he wants the Muscle Shoals situation improved, he does "not favor the operation by the government of either power or manufacturing business."

Departmental reorganization he considers important but experience in trying to get something done for the past 20 years convinces him that reorganization is about hopeless unless congress is willing to delegate its authority over the problem to the executive acting under approval of a joint committee of congress subject to revision by congress.

In regard to enforcement of prohibition he is frank to declare that it is "far from satisfactory," partly due to the inadequate organization of the administrative agencies, and he sets forth certain steps which should be taken at once and he sees the need of more legislation to clear up conditions in the District of Columbia. It is a significant paragraph where he declares "Law cannot rise above its source in good citizenship—in what right-minded men most earnestly believe and derire. If the law is upheld only by government officials, then all law is at an end. Our laws are made by the people themselves; theirs is the right to work for their repeal; but until repeal it is an equal duty to observe them and demand their enforcement."

The message may seem a bit long but it is worth the necessary time required to read it

THE MONOXIDE GAS PERIL

Cold weather is with us and will remain for the next few months. This means that it is more comfortable to do any work in your garage with the doors closed than with them open. It is a time when many are inclined to start and warm up their engines, and in doing so to allow the doors to remain closed, because it is more comfortable.

Bear in mind, however, the positive danger that exists in any such performance. Warning in regard to the peril involved has been given many times. It has been repeated this week by an East Providence man, who went into his garage, started the engine of his car to warm it up and while it was warming up he decided to do some cleaning about the machine. The result was that he suddenly became ill from the deadly fumes from the exhaust, felt dizzy, managed to shut off his motor and with difficulty made his way into the house, where he collapsed. He was later revived.

Good fortune certainly favored him if it ever did anyone, for the effects of monoxide poisoning more often creep upon a person so stealthily that he neither has an opportunity to realize what is happening, nor shut off his motor, to say nothing about getting out of the garage alive.

So many persons have lost their lives in such a manner that there should be no automobile owner who does not take adequate precautions to prevent any such fatality. It simply means getting the car out into the air when warming it up or else opening the door and letting plenty of fresh air come in. The exhaust quickly fills the garage with a deadly gas, the oxygen is depleted and death is a matter of only a short time.

In view of the experience in other winters there will be too many instances this winter where auto owners fail to protect themselves. They will needlessly sacrifice their lives because of the failure to properly recognize and observe the simple precautions. It is another one of these cases where safety first should be applied much more liberally than it is, where the experiences of others should be sufficient to prevent untimely deaths.

FIGHTING ILLITERACY

Secretary Wilbur of the department of the interior is a busy man. He is giving attention to many problems that exist in his department and gives promise of effecting important reforms. He was chosen for that place in the cabinet because of his fitness for such work and the belief that he would accomplish what is so much needed.

Among the things which he has recently urged is the waging of a determined fight against illiteracy. He is of the opinion that the facts regarding illiteracy are not generally understood and certainly there is nothing to indicate that such efforts as have been made to combat it have resulted in any great inroads being made.

According to the last census, there were 5,000,000 illiterates in the United States. That means that number of adults who cannot read or write, and speculation is rife as to whether there will be any marked improvement shown as the result of the census which will be taken next year.

It is true that there is much illiteracy in the southern states but that is by no means the only section of the country where it prevails. It is found in too large numbers in other states and threatens to remain there unless there are well-organized campaigns to wipe it out. Likewise, such campaigns must be conducted for more than a week or a season. They should go on persistently until the goal is reached.

Through the schools it is to be expected that illiteracy will be prevented among the children. Compulsory school attendance should take care of that, but it is among the adults where the chief difficulty will be encountered. There are various reasons for it and plenty of difficulty faced in trying to end it, but the idea of terminating one of the worst forms of intellectual isolation is good enough to awaken the necessary support to wage a successful fight. It is through the night schools which are maintained in most communities that much valuable work is done and the schools would be willing to do far more if the persons who need their help would present themselves.

It is not what can be called a gratifying showing when the number of illiterates in this country is mentioned.

CHANGES AT THE TIMES

The change in the editorial head of the Hartford Times, made necessary by the resignation of C. L. Sherman, has brought to the editorship of that paper Charles C. Hemenway, for many years associated with Hartford newspapers in an editorial capacity. Having been associate editor of the Times, it was to be expected that his elevation to the higher post would follow in recognition of service and ability.

Certain of his years were passed in New London and those who knew him as an energetic, alert and courteous news gatherer will expect that those qualities which advanced him in the newspaper field will continue to be displayed in his enlarged activities. There are reasons in the appointment for congratulating both the Times and Mr. Hemenway.

Unquestionably the same may be said concerning the advancement of John F. Rolfe from general manager to publisher.

A BAD DAY FOR ART.

Elizabeth dropped a lump of sugar into her tea and a tear into her salad. Then she took out her compact to repair the damage of the trickling tear.

"Why the briny tears, Elizabeth?" inquired Katherine. "Couldn't you match the silk?"

"I think the waiter brought her Ceylon when she wanted Oolong," guessed Louise. Elizabeth turned beautiful, reproachful eyes to her companions and said tragically, "I have said goodby forever to Walter."

"Don't worry. He will be around as usual at 8 sharp," comforted Katherine.

"You don't understand, dear," Elizabeth tried to look properly dejected, but her palate's approval of a perfect mayonnaise resulted in a rather mixed expression of gloomy greed, or greedy gloom. "I have had my 'October Day' hunk. That means I must be wedded to my art. You see that, don't you?"

"Pooh! Wed 'em both. Walter won't mind."

"Art is a monogamist," declared Elizabeth. "Besides, it is not as if dear old Walter understood art. He could not give me intelligent encouragement much less appreciation, so I could do not worth-while work as his wife."

"Well, cheer up," sighed Katherine, elongating her own face to match bad news. "I, too, am in the depths. After begging father to let me go abroad to study music, because mother thinks I am a second Poderewski and should l... e all sorts of advantages, he has consented."

"Why aren't you delighted, you crazy girl?"

"Since then I have met Frank and my whole world is changed. It will be tearing out my heart to leave him."

"I would let the music go to Jericho in a case like that," advised Elizabeth.

"Mother says I have no right to bury a talent which is probably genius." Katherine was too intent on her delicious frozen fruit to observe the glance exchanged between the other two girls, a glance which said, "Hates herself, doesn't she?"

"Oh, food!" sighed Louise, contemptuously, although she had disposed of her portion very neatly. "How can one enjoy food when one's heart is breaking?"

"Don't tell us something ails you, too, Louise Disston."

"I came shopping with you two today hoping to forget for a few hours the sorrow which haunts me, but you have brought it all back to me in full force, for your problems and mine are alike. I must choose between Charlie and the stage, and my expression teacher says I am a second Bernhardt and have no right to deprive the world of my wonderful abilities. Charlie says he will not marry an actress."

"But we are doing the same thing, Katherine," said Elizabeth. "I wonder if all the girls are not afflicted with some talent which sets them apart from matrimony? You knew Martha Dowling got that way just from having a wishy-washy little story published. She imagines herself literary and refused that splendid Mr. Everett because he is more interested in engineering than in letters. Candidly, Kitty, and for your own good, we all think your mother overestimates your musical ability. Thousands of girls play as well as you do.

"Same way about your histrionic talent, Louise. Forgive me for speaking plainly, but I can't bear to see you two girls making shipwreck of your lives just for want of an honest word from some one and it is for me to tell you that your readings are more amusing than you guess and your acting is a scream.

"Thank you," replied Louise in cold rage. "And while we are being so helpfully frank with each other I should tell you what I hear some real artists say about your 'October Day.' One said that an absent-minded hanging committee made the mistake of hanging the picture instead of its perpetrator and the other said the truth about how that picture came to be hung was that the girl who painted it had an influential sweetheart who used pull with the hanging committee."

Hostilities were interrupted by the arrival of the waiter with the check and the girls departed in three different directions.

That night three devoted lovers found themselves in high favor and soon thereafter three candles of genius were hidden forever under as many bushels of matrimony. The world, ignorant of the loss to art, continued to revolve serenely.—Chicago News.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

General Aiken's S. A. R. Application

Mr. Editor: Apropos of the many items concerning the late Gen. Aiken. I thought it might be of interest to The Bulletin readers to see his connection with the Sons of the American Revolution, of which he was a member, joining May 28, 1891, being nominated and recommended by the late Jonathan Trumbull a long time president of the Connecticut society. The record of his ancestors' service as given upon his application is as follows:

"Phineas Aiken was born Dec. 16, 1761, and was therefore only in his 14th year when the Revolutionary war broke out. His older brother, John, was with Gen. Stark at Bennington. He himself served later in the war. My uncle, Judge David Aiken, son of Phineas writes me as follows, under date May 11, 1891:

'I have heard my father say he had seen Gen. Wasnington in the time of the war. When, I don't know, but probably at Cambridge as Gen. W. was there and the Bedford boys were on hand at the battle of Bunker Hill. I think my father was at the battle of Bennington also. His uncle, John Orr, was wounded at Bennington and I think he had my father with him.'

"John Aiken, the father of Phineas, was one of the committee of safety, appointed in Bedford, N. H., March 26, 1777. Capt. James Aiken, a remote kinsman, was an officer in the Army of the Revolution, serving from Bedford. Capt. James Aiken of Londonderry, N. H., an uncle of Phineas, was an officer in the army, and others of the Londonderry branches of the family rendered services in various ways. Londonderry, N. H., was the original home of the family of Aikens in this country. They came from Ulster in 1718-19. Deacon James Aiken of Antrim, N. H., a descendant of the first Edward by a younger brother of Nathaniel, served in the French and Indian war and was at Bunker Hill and Bennington."

The foregoing is in the beautifully plain handwriting of Gen. Aiken, upon his application to the S. A. R., and to this is added: "Phineas Aiken was in Capt. Jonas Kidder's company in Col. Moses Nichols' regiment of militia, in service July 5 to Oct. 23, 1780."

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3—Soon, now, they will be opening with appropriate ceremonies the new home of the agriculture department.

What a pity it is that "Tama Jim" Wilson of Iowa could not have lived to see that day. For the building is a monument to him and to dreams that filled his mind; to vision he strove valiantly to realize far back in the "gay nineties," when he first became secretary of agriculture under McKinley.

It is a monument, too, to the fighting Scotch heart of "Tama Jim" and to his posthumous victory in a battle with congress that lasted more than a quarter century.

James Wilson was a great secretary of agriculture. You need go no farther than to note his 16 years in that office, 1897 to 1913, serving under three presidents of widely differing temperament — McKinley, Roosevelt and Taft—to satisfy yourself.

When he died in 1920 another Iowan, a democrat and secretary of agriculture under President Wilson, Meredith, was to say of his predecessor.

From a Humble Start.

And among the things "Tama Jim" did for agriculture was his plan for extending and building up the agriculture department. When he took office, it was housed in the dingy little red brick structure that still stands, set amid the vast landscape effects of the Mall.

It is the most lovely setting of any of the government buildings except for the capitol itself, with its stately terrace and fine gardens, and "Tama Jim" not only visioned a vast and beautiful home for his department rising there, but set to work to realize that dream.

His plans were elaborate, far too elaborate for congress in that day. His estimates were sliced so that, no more than the cost of a small two-thirds of his dearest project was provided.

Undaunted and backed by successive white house support, "Tama Jim" calmly disregarded the congressional mandate and scaled down and used his funds to erect two separated wings of the original departmental building he had projected.

Congress Roars.

There were roars of indignation "on the hill." It was all on government ground, however, and congress could control only via the purse strings. The wings went up, fine in architecture and material; but between them for more than a score of years gaped the space for the center and dominating structure.

It loomed like the place of a missing tooth, and for all those years succeeding congresses withheld needed funds for completion, and succeeding secretaries of agriculture maintained their offices in the dingy old red brick original.

Then, at last, long after "Tama Jim's" death, came the great building project for Washington on which tens of millions are now being poured out.

And first among the structures to be completed was the agriculture department as "Tama Jim" had dreamed of it.

It is nearing completion now, and somewhere within its stately magnificence should be a special tablet to that fine old fighting man and dean of all cabinet portfolio holders for duration of service. "Tama Jim" Wilson of Iowa.

Little Talks on Thrift

We have reached the season of the year when much attention is being given to philanthropical activities. Soon the holiday season with its wealth of sentiment will be upon us.

It is a good time to give thought to the value of thrift in the elimination of human woe. A great amount of the poverty and distress of the world is due to sheer lack of thrift. An old philosopher once wrote that "the highest step and the summit of charity's golden ladder is to so aid a man that he may earn an honest livelihood and not be forced to the dreadful alternative of holding out his hands for charity."

Truly it may be said that we help others most when we help them to help themselves. In the earlier developments of thrift education there grew up, particularly in England, vast numbers of charity associations. Persons who were in need were given alms to alleviate their temporary condition.

The knowledge developed out of these early activities that charity of this description often encourages idleness. As time advanced, society learned that the best way to combat poverty was to encourage individual industry. Due to the popular development of thrift habits, poverty is gradually being eliminated, although there always will be those who, temporarily at least, will need charity.

But we should remember that when we encourage thrift upon the part of any individual we are most likely removing him forever from the possibility of ever becoming a charitable object.

We shall probably never reach the place where charity is no longer needed, but as thrift becomes more and more popular the number of individuals dependent on public or private charity will become continually fewer. By S. W. Straus, President of American Society of Thrift.

YOUR HEALTH

For Men of Fifty.

By W. Calhoun Stirling, M. D., Washington, D. C.
(From Gorgas Memorial Institute)

The general practitioner comes in contact with all types of disease and finds one of the commonest to be prostatic disorders in men past fifty years of age. This disease occurs in half of the men reaching this age and comes on so insidiously that it has often caused serious damage to the heart and kidneys before its presence is detected. Doctors are all familiar in a general way with the symptoms of this condition, as we are coming in daily contact with these unfortunate individuals seeking medical relief. There is not a village or city in the state that does not furnish its quota of these cases.

Enlargement of the prostate gland is one of the senile changes incident to old age in the male and malignant growths of the prostate make up no small number of approximately one hundred thousand people who die in this country each year from cancer. The only hope of a cure in this group is early recognition and treatment. Often benign enlargement and cancer coexist so that a careful examination is necessary to recognize both lesions. Once the cancerous lesion has spread to other structures, the likelihood of a cure is greatly lessened and often hopeless. Various writers on this subject have shown that degenerative changes in the heart and kidneys have been found present in half of the cases coming to operation.

If cancer can be excluded, one can promise the patient who is suffering from prostatic enlargement a complete cure in a large majority of cases. Complete restoration of the normal power is usually effected with a marked general improvement of health. This is brought about by eliminating the toxic products which are formed as a result of the diseased kidneys and heart. (This low grade uremia undermines the health and brings about a lowered resistance to other diseases so that one not infrequently falls victim to other infections). The sense of well being experienced is very striking and frequently causes the patients to say they feel better than they have in many years. One sees a gradual recession of certain physiological processes. This is an important cycle in the life of a male as well as the female so that one should consult with his family physician and undergo a thorough and complete physical examination at least semi-annually. In this way, an early or incipient disease of the prostate may be detected.

If a man has failed to have adequate examinations and finds that he has symptoms of this sort of trouble, early surgery may still be of great benefit in prostatic cancer if the condition is recognized before the malignancy has spread to adjacent tissues. In the early days of prostatic surgery the mortality was high, but at the present time the death rate is comparable to any other major surgical procedure, so that one need not fear this operation on account of advanced age. But do not wait for an operation to be necessary. Have the regular health adults that make most operations unnecessary.

Japan Celebrates 20 Years in Chosen.

Japan celebrates 20 years of her administration in Chosen (Korea) with an exposition which opens this month in Keijo (Seoul), the capital.

Japan takes pride in the results of her efforts to transform the Hermit Kingdom into a modern province; a land streaked with railroad lines, green with new forests, and fat with heavy harvests.

The program Japan has carried out in Chosen, and future plans, are described in a bulletin based in part on special exposition editions of Seoul newspapers recently received by the National Geographic society.

"Chosen is that fat thumb of a peninsula which Asia pokes at Japan. It is an old, worn and wrinkled 'thumb,' a jumble of hills and mountains like the Balkans, spreading over 84,000 square miles, an area about equal to that of the State of Minnesota.

"One of Japan's chief activities in the last 20 years in Chosen has been to renew the youth of the old, tired hills, bald before their time, because the Koreans did not believe in forest conservation. The administration has planted, it is said, 36,000,000 seedlings. The hills are once more crowned with a youthful stubble of trees that begin to sponge up the floods that have more and more frequently destroyed Korean crops and further discouraged the Korean farmer.

"Slap-dash railroads which Japan threw across Chosen to carry men and supplies against Russia during the Russo-Japanese war, have been replaced with new heavy-duty rail lines, new bridges, American locomotives, and de luxe coaches. Chosen's best highway, the 'grand highway' to China, was a bullock wagon track, bottomless in wet weather, dusty in dry weather. Japan busily pushes a modern road system of which one 7-year program of 1,700 miles has been completed, while a second is scheduled to be finished by 1935. Already automobiles speed along 7,000 miles of passable roads.

"The Korean up-country farm who has sold his rice in the local market suddenly finds that he can get three times as much for his product by carrying it to the capital over the new highways.

"Japan went into Chosen shortly after the United States went into the Philippines. Similarly, the first administration was entirely in the hands of the military. As in the Philippines, government in Chosen is now largely in the hands of civilians. Brick and stone schools that would not look out of place in American towns, rise in the largest cities of the province. The value of foreign trade is ten times as great as it was in 1911.

"Japan looks on Chosen as her private rice bowl. Rice makes up 53 per cent. of Chosen's exports and practically all of it goes to Japan. One-third of Chosen's crop, amounting to 25,000,000 bushels, already passes across Chosen Strait and Japanese experts concentrate on the problem of doubling this supply. The demand has started a three-cornered trade, with the poorer Chinese farmers of Manchuria sending millions of bushels of millet to the poor Korean farmers, who, in turn, send millions of bushels of rice to Japanese workers.

"To travelers the Koreans still look much like a nation of 'White Wings'. Both sexes wear white at all seasons. Coat, vest and trousers serve as garments for both sexes with skirts added for the women. The cloth used is a loose cotton weave almost as thin as cheese cloth, and heavily starched. Men wear a skull cap surmounted by a hat four or five sizes too small. Bonnet strings tied under the manly Korean china keep the 'pill boxes' in place.

"Funeral services have contributed to the impoverishment of the Korean people. Custom dictates an elaborate ceremony upon the death of any member of a household; the more important the household the more elaborate the ceremonies. Among the lower classes the mourning period is three days with the middle class it lasts from five to nine days and with nobility 100 days, while an imperial personage is not laid to rest for nine months.

"Both the Japanese, and missionaries from occidental countries, have found that one of their first tasks is to teach the Koreans to play.

"Partly because Chosen hasn't been strong enough to have a national religion Christianity has made greater progress within its boundaries than within almost any other district inhabited chiefly by the yellow race. Christianity is the dominant religion although its 400,000 adherents are a small factor in a population of 19,000,000."

A YANKEE ABROAD

By DEWITT MacKENZIE

Br-r-r! It's Cold in London.

LONDON—This is the time of year which tries the soul of the American in England. It is the period in which a glorious fall has surrended to fog and rain and clammy cold—a cold that soaks through the bone and pickles the inner man.

One hastens to add that England is not unique in having visitations of cold and even clammy cold. Our own United States—which we admit to be perfect in every other respect—is not free from this affliction.

The difficulty here in Britain is that the country is inhabited by a Spartan race which abjures fires, except for ornamental purposes. The Englishman, broadly speaking, sticks to the arrangements of his ancestor, Cedric the Saxon, who heated his baronial hall 1,000 years ago with a smudge in an open fireplace.

American visitors, who are new to England, have been racing about lately, trying to find the steam heat to which they are accustomed. In order to turn a smart phrase, I was about to remark that steam heat here is as rare as the dodo bird.

But this would be an exaggeration. The dodo is extinct, whereas steam heat can be found in England. I know several buildings which have it, including the big London hotels.

For the most part, however, the so-called heat is provided by fireplaces, mostly those in which soft coal is burned. Getting warm is a question of will power—a problem of mind over matter. You see the little flame battling with the dense, white smoke and say:

"What ho, a fire! Where there is flame, there is heat. I am warm. How perfectly jolly!"

Having failed to find steam heat, or its equivalent, the disconsolate Yankee girls are trying to get rid of goose flesh by the use of Victorian red flannels and hot water-bottles; the Yankee men have immersed themselves in gloom and heavy wools, and have taken themselves to the bars in the hope that it may be possible to absorb enough Scotch whiskey to create warmth.

I shall not soon forget my introduction to the heating scheme of an English provincial hotel. On a bleak March day I registered in the best hotel of one of the biggest cities. I was ushered into a Noah's Ark of a room which had a ceiling so lofty that I thought at first I was looking into a starless sky.

There was a tiny fireplace, but this hadn't been lighted since the days of the skipper of the animal ferry heretofore mentioned. One's breath floated through the dampness in a white cloud.

I surveyed this Chilkoot Pass with dismay, but finally I pulled some woolen pajamas on over my woolen underwear and woolen socks, donned a heavy woolen dressing gown, and crawled in between the icy sheets of the biggest bed I had ever seen.

Being, to my intense amagement, still able to move in the morning, I rang a bell and in a small, weak voice begged for a fire and a hot bath.

The maid, having decided that I was harmless though crazy, threw a smoke bomb into the fireplace. All the fumes poured out into the room, because the flue didn't work, and through the murk I discerned the lady bringing in a tin tub ("He won't be happy till he gets it.") Over the inside of this she spread another cold sheet, and then added water to taste.

Today I discovered a little blond Yankee gal friend of mine shivering over an electric fire, with her heavy coat on.

"Why don't they have steam heat, or heat of some sort, in this darned country," she demanded through chattering teeth.

"My dear Martha," I replied, "you really should control your language. This is not a 'darned' country, but a perfectly good one, though admittedly somewhat cool at times.

"But to answer your query, they don't have steam heat because they don't like it. Even some of the London hotels don't dare put steam heat in all their bedrooms because they would lose their British visitors. The thing the Englishman dislikes most of all in America is the steam heat he has to endure."

TRAFFIC SIGN TRIED BY LONDON IN 1868

LONDON —(AP)— This big town's lack of automatic traffic signals gets many a laugh from visiting motorists, especially Americans accustomed to the traffic control towers of New York.

Few of them know that London tried automatic traffic signals 61 years ago, when New York was just getting back to normalcy after the civil war and hadn't even begun to think of automobiles.

London had no automobiles either at that time, but she had plenty of traffic, and millions of pedestrians always getting in the way of the horses and buggies.

So on December 10, 1868, the commissioner of police posted a notice announcing the installation of automatic traffic control.

Gas was the motive power of the control apparatus, which looked something like the traffic semaphores of today. But just as the system was getting under way one of the gas driven signals blew up frightening horses and pestrians most shamefully.

That experience cured London of its enthusiasm for automatic traffic control, but only for a while. Sixty-one years have gone by and the old town is willing to try again.

The traffic control to be installed in Oxford street soon, however, are said to be absolutely nonexplosive.

HOLIDAY GREETINGS TO BE BORNE ALOFT

SAN FRANCISCO—(AP)— Christmas greetings to pilots on the San Francisco-Chicago air mail route will be borne aloft through the longest installation of radiophone in the world.

Ground equipment in 14 cities and seven states and radiophones on mail and tri-motored transport planes are being completed by the Boeing system for holiday service.

Wherever pilots may be on the 2,000 mile air span between Lake Michigan and the Golden Gate—and the higher altitude the better—they may talk to ground stations as distant as 200 miles.

Old doctor's idea still helping Elderly People conquer constipation

DR. CALDWELL made a startling discovery shortly after he graduated from medical school back in 1875. He found great numbers—especially older men and women—suffering from constipation, who were taking harsh laxatives and purgatives. So he concluded that many things people take for constipation do more harm than good, and physicians of today are of the same opinion.

This thought made Dr. Caldwell conduct a search, and out of it came the prescription which made him famous. Over and over he wrote it, when he found people bilious, headachy, out-of-sorts, weak or feverish; with coated tongue, bad breath, no appetite or energy. Its action was so thorough even in the most obstinate cases, and yet so gentle with women and children.

The product you get from your drug store, today, when you ask for Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is put up exactly in accordance with this prescription. It has become the world's most popular laxative. It is a pleasant tasting mixture of fresh herbs and other pure ingredients; it is a real corrective for constipation for men, women and children.

CLERGYMEN ARE SPEAKERS BEFORE Y. M. C. A. AUXILIARY

The board meeting and luncheon of the auxiliary to the Y. M. C. A. was held Tuesday at 12:30 at the Y building. The reports were read and various matters talked over.

At 3 in the afternoon, the first open meeting of the auxiliary was held at the home of Miss Alif Stephens, 151 Washington street. The meeting was well attended. The business meeting was opened by the president, Mrs. W. H. Dawley. The devotional part of the meeting was led by General Secretary Edwin Hill. The reports of the secretary and treasurer were read and approved. The two outstanding events in the future that the auxiliary has in mind are the supper next month and later in the year a food sale.

After the business meeting Rev. Thomas Richey, rector of Christ church, told of some of his work among the boys in New York. He was followed by Rev. T. M. Shipherd, pastor of Park Congregational church, who gave a very interesting talk. The meeting was followed by a tea and social time.

It is revealed in the annual report of the chief of the engineers of the war department that a total of $179,000 not already appropriated, can be profitably expended on navigation development projects in Connecticut waters during the coming fiscal year of 1931. The appropriation recommended by the chief engineer for the Thames river project amounts to $38,000.

In his annual report he has the following to say in regard to the Thames river: Improvement dredging was under contract on June 30 to cost $99,504. Expenditures during the fiscal year totaled $64,739. Project 61 per cent complete and can be completed for $28,000. Unexpended balance available June 30 amounted to $223,120 and this will be expended on dredging and administration. Congress is requested to appropriate an additional $38,000 this year to be spent in the fiscal year of 1931 in deepening channel below Allyn's Point. Total cost of project to June 30 was $730,093.

His report on New London harbor says: Expenditures last fiscal year, $20,55 for maintenance. Existing project 86 per cent complete and can be completed for $75,000. Unexpended funds June 30, totaled $19,979. This balance will be expended on the dredging and maintenance of Winthrop Cove channel. No additional appropriations are needed for the coming fiscal year. The project to June 30 cost $517,220.

Considerable money, on the last day of the fiscal year ended June 30, remained unexpended, and available to the Connecticut projects, but the chief engineer feels that additional funds to the extent of $179,000 should be authorized by congress to be expended on the Connecticut, Thames and Housatonic rivers and Duck Island and Norwalk harbors.

The appropriations recommended by the chief of engineers comprise: $38,000 for the Thames river; $20,000 for the Connecticut river below Hartford; $85,000 for Duck Island harbor; $19,000 for the Housatonic river and $16,000 for Norwalk harbor.

DRINKING FOUNTAIN ADVICE BY STATE HEALTH BOARD

Many communicable diseases are transmitted directly from mouth discharges. This fact has caused the common drinking cup to be regarded as a dangerous source of infection, says the state board of health in giving advice as to the proper form of drinking fountain.

The attention of the public and particularly of school officials and those charged with the operation of other public buildings is called to the recommendations of a special committee on drinking fountains which reported to the fall meeting of the American Public Health association.

1. The fountain should be constructed of impervious material, such as vitreous china, porcelain, enameled cast iron, other metals, or toneware.

2. The jet of the fountains should issue from a nozzle of non-oxidizing, impervious material set at an agle from the vertical, and at an elevation above the edge of the bowl, so that the end of the nozzle will not be flooded in case a drain from the bowl of the fountain becomes clogged.

3. The end of the nozzle should be protected by non-oxiding guards to prevent the mouth or nose of persons using the fountain from coming into contact with the nozzle.

4. The inclined jet of water issuing from the nozzle should not touch the guard, thereby causing splattering.

5. The bowl of the fountain should be so designed and proportioned as to be free from corners which would be difficult to clean or which would collect dirt.

6. The bowl should be so proportioned as to prevent unnecessary splashing at a point where the jet falls into the bowl. Self-cleansing anti-splash rims are recommended.

7. The drain from the fountain should be connected to a separate waste pipe.

8. The water supply pipe should be provided with an adjustable valve fitted with a loose key or an automatic valve permitting the regulation of the rate of flow of water to the fountain so that the valve manipulated by the users of the fountain will merely turn the water on or off.

9. The control valve should be operated preferably by knee or foot action to avoid possible hand contamination.

10. The height of the fountain at the drinking level should be such as to be most convenient to persons utilizing the fountain. The provision of several step-like elevations to the floor at fountains will permit children of various ages utilizing the fountain. Elevations may be difficult to provide, however, at fountains recessed in walls.

11. The rate of flow and the pressure should be such that the water will not splash over the bowl. It should be at a rate not less than 1-2 gallon per minute and at nozzle pressure not exceeding 5 pounds per square inch.

12. The waste opening and pipe should be of sufficient size to carry off the water promptly. The opening should be provided with a strainer.

SETTLEMENT IN SUIT OVER RIGHT OF WAY

A suit arising out of a dispute over the right of way on Chestnut street, which was brought by Charles B. Flint of this city, against Arthur J. and W Russell Wirth, also of this city, has been settled out of court, and according to the settlement, it is understood that the Wirths will have to remove the fence they erected across the right of way by Dec. 9; also pay the costs of its removal. The suit was scheduled to be tried here in common pleas court before Judge Charles B. Waller, wherein Flint was seeking an injunction against the Wirths; also $200 damages.

The plaintiff makes the complaint, according to the suit, that the defendants put up the fence across the right of way, 20 feet wide, and blocked his passage. He asked that the fence be taken down and that the right of way remain open. The Wirths claimed title to the right of way by adverse possession.

INSURANCE COMPANY TO APPEAL BESSETTE CASE

The case of Mrs. Agnes Bessette of Taftville, and the Casualty Insurance company of Hartford will probably go to the supreme court of errors, according to a notice of appeal which has been filed by the insurance company with Clerk John H. Walker in the superior court. The intentions of the Insurance company to carry the case to that court is noted in the appeal. A judgment of $8,000 was recently received by Mrs. Bessette against the insurance company, as were five other judgments, totalling an estimated amount of $4,000.

SPENT $166,548,901 IN YEAR IN TRANSPORTATION

Total operating revenue from all transportation companies doing business in Connecticut, including railroads, street railways and jitneys or buses, amounted to $166,548,901 for the calendar year ended Dec. 31, 1928, according to the 18th annual report of the public utilities commission.

Railroads accounted for $146,378,249 of this sum, a decrease of $2,542,794 from the gross of the previous year. Street railways had a gross operating income of $14,267,780, showing a decrease of $651,130 from the figures of 1927, and buses reported a total gross of $6,902,594, but comparative figures are not available.

Of the total operating income for the railroads, New Haven road took in $137,633,052, representing a decrease of $2,191,261. Connecticut Co. accounted for $13,734,222 of the income of street railways. Of the gross income of the Connecticut Co., $12,380,370 was from trolley car operations, representing a decrease of $599,421 from the previous year's figures. Motor bus revenue was $1,353,851, or $148,609 more than the bus income for 1927.

While the operating income of the railroads and trolleys was decreasing, however, operating expenses were being cut at an even greater rate. While all railroads running through the state showed a decrease in revenue for 1928 of $2,842,794, expenses for the same lines had been cut $7,687,504. In the case of the New Haven road, its revenue decrease of $2,191,261 was more than balanced by a reduction of $6,129,610 in operating expenses.

The same condition existed in the business of the street railways which lowered their operating expenses by $1,030,620 between Dec. 31, 1927, and the same date a year later, while their revenues were cut by only $651,130. Connecticut Co. cut expenses by $882,830, while revenues were but $550,421 for trolley car operation.

Assets of the seven steam railroads reporting to the commission, of which four are operating companies, total $664,247,973, according to the report, showing an increase of $33,685,511 from 1927 to 1928. The principal items listed are road and equipment, totaling $392,108,987 and miscellaneous investments, totaling $200,395,895.

The operating companies are the New Haven road, the Branford Steam railroad, the Central Vermont and the South Manchester railroad.

Assets of street railway companies, practically all of which may be said to be located within the bounds of the state, were reported at $101,778,549, representing an increase of $2,159,644 during the year. Of the ten companies included in the report, the following six are operating: Bristol Traction Co., Connecticut Co., Groton & Stonington Traction Co., Lordship Railway Co., New Haven and Shore Line Railway Co., and Waterbury and Milldale Tramway Co.

Reporting on the inspection of street railways, the commission says: "Track generally continues to show marked improvement in maintenance. In paved streets, the elimination of joints reduces noise and largely prevents cupping." Overhead systems of wires are reported as in considerably better condition than when previously inspected.

Motor bus or jitney service is being supplied by 27 corporations or individuals holding licenses from the commission. Holders of such certificates operate a total of 2,033 route miles with a total of 593 buses which have a combined registered carrying capacity of 20,627 passengers.

"The annual inspection of 1929 compared with that of 1927 shows that while there was an increase of approximately ten per cent in the number of buses operated, the total number of buses without defects increased over 207 per cent, while the average defects a bus decreased from 3.4 in 1927 to 1.3 in 1929," says the report.

The commission's first report on taxicabs, which came under its jurisdiction July 15, 1929, shows that up to Sept. 30, a total of 337 applications for certificates had been filed, 47 of which were later withdrawn. Of the remainder 260 applications were granted and 30 denied.

FOR HOLIDAY FUND AT UNCAS-ON-THAMES

Now that the Thanksgiving turkeys have all been transformed into soup bones, and Santa Claus has put in an appearance, and we have had our initial snow flurry, it is high time to think about Christmas. That means, of course, that it is time to replenish the holiday fund for Uncas-on-Thames, so that all the sick people on the hill shall have a jolly Christmas and a happy New Year, with the innumerable little festivities during 1930 which, without this extra money, would not be possible.

This fund, as has often been explained, is a purely voluntary one, supported only by the gifts of its friends. It is not, in any way, connected with the Christmas seals, the money for which splendid cause is used in aiding under-nourished children in our local clinics and homes, and for the very valuable preventive work which does so much educationally, as well as physically, to help the fight against tuberculosis.

The sanatorium itself furnishes all the necessary bread and butter for its patients, so to speak, but the holiday fund provides the desserts. It means happy celebrations at New Year's, Valentine's day, Washington's and St. Patrick's birthdays, Memorial day, Thanksgiving and Christmas; it means flowers at Easter and fireworks on the Fourth; it means that every patient has a little present and some special attention on his or her birthday; it means something to anticipate, for those whose days are monotonous and mechanical—hence its appropriate name—the holiday fund!

It was started years ago by Mrs. Frederick Byrnes and Miss Mary E. Richards from a personal interest in some of the patients, and from a small beginning has grown to large proportions. But—with its growth, the number of patients has increased tremendously, as the sanatorium has more than redoubled its capacity, so the problem of keeping pace makes more money necessary each year. No sum is too small, and none too large; for the fund has an insatiable appetite and needs constant nourishment. It has always been the pet desire of those interested in its sustenance, that it may some day become self-supporting, but that happy goal is as yet a long way off, so we must keep up the feeding process every Christmas.

A recent visit to Uncas-on-Thames showed that every bed in each ward is occupied, with a long list of would-be patients who are pathetically awaiting their chance for treatment and a return to health and normal living. It is stated, also, that among the state sanatoria there are 300 more cases waiting their turn, than can be accommodated. All of which demonstrates only too plainly, what a constant war must be waged if real headway against tuberculosis is to be made.

Christmas is a very beautiful celebration at the sanatorium. It is ushered in by carols, the singers bearing lighted candles, marching from ward to ward, bringing the spirit of Yuletide with them; the decorations are most effective, and on the prettily decorated trees are presents for everybody; no one is forgotten, and the day is one long to be remembered.

It is a blessed thing to contribute towards the happiness of others, and in our own comfortable, warm homes on Christmas night, there will be a greater warmth and cheer, in proportion to what we may have done for those less fortunate. There is no more worth-while cause for giving in our town than this holiday fund, which stands for so much to these shut-ins on sanatorium hill, and every man, woman and child among us should do his or her bit towards helping those, who are fighting for health to carry on.

As usual, Miss Richards is in charge of the campaign for collecting money, and checks or cash may be sent personally to her at her home, 93 Sachem street, or to any of her following committee:

Mrs. Charles T. Bard, Miss Kate MacKenzie, Roy D. Judd, William R. Clarke, Miss Amy Burlingame, Miss Lillian Stetson, Mrs. Charles J. GASOLINE HEATER FLARE MADE FIRE CALL

A blazing gasoline heater gave the fire department a run to the house at No. 272 Franklin street, owned by Dominic Micciastiuno, about 3:15 o'clock Tuesday night. The fire was in the apartment occupied by Mrs N. B. Johnston. The heater flared up while it was being lighted and a telephone call to the fire department brought out Engine No. 1, Chief Henry R. Taft and Deputy Chief Dennis J. Brennan.

While the firemen were on the way to the house the blazing heater was thrown out of the building. The only damage, other than to the heater, was a scorched carpet.

The couple are also wanted on similar charges in New London, Bristol, Torrington and many other places. Officers of the Bristol police department went to the penitentiary Tuesday to arrest the pair upon their release from prison. The couple were arrested in Concord, N. H., shortly after leaving Bristol about a year ago.

WASHINGTON —(AP)— Fourteen forest service employes lost their lives last year in pursuit of their duties.

John Thayer, junior forester in the Tongass National forest in Alaska, was killed by a big brown bear. He was cruising over his territory, accompanied by Fred Herring, another ranger, in a government launch.

While ashore they ran into the bear so suddenly that Thayer had time for only one shot. The bear rushed at him and Thayer was so badly mauled and clawed that he died that night. Herring took the body to Juneau, a two-day ride by launch.

He had previously led two fire crews to safety. Ingram whittled and told stories while the fire raged on all sides of their little clearing and finally passed over, leaving the men unharmed.

NORTH-SOUTH M. E. MEN PLAN JOINT CONVENTION

LOUISVILLE, Ky.—(AP)—For the first time since the Methodist church split over civil war issues, a great gathering of men of both the northern and southern branches will be held when the Inter-Methodist Men's council meets here December 5 and 6.

Dr. Bert Edward Smith, executive secretary of the Methodist Brotherhood sees in the meeting an impatience with delay in effecting a proposed union of the southern and northern churches.

Speakers will include Bishop John M. Moore of the Methodist church, South; Bishop Francis J. McConnell, president of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America; Bishop Edwin Holt Hughes of Chicago and Branch Rickey, vice president of the St. Louis Cardinals.

Other meetings wil be held in large cities in which both branches of the church are strong.

NEW EPISCOPAL HEAD LIVES IN QUIET WAY

CHICAGO—(AP)—When the Rt. Rev. Charles Palmerston Anderson returned to Chicago after his election as primate of the Protestant Episcopal church of the United States, only his family and a redcap met him.

The elevation to one of the most important church positions in this country had not changed the habit of humbleness and modesty that the Chicago bishop had learned as a novice.

Bishop Anderson remains head of the Chicago diocese, in itself one of the most difficult places in the Episcopal church in America. He eventually, however, will be given a co-adjutor to aid him in diocesan affairs.

The second head of the American Episcopal church—the late Most Rev. John Gardner Murray having been first—has been a bishop 29 years and a clergyman 41. Bishop Anderson is a native of Canada, 65 years old.

His organizing ability and his devotion to charitable works have distinguished him. His new jurisdiction covers the United States and extends to the orient, where missions are supported.

MOST AIRPORTS IN ALASKA, COMPARISON TO POPULATION

CHICAGO —(AP)— Alaska of gold rush days has been lost in the wash of airplane propellers, and the territory leads the world in number of airports in comparison to its population.

For each 908 inhabitants there is an airport. From 30 to 50 per cent of the funds alloted to road building, the American Air Transport association reports, are going into the building of landing fields.

The reason, according to Gov. George A. Parks, is that air travel means more to the territory than any one thing. Journeys that take four to six weeks by sledge or afoot are completed in less than seven hours.

JAPANESE WOMAN OF 83 GETS FIRST PLANE RIDE

TOKYO—(AP)—Mrs. Sano Okamoto was born in Wakeayama perfecture 83 years ago, when there was not even wheeled vehicular travel between Yedo — as Tokyo was then called—in the east and Kyoto in the west.

Travelers along the Tokaido, "Eastern Sea road," the great national highway, rode horseback or in palanquins carried by human bearers. The journey required many weeks.

Recently Mrs. Okamoto, who has eight children, 19 grandchildren and 17 great-grand-children flew from Osaka, now the western metropolis, to Tokyo in two hours in one of the Japan Air Transport company's new passenger planes.

Fast Planes for Mexico Line

FORT WORTH, Tex.—(AP)—Five passenger planes with a speed of 140 miles an hour, capable of making the trip from Fort Worth to Mexico City in one day, are to be used in the Mexico City-Laredo passenger and airmail service to be established before January 1.

BID LOW BY .0009 CENT; STATE SAVES 18 PENNIES

Multiplied by 20,000 it is 18 cents, however, and for a Phoenix firm it meant receiving the contract for furnishing the Arizona state highway department 20,000 gallons of fuel oil.

The accepted oil bid was the lowest of the three by .0009 per gallon and the saving to the state was 18 cents.

NEW LONDON PUPILS MUST HEED LAW REGARDING THEATRE ATTENDANCE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 3. — The board of school visitors, through Secretary Frederick W. Edgerton, has requested City Manager William A. Holt to cause the enforcement of the statute prohibiting the attendance of minors at motion picture houses, particularly during evenings, unless accompanied by parents or adults. Captain of Police Charles A. Pinney today was instructed to enforce the law. It is claimed by the school board that the statute is being openly violated and that boys and girls are permitted to attend performances unaccompanied by parents or guardians. Policewoman Jane H. Cassidy has been instructed to visit the several theatres during the evening performances for several days and determine whether the minors are allowed entrance when not with parents or older persons. She will make a report of her investigation within a few days.

CRAFT, CREW AND CARGO OF BOOZE TAKEN TO NEW YORK

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 3.—The crew of the United States Coast Guard patrol boat, 124, Boatswain T. C. Losch, captured the rum runner Marjorie, a speedboat, together with its crew and cargo of 500 cases of whiskey, this morning, when the speedboat was beached at Montauk Point after escaping gunfire. The speedboat, cargo and crew were brought to port, arriving here this afternoon. Tonight the captured craft, cargo and crew of three men were taken to New York. It is believed that the Marjorie, which is a new boat, was headed for this port when she was sighted by the crew of the patrol boat.

NO TRACE OF MACHINES—OWNER OFFERS $500 REWARD

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 3.—With the police utterly without a semblance of clue that might lead to the arrest of the thieves who stole a dozen sewing machines, besides taking important parts that were intended for repairs and entailing a loss of about $3500, the Marvel Underwear company, through its owner, Abraham Quaint, today offered $500 for information that would lead to the arrest and conviction of the crooks. The theft was committed during Wednesday night last or early Thanksgiving day morning, for the plant was idle on the holiday. The thieves selected the most modern of the machines and their methods of removing them from benches showed that they were thoroughly familiar with the equipment. The police are inclined to believe that the machines have been carried to New York or Boston and installed in a factory that manufactures a product the same or similar to that made in New London.

TOTAL OF 184 ARRESTS IN MONTH JUST CLOSED

The report of the police department for the month just ended shows 184 arrests made by members of the department and as is usually the case the greatest number were for intoxication, for there were 60 men and women who were found on the streets intoxicated. The number of arrests made and the offenses follow: Intoxication, 60; breach of the peace, 5; violation of traffic law, 10; violation of liquor law, 12; lascivious carriage, 10; keeping disorderly house, 1; frequenting disorderly house, 12; keeping gaming place, 3; frequenting gaming place, 17; nonsupport, 4; embezzlement, 1; insane, 2; assault, 1; theft, 1; arrested and held for other departments, 7; evading fare, 1; driving while drunk, 4; violation of pharmacy law, 1; violation of medical practice law, 1; perjury, 1; vagrancy, 1.

Pfingstag—Burgess

Oscar C. Pfingstag, member of the crew of the U. S. S. Camden and Miss Florence Burgess, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Burgess, of Latham street, Groton, were married at 10 o'clock this morning at the parsonage of the Groton Heights Baptist church by Rev. George R. Atha. Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Burgess were the witnesses. For the present, Mr. and Mrs. Pfingstag will make their home with the bride's parents.

Changes At Electric Boat Plant

Changes in the personnel of the office force of the Electric Boat company which went into effect yesterday reveal that Stephen A. Gardner is appointed assistant general manager and Edwin A. Wheeler is appointed shipyard manager. The changes are the result of a reorganization movement and several of the employes have been discharged.

Philip G. Terhune, of New York, was arrested this afternoon by Patrolman Albert Iverson, charged with violation of the city's traffic ordinances in turning around on State street. He furnished a surety on his bond for appearance in the police court tomorrow morning.

A batch of drunks await trial in the police court tomorrow for there are six such cases occupying calls at police headquarters. Most of the prisoners are civilians, for those who wear the uniform of the United States Navy or the United Coast Guard were turned over to shore patrols and sent back to their respective stations.

The city is beginning to take on a holiday aspect for during the past two nights electricians have been engaged in stringing electric light wires from pole to pole on State street. Within a week or ten days these will supply power for the illumination of varied colored electric lights which will remain in illumination until after the first of the new year.

First Coasting Of Season

Although the snowfall of yesterday was light it was accompanied by sleet and rain and freezing temperature prevailing last night an excellent foundation for coasting resulted. The youngsters enjoyed their first sliding of the season today. Wherever a grade existed the sleds were brought into use.

The low temperature of the past 24 hours has caused coal dealers to be taxed to the utmost for patrons who have been dilatory in placing coal orders now desire that immediate delivery of fuel be made. The several coal companies have been deluged with hurry orders. In most cases the orders received were not filled until the following day because of the rush for deliveries.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Palace Theatre

The Suez Canal—it was just a "ditch" to the directors of the Bank of England, but to Disraeli, England's great prime minister, the canal was a priceless asset, the gateway to Britain's vast Indian empire, and a vitally necessary link in the British line of imperial communications. He argued that the directors lend him the money to buy it, and they refused. He was popular, because first of all he was a Jew in a land and at a time when Jews were disliked. But he beat them all to their knees, beat them in spite of their own stupidity and in spite of the desperate efforts of a group of Russians to buy up the canal from the poverty stricken Khedive of Egypt.

That is the plot of "Disraeli," the matchless drama with George Arliss starred, which comes to the Palace theater for a three days' run beginning today. It is one of the truly great pictures of the era. Not only as a mighty historical film but for the passion, the drama and the romance which permeates it, Arliss, who is an Englishman, was always a great admirer of Disraeli and an ardent student of his character and life and his achievements n statesmanship. Once he conceived the idea that he would like to play the role of the great prime minister and eventually he persuaded Louis N. Parker to write a play for him which would have Disraeli as the central, dominating figure. Between the two of them they produced the play, and for a long time Arliss appeared in it on the speaking stage. Now that it has been turned into a Vitaphone masterpiece, Arliss is delighted that through this popular medium it will reach hundreds of thousands of people who never could have seen it at stage prices.

Not as a page out of history, and not as a costume or period drama but as a vital, living romance of a great man pitted against great odds. That is how "Disraeli" should be viewed as a picture. Here is the thrilling throbbing stuff of which great drama is made. Don't miss it.

SEEKS SUGGESTIONS ON TERCENTENARY CELEBRATION

Through a general letter circulated through the state by Dr. George C. F. Williams, 93 Prospect avenue, Hartford, who is chairman of the Tercentenary commission, suggestions are being sought of the way the 300th anniversary of the settlement of Connecticut may be celebrated.

The secretary's letter follows:

"This commission has by vote instructed me to address this letter to historical societies and patriotic societies in Connecticut, and to other organizations within the state which are likely to be especially interested in the observance of the 300th anniversary of the settlement of Connecticut.

"The statute enacted at the last regular session of the general assembly authorized the governor 'to appoint a commission, consisting of seven members, to make plans for participation by the state in the appropriate observance of the 300th anniversary of the settlement of Connecticut as a colony,' the commission to report to the general assembly at its session in 1931. While preparing such plans the commission will be glad of any suggestions which your organization or any of its members, will be so good as to offer, or which shall be made by any other organization or by any individual even though not directly appealed to at this time. Suggestions frank, free and numerous, which are designed to contribute to the success of these commemorative exercises, will be appreciated by the commission."

The chairman hopes to obtain helpful ideas and asks that responses be sent to his address. With him on the commission are Mrs. James P. Andrews, secretary; Dr. James R. Angell, Hon. George W. Wheeler, E. Kent Hubbard, Mrs. George M. Minor, Robbins B. Stoeckel.

"They work while you sleep"

When the bowels need help there is nothing like cascara; nothing more efficient, nothing so good for the system. Any doctor can confirm these facts.

Candy Cascarets give you pure cascara in a most pleasant form. Take one tonight. See how fine you feel all next day. Without discomfort and without harmful effects this gentle laxative cleanses the whole thirty feet of bowels. Cascarets never produce that nauseous feeling usually associated with the use of laxatives. And their action is so natural that there is no danger of forming the laxative habit. You can take them as often as you please—or give them freely to children or old folks.

A coated tongue or a laden breath is a signal for a candy Cascaret. Or a sick headache, or any sluggish feeling; any time you believe the liver and bowels are not functioning fully, Cascarets will sweep away accumulations in the lower bowel. They are sweetened with pure cane sugar and flavored with real licorice, making them the ideal laxative for children.

POETRY FOR WIDE-AWAKES.

Dragon-Flies.

See the dragon-fly is resting awhile upon the temple-bell

Lonesomely clings the dragon-fly to the underside of the leaf—Ah, the autumn rains

In the time between the setting of the sun and the rising of the moon—red dragon-flies.

For Scholars.

My figures are "excited",—
So good people say,
But the sky's excited
Each time it writes a day.

God who made the Dodo
Surely loves a joke.
"Ha!" the thunder shouted
When it hewed the oak.

May makes coral-colored
Metaphors of trees;
August loves the lightning's
White hyperboles.

Tigers are a bonfire,—
Only moles are grey.
One can't take a world like this
As donkeys munch their hay.

Sunset is a burning bush,—
God is in the flame.
If my words are fierce and gay
His peacock is to blame.

UNCLE JED'S TALK TO THE WIDE AWAKES.

The cow bird is not particularly well liked. It has a bad reputation because it is not like other birds. The tendency on the part of many students of bird life is to magnify its bad points and to give but scant attention to its good points. In spite of its unpopularity it is an interesting bird. It builds no nest of its own but, on the sly, deposits its eggs in the nests of smaller birds, such as the sparrow and the warbler. It is not a very particular bird and its eggs are quite often to be found in the nests of bluebirds, thrashers, wood thrushes, meadowlarks and catbirds.

There is no doubt but what catbirds have pushed out from nests the eggs that were laid there by the birds who built the nests, so as to make room for their own eggs. Some members of the bird family successfully outwit the cowbirds. The yellow warbler has been known to build an addition to its nest in order to bury the eggs of the cowbird. These additions have been built on top of the original nests and sometimes three and even four stories have been added.

It has also been learned by bird students that some of the feathered folk remove or destroy the eggs of the cowbird laid in their nests. Others have been known to desert their nests if cowbirds laid eggs in them. These are usually new nests in which the rightful owners have laid but few eggs.

The cowbirds ordinarily are to be seen in small flocks about pastures, near grazing cattle, and they live on insect pests and seeds. They do not bother corn, berries or other crops. Their chief aim in life is in hunting bugs, insects, worms, weed seeds and waste grain.

LETTERS WRITTEN BY WIDE AWAKES

On a Hike

Dear Uncle Jed: One night after school hours our class went on a hike. The teacher also came along. It was a long way to walk but we at last reached the place. The teacher asked us to fetch her some large stones and dry pieces of wood. This we all did and in a little while the fire was going. We then looked for sticks with which to cook our frankfurts and roast our marshmallows. A few girls had knives. They sharpened the ends of our sticks. By this time the fire was well started and we all gathered in a circle around the fire so the wind wouldn't blow it out. We first cooked our frankfurts and each one had her rolls or sandwiches with which to eat them. Then the marshmallows were roasted. There was always some girl telling a joke and making all the rest laugh. A little while before we started to go back to school a girl was hit with a pine cone but was not hurt. This had been thrown by some boy who was hiding in the bushes near by. I also had a bottle of soda stolen but these things did not stop us from having fun. All too soon it became dark; we had to pack up and go back to the school building. How much fun we had going home. We had to climb a steep hill on which were many wire fences and stonewalls. We at last reached the school building, changed our clothes into our regular dresses, for we had worn our gym clothes; reported to the teacher so she could see if we were all back and last of all went home with light hearts. Hoping you will enjoy my story.

My Birthday Party

Dear Uncle Jed: Last month I had a birthday party. I invited several of my friends. We played games, some of which had prizes. After enjoying ourselves for awhile refreshments were served.

The dining room was very prettily decorated, the popular color being orange. Each plate had a favor so we popped them and took out our hats. Usually a fortune comes in them so we had great fun reading and laughing over them. At last the time for going home came. We all were a bit tired after our exciting two hours.

I am certain we all had a good time. I also received some lovely birthday gifts.

An Old Lady

Dear Uncle Jed: I have never written to you before so I thought I would write to you about an old lady. She looked much like an Indian and wore ragged clothes. She ate nuts and berries in the summer and stored away some for the winter. If some one came near the cave she would run away from him. So after awhile no one came around there because some were afraid of her and others did not want to bother her because if they lived like that they would not want to be bothered.

At Grandma's House.

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to tell you about a trip I took to my Grandma's house in Fitchburg. I went with my uncle and my aunt. We stopped at Worcester for dinner and again at Sterling as the county fair was there. I had a very nice time. We saw all kinds of animals. I saw a pony which I had a ride on. I am eight years old. I am in the third grade. I am home sick with swollen glands.

Likes "Dad" Shaw's Letters.

Dear Uncle Jed: I have written to you before but it was a long time ago. I love to read and write and I am sure the Wide-Awakes like to write and read also.

The other day as I was reading The Bulletin, I saw that "Dad" Shaw had written a piece named Long Ago. It was a very interesting article, and as I read it, I said to myself "I would like to see "Dad" Shaw, for he must be a very nice man and certainly a good writer. Many times I have seen things he has written and although I am only in the eighth grade I often wonder if I have any faithful friends that I would like to see again that I knew in the lower grades. "Dad" Shaw explains his ideas very plain and one can't help noticing them as they appear in the papers day after day.

I hope some day when I become a man I may be able to go and see "Dad" Shaw. If I ever have a chance to go to New Jersey I will certainly stop in to see him. Every Wide-Awake should read his letters for they are always very interesting. I must stop now as I must leave room for my friends or members of the Wide Awake circle.

The Winter.

Dear Uncle Jed: School has begun a long time ago and I like it very much. As I went to school this morning I noticed for the first time that I saw no birds singing their gay songs. The leaves are turning different colors and falling to the ground in large heaps.

The squirrels are seen running from tree to tree to gather nuts for winter. All the beautiful flowers are dropping their heads with sadness in their hearts. Apples are falling to the ground.

The mornings are growing colder and shorter, day by day and soon we will be wearing gloves so Jack Frost cannot bite our fingers.

Storm doors are being put on to keep out the cold. Nights are growing longer and the days shorter.

Farmers are gathering in their fruits and doing their tasks up for the winter. Mothers are canning preserves and other things. Soon Thanksgiving will come and then comes dear old Christmas, the best of all. Then will come the new year for every one to turn over new leaves for the year and also make new resolutions. I hope you will all enjoy reading this story. Best thoughts to the Wide Awakes.

My New Dog.

Dear Uncle Jed: This is my first letter to you and I hope you will like it. I am going to tell you about my new dog. She is an English setter, white with brown spots. Her name is Peggy. I have a good time with her and she likes to frolic. I am in the second grade and I like to go to school.

His First Letter.

Dear Uncle Jed: This is my first letter to you. I am going to tell you about my pet dog. His name is Danger. When he was small he would bite me so I called him Danger. And now it's his name. I got six skunks with him.

At School.

Dear Uncle Jed: I am writing to tell you the daily lessons we have in school. When we first go in we have the Lord's prayer. Then the teacher reads us a bible story. Then we have arithmetic and study geography before recess. After recess we recite geography and have reading then we go home to dinner. When we go back into school after dinner we have history, English and spelling.

ALVA THOMSON, Age 12.

Feeding the Birds.

Dear Uncle Jed: I read in the papers where other boys and girls like to write to you, so I guess I'll try and tell you about what I am going to do. I have been thinking about the little birds that are left here this winter I know they can find places to go in and keep warm but feel sure sometimes they are hungry. So I am going to take a box and nail it on a post and put some crumbs in it every day for them. I will put this out in the front yard, so I can see them come and fly away. Don't you think that will be nice?

DORIS TAYLOR, Age 9.

Our Adventure.

Dear Uncle Jed: I have written to you before and enjoy writing. The name of my story is "Our Adventure While Picking Nuts." Last Sunday my friends came over to my house. We did not know what to do. We played many games until we tired of them, and wanted to do something else.

We decided to go picking nuts. All of us took half bushel baskets and started off. While we were walking we told jokes and stories. When we came to the place where we were to pick nuts, we asked the owner of the farm for permission. This was granted us, and we began to pick up the nuts as quickly as we could.

Just as we had about half of our baskets filled, a bull rushed out of the barn and ran towards us.

We seized our baskets of nuts and started to run. When he came to the farm we told the farmer that the bull had come out of the barn. He ran to the lots with us to see where the bull was. When he came near the animal, however, he saw it was a large deer.

In the Woods.

Dear Uncle Jed: I haven't written to you for a long time. Therefore I have decided to tell you a story. This story is about our day out in the woods. Some classmates and I went out into the woods to get pieces of bark for our school nature study chart.

When we arrived in the woods we saw a bird that we had never seen before. I cannot describe it well because it flew too high. However I noticed that it was larger than a robin, and that its predominant color was yellow. We found what we wanted, and we continued on our way.

We saw a bird's nest on the ground. It was the first time I ever saw a nest on the ground. We met more groups of our classmates as we had all chosen different places to go to. All were looking for different things to bring to school, some for birds' nests, some for specimens of moss and others for stones.

We soon got tired of tramping around so we sat down and rested. One of my classmates was an artist and he drew a fine picture of one of the other boys holding the flowers we had picked in the woods.

Finally we started out for home. We crossed a few swamps, but soon got into a field near our homes.

We had started out after ten and arrived home after twelve. We came back to school in time for the afternoon session. The other children brought many other things.

My Birthday Party.

Dear Uncle Jed: I thought I would write to tell you and your Wide-Awakes about "My Birthday Party". My birthday is November 7th and I had a very pretty party that night. The dining room was decorated in the colors of orange and black. We had refreshments of cake, candy, cupcakes, cocoa, sandwiches, lemonade, ice cream and cookies. We then played games of pin the tail on the donkey, hide and seek, hide the peanuts and hide the button. Singing and dancing were enjoyed until nine-thirty. Ten of my little girl friends were there. I received many useful gifts. I had a very delightful time. I like The Bulletin very much.

DOROTHEA DOWNES, Age 10.

An Arab Horse.

Dear Uncle Jed: I thought I would write and tell the Wide Awakes about "Hassan and His Horse". Hasson was an Arab who had a horse which he loved very much and the horse loved him. One night they were riding through the desert when they were met by a party of men called Turks. These men took Hassan and the horse as prisoners. They tied the feet of Hassan and the horse, and carried them to a den. That night Hassan heard his horse neighing. He crawled up to him and said, My poor horse, you will not be happy with these men. Go home to my tent, tell my wife she will never see me again. Lick the hands of my children as a token of my love. Then he bit off the cords that tied the horse. The horse looked at his master for a minute. Then he caught him by the belt and ran through the desert until he laid Hassan at the feet of his wife then he dropped dead. All the neighbors wept at the death of Hassan's horse. Many Arab poets wrote poems about Hassan and his horse.

A Trip to the West.

Dear Uncle Jed: One bright sunny day in June I received a letter from my uncle who lived in the west. I opened it and it said "How would you like a trip to the west to see me?" I was very glad and right away my mother packed my trunk and I started on my journey. I arrived at my uncle's ranch three days later and was welcomed by the whole family. I was to stay there for around two months. While I was there I learned to ride horseback. I also saw the cowboys' roundups and some of their festivities. My trip as a whole was very enjoyable and I thanked my uncle and his family very much for their invitation and said that I hoped to visit them again some day.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Breed Theatre

This afternoon and evening will mark the final showings at the Breed theatre of Radio Pictures' all-talking melodrama, "Side Street," co-featuring the three Moore brothers—Tom, Owen and Matt.

Since ethis entertaining vehicle began its engagement here, bringing to the screen for the first time in film history the three Moore brothers in one production, fans have been packing the house and critics everywhere have been enthusiastic.

Tom Moore is cast as a traffic officer who is promoted to plain clothes and sets out to trail down the Muller gang of which Owen Moore, his own brother, is the ringleader.

Matt Moore, as a police ambulance surgeon, learns Owen's real racket when he is called to Owen's apartment after a fight.

To save their parents, Matt seals his lips. When Tom goes out to keep a framed rendezvous with death, engineered by Owen, it is too late to call it off so Owen takes a short cut, beats Tom to the meeting place, and is mowed down by the bullets of his own gang.

Broadway Theatre

Over 3,000,000 feet of film were taken in building up the scenes for the "M-G-M Hollywood Revue," of which only 12,000 were used in the production as offered to the public at its Hollywood premiere and now delighting audiences daily at the Broadway. Chorus scenes were made involving over 200 girls, specially trained by Metro experts, and known as the M-G-M ensemble, to be used in future productions, augmented by the wonderful Albertina Rasch ballet. A symphony orchestra of 100 musicians plays the entire score. The "Hollywood Revue" is a picture of surprises from start to finish with the most famous stars of the silver screen displaying talents apart from their usual screen roles, and piling up talent on talent, comedy on comedy, melody on melody, making up a program never before equalled in variety and entertainment value. The Fox Movietone news is an added attraction for the next three days.

For Saturday's opening the Broadway announces Erich Von Stroheim, the "man you love to hate" in his first talking picture, "The Great Barbo," a strong drama of the stage with a tremendous musical background and a cast of over 500.

BIG SOCONY TANKER REACHES HEAD OF PAWCATUCK

"Oswego Socony" of the Standard Oil Co. fleet of New York, a steel tanker, 265 feet in length, 42 feet beam, drawing eight feet of water, the largest craft ever to navigate the headwaters of the Pawcatuck river, arrived Tuesday morning on the high tide at the Pawcatuck plant of the Standard Oil Co. Some idea of the length of the craft can be gained when it is stated that the bow and stern of the low-rakish craft, spick and span in new paint, extended up and down stream on each side of the end of the three mooring cribs at the channel edge.

Leaving New London harbor Tuesday morning, the tanker, after a fifteen-hour trip from New York, arrived at the dock of the Standard Oil company, off Mechanic street, at 9:45 The big tanker is propelled by two Deisel engines of 350 horse power each It has a capacity of 13,500 barrels but it was stated Tuesday morning that she was not loaded to full cargo because of the limited depth of the channel and the several sharp turns between Osbrook Point and the company's dock.

Port Captain L A. Platt of Astoria, who was in Westerly two years ago on Thanksgiving day, when the first oil tanker and barges came up the Pawcatuck, accompanied the tanker up the river. The captain of the tanker is Nell Mutch. Captain Thomas Mickelson, the ship pilot, of Staten Island, also was on board. Immediately upon arrival at the dock the tanks were hooked up with the feed pipes which lead to the big tanks in the company's yard and the gasoline was soon flowing from the tanker to the yard tanks at the rate of 1500 barrels per hour. The tanker is equipped with two 70-horsepower electric generators, has its own electric heating, electric lighting, electric cooking and electric refrigerating plant. The tanker steers by electricity. Leslie Hart is chief engineer. The craft is also equipped with twin screws and has two rudders.

The successful navigation of the crooked channel by this, the largest craft ever to sail up the Pawcatuck, was accomplished through the dredging and widening of the channel by the Standard Oil Company of New York at the expenditure of several thousand dollars. The company recently erected two new large steel tanks, one of which was being loaded Tuesday morning by the electric pump in the forward hold of the ship

Port Captain Platt stated that although some of the bends in the channel had been widened and boulders taken out, the federal government, through the war department's engineering corps, could spend much needed money in further improvements of the project which the last engineer's governmental report showed as a project 87 per cent completed. By nightfall it was expected that the tanker would be entirely unloaded and this (Wednesday) morning on the high tide, between 8 and 9 would start backing down stream until the Pawcatuck river channel was sufficiently wide to permit the long craft to turn around and start back to New York and its New Jersey home port The craft making 9 knots an hour is capable of making a twenty-five day cruise before it becomes necessary to seek port to replenish fuel and supplies. This steel tanker was built in 1924 at the Sun Shipbuilding and Drydock plant, Chester, Pa.

PICKETS AT BRADFORD TIP STRANGERS AS TO STRIKE

Dr. Donald S. Ashbrook, manager of the plant of the Bradford Dyeing association at which some 320 striking employes remained out for the second day Tuesday, called on the Westerly police department for protection Monday night following an alleged attack by strikers upon Enoch Martin, who was returning to his home on Bowling lane from the mill.

Martin, a machinist, an aged man, was discharged a few weeks ago from the hospital following a serious operation. He worked Monday the first day of the strike and was returning home around 5:30. Chief Thomas E. Brown, who in company with Officers LeRoy H. Norman and Charles E. Button, investigated the case, said Tuesday that he was unable to determine whether Martin had been attacked or whether he stumbled and fell.

Martin, he said, claimed that he was attacked, while others who were near him at the time said he fell. Chief Brown returned to Westerly with Officer Button later in the morning, leaving Norman on duty at the mill. Pickets posted on the Westerly-Bradford road as far out of Bradford as McGowan's corners, informed strangers who passed that there was a strike at the mill. The office employes of the plant were engaged in their duties Tuesday as usual as well as the overseers and assistant overseers The largest number of pickets was posted on Bowling lane and at the corner of Bowling lane and the driveway leading to the mill where the gate was shut. A Westerly police officer was stationed at the gate house

Stonington regulations applying to the early closing of restaurants in the Pawcatuck section of the town were changed Monday when a number of restaurant proprietors met the members of the board of selectmen, Selectmen Babcock, Fribance and Vargas. The selectmen, after hearing their side of the story, felt that it was an injustice to make a ruling regulating one line of business, so severe. They consequently passed a vote allowing restaurants to remain open until one o'clock in the morning. The restaurants in the town of Westerly also close at 1 a. m.

COMMUNITY CHRISTMAS TREE ON OLD DIXON HOUSE SITE

At the Monday meeting of Westerly town council a former council member, Farquhar Smith, and J. Harold Kenyon, representing the Westerly and Pawcatuck Retail Merchants' association, asked for a town appropriation to help defray expenses of placing strings of electric lights along the principal business streets. The council voted $100 to pay for such installation and furnishing of lights in front of the Westerly Town hall and high school. They said at the time they would not press the request for the installation of a Christmas tree properly illuminated in Dixon square.

Now the representatives of the association have agreed that the Christmas tree will be erected in the middle of the Old Dixon house site and will be fully as conspicuous and spectacular as in the middle of the square It will be lighted by 300 lights of 25 watt.

The merchants have had marked success in securing the co-operating of the store keepers in the Christmas lighting scheme.

More than 60 per cent of the merchants have already signed up the five-year contract made necessary by the fact that the South Count; Public Service Co is willing to finance the lighting equipment as it can pay for it in that time. The town Monday decided to light its own property at the Town hall, and the trustees of the Westerly Public library will take care of the large expanse on Broad street.

The jury was empaneled and one witness, Jack Pickering, was heard, when the case was discontinued on payment of costs.

SARDINE TEAM WON FROM PEABODY TEAM 3-0

Sardine--Peabody 3-0

When the whistle blew and the first half was over, the score was 0 to 0.

With the sun going behind a cloud and the Sardine cheering section calling for a touchdown, the band started to play "It is all over now," 37 yard line with less than a minute to play and the score still nothing to nothing.

Capt. Small Shot Barry took a chance to make good and try a drop kick and over the bar the ball went, and the game ended. Sardine team 3, Peabody team 0. It was the best game of football ever played on the field, hard fought and both coaches were pleased. The band and cheering section held a snake dance around the field and the fans went home to finish the rest of the turkey. In a couple of weeks a victory dance will be held and an oyster stew will be served at a big time in Sardine hall. Hero Capt. Bill Barry will receive a present.

PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE TO CONGRESS

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3—(AP)—President Hoover's message to congress, containing many recommendations, both domestic and international, was read by clerks in both branches of congress yesterday. The text follows:

To the Senate and House of Representatives:

The Constitution requires that the president "shall, from time to time, give to the congress information of the state of the union, and recommend to their consideration such measures as he shall judge necessary and expedient." In complying with that requirement I wish to emphasize that during the past year the nation has continued to grow in strength; our people have advanced in comfort; we have gained in knowledge; the education of youth has been more widely spread; moral and spiritual forces have been maintained; peace has become more assured. The problems with which we are confronted are the problems of growth and of progress. In their solution we have to determine the facts, to develop the relative importance to be assigned to such facts, to formulate a common judgment upon them, and to realize solutions in a spirit of conciliation.

Foreign Relations.

We are not only at peace with all the world, but the foundations for future peace are being substantially strengthened. To promote peace is our long-established policy. Through the Kellogg-Briand pact a great moral standard has been raised in the world. By it fifty-four nations have covenanted to renounce war and to settle all disputes by pacific means. Through it a new world outlook has been inaugurated which has profoundly affected the foreign policies of nations. Since its inauguration we have initiated new efforts not only in the organization of the machinery of peace but also to eliminate dangerous forces which produce controversies amongst nations.

In January, 1926, the senate gave its consent to adherence to the court of international justice with certain reservations. In September of this year the statute establishing the court has, by the action of the nations signatory, been amended to meet the senate's reservations and to go even beyond those reservations to make clear that the court is a true international court of justice. I believe it will be clear to everyone that no controversy or question in which this country has or claims an interest can be passed on by the court without our consent at the time the question arises. The doubt about advisory opinions has been completely safeguarded. Our adherence to the international court is, as now constituted, not the slightest step toward entry into the league of nations. As I have before indicated, I shall direct that our signature be affixed to the protocol of adherence and shall submit it for the approval of the senate with a special message at some time when it is convenient to deal with it.

In the hope of reducing friction in the world, and with the desire that we may reduce the great economic burdens of naval armament, we have joined in conference with Great Britain, France, Italy, and Japan to be held in London in January to consider the further limitation and reduction of naval arms. We hold high hopes that success may attend this effort.

At the beginning of the present administration the neighboring state of Mexico was beset with domestic insurrection. We maintained the embargo upon the shipment of arms to Mexico but permitted the duly constituted government to procure supplies from our surplus war stocks. Fortunately, the Mexican government by its own strength successfully withstood the insurrection with but slight damage. Opportunity of further peaceful development is given to that country. At the request of the Mexican government, we have since lifted the embargo on shipment of arms altogether. The two governments have taken further steps to promote friendly relationships and so solve our differences. Conventions prolonging for a period of two years the life of the general and special claims commissions have been concluded.

In South America we are proud to have had part in the settlement of the long-standing dispute between Chile and Peru in the disposal of the question of Tacna-Arica.

The work of the commission of inquiry and conciliation between Bolivia and Paraguay, in which a representative of this government participated, has successfully terminated an incident which seemed to threaten war. The proposed plan for final settlement as suggested by the neutral governments is still under consideration.

This government has continued its efforts to act as a mediator in boundary difficulties between Guatemala and Honduras.

A further instance of profound importance in establishing good will was the inauguration of regular air mail service between the United States and Caribbean, Central American and South American countries.

We still have marines on foreign soil—in Nicaragua, Haiti, and China. In the large sense we do not wish to be represented abroad in such manner. About 1,600 marines remain in Nicaragua at the urgent request of that government and the leaders of all parties pending the training of a domestic constabulary capable of insuring tranquility. We have already reduced these forces materially and we are anxious to withdraw them further as the situation warrants. In Haiti we have about 760 marines, but it is a much more difficult problem, the solution of which is still obscure. If congress approves, I shall dispatch a commission to Haiti to review and study the matter in an endeavor to arrive at some more definite policy than at present. Our forces in China constitute 2,805 men, which we hope also further to reduce to the normal legation guard.

It is my desire to establish more firmly our understanding and relationships with the Latin American countries by strengthening the diplomatic missions to those countries. It is my hope to secure men long experienced in our diplomatic service, who speak the languages of the peoples to whom they are accredited, as chiefs of our diplomatic missions in these states. I shall send to the senate at an early date the nominations of several such men.

The congress has by numerous wise and foresighted acts in the past few years greatly strengthened the character of our representation abroad. It has made liberal provision for the establishment of suitable quarters for our foreign staffs in the different countries. In order, however, that we may further develop the most effective force in this, one of the most responsible functions of our government, I shall recommend to the congress more liberal appropriations for the work of the state department. I know of no expenditure of public money from which a greater economic and moral return can come to us than by assuring the most effective conduct of our foreign relations.

National Defense.

To preserve internal order and freedom from encroachment is the first purpose of government. Our army and navy are being maintained in a most efficient state under officers of high intelligence and zeal. The extent and expansion of their numbers and equipment as at present authorized are ample for this purpose.

We can well be deeply concerned, however, at the growing expense. From a total expenditure for national defense purposes in 1914 of $267,000,000, it naturally rose with the great war, but receded again to $612,000,000 in 1924, when again it began to rise until during the current fiscal year the expenditures will reach to over $730,000,000, excluding all civilian services of those departments. Programs now authorized will carry it to still larger figures in future years. While the remuneration paid to our soldiers and sailors is justly at a higher rate than that of any other country in the world, and while the cost of subsistence is higher, yet the total of our expenditures is in excess of those of the most highly militarized nations of the world.

Upon the conference shortly to be held in London will depend such moderation as we can make in naval expenditure. If we shall be compelled to undertake the naval construction implied in the Washington arms treaty as well as other construction which would appear to be necessary if no international agreement can be completed, we shall be committed during the next six years to a construction expenditure of upward of $1,200,000,000 besides the necessary further increase in costs for annual upkeep.

After 1914 the various army contingents necessarily expanded to the end of the great war and then receded to the low point in 1924, when expansion again began. In 1914 the officers and men in our regular forces, both army and navy, were about 164,000, in 1924 there were about 256,000, and in 1929 there were about 250,000. Our citizens' army, however, including the national guard and other forms of reserves, increase these totals up to about 299,000 in 1914, about 672,000 in 1924, and about 728,000 in 1929.

Under the Kellogg pact we have undertaken never to use war as an instrument of national policy. We have, therefore, undertaken by covenant to use these equipments solely for defensive purposes. From a defense point of view our forces should be proportioned to national need and should, therefore, to some extent be modified by the prospects of peace, which were never brighter than today.

It should be borne in mind that the improvement in the national guard by federal support begun in 1920 has definitely strengthened our national security by rendering them far more effective than ever heretofore. The advance of aviation has also greatly increased our effectiveness in defense. In addition to the very large program of air forces which we are maintaining in the army and navy, there has been an enormous growth of commercial aviation. This has provided unanticipated reserves in manufacturing capacity and in industrial and air personnel, which again adds to our security.

I recommend that congress give earnest consideration to the possibilities of prudent action which will give relief from our continuously mounting expenditures.

Finances of the Government.

The finances of the government are in sound condition. I shall submit the detailed evidences and the usual recommendations in the special budget message. I may, however, summarize our position. The public debt on June 30 this year stood at $16,931,000,000, compared to the maximum in August, 1919, of $26,596,000,000. Since June 30 it has been reduced by a further $238,000,000. In the budget to be submitted the total appropriations recommended for the fiscal year 1931 are $3,830,445,231, as compared to $3,976,141,651 for the present fiscal year. The present fiscal year, however, includes $150,000,000 for the federal farm board, as to which no estimate can as yet be determined for 1931.

Owing to the many necessary burdens assumed by congress in previous years which now require large outlays, it is with extreme difficulty that we shall be able to keep the expenditures for the next fiscal year within the bounds of the present year. Economies in many directions have permitted some accommodation of pressing needs, the net result being an increase, as shown above, of about one-tenth of 1 per cent. above the present fiscal year. We can not fail to recognize the obligations of the government in support of the public welfare but we must coincidentally bear in mind the burden of taxes and strive to find relief through some tax reduction. Every dollar so returned fertilizes the soil of prosperity.

Tax Reduction.

The estimate submitted to me by the secretary of the treasury and the budget director indicates that the government will close the fiscal year 1930 with a surplus of about $225,000,000 and the fiscal year 1931 with a surplus of about $123,000,000. Owing to unusual circumstances, it has been extremely difficult to estimate future revenues with accuracy.

I believe, however, that the congress will be fully justified in giving the benefits of the prospective surpluses to the taxpayers, particularly as ample provision for debt reduction has been made in both years through the form of debt retirement from ordinary revenues. In view of the uncertainty in respect of future revenues and the comparatively small size of the indicated surplus in 1931, relief should take the form of a provisional revision of tax rates.

I recommend that the normal income tax rates applicable to the incomes of individuals for the calendar year 1929 be reduced from 5, 3 and 1 1-2 per cent. to 4, 2 and 1-2 per cent., and that the tax on the income of corporations for the calendar year 1929 be reduced from 12 to 11 per cent. It is estimated that this will result in a reduction of $160,000,000 in income taxes to be collected during the calendar year 1930. The loss in revenue will be divided approximately equally between the fiscal years 1930 and 1931. Such a program will give a measure of tax relief to the maximum number of taxpayers, with relatively larger benefits to taxpayers with small or moderate incomes.

Foreign Debts.

The past year has brought us near to completion of settlements of the indebtedness of foreign governments to the United States.

The act of congress approved February 4, 1929, authorized the settlement with the government of Austria along lines similar to the terms of settlement offered by that government to its other relief creditors. No agreement has yet been concluded with that government, but the form of agreement has been settled and its execution only awaits the government of Austria securing the assent by all the other relief creditors of the terms offered. The act of congress approved February 14, 1929, authorized the settlement with the government of Greece, and an agreement was concluded on May 10, 1929.

The government of France ratified the agreement with us on July 27, 1929. This agreement will shortly be before the congress and I recommend its approval.

The only indebtedness of foreign governments to the United States now unsettled is that of Russia and Armenia.

During the past year a committee of distinguished experts under American leadership submitted a plan looking to a revision of claims against Germany by the various governments. The United States denied itself any participation in the war settlement of general reparations and our claims are comparatively small in amount. They arise from costs of the army of occupation and claims of our private citizens for losses under awards from the mixed claims commission established under agreement with the German government. In finding a basis for settlement it was necessary for the committee of experts to request all the governments concerned to make some contribution to the adjustment and we have felt that we should share a proportion of the concessions made.

The state and treasury departments will be in a position shortly to submit for your consideration a draft of an agreement to be executed between the United States and Germany providing for the payments of these revised amounts. A more extensive statement will be submitted at that time.

The total amount of indebtedness of the various countries to the United States now funded is $11,579,465,885. This sum was in effect provided by the issue of United States government bonds to our own people. The payments of the various governments to us on account of principal and interest for 1930 are estimated at a total of about $939,000,000, for 1931 at about $236,000,000, for 1932 at about $246,000,000. The measure of American compromise in these settlements may be appreciated from the fact that our taxpayers are called upon to find annually about $475,000,000 in interest and in addition to redeem the principal of sums borrowed by the United States government for these purposes.

Alien Enemy Property.

The wise determination that this property seized in war should be returned to its owners has proceeded with considerable rapidity. Of the original seized cash and property (valued at a total of about $625,000,000), all but $111,566,700 has been returned. Most of the remainder should be disposed of during the next year.

General Economic Situation.

The country has enjoyed a large degree of prosperity and sound progress during the past year with a steady improvement in methods of production and distribution and consequent advancement in standards of living. Progress has, of course, been unequal among industries, and some, such as coal, lumber, leather, and textiles, still lag behind. The long upward trend of fundamental progress, however, gave rise to over-optimism as to profits, which translated itself into a wave of uncontrolled speculation in securities, resulting in the diversion of capital from business to the stock market and the inevitable crash. The natural consequences have been a reduction in the consumption of luxuries and semi-necessities by those who have met with losses, and a number of persons thrown temporarily out of employment. Prices of agricultural products dealt in upon the great markets have been affected in sympathy with the stock crash.

Fortunately, the federal reserve system had taken measures to strengthen the position against the day when speculation would break, which together with the strong position of the banks has carried the whole credit system through the crisis without impairment. The capital which has been hitherto absorbed in stock-market loans for speculative purposes is now returning to the normal channels of business. There has been no inflation of the prices of commodities; there has been no undue accumulation of goods, and foreign trade has expanded to a magnitude which exerts a steadying influence upon activity in industry and employment.

The sudden threat of unemployment and especially the recollection of the economic consequences of previous crashes under a much less secured financial system created unwarranted pessimism and fear. It was recalled that past storms of similar character had resulted in retrenchment of construction, reduction of wages, and the laying off of workers. The natural result was the tendency of business agencies throughout the country to pause in the plans and proposals for continuation and extension of their businesses, and this hesitation unchecked could in itself intensify into a depression with widespread unemployment and suffering.

I have therefore, instituted systematic, voluntary measures of cooperation with the business institutions and with state and municipal authorities to make certain that fundamental businesses of the country shall continue as usual, that wages and therefore consuming power shall not be reduced, and that a special effort shall be made to expand construction work in order to assist in equalizing other deficits in employment. Due to the enlarged sense of cooperation and responsibility which has grown in the business world during the past few years the response has been remarkable and satisfactory. We have canvassed the federal government and instituted measures of prudent expansion in such work that should be helpful, and upon which the different departments will make some early recommendation to congress.

I am convinced that through these measures we have reestablished confidence. Wages should remain stable. A very large degree of industrial unemployment and suffering which would otherwise have occurred has been prevented. Agricultural prices have reflected the returning confidence. The measures taken must be vigorously pursued until normal conditions are restored.

Agriculture.

The agricultural situation is improving. The gross farm income as estimated by the department of agriculture for the crop season 1926-27 was $12,100,000,000; for 1927-28 it was $12,300,000,000; for 1928-29 it was $12,500,000,000; and estimated on the basis of prices since the last harvest the value of the 1929-30 crop would be over $12,650,000,000. The slight decline in general commodity prices during the past few years naturally assists the farmers' buying power.

The number of farmer bankruptcies is very materially decreased below previous years. The decline in land values now seems to be arrested and rate of movement from the farm to the city has been reduced. Not all sections of agriculture, of course, have fared equally, and some areas have suffered from drought. Responsible farm leaders have assured me that a large measure of confidence is returning to agriculture and that a feeling of optimism pervades that industry.

The most extensive action for strengthening the agricultural industry ever taken by any government was inaugurated through the farm marketing act of June 15 last. Under its provisions the federal farm board has been established, comprised of men long and widely experienced in agriculture and sponsored by the farm organizations of the country. During its short period of existence the board has taken definite steps toward a more efficient organization of agriculture toward the elimination of waste in marketing, and toward the upbuilding of farmers' marketing organizations on sounder and more efficient lines. Substantial headway has been made in the organization of four of the basic commodities—grain, cotton, livestock, and wool. Support by the board to cooperative marketing organizations and other board activities undoubtedly have served to steady the farmers' market during the recent crisis and have operated also as a great stimulus to the cooperative organization of agriculture. The problems of the industry are most complex, and the need for sound organization is imperative. Yet the board is moving rapidly along the lines laid out for it in the act, facilitating the creation by farmers of farmer-owned and farmer-controlled organizations federating them into central institutions, with a view to increasing the bargaining power of agriculture, preventing and controlling surpluses, and mobilizing the economic power of agriculture.

The Tariff.

The special session of congress was called to expedite the fulfillment of party pledges of agricultural relief and the tariff. The pledge of farm relief has been carried out. At that time I stated the principles upon which I believed action should be taken in respect to the tariff:

"An effective tariff upon agricultural products, that will compensate the farmer's higher costs and higher standards of living, has a dual purpose. Such a tariff not only protects the farmer in our domestic market but it also stimulates him to diversify his crops and to grow products that he could not otherwise produce, and thus lessens his dependence upon exports to foreign markets. The great expansion of production abroad under the conditions I have mentioned renders foreign competition in our export markets increasingly serious. It seems but natural, therefore, that the American farmer, having been greatly handicapped in his foreign market by such competition from the younger expanding countries, should ask that foreign access to our domestic market should be regulated by taking into account the differences in our costs of production. * * *

"In considering the tariff for other industries than agriculture, we find that there have been economic shifts necessitating a readjustment of some of the tariff schedules. Seven years of experience under the tariff bill enacted in 1922 have demonstrated the wisdom of congress in the enactment of that measure. On the whole it has worked well. In the main our wages have been maintained at high levels; our exports and imports have steadily increased; with some exceptions our manufacturing industries have been prosperous. Nevertheless, economic changes have taken place during that time which have placed certain domestic products at a disadvantage and new industries have come into being, all of which create the necessity for some limited changes in the schedules and in the administrative clauses of the laws as written in 1922.

"It would seem to me that the test of necessity for revision is, in the main, whether there has been a substantial slackening of activity in an industry during the past few years, and a consequent decrease of employment due to insurmountable competition in the products of that industry. It is not as if we were setting up a new basis of protective duties. We did that seven years ago. What we need to remedy now is whatever substantial loss of employment may have resulted from shifts since that time. * * *

"In determining changes in our tariff we must not fail to take into account the broad interests of the country as a whole, and such interests include our trade relations with other countries."

No condition has arisen in my view to change these principles stated at the opening of the special session. I am firmly of the opinion that their application to the pending revision will give the country the kind of a tariff law it both needs and wants. It would be most helpful if action should be taken at an early moment, more especially at a time when business and agriculture are both cooperating to minimize future uncertainties. It is just that they should know what the rates are to be.

Even a limited revision requires the consideration and readjustment of many items. The exhaustive inquiries and valuable debate from men representative of all parts of the country, which is needed to determine the detailed rates must necessarily be accomplished in the congress. However perfectly this rate structure may be framed at any given time, the shifting of economic forces which inevitably occurs will render changes in some items desirable between the necessarily long intervals of congressional revision. Injustices are bound to develop, such as were experienced by the dairymen, the flaxseed producers, the glass industry, and others, under the 1922 rates. For this reason, I have been most anxious that the broad principle of the flexible tariff as provided in the existing law should be preserved and its delays in action avoided by more expeditious methods of determining the costs of production at home and abroad, with executive authority to promulgate such changes upon recommendation of the tariff commission after exhaustive investigation. Changes by the congress in the isolated items such as those to which I have referred would have been most unlikely both because of the concentrations of oppositions in the country, who could see no advantage to their own industry or state, and because of the difficulty of limiting consideration by the congress to such isolated cases.

There is no fundamental conflict between the interests of the farmer and the worker. Lowering of the standards of living of either tends to destroy the other. The prosperity of one rests upon the well-being of the other. Nor is there any real conflict between the east and the west or the north and the south in the United States. The complete interlocking of economic dependence, the common striving for social and spiritual progress, our common heritage as Americans, and the infinite web of national sentiment, have created a solidarity in a great people unparalleled in all human history. These invisible bonds should not and can not be shattered by differences of opinion growing out of discussion of a tariff.

Public Buildings.

Under the provisions of various acts of congress $800,000,000 has been authorized for public buildings and the land upon which to construct them, being $75,000,000 for the District of Columbia and $225,000,000 for the country at large. Excluding $25,000,000 which is for the acquisition of land in the so-called "triangle" in this city, this public building legislation provides for a five-year program for the District of Columbia and between an eight and nine year program for the country at large. Of this sum approximately $27,400,000 was expended up to June 30 last, of which $11,400,000 has been expended in the district and $16,000,000 outside.

Even this generous provision for both the District of Columbia and the country is insufficient for most pressing governmental needs. Expensive rents and inadequate facilities are extravagance and not economy. In the district even after the completion of these projects we shall have fully 20,000 clerks housed in rented and temporary war buildings which can last but a little longer.

I therefore recommend that consideration should be given to the extension of authorizations both for the country at large and for the District of Columbia again distributed over a term of years. A survey of the need in both categories has been made by the secretary of the treasury and the postmaster general. It would be helpful in the present economic situation if such steps were taken as would enable early construction work.

An expedition and enlargement of the program in the district would bring about direct economies in construction by enabling the erection of buildings in regular sequence. By maintaining a stable labor force in the city, contracts can be made on more advantageous terms.

The earlier completion of this program which is an acknowledged need would add dignity to the celebration in 1932 of the two hundredth anniversary of the birth of President Washington.

In consideration of these projects which contribute so much to dignify the national capital I should like to renew the suggestion that the fine arts commission should be required to pass upon private buildings which are proposed for sites facing upon public buildings and parks. Without such control much of the effort of the congress in beautification of the capital will be minimized.

The Waterways and Flood Control.

The development of inland waterways has received new impulse from the completion during this year of the canalization of the Ohio to a uniform 9-foot depth. The development of the other segments of the Mississippi system should be expedited and with this in view I am recommending an increase in appropriations for rivers and harbors from $50,000,000 to $55,000,000 per annum which, together with about $4,000,000 per annum released by completion of the Ohio, should make available after providing for other river and harbor works a sum of from $25,000,000 to $30,000,000 per annum for the Mississippi system and thus bring it to early completion.

Conflict of opinion which has arisen over the proposed floodway from the Arkansas River to the Gulf of Mexico via the Atchafalaya River has led me to withhold construction upon this portion of the Mississippi flood control plan until it could be again reviewed by the engineers for any further recommendation to Congress. The other portions of the project are being vigorously prosecuted and I have recommended an increase in appropriations for this from $20,000,000 of the present year to $35,000,000 during the next fiscal year.

Expansion of our intracoastal waterways to effective barge depths is well warranted. We are awaiting the action of Canada upon the St. Lawrence waterway project.

Highways.

There are over 3,000,000 miles of legally established highways in the United States, of which about 10 per cent. are included in the state highway systems, the remainder being county and other local roads. About 526,000 miles have been improved with some type of surfacing, comprising some 63 per cent. of the state highway system and 16 per cent. of the local roads. Of the improved roads about 102,000 miles are hard surfaced, comprising about 23 per cent. of the state highway systems and about 3 per cent. of the local roads.

While proper planning should materially reduce the listed mileage of public roads, particularly in the agricultural districts, and turn these roads back to useful purposes, it is evident that road construction must be a long-continued program. Progress in improvement is about 50,000 miles of all types per annum, of which some 12,000 miles are of the more durable types. The total expenditures of federal, state, and local governments last year for construction and maintenance assumed the huge total of $1,650,000,000.

Federal aid in the construction of the highway systems in conjunction with the states has proved to be beneficial and stimulating. We must ultimately give consideration to the increase of our contribution to these systems, particularly with a view to stimulating the improvement of farm-to-market roads.

Post Office.

Our post office deficit has now increased to over $80,000,000 a year, of which perhaps $14,000,000 is due to losses on ocean mail and air mail contracts. The department is making an exhaustive study of the sources of the deficit with view to later recommendation to congress in respect to it.

The post office quarters are provided in part by the federal construction, in part by various forms of rents and lease arrangements. The practice has grown up in recent years of contracting long term leases under which both rent and amortization principal cost of buildings is included. I am advised that fully 40 per cent. could be saved from many such rent and lease arrangements even after allowing interest on the capital required at the normal government rate. There are also many objectionable features to some of these practices. The provision of adequate quarters for the post office should be put on a sound basis.

A revision of air mail rates upon a more systematic and permanent footing is necessary. The subject is under study, and if legislation should prove necessary the subject will be presented to the congress. In the meantime I recommend that the congress should consider the desirability of at shortening further expansion of the South American services.

Commercial Aviation.

During the past year progress in civil aeronautics has been remarkable. This is to a considerable degree due to the wise assistance of the federal government through the establishment and maintenance of airways by the department of commerce and the mail contracts from the post office department. The government-improved airways now exceed 25,000 miles—more than 14,000 miles of which will be lighted and equipped for night-flying operations by the close of the current year. Airport construction through all the states is extremely active. There are now 1,000 commercial and municipal airports in operation with an additional 1,200 proposed for early development.

Through this assistance the nation is building a sound aviation system, operated by private enterprise. Over 6,400 planes are in commercial use, and 3,400 pilots are licensed by the government. Our manufacturing capacity has risen to 7,500 planes per annum. The aviation companies have increased regular air transportation until it now totals 90,000 miles per day—one-fourth of which is flown by night. Mail and express services now connect our principal cities, and extensive services for passenger transportation have been inaugurated, and others of importance are imminent. American air lines now reach into Canada and Mexico, to Cuba, Porto Rico, Central America, and most of the important countries of South America.

Railways.

As a whole, the railroad never were in such good physical and financial condition, and the country has never been so well served by them. The greatest volume of freight traffic ever tendered is being carried at a speed never before attained and with satisfaction to the shippers. Efficiencies and new methods have resulted in reduction in the cost of providing freight transportation, and freight rates show a continuous descending line from the level enforced by the world war.

We have, however, not yet assured for the future that adequate system of transportation through consolidations which was the objective of the congress in the transportation act. The chief purpose of consolidation is to secure well-balanced systems with more uniform and satisfactory rate structure, a more stable financial structure, more equitable distribution of traffic, greater efficiency and single-line instead of multiple-line hauls. In this way the country will have the assurance of better service and ultimately at lower and more even rates than would otherwise be attained. Legislation to simplify and expedite consolidation methods and better to protect public interest should be enacted.

Consideration should also be given to relief of the members of the commission from the necessity of detailed attention to comparatively inconsequential matters which, under the existing law, must receive their direct and personal consideration. It is in the public interest that the members of the commission should not be so pressed by minor matters that they have inadequate time for investigation and consideration of the larger questions committed to them for solution.

As to many of these minor matters, the function of the commission might well be made revisory, and the primary responsibility delegated to subordinate officials after the practice long in vogue in the executive departments.

Merchant Marine.

Under the impulse of the merchant marine act of 1928 the transfer to private enterprise of the government-owned steamship lines is going forward with increasing success. The shipping board now operates about 18 lines, which is less than half the number originally established, and the estimate of expenditures for the coming fiscal year is based upon reduction of losses on government lines by approximately one-half. Construction loans have been made to the amount of approximately $75,000,000 out of the revolving fund authorized by congress and have furnished an additional aid to American shipping and further stimulated the building of vessels in American yards.

Desirous of securing the full values to the nation of the great effort to develop our merchant marine by the merchant marine act soon after the inauguration of the present administration, I appointed an interdepartmental committee, consisting of the secretary of commerce, as chairman, the secretary of the navy, the postmaster general, and the chairman of the shipping board, to make a survey of the policies being pursued under the act of 1928 in respect of mail contracts; to inquire into its workings and to advise the postmaster general in the administration of the act.

In particular it seemed to me necessary to determine if the result of the contracts already let would assure the purpose, expressed in the act, "to further develop an American merchant marine, to assure its permanence in the transportation of the foreign trade of the United States, and for other purposes," and to develop a coordinated policy by which these purposes may be translated into actualities.

In review of the mail contracts already awarded it was found that they aggregated 25 separate awards imposing a governmental obligation of a little over $12,000,000 per annum, provision had been imposed in five of the contracts for construction of new vessels with which to replace and expand services. These requirements come a total of 12 vessels in the 10-year period, aggregating 122,000 tons. Some other conditions in the contracts had not worked out satisfactorily.

That study has now been substantially completed and the committee has advised the desirability and the necessity of securing much larger undertakings as to service and new construction in future contracts. The committee at this time is recommending the advertising of 14 additional routes, making substantial requirements for the construction of new vessels during the life of each contract recommended. A total of 40 new vessels will be required under the contracts proposed, about half of which will be required to be built during the next three years. The capital cost of this new construction will be approximately $250,000,000, involving approximately 460,000 gross tons. Should bidders be found who will make these undertakings, it will be necessary to recommend to congress an increase in the authorized expenditure by the post office of about $5,500,000 annually. It will be most advantageous to grant such an authority.

A conflict as to the administration of the act has arisen in the contention of persons who have purchased shipping board vessels that they are entitled to mail contracts irrespective of whether they are the lowest bidder, the post office, on the other hand, being required by law to let contracts in that manner. It is urgent that congress should clarify this situation.

The Banking System.

It is desirable that congress should consider the revision of some portions of the banking law.

The development of "group" and "chain" banking presents many new problems. The question naturally arises as to whether if allowed to expand without restraint these methods would dangerously concentrate control of credit, and whether they would not in any event seriously threaten one of the fundamentals of the American credit system—which is that credit which is based upon banking deposits should be controlled by persons withing those areas which furnish these deposits and thus be subject to the restraints of local interest and public opinion in those areas. To some degree, however, this movement of chain or group banking is a groping for stronger support to the banks and a more secure basis for these institutions.

The growth in size and stability of the metropolitan banks is in marked contrast to the trend in the country districts, with its many failures and the losses these failures have imposed upon the agricultural community. The relinquishment of charters of national banks in great commercial centers in favor of state charters indicates that some conditions surround the national banks which render them unable to compete with state banks; and their withdrawal results in weakening our national banking system.

It has been proposed that permission should be granted to national banks to engage in branch banking of a nature that would preserve within limited regions the local responsibility and the control of such credit institutions.

All these subjects, however, require careful investigation, and it might be found advantageous to create a joint commission embracing members of the congress and other appropriate federal officials for subsequent report.

Electrical Power Regulation.

The federal power commission is now comprised of three cabinet officers, and the duties involved in the competent conduct of the growing responsibilities of this commission far exceed the time and attention which these officials can properly afford from other important duties. I recommend that authority be given for the appointment of full-time commissioners to replace them.

It is also desirable that the authority of the commission should be extended to certain phases of power regulation. The nature of the electric utilities industry is such that about 90 per cent. of all power generation and distribution is intrastate in character, and most of the states have developed their own regulatory systems as to certificates of convenience, rates and profits of such utilities. To encroach upon their authorities and responsibilities would be an encroachment upon the rights of the states. There are cases, however, of interstate character beyond the jurisdiction of the states. To meet these cases it would be most desirable if a method could be worked out by which initial action may be taken between the commissions of the states whose joint action should be made effective by the federal power commission with a reserve to act on its own motion in case of disagreement or nonaction by the states.

The Radio Commission.

I recommend the reorganization of the radio commission into a permanent body from its present temporary status. The requirement of the present law that the commissioners shall be appointed from specified zones should be abolished and a general provision made for their equitable selection from different parts of the country. Despite the effort of the commissioners, the present method develops a public insistence that the commissioners are specially charged with supervision of radio affairs in the zone from which each is appointed. As a result there is danger that the system will degenerate from a national system into five regional agencies with varying practices, varying policies, competitive tendencies, and consequent failure to attain its utmost capacity for service to the people as a whole.

Muscle Shoals.

It is most desirable that this question should be disposed of. Under present conditions the income from these plants is less than could otherwise be secured for its use, and more especially the public is not securing the full benefits which could be obtained from them.

It is my belief that such parts of these plants as would be useful and the revenues from the remainder should be dedicated for all time to the farmers of the United States for investigation and experimentation on a commercial scale in agricultural chemistry. By such means advancing discoveries of science can be systematically applied to agricultural need, and development of the chemical industry of the Tennessee valley can be assured.

I do not favor the operation by the government of either power or manufacturing business except as an unavoidable by-product of some other major public purpose.

Any form of settlement of this question will imply entering upon a contract or contracts for the lease of the plants either as a whole or in parts and the reservation of facilities, products, or income for agricultural purposes. The extremely technical and involved nature of such contracts dealing with chemical and electrical enterprises, added to the unusual difficulties surrounding these special plants, and the rapid commercial changes now in progress in power and synthetic nitrogen manufacture, leads me to suggest that congress create a special commission, not to investigate and report as in the past, but with authority to negotiate and complete some sort of contract or contracts on behalf of the government, subject, of course, to such general requirements as congress may stipulate.

SOME HIGH LIGHTS IN HOOVER'S MESSAGE

We are not only at peace with all the world, but the foundations for future peace are being substantially strengthened.

The test of the rightfulness of our decisions is whether we have sustained and advanced the ideals of the American people.

We need to reestablish faith that the highest interests of our country are served by insistence upon swift and even-handed administration of justice to all offenders, whether rich or poor.

The first duty of the president under his oath is to secure the enforcement laws.

Our laws are made by the people themselves; theirs is the right to work for their repeal; but until repeal, it is an equal duty to observe them and demand their enforcement.

We still have marines on foreign soil. x x x In a large sense we do not wish to be represented abroad in such manner.

We cannot fail to recognize the obligations of the government in support of public welfare but we must coincidentally bear in mind the burden of taxes and strive to find relief through some tax reduction.

There is no fundamental conflict between the interests of the farmer and the worker. x x x Nor is there any real conflict between the east and the west or the north and the south.

I do not favor the operation by the government of either power or manufacturing business except as an unavoidable by-product of some other major public purpose.

MOTOR FUEL

starting has attention... cold mornings make hot tempers unless there is No - Nox Motor Fuel in your tank.

QUICK winter starting depends upon complete and instant vaporization of gasoline in the combustion chamber... Vaporization depends upon low initial boiling point and low end or dry point... Ordinary gasolines have an end point as high as 437° Fahrenheit... they do not vaporize quickly enough for a quick winter start.

Gulf No-Nox Motor Fuel - Aviation Grade is the perfect winter gasoline... its initial is under 100° Fahrenheit... its end point is 374° Fahrenheit... against 437° Fahrenheit of ordinary gasolines... Complete vaporization takes place at the first pressure of the starter and instant ignition follows... It Stops Knocks... eliminates excessive choking... gives added mileage and More Power.

Remember that any ordinary gasoline may be doped with chemicals for anti-knock purposes but they possess no winter starting value.

DANIELSON

THREE BULLS GO WILD IN TOWN OF BROOKLYN

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, Dec. 3—The services of an experienced cowboy would have been appreciated today by owners of three bulls that have gone "wild" in the southern part of the town of Brooklyn and were being chased by men and dogs in an effort to bring about their capture.

The bulls, all young animals, about a year old, have been at pasture for months and are tarnation set, even though the winter season is at hand, against being brought back to the ways of living followed by domestic cattle during cold weather.

They can, and do, run at amazing speed when pursued, leap walls and fences and dash through wood or brush land with reckless abandon. Efforts of men and dogs to catch them went on today and resulted, as this was being written, in one of the bulls being chased by dogs into a barn on the Alex Rukstela farm, west of Wauregan. This animal belongs to Robert Cooper, who has a farm just off the state highway between Brooklyn and Wauregan. The animals still at large this afternoon belong to Mr. Rukstela and to Leslie Fanning.

Men who have engaged in hunting the bulls for several days past have had some tantalizing, yet amusing, experiences. Once in woodland territory the men had the bulls within a circle of human beings that were slowly closing in on the animals. The bulls watched the cordon tighten in what might be described as a "try and do it" attitude. Then there was action! Those bulls went through that circle, their tails on high, much the same as a set of Yale bucks would crash through a kindergarten line. Just nothing to it at all.

These bulls are not regarded as a menace to the public. They isolate themselves and hide out as much as possible during the day, venturing forth at night to tear down shocks of corn still remaining in fields near where they are and feed upon the corn. They also feast on brussels sprouts and cabbages, or what remains of them, at this time of year. The six inches of snow now upon the ground cramps their style a bit, but they are still going strong, or were this afternoon. Mr. Cooper said this afternoon that if a good cow dog could be obtained the bulls still at large might be rounded up.

A crew of about half a dozen men began today the work of putting up the strings of colored electric lights that will add an attractive holiday touch to Danielson's shopping center during the Christmas season. It is expected that all of this special lighting equipment will be in place by the end of this week. Main street, between Academy and the railroad crossing will be lined with unbroken strings of lights, and other lines of lights will run from Main into Depot square along the route between the Danielson Trust company and Bertolaume buildings. South of the railroad crossing more lines of lights will be run but business men down there are not signed up 100 per cent. as yet. The lights will be turned on December 1, and will burn nightly thereafter until Jan. 2. Tests of them likely will be made prior to Dec. 11. The wires and lights are being put up by a Hartford decorating concern.

A problem that has been discussed every cold weather season for the past decade again obtruded this afternoon as children got out their sleds and "rippers" and proceeded to coasting on streets of the borough where there are hills or sufficiently interesting grades. The danger of being injured or killed by motor cars seemed to be worrying them not at all, yet operators of cars were, in many cases, fearful of becoming involved in an accident with the happy youngsters. The problem, which may or not be settled during the winter, has to do with regulating coasting, as to time and places. In the past it has been practically impossible to get any agreement on this proposition, but it is up again for consideration.

Waldo Wood of East Franklin street was fined $5 in a justice's court in Brooklyn today on a charge of failure to grant the right of way when an accident in which his car figured occurred during the snowstorm of Monday afternoon. Mr. Wood was represented by Attorney Arthur G. Ellis, who entered a demurrer, which was overruled.

Frank Baker of Fitchburg, Mass., has the distinction of being the first to go from the Killingly town court to the county jail at Brooklyn this season on a warrant charge. Judge W. Fenner Woodward sentenced him to serve 180 days, at the end of which time the bluebirds will have returned.

Attorney Berthelot LeClair, born here in 1904, has successfully passed his examinations to practice law in Rhode Island and has opened an office in Woonsocket. One of the first cases that has come to him is an important one in which there is a manslaughter charge against his client.

Danielson's snow shovel brigade went into action this morning for the first time this season and had a covering of about six inches of snow to remove from walks about town. Streets remained slippery today, motorists being obligated to exercise particular care to avoid accidents.

Many of his friends today tendered congratulations to Cashier Francis E. Storer of the Windham County National bank upon his election as president of the Thames Bank and Trust company of Norwich. Mr. Storer's resignation from his position here will be effective Dec. 31.

Mr. and Mrs. Chester Irwin are to leave this week for Florida to remain during the winter season. Mr. Irwin was the professional golfer at the Putnam Country club during the past season and for several months past has been resident here.

A considerable number of the members of Killingly grange and Highland grange, of South Killingly, will be at Plainfield next Saturday for the December meeting of Quinebaug Pomona grange, at which reports of officers will be made.

Fox hunters went abroad from Danielson today, finding the first heavy snow of the season an aid to the chase. Foxes are reported as quite plentiful in this region.

Orpheum theater—three days—today, Thursday and Friday—The Cock-Eyed World—at 2:30 and 8 p. m.—Adv.

Danielson has an imminent prospect of becoming widely known as "Curtainland". J. W. Powdrell of Powdrell and Alexander said that he is contemplating arranging for the erection of large and ornamental signs at sites along the four trunk line entrances to Danielson, these signs to bear the legend "You Are Entering Curtainland, Powdrell and Alexander, Danielson, Conn. Largest Manufacturers of Curtains in the World."

Motorist traveling over dirt highways in outlying sections hereabouts today reported encountering picturesque bob-sleds being drawn by horses over the snow-covered roads.

Mrs. Rachel Mahaney and children of Owosso, Mich., will arrive here this week to visit with Mrs. Mahaney's parents, Town Clerk and Mrs. Frank T. Preston.

George A. LeRoy of Lawrence, Mass., is visiting for a few days with friends in Danielson and vicinity.

Only about 10 days remain for paying personal taxes in Killingly, yet many have not paid as yet.

Through the efforts of the pastor, Rev. Chester J. Armstrong, a new young people's Christian Endeavor organization, has been effected at the Baptist church. Gordon Gallup has been elected president, Miss Gertrude Schroll, vice-president, Miss Mabel Richardson, secretary, Rose Hutchins, treasurer; program committee, Miss Eunice Brown, chairman, Miss Marion Richardson and Russell Chapin; entertainment committee, Miss Helen Packoski, Miss Helen Schroll; information committee, Mrs. Leon Brown, Raymond Allen, Miss Marjorie I. Gaffney; pianist, Miss Cora Brown. There are about 20 members.

JEWETT CITY

POST OFFICE PREPARING FOR CHRISTMAS RUSH

Postmaster W. T. Crumb, and the office force were at work Tuesday preparing the room in the rear of the post office for the handling of holiday parcel post. Former shelves on the wall will be utilized, as well as big separation cases, which will make it possible to arrange for the rush delivery without the many rehandlings which tend to slow down the service. Last Christmas, which established a record for both incoming and outgoing mail, 375 sacks arrived in one day. Reckoning from the railway postal clerks on the road, to the carriers and office forces, every possible condition, as connected with Christmas mail, is benefitted by secure wrapping and early mailing. Mr. Crumb, is urging patrons of this office to do their bit to facilitate the dispatch and delivery of the holiday mail. This office is rated among the top-notchers for Christmas revenue.

The second snow fall of the winter spread a six inch blanket over all this section. The fall of Monday, taken with the two inch flurry of fifteen days ago, by actual measurement is one inch more than came altogether during last winter. Some of the old timers are noting what beautiful sleighing it is today on the state road. The fine steppers that used to be owned locally would look alive some, were they here today, and would make the snow fly with their sharp calks if hitched into the old high-back sleigh. Stored in the loft of a barn not far from here, are three, one-time very popular articles, that would make Henry Ford's "old time things" hunter, sit up and take notice. They are—A great incubator, a Cooley creamer, and a square board high-back sleigh, family size. Their uses now are confined to hay loft spiders and barn roosters.

Mrs. Abraham Zegeer gave a surprise party for her daughter Olga to celebrate her twelfth birthday, Monday evening. The children enjoyed the games, in which prizes were taken by Arlene Symington and Adeline Jaskiewicz. Refreshments were served by Mrs. Zegeer assisted by Mrs. C. L. Howe. A birthday cake with lighted candles, dainty Christmas basket favors, and Christmas table decorations made a gay setting for the happy company. Birthday gifts were presented the hostess. The guests were Misses Virginia Goodenough, Charlotte Albertine, Margery and Eunice Webster, Mary Gertrude Howe, Arlene Symington, Eva Shorey, Leah Gill, Arlene Nichols, Lucille Tomlinson, Adeline Jaskiewicz and Corinne Zegeer.

SNOW PROVIDES WORK FOR MANY UNEMPLOYED

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Dec. 3.—A corps of shovelers under the direction of Frederick Dumas, superintendent of streets, this morning began the task of relieving the principal streets of the city of a blanket of six inches of snow. The first snow removal project of the year called for an increase in the personnel of the street department, thereby creating work for several unemployed. The clearing of streets and crosswalks of snow will be an additional expenditure for the city, although a sufficiently large amount was included in the budget this year in view of the expected winter handicaps.

No accidents of any nature were reported to police in this section last night or today, despite the dangerous, slippery condition of highways following the season's heaviest storm. During Monday night a fleet of plow and sand trucks from the state highway department's headquarters here were on the roads, pushing off the snow and spreading sand on the inclines.

The effects of the storm were felt by the railroad. Gangs of workmen remained on duty many hours after dark clearing snow from the rails and switches. Regular trains passed through this city yesterday only a few minutes behind schedules and no tie-ups whatever were experienced by freight sections running over the New Haven and Midland divisions.

The first snow of the season of any real consequence provided for the revival of sleighing, an ancient winter sport and pastime which nearly passed into oblivion because of light snows in recent years. The feathery flakes were soon packed down hard on the state highways by automobile traffic, an excellent foundation for horse-drawn sleds.

The countryside throughout northern Windham county appeared in its beautiful white winter cloak today. A report this afternoon from Wire Chief W. J. Jones of the local telephone exchange contained no mention of any disruption of exchange service at any point served by the local office. Chief Jones remarked that this incident is quite unusual, as winter storms generally hamper the company's rural lines.

Unless developments that will lead to an apprehension are revealed within a few days in the investigation of burglaries at the Cloverdale store on Front street, Miller Cafeteria on Livery street and Arnold's Sea Grill on Bundy street, the breaks will go on police records as a mystery.

Photographs of finger prints left by burglars in the various stores have been compared with impressions of fingers of suspects but no similarities were found, police said. Captain of Police William J. Jarvis, leading the investigation, maintains his opinion that the breaks were committed by amateur thieves familiar with the layout of the business houses.

Other than finger prints, the only clues obtained by police were a wrecking bar and a lady's embroidered handkerchief which were found at the Cloverdale store.

Police have definitely established the facts that the burglars were in quest of money bags containing the receipts of Wednesdays business transactions which, in the Cloverdale store, were deposited in a place in the wall. It is the intention of the investigators to connect suspects with this motive, which, if successful, will result in the undoing of the culprits, police believe.

The apparatus at the Central fire station in Union square responded to an out-of-town call for assistance this morning at 10 o'clock. Upon arriving at the Whitney farm on Sabin street, the firemen were called upon to extinguish a chimney fire, caused by an overheated stove pipe. No fire loss resulted, Chief R. E. Thurston reported, following the return of the companies to quarters.

Defense counsel in the Superior Credit Corp. case occupied the greater part of the morning session of Worcester county superior court in Worcester today, arguing before Judge Winfred H. Whiting on demurrers to the petition of a minority stockholder of the finance corporation that a receiver be appointed to handle the remaining assets of the former Putnam concern. Services have been secured against all defendants in the Superior Credit case, with the exception of Louis A. Wolfe, formerly of this city, and organizer of the L. A. W. Corp., which preceded the Superior Credit concern, who is in Palestine. Defense lawyers informed Judge Whiting of their inability to serve notice of the impending court action on Wolfe. The probing of the Superior Credit Corp. by Massachusetts state authorities has been closely observed by many Windham county residents who were heavy stockholders.

Upon returning from Willimantic tonight, Attorney Irving H. Miron, counsel for Martin Misiasazek of Main street, this city, stated that his client was sentenced to the county jail to serve a term of nine months at a session of superior court today. Misiasazek was found guilty of a motor violation charge and a manslaughter charge in connection with the death of Thomas Moran, aged resident of Dayville, in Dayville about a month ago.

The case of the reckless driver was the only case attracting local interest at the December session of superior court which convened in Willimantic this morning with Judge Edward M. Yeomans of Danbury presiding. Misiasazek was arrested in Putnam a few minutes after the Dayville man had been killed. Sergt. George Liard of the local police, who made the arrest, in lower court testified that the Putnam driver was under the influence of liquor at the time of his arrest. In court today he pleaded nolo contendere to the charge of operating under the influence of liquor and entered a similar plea on the charge of criminal negligence involving the death of Mr. Moran, Attorney Miron said.

About 25 candidates responded to Coach L. F. Noyes' call for the opening of practice for the basketball season, at the local high school today. Included in the group which answered the call were Carman Leo and Reynolds Deberdinis, veterans of the 1928 squad.

Miss Marjorie Bradford, assistant clerk of superior court, was in Willimantic today at the opening of the December session of superior court.

The fire department answered a still alarm this morning for a chimney fire in the north end of the city. No loss resulted.

PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE TO CONGRESS

be generated at this project. These contracts must assure the return of all government outlays upon the project. I recommend that the necessary funds be appropriated for the initiation of this work as soon as the contracts are in the hands of congress.

Conservation.

Conservation of national resources is a fixed policy of the government. Three important questions bearing upon conservation of the public lands have become urgent.

Conservation of our oil and gas resources against future need is a national necessity. The working of the oil permit system in development of oil and gas resources on the public domain has been subject to great abuse. I considered it necessary to suspend the issuance of such permits and to direct the review of all outstanding permits as to compliance of the holders with the law. The purpose was not only to end such abuse but to place the government in position to review the entire subject.

We are also confronted with a major problem in conservation due to the overgrazing on public lands. The effect of overgrazing (which has now become general) is not only to destroy the ranges but by impairing the ground coverage seriously to menace the water supply in many parts of the west through quick run-off, spring floods, and autumn drought.

We have a third problem of major dimensions in the reconsideration of our reclamation policy. The inclusion of most of the available lands of the public domain in existing or planned reclamation projects largely completes the original purpose of the reclamation service. There still remains the necessity for extensive storage of water in the arid states which renders it desirable that we should give a wider vision and purpose to this service.

To provide for careful consideration of these questions and also of better division of responsibilities in them as between the state and federal governments, including the possible transfer to the states for school purposes of the lands unreserved for forests, parks, power, minerals, etc., I have appointed a commission on conservation of the public domain, with a membership representing the major public land states and at the same time the public at large. I recommend that congress should authorize a moderate sum to defray their expenses.

Social Service.

The federal government provides for an extensive and valuable program of constructive social service, in education, home building, protection to women and children, employment, public health, recreation, and many other directions.

In a broad sense federal activity in these directions has been confined to research and dissemination of information and experience, and at most to temporary subsidies to the states in order to secure uniform advancement in practice and methods. Any other attitude by the federal government will undermine one of the most precious possessions of the American people; that is local and individual responsibility. We should adhere to this policy.

Federal officials can, however, make a further and most important contribution by leadership in stimulation of the community and voluntary agencies, and by extending federal assistance in organization of these forces and bringing about cooperation among them.

As an instance of this character, I have recently, in cooperation with the secretaries of interior and labor, laid the foundations of an exhaustive inquiry into the facts precedent to a nation-wide white house conference on child health and protection. This cooperative movement among interested agencies will impose no expense upon the government. Similar nation-wide conferences will be called in connection with better housing and recreation at a later date.

In view of the considerable difference of opinion as to the policies which should be pursued by the federal government with respect to education, I have appointed a committee representative of the important educational associations and others to investigate and present recommendations. In cooperation with the secretary of the interior, I have also appointed a voluntary committee of distinguished membership to assist in a nation-wide movement for abolition of illiteracy.

I have recommended additional appropriations for the federal employment service in order that it may more fully cover its cooperative work with state and local services. I have also recommended additional appropriations for the women's and children's bureaus for much-needed research as to facts which I feel will prove most helpful.

Public Health.

The advance in scientific discovery as to disease and health imposes new considerations upon us. The nation as a whole is vitally interested in the health of all the people; in protection from spread of contagious diseases; in the relation of physical and mental disabilities to criminality; and in the economic and moral advancement which is fundamentally associated with sound body and mind. The organization of preventive measures and health education in its personal application is the province of public health service. Such organization should be as universal as public education. Its support is a proper burden upon the taxpayer. It can not be organized with success, either in its sanitary or educational phases, except under public authority. It should be based upon local and state responsibility, but I consider that the federal government has an obligation of contribution to the establishment of such agencies.

In the practical working out of organization, exhaustive experiment and trial have demonstrated that the base should be competent organization of the municipality, county, or other local unit. Most of our municipalities and some 400 rural counties out of 3,000 now have some such unit organization. Where highly developed, a health unit comprises at least a physician, sanitary engineer, and community nurse with the addition, in some cases, of another nurse devoted to the problems of maternity and children. Such organization gives at once a fundamental control of preventive measures and assists in community instruction. The federal government, through its interest in control of contagion, acting through the United States public health service and the state agencies, has in the past and should in the future concern itself with this development, particularly in the many rural sections which are unfortunately far behind in progress. Some parts of the funds contributed under the Sheppard-Towner act through the children's bureau of the department of labor have also found their way into these channels.

I recommend to the congress that the purpose of the Sheppard-Towner act should be continued through the children's bureau for a limited period of years; and that the congress should consider the desirability of confining the use of federal funds by the states to the building up of such county or other local units, and that such outlay should be positively coordinated with the funds expended through the United States public health service directed to other phases of the same county or other local unit organization. All funds appropriated should of course be applied through the states, so that the public health program of the county or local unit will be efficiently coordinated with that of the whole state.

Federal Prisons.

Closely related to crime conditions is the administration of the federal prison system. Our federal penal institutions are overcrowded, and this condition is daily becoming worse. The parole and probation systems are inadequate. These conditions make it impossible to perform the work of personal reconstruction of prisoners so as to prepare them for return to the duties of citizenship. In order to relieve the pressing evils I have directed the temporary transfer of the army disciplinary barracks at Leavenworth to the department of justice for use as a federal prison. Not only is this temporary but it is inadequate for present needs.

We need some new federal prisons and a reorganization of our probation and parole systems; and there should be established in the department of justice a bureau of prisons with a sufficient force to deal adequately with the growing activities of our prison institutions. Authorization for the improvements should be given speedily, with initial appropriations to allow the construction of the new institutions to be undertaken at once.

Immigration.

Restriction of immigration has from every aspect proved a sound national policy. Our pressing problem is to formulate a method by which the limited number of immigrants whom we do welcome shall be adapted to our national setting and our national needs.

I have been opposed to the basis of the quotas now in force and I have hoped that we could find some practical method to secure what I believe should be our real national objective; that is, fitness of the immigrant as to physique, character, training, and our need of service. Perhaps some system of priorities within the quotas could produce these results and at the same time enable some hardships in the present system to be cleared up. I recommend that the congress should give the subject further study, in which the executive departments will gladly cooperate with the hope of discovering such method as will more fully secure our national necessities.

Veterans.

It has been the policy of our government almost from its inception to make provision for the men who have been disabled in defense of our country. This policy should be maintained. Originally it took the form of land grants and pensions. This system continued until our entry into the world war. The congress at that time inaugurated a new plan of compensation, rehabilitation, hospitalization, medical care and treatment, and insurance, whereby benefits were awarded to those veterans and their immediate dependents whose disabilities were attributable to their war service. The basic principle in this legislation is sound.

In a desire to eliminate all possibilities of injustice due to difficulties in establishing service connection of disabilities, these principles have been to some degree extended. Veterans whose diseases or injuries have become apparent within a brief period after the war are now receiving compensation; insurance benefits have been liberalized. Emergency officers are now receiving additional benefits. The doors of the government's hospitals have been opened to all veterans, even though their diseases or injuries were not the result of their war service. In addition adjusted service certificates have been issued to 3,433,300 veterans. This in itself will mean an expenditure of nearly $3,500,000,000 before 1945, in addition to the $600,000,000 which we are now appropriating annually for our veterans' relief.

The administration of all laws concerning the veterans and their dependents has been upon the basis of dealing generously, humanely, and justly. While some inequalities have arisen, substantial and adequate care has been given and justice administered. Further improvement in administration may require some amendment from time to time to the law, but care should be taken to see that such changes conform to the basic principles of the legislation.

I am convinced that we will gain in efficiency, economy, and more uniform administration and better definition of national policies if the pension bureau, the national home for volunteer soldiers, and the veterans bureau are brought together under a single agency. The total appropriations to these agencies now exceed $800,000,000 per annum.

Civil Service.

Approximately four-fifths of all the employes in the executive civil service now occupy positions subject to competitive examination under the civil service law.

There are, however, still commanding opportunities for extending the system. These opportunities lie within the province of congress and not the president. I recommend that a further step be taken by authorization that appointments of third-class postmasters be made under the civil service law.

Departmental Reorganization.

This subject has been under consideration for over 20 years. It was promised by both political parties in the recent campaign. It has been repeatedly examined by committees and commissions—congressional, executive, and voluntary. The conclusions of these investigations have been unanimous that reorganization is a necessity of sound administration; of economy; of more effective governmental policies and of relief to the citizen from unnecessary harassment in his relations with a multitude of scattered governmental agencies. But the presentation of any specific plan at once enlivens opposition from every official whose authority may be curtailed or who fears his position is imperiled by such a result; of bureaus and departments which wish to maintain their authority and activities; of citizens and their organizations who are selfishly interested, or who are inspired by fear that their favorite bureau may, in a new setting, be less subject to their influence or more subject to some other influence.

It seems to me that the essential principles of reorganization are two in number. First, all administrative activities of the same major purpose should be placed in groups under single-headed responsibility; second, all executive and administrative functions should be separated from boards and commissions and placed under individual responsibility, while quasi-legislative and quasi-judicial and broadly advisory functions should be removed from individual authority and assigned to boards and commissions. Indeed, these are the fundamental principles upon which our government was founded, and they are the principles which have been adhered to in the whole development of our business structure, and they are the distillation of the common sense of generations.

For instance, the conservation of national resources is spread among eight agencies in five departments. They suffer from conflict and overlap. There is no proper development and adherence to broad national policies and no central point where the searchlight of public opinion may concentrate itself. These functions should be grouped under the direction of some such official as an assistant secretary of conservation. The particular department or cabinet officer under which such a group should be placed is of secondary importance to the need of concentration. The same may be said of educational services, of merchant marine aids, of public works, of public health, of veterans' services, and many others, the component parts of which are widely scattered in the various departments and independent agencies. It is desirable that we first have experience with these different groups in action before we create new departments. These may be necessary later on.

With this background of all previous experience I can see no hope for the development of a sound reorganization of the government unless congress be willing to delegate its authority over the problem (subject to defined principles) to the executive, who should act upon approval of a joint committee of congress or with the reservation of power of revision by congress within some limited period adequate for its consideration.

Prohibition.

The first duty of the president under his oath of office is to secure the enforcement of the laws. The enforcement of the laws enacted to give effect to the eighteenth amendment is far from satisfactory and this is in part due to the inadequate organization of the administrative agencies of the federal government. With the hope of expediting such reorganization, I requested on June 6 last that congress should appoint a joint committee to collaborate with executive agencies in preparation of legislation. It would be helpful if it could be so appointed. The subject has been earnestly considered by the law enforcement commission and the administrative officials of the government. Our joint conclusions are that certain steps should be taken at once. First, there should be an immediate concentration of responsibility and strengthening of enforcement agencies of the federal government by transfer to the department of justice of the federal functions of detection and to a considerable degree of prosecution, which are now lodged in the prohibition bureau in the treasury; and at the same time the control of the distribution of industrial alcohol and legalized beverages should remain in the treasury. Second, provision should be made for relief of congestion in the federal courts by modifying and simplifying the procedure for dealing with the large volume of petty prosecutions under various federal acts. Third, there should be a codification of the laws relating to prohibition to avoid the necessity which now exists of resorting to more than 25 statutes enacted at various times over 40 years. Technical defects in these statutes that have been disclosed should be cured. I would add to these recommendations the desirability of reorganizing the various services engaged in the prevention of smuggling into one border patrol under the coast guard. Further recommendations upon the subject as a whole will be developed after further examination by the law enforcement commission, but it is not to be expected that any criminal law will ever be fully enforced so long as criminals exist.

The District of Columbia should be the model of city law enforcement in the nation. While conditions here are much better than in many other cities, they are far from perfect, and this is due in part to the congestion of criminal cases in the supreme court of the district, resulting in long delays. Furthermore, there is need for legislation in the district supplementing the national prohibition act, more sharply defining and enlarging the duties and powers of the district commissioners and the police of the district, and opening the way for better cooperation in the enforcement of prohibition between the district officials and the prohibition officers of the federal government. It is urgent that these conditions be remedied.

Law Enforcement and Observance

No one will look with satisfaction upon the volume of crime of all kinds and the growth of organized crime in our country. We have pressing need so to organize our system of administering criminal justice as to establish full vigor and effectiveness. We need to reestablish faith that the highest interests of our country are served by insistence upon the swift and even-handed administration of justice to all offenders, whether they be rich or poor. That we shall effect improvement is vital to the preservation of our institutions. It is the most serious issue before our people.

Under the authority of congress I have appointed a national commission on law observance and enforcement, for an exhaustive study of the entire problem of the enforcement of our laws and the improvement of our judicial system, including the special problems and abuses growing out of the prohibition laws. The commission has been invited to make the widest inquiry into the shortcomings of the administration of justice and into the causes and remedies for them. It has organized its work under subcommittees dealing with the many contributory causes of our situation and has enlisted the aid of investigators in fields requiring special consideration. I am confident that as a result of its studies now being carried forward it will make a notable contribution to the solution of our pressing problems.

Pending further legislation, the department of justice has been striving to weed out inefficiency wherever it exists, to stimulate activity on the part of its prosecuting officers, and to use increasing care in examining into the qualifications of those appointed to serve as prosecutors. The department is seeking systematically to strengthen the law enforcement agencies week by week and month by month, not by dramatic displays but by steady pressure; by removal of negligent officials and by encouragement and assistance to the vigilant. During the course of these efforts it has been revealed that in some districts causes contributing to the congestion of criminal dockets, and to delays and inefficiency in prosecutions, have been lack of sufficient forces in the offices of United States attorneys, clerks of courts, and marshals. These conditions tend to clog the machinery of justice. The last conference of senior circuit judges has taken note of them and indorsed the department's proposals for improvement. Increases in appropriations are necessary and will be asked for in order to reenforce these offices.

The orderly administration of the law involves more than the mere machinery of law enforcement. The efficient use of that machinery and a spirit in our people in support of law are alike essential. We have need for improvement in both. However much we may perfect the mechanism, still if the citizen who is himself dependent upon some laws for the protection of all that he has and all that he holds dear, shall insist on selecting the particular laws which he will obey, he undermines his own safety and that of his country. His attitude may obscure but it can not conceal the ugly truth that the lawbreaker, whoever he may be, is the enemy of society. We can no longer gloss over the unpleasant reality which should be made vital in the consciousness of every citizen, that he who condones or traffics with crime, who is indifferent to it and to the punishment of the criminal, or to the lax performance of official duty, is himself the most effective agency for the breakdown of society.

Law can not rise above its source in good citizenship. In what right-minded men most earnestly believe and desire, if the law is upheld only by government officials, then all law is at an end. Our laws are made by the people themselves; theirs is the right to work for their appeal; but until repealed it is an equal duty to observe them and demand their enforcement.

I have been gratified at the awakening sense of this responsibility in our citizens during the past few months, and gratified that many instances have occurred which refuted the cynicism which has asserted that our system could not convict those who had defied the law and possessed the means to resist its execution. These things reveal a moral awakening both in the people and in officials which lies at the very foundation of the rule of law.

Conclusion.

The test of the rightfulness of our decisions must be whether we have sustained and advanced the ideals of the American people; self-government as the foundations of local government; justice whether to the individual or to the group; ordered liberty; freedom from domination; open opportunity and equality of opportunity; the initiative and individuality of our people; prosperity and the lessening of poverty; freedom of public opinion; education; advancement of knowledge; the growth of religious spirit; the tolerance of all faiths; the foundations of the home and the advancement of peace.

MOOSUP

Leonard Wilkinson, 7, was struck and badly cut about the head by an automobile driven by Mrs. Albertus Briggs, Thursday noon. The boy and a playmate, Charles Collins, were leaving Miss Freda Eyers' car at the intersection of the main highway from Central Village to Moosup and the Green Hollow road. Miss Eyers was returning from teaching in the Central grammar school and had often given the school children a ride toward their homes. Miss Eyers had helped the Wilkinson boy out, on the right, on the old trolley embankment. Her attention was then directed to helping the Collins boy out, when she heard the sudden screeching of brakes. The Wilkinson boy must have jumped from the bank to the road to run across without looking, for he was struck and quite badly hurt. Mrs. Briggs stopped her car immediately, as she came from the rear and attempted to pass Miss Eyers. A Providence man with a truck picked up the injured boy and drove him to Dr. Downing's, in Moosup. There were many cuts and bruises about the head especially and it is thought there may be other injuries. Miss Eyers reported the accident to Mrs. Wilkinson, Stewart Ellsworth, of Central Village, who happened along, drove Mrs Briggs into Moosup.

When the annual Thanksgiving union service of the Fifteen Church fellowship was held Wednesday evening in Moosup Methodist Episcopal church, the pastor, Rev. A. Elwyn Tingley, presided. The invocation, the scriptural reading and the prayer were by Rev. R. W. E. DeWolfe, Rev. William Williams and Rev. William C. Prentiss, respectively. Rev. George Reese gave the address, calling on the people not to forget the giver of every good and perfect gift, not to forget the good experiences and blessings and not to forget to teach the coming generation the meaning of appreciative living. Mr. Reese showed the tendency to forget when prosperity comes, also when festivity and reunion tend to monopolize the day. Benefits always, said the speaker, obligate the one benefited and especially the greatest benefit, the experience of forgiveness and a new chance daily given by God. After all, dependence for achievement and progress is on God and upon holy days more than upon holidays. Everett Dawson was at the organ and John Downs, of Wauregan, sang.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Mortimer gave a birthday dinner in honor of their daughter, Marjorie, Sunday afternoon. Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Roberts, Miss Freda Eyers and Muriel Doan were present.

Mr. and Mrs. P. S. Aultman, of Alston, Mass., spent the recent holiday at Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Roberts'.

FUNERAL.

George Rowland.

George Rowland, 90, well known and respected in Canterbury, where he lived for many years, passed away at the home of his son, Charles, in Providence, Nov. 27. He was born in Derbyshire, England, June 30, 1839 and came to America in 1867. In his youth he was employed in mill work. In 1876 he purchased a farm in Canterbury, where he made his home until compelled by advancing age to go to live with his children. Mr. Rowland was twice married, his first wife being Mrs. Sarah Reed, a native of Manchester, England. Of the five children born to them three are living: Mrs. Hattie Stewart, Springfield, Mass.; Joseph of Pelham Manor, N. Y., and Charles, of Poquonoc, Groton, Conn. There are several grandchildren. He married again late in life Mrs. Ellen White, of Taftville, his wife surviving only a few years. While in Canterbury, Mr. Rowland was a faithful attendant and member of the Congregational church and served as deacon for several years. He was interested in the grange and held a number of offices, being at one time master.

Funeral services were conducted at the church on the Green at two o'clock Saturday, by the pastor, Rev. Harry Small, assisted by a clergyman from Poquonoc. It seemed most fitting that these last rites should be in this place where his old time friends and associates could attend. The bearers were Hale Bennett, Nathan Exley, Malcolm Wibberly and Clinton Frink. Burial was in the family lot in Carey cemetery.

Several houses in the village are being illuminated with electricity, the current having been turned on last week.

STOCK MARKET WAS STEADY DURING GENERAL RISE IN PRICES YESTERDAY

NEW YORK, Dec. 3—(AP)—The stock market hailed President Hoover's message to congress today with the most marked measure of prices since the return of normalcy.

Not since the two-day technical rally from the late bear market's bottom, reached on Nov. 13, have stocks scored such broad advances. The more popular trading shares generally rose 1 to 15 points, while a few erratic issues shot up 12 to 24.

The hesitancy which the stock market often displays on the convening of congress, due to legislative uncertainties, was notably lacking. The strong forward movement was in face of indications that the session will bring forth acrimonious attacks upon speculation.

The market displayed pronounced self-control, however, trading picked up considerably, 3,309,150 shares changing hands, compared to 2,513,240 yesterday, but the day's turnover was moderate compared to those of the bull epoch of not so long ago.

Particularly pleasing to Wall street were the president's statements expressing his belief that confidence in economic progress had been restored, that new construction and expanding foreign trade will tend to stabilize conditions, that uncertainties over the tariff should be minimized, that rail consolidation should be pressed, and that the government should refrain where possible from ousting of power in manufacturing enterprises.

Bright spots of the day's industrial developments were the increase in wages at the Ford plants and Edsel Ford's description of next year's cutout as "excellent;" disclosure that the J. C. Penney organization is studying means of improving distribution, and that a merger with Sears Roebuck may results the interstate commerce commission examiner's approval of the Missouri Pacific Consolidation plan; developments in the plans to curtail crude oil production as described at the meeting of the American Petroleum Institute, and another assortment of what Wall street calls 'Christmas' dividends.

Credit continued to cheapen. Although call money held officially at 4 1-2 per cent, time money was reduced to 4 1-2 per cent flat for all maturities, and some commercial paper was moved as low as 5 per cent. Bankers reported, however, that the holiday outflow of funds from this center had begun, and a strong demand for short term investments indicated that the spline of funds at this center pending decisions as to employment for longer terms, had produced a somewhat artificial situation.

The stock exchange announced that member borrowings during November had declined $2,092,000,000, carrying the total to the lowest level in two years. This total, which is more inclusive than the weekly federal reserve figures, was somewhat smaller than anticipated, as loans placed through federal reserve member banks declined approximately as much over the corresponding period. Also, the condition statement of weekly reporting reserve member banks again indicated that bank loans on security collateral were not declining as rapidly as brokers loans.

Utilities were particularly buoyant. Standard Gas closed about 15 points higher. Among shares to close about 7 to 12 points higher were Air Reduction, American Tobacco, American Water Works, General Electric, Johns Manville, Sears Roebuck, Missouri Pacific and International Business Machines. U. S. Steel, American Can, International Telephone and Columbia Gas each each mounted about 5 points, and American Telephone and Radio, about 3. Auburn Auto shot up 30 points, and closed up 24. Laclede Gas gained 17 1-2.

Commodities generally went up with stocks. Wheat futures gained about 2 1-2 cents a bushel, aided by export demand and higher prices at Winnipeg. Corn gained about 1 1-2 cents, reflecting, in part, unfavorable weather. Cotton futures scored gains of around $1 a bale.

Foreign exchanges were firm. Sterling Cables reached the high level of the year at $4.88 1-16, which is around the outgoing gold point, and may cause shipments of the yellow metal to London.

COTTON

NEW YORK, Dec. 3—(AP)—Cotton futures closed very steady, 15 to 27 points higher; spot steady; middling 17.65.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, Dec. 3.—(AP)—Brisk upturns in wheat values today accompanied broad general buying here, together with North American wheat export business totaling 1,790,000 bushels. Cables were at hand saying that Argentine wheat crop conditions in some sections had become pitiful. Conservative Argentine interests estimated the Argentine new crop exportable wheat surplus at but 90,000,000 bushels maximum.

Chicago closing quotations on wheat were unsettled 2 1-4c to 2 7-8c a bushel higher than yesterday's finish. Corn closed at 1@1 1-8c to 1 1-2c net advance, oats 5-8c to 7-8c up, and provisions unchanged to a rise of 30c.

Bulging prices at Buenos Aires and Liverpool gave increasing emphasis to wheat crop damage news today from Argentina. Late dispatches said the Buenos Aires market had risen as much as 5 3-8c a bushel, and evidence was at hand which seemed to show that wheat losses would be especially severe in the southern sections of Argentina, where threshing has not yet started. Advices from Cordoba province told of yields one-third or less of normal. Highest quotations of the day for wheat were attained in consequence partly of a telegraphic error which speculated a much higher close of the Liverpool market than was actually the case. The mistake was quickly corrected, but not soon enough to prevent a fast temporary extra jump in values here.

Accelerating the general upward impetus of the Chicago grain market was a statement from authoritative sources purporting to show what world wheat requirements this season promise now to use up completely the current world crop and surplus stocks as well, leaving consumers again dependent upon hand-to-mouth buying methods. Heavy profit-taking sales on today's advances were largely responsible for late unsettlement of the Chicago market. Deliveries of wheat today on Chicago December contracts were again formidable, 2,886,000 bushels, but attracted only passing notice.

Corn and oats climbed with wheat, notwithstanding that price advances for corn brought about somewhat enlarged rural offerings.

Provisions reflected curtailment of warehouse stocks of lard, and also were responsive to upturns in hog values.

BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, Dec. 3—(AP)—The competition offered by the rising stock market failed to check the advance of bonds today, and the entire list moved upward, easily overcoming moderate early selling that was apparently for the purpose of providing funds for share investments.

Nearly two dozen issues, representing all domestic groups, went into new high ground for the year and numerous others equalled their previous maximums. The Associated Press combined average reached a new top for the movement at 95.65, more than a point above the composite price of a month ago. Volume of trading, however, fell 33,000,000 below yesterday's total.

The easiness of time money contributed largely to the market's strength. All maturities were quoted at 4 1-2 per cent flat, and although that rate had appeared before in the last few weeks, money brokers reported that transactions were actually made today on this basis for the first time since March, 1928. Both call and time funds continued in plentiful supply.

United States government securities were inactive, but several of the listings touched new highs for the year on the light sales. Utility loans found excellent support and were closed followed by the rails. Industrials marked time.

With stocks showing marked vitality, interest in convertible debentures quickened. American Telephone 4 1-2s, changing hands to the extent of more than $1,100,000 for the first time in several sessions, closed with a net gain of 2 1-2 points after making a maximum advance of 4. International Telephone 4 1-2s rose 5.

Forenoon offerings left the list well patched with minus signs at noon, but the demand proved larger than the supply and the afternoon hours converted losses into gains. There was good inquiry for the rails, and it was in this group that most of the new highs developed. Rises of more than a point came in Baltimore & Ohio refunding 6s, St. Paul General 4s, Burlington 3 1-2s, Great Northern 4 1-2s, Lehigh Valley (Pennsylvania) 4 1-2s, New Haven 3 1-2s, and Toledo, St. Louis & Western first 5s. Southern Railway General 6s were exceptionally strong, advancing 3 points to a new top.

Oil company loans extended their recent gains and several closed near their best 1929 prices. International Cement convertible 5s rose a point coincident with the publication of a favorable earnings report. International Match 5s and International Paper 5s were other strong industrials, both making new highs. National Dairy 5 1-4s and Paramount Famous Lasky 6s stood out in the specialty group. Most of the dealings in the utilities were in small blocks, but these bonds had little difficulty in rising under the leadership of the telephone company obligations.

The strength of South American listings was a feature of the higher foreign division. European governments were firm.

POETRY

The Naughty Mermaid!

A mischievous and willful maid was she.
Her mother often sighed and said: "I wish you would behave—
You're the baddest little mermaid in the sea!

"You swim in dangerous waters, where the rolling ocean swells,
In channels where the currents swiftly flow.
You will not go to school, but play around among reefs and shells.
In places where no mermaid ought to go.

"With a lot of rude sea-urchins you go scampering everywhere,
I really don't see why you can't be good
As any well-conducted mermaid should."

But the naughty little mermaid heeded not this good advice—
She never would attend the school of fish;
And with the rude sea-urchins she though that was nice
To swim around wherever she might wish.

Now what do you think happened to this mermaid so perverse?
One day she caught the measles—yes, she did!
Oh, she was a sorry little invalid!

Old Dr. Shark was called and he prescribed some seaweed tea.
And said they must cut off her lovely hair.
Now, mermaids' hair won't grow again, so ever after she
A little ruffled cap was forced to wear.

But when that little mermaid grew well and strong once more
She determined she would be as good as gold.
She never played such naughty tricks as she had done before.
And she always did what ever she was told.

—Carolyn Wells.

Twilight.

Stars begin peeping,
A moon creeps high.
Lend zephyrs on water,
Sweet night is night.

Shadows no longer,
Somewhere a sigh.
Our souls are but weeping,
A day gone by.

Is there an after?
Needless, suppose.
Dawn is all laughter,
Night — repose.

—John Harsen Rhoades in Random Thoughts of a Man at Fifty.

"On the rocks."—Vancouver Province.

A farmer has lost his temper trying to drive two mules into a field. He was applying a hearty dose of strong language when the local parson came along.

"Why?" asked the parson.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORY

Mrs. Reddy Sees the Turkeys.

By Thornton W. Burgess.

When there's something to be done,
Two are twice as good as one.
—Reddy Fox.

Reddy Fox could think of nothing but turkeys. All the day following his discovery of those turkeys on a distant farm Reddy thought about turkeys while he was awake and dreamed about them while he was asleep. It seemed to him that never in all his life had he wanted anything quite as much as he wanted one of those turkeys. He could hardly wait for jolly, round, red Mr. Sun to go to bed behind the Purple Hills. Just as soon as the first of the Black Shadows appeared Reddy was prepared to start.

"Come on, my dear," he said impatiently to Mrs. Reddy.

"Where?" demanded Mrs. Reddy.

"Why, to see those turkeys that I found last night of course," replied Reddy.

"What's the good of going 'way over there when you know you can't get them?" Mrs. Reddy demanded.

"Listen, my dear," said Reddy. "Over on that farm is just as good hunting as there is anywhere around here. We are sure of getting something to eat, even if we don't get a turkey, and there is always a chance that one of those turkeys may roost low enough for us to get him, or perhaps not go up in a tree at all. Come along, my dear; come along."

Mrs. Reddy hesitated. Then she decided that she would at least go over and see those turkeys. So off they trotted, Mrs. Reddy at Reddy's heels. And so at last they reached the farm where the turkeys lived.

Reddy stopped at some little distance from the farmyard. He had no intention of taking any unnecessary risks.

"What are you waiting for?" demanded Mrs. Reddy. "I want to see those turkeys."

"You'll see them," promised Reddy. "I don't want to go up there until those lights in that farmhouse go out. If that farmer ever suspects that there are any foxes around, we shall never have a chance to get one of those turkeys. We must get one before he knows that we know where they are."

So Reddy and Mrs. Reddy spent the time hunting mice down in the meadow. Mrs. Reddy had very good luck and this made her better natured. Yes, sir, this made her better natured. Reddy was not so successful, but he didn't mind. I'm afraid his thoughts were not on mice. His thoughts were on turkeys. By and by the lights went out. Mrs. Reddy was for going up there right away, but Reddy wouldn't. He wanted to be sure that every one was asleep. Finally he led the way.

When he reached the orchard the moon was shining bright. Reddy led the way to a certain apple-tree over near the barn. "There, do you see em?" he whispered.

Reddy was watching Mrs. Reddy sharply. He saw the gleam that came into her eyes when she saw the twelve great birds roosting in the trees and he was satisfied. He knew that now he would have a willing partner in all his plans.

"My, my, my," whispered Mrs. Reddy, "how big they are! Do you suppose we could kill one even if we could get to it?"

"Trust me for that," replied Reddy. "Just let me get hold of the neck of one of those birds; that's all I ask. I believe one of those turkeys is roosting lower than he did last night. Now, my dear, what do you think of my discovery?"

"I think," replied Mrs. Reddy, "that we won't go home tonight. We'll stay somewhere around here until we get one of those turkeys."

"Just as you say, my dear, just as you say. That suits me," replied Reddy.

TUNNEY TELLS SPORTS WRITERS THAT HE NEVER WILL RETURN TO THE RING

By EDWARD J. NEIL
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

NEW YORK, Dec. 3.—(AP)— Gene Tunney came home today with his bride and it was just like old times again with sports writers rushing to meet him, cameramen shouting and clicking lenses from all angles, and a crowd waiting at the pier.

The retired heavyweight champion of the world sailed into port on the liner Vulcania with Mrs. Tunney, the former Polly Lauder, for whom he renounced the ring after knocking out Tom Heeney in July of 1928 in his farewell to Saltscuffin. Tunney and Miss Lauder, society girl, were married in Rome, October 2, 1928.

Although it occasioned no surprise, Tunney made it clear in a formal statement that he had retired permanently from the boxing game.

"The echo of a rumor at home that I am contemplating returning to the boxing game reached me in Italy," the statement said. "This is in no sense true for I have permanently ended my public career. My great wish now is to live quietly and simply, for this manner of living brings me most happiness."

Any hope the former champion might have had of a formal and dignified dismissal of this and kindred subjects was dissipated soon after sixty newspapermen and photographers climbed aboard the liner, three days overdue from Naples, at quarantine. Tunney met the press, shook hands all around and passed out the printed slips.

"In strict confidence," he said, "this is all I have to say."

It was just like old times but immediately he was bombarded with questions, cut out from the crowd of admirers, and hustled into a vacant stateroom where, in the manner of other days, the "vacuum" was applied. The old champion hesitated a moment and then gave in.

Except for a wrinkle or two around the eyes, he was the old "Gene" of his fighting days, courteous, affable, chock full of interest in static events that have transpired in his absence and apparently in splendid physical condition. He said he weighed 192 1-2 pounds today the same poundage he scaled for Heeney. He talked eagerly of the prize ring he had abandoned but refused to discuss any phase of the suits brought against him for alleged breach of promise by Mrs. Katherine King Fogarty and alienation of affections by John Fogarty.

He said that Mrs. Tunney, who was operated upon for appendicitis abroad, had completely recovered her health and that there was no truth in the reports that he had undergone a similar operation. His appreciation of Bernard Shaw, Irish literary champion, who visited the Tunney villa at Brioni, Italy, frequently was so great that Gene hardly could find words to express himself, finally he named Shaw "a great fellow."

When asked to name two prominent heavyweights Gene answered "Primo Carnera" and went on to explain that the heavyweight is really six feet ten inches tall and weighs 283 pounds.

"Carnera has the biggest feet in the world," he said, "and the ankles of an elephant."

Among other things, Tunney said that his fortune had not been injured in the recent stock market crash, that he had no business prospects in view, and expected to "settle down" in Stamford, Conn. He was sea-sick four days on the rough trip across the Atlantic.

Gene said that Jack Sharkey's knockout of Tommy Loughran did not surprise him and that Max Schmeling, Paul Scott, Otto Von Porat and Sharkey seemed the best of the present contenders for the heavyweight title. Loughran, he said, had a "tremendous personality aside from boxing" but Tommy "has never acquired the complete science of the ring."

"This is home," he answered. "How long does anyone stay there?"

DIEGEL SETS NEW RECORD IN P. G. A. PLAY

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 3—(AP)—In a first round crowded with all the thrills in golf—upsets, comebacks and a new course record—the "big guns" of the professional ranks moved through today's opening 36 hole matches in quest of the 1929 championship of the Professional Golfers association.

The most dazzling round ever clubbed out of the rolling fairways and tricky greens of the Hillcrest Country club course saw Leo Diegel of Arua Caliente, defending champion, post a morning card of 64, seven under par. He eliminated P. O. Hart of Wheeling, W. Va., by the lopsided score of 10-8. Diegel's 64 bettered by one stroke the former competitive record set yesterday by Fred Morrison of Los Angeles, medalist.

Hardly less spectacular than Diegel's scoring feat was the great "comeback" of Walter Hagen, present British champion and holder of the P. G. A. title five times in the past. Hagen overwhelmed Bob Shave, Aurora, Ohio, 9-8 today. Yesterday Hagen barely squeezed into the qualifying class with a poor 149.

Tied for thirty second place with four others, "The Hair" was forced to play off the deadlock for the remaining two places in the qualifying list. Two dropped out before darkness compelled a halt. Last night Harry Cooper of Buffalo was ruled ineligible for play and his withdrawal enabled Hagen and his partners-in-tie to continue in the tournament.

Championship hopes of two strong contenders were scattered over Hillcrest's fairways. Horton Smith, who has blazed a sensational trail since he came out of Joplin, Mo., last year was toppled over by Craig Wood, Long Island, N. Y., winner of the recent Hawaiian open. Three down at the 27th, Smith made a "garrison finish" to square the match at the 36th but lost out on the next hole. Wood snared a birdie three to win.

In the other upset, Neal Christian, of Portland, Ore., defeated Frank Walsh of Chicago, 6 and five. Christian, hardly figured to take the measure of a campaigner of Walsh's caliber, toured the course in sixty-six for his morning round, to hold a five up lead at the half way point.

Gene Sarazen and Johnny Farrell, former national open title-holders, advanced to the second round. Farrell was pressed a bit to beat out John Golden, Patterson, N. J., one up while Sarazen had less difficulty in eliminating Jock Hendry, St. Paul, 3 and 2.

The medalist, Morrison, removed Joe Kirkwood, Philadelphia, from the ranks of contenders, five and four, and William Mehlhorn, New York, had an easy time beating Guy Paulsen, Chicago, 7-6.

Upper half—

Larry Nabholtz, Houston, Tex., defeated Albert Aucroft, Youngstown, Ohio, 1 up.

Al Watrous, Detroit, defeated Neal McIntyre, Indianapolis, 4 and 3.

Lower half—

The teams kept the fans excited with a prolonged burst of jamming following the nine o'clock sprints tonight while the spectators did their part by offering several prizes for sprints.

Three teams, McNamara and Belloni, Letourner and Brocardo and Spencer and Duetberg were in a triple tie for first place at midnight.

The standing at 12 midnight, 51st hour, was 835 miles, 9 laps for the leaders.

Susie Says

I saw an advertising sign on the front of one of our leading business houses the other day that read, "Come In and Shake Hands."

Now I wonder if they are in earnest about that adv. Do they really mean it literally or is there a qualifying phrase that should go with it like: "If you have any money to do business with."

If they really mean what they say it sure is a fine spirit to show even if they know the public won't take them up on it. But believe me, what a great surprise they'd get if the public did take them at their word.

Just imagine the number of people that pass that placard every hour of the day. And just imagine what would happen if everybody should obey that sign.

Here's the situation: It's a busy day and everybody in the place is scratching to get his work done. In comes a seedy looking individual and braces up to the head boy and sticks out a grimy paw.

"Howdy," says the seedy individual. "How's tricks? I saw your sign out front and as I just come to town I thought I'd get acquainted." "Nice joint you got here, ain't nothing like where I come from."

Can't you just see the bored look that spreads over the face of the chief executive? He shuffles his papers and mumbles something about it's being his busy day.

And before the seedy individual has got through telling about things up where he comes from another has dropped in for a handshake. And before long there's a waiting line of handshakers cluttering up the place.

Business is at a standstill. The chief's arm hangs at his side, a total wreck. There's a haggard expression on his face and he looks like he'd like to clean house with a riot gun. But he can't, there may be a possible customer in that crowd.

But he knows darned well what he'd do if he can get a minute off from the handshaking. He'll go outside and tear down that darned invitation to "come in and shake hands" and put up another that reads, "No handshakers need come in."

TOPORCER CASE TAKEN UP AT MEETING; NEKOLA SHIFTED

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., Dec. 3.—(AP)—The case of George Toporcer, Rochester, N. Y., infielder, occupied the baseball spotlight today, to the exclusion of practically all other business before baseball's national board of arbitration. The members of the board heard the appeal of the player presented to M. H. Sexton, president of professional baseball leagues so that if an appeal should be filed to the body, the members would not find it necessary to hear the case all over again.

No decision was rendered. President Sexton taking the case under advisement and promising a ruling tomorrow morning.

Toporcer appealed for a rehearing after he was suspended for one year from organized baseball. The player did not receive the notice of the first hearing and was given an opportunity to be heard today. Billy Southworth, manager of the Rochester club, also appeared today in an appeal from a fine of $500 levied against him in his absence.

The case grew out of an argument Toporcer had with Umpire Larry Goetz of the American association October 13 during the playing of the ninth and final game of the series between Rochester and Kansas City to decide the championship of the east and middle west. Toporcer was ejected from the game after a protest over a called third strike and later was fined $200, still later he was suspended for one year and Southworth fined.

Appearing for Toporcer and Southworth, Branch Rickey, vice president and business manager of the St. Louis Cardinals, owners of the Rochester club, made an extended argument in behalf of his two baseball clients. It was understood that Mr. Rickey, while declaring that he would protect umpires at all times, submitted that the punishment meted to Toporcer and Southworth, especially in the case of the infielder, was far too severe.

As the colony of baseball men grew tonight talk of trades which has been at a minimum in the early gathering grew apace.

The New York Yankees tonight transferred the contract of Frank Nekolai, the young Holy Cross left-hander, who finished the season with the major leaguers, to St. Paul of the American association.

DOC O'BRIEN GIVES UP OFFICIATING AT FOOTBALL

BOSTON, Dec. 3—(AP)—Dr. Eddie O'Brien, nationally known football official, today said he intended to quit officiating and devote all of his attention to his medical profession. He has been officiating on college gridirons for the past 20 years.

"I'm all through with football, my mind is made up. Saturday's Navy-Dartmouth game was my last," he said. Then he continued, "I hate to give up the sport for it is fascinating and I love it. But my profession keeps me very busy and working football games away from home takes up too much of my time."

Officiating, according to the "doc" on the whole was much better during the past season than ever before.

MESTRES IS ELECTED CAPTAIN OF PRINCETON

PRINCETON, N. J., Dec. 3—(AP)—Richard A. Mestres of Bronxville, N. Y., was chosen captain of the 1930 Princeton football team at a meeting of lettermen today.

Mestres' selection continues the Princeton tradition that football captains shall be linemen. He has been a varsity guard for the past two seasons and held down a similar assignment on the yearling eleven during his freshman year. He is a brother-in-law of Charlie Mosser, captain of the 1927 team. Mestres prepared for Princeton at Hill school.

Favors Bruins

BOSTON, Dec. 3.—(AP)—Old lady luck, who is always on the job for the Boston Bruins when they clash with Les Canadiens, their old Stanley cup foes, worked overtime here tonight when the world's champions won the fastest game played here this season by a 3 to 1 score.

PLAINFIELD PROS CLASH WITH FAST PARKWOOD CLUB THIS EVENING

Tonight's Lineups

Plainfield	Parkwood Pros
Brusso, f	f, Scotty Welsh
Williams, f	f, Batty Shea
Kasper, f
Conway, c	c, Herman Smith
Dissinger, g	g, Red Goggins
Bernot, g	g, Harry State

The attraction at the Plainfield Community House this evening will be the Parkwood Pros of Springfield who clash with the Plainfield Pros in a renewal of the feud started two years ago. The Parks come to Plainfield with a fine reputation as a fast club of basketeers. The Springfield team had an impressive record last season winning 68 games of a total of 77 played. Five of the nine defeats suffered by Pros last season were by margins of less than three points.

The Pros have some players of note on their roster which includes several college stars, Scotty Welsh, Harry State and "Red" Goggins. This team toured all of New England and New Yorks late last year with notable success.

The Plainfield club has apparently found its stride if the game last week is any indication. The Plainfield boys have seemed to locate the basket and they are dropping in the goals from all angles. Whitey Bernot in two games has accounted for 15 field goals while other members of the club are doing their share of the work.

A large crowd is expected to attend the game tonight as the cold weather has set in and basketball fans are attending the game more frequently. There are several hundred choice seats available to the fans as well as a hundred reserved seats.

In the preliminary game the Buddies clash with the Westerly club in what is expected to be a real test for the Buddies.

CONN. TO ASSIST IN FUND FOR INDIGENT BOXERS

HARTFORD, Dec. 3.—(AP)—Connecticut will do its bit toward helping the unfortunates of the boxing game if plans discussed at a conference in this city tonight are successful.

State Commissioner of Athletics Donohue presided at the conference, which was attended by Edward F. Hurley, of this city, and Al Weill, the New York man who is directing the professional boxing activities at the New Haven Arena.

Donohue explained that he had promised William Muldoon, the "solid man" of the boxing game, that Connecticut would do its share towards raising funds to help the unfortunate present or past participants in the strenuous ring sport over rough spots in life's journey.

He received from Hurley and Weill, Connecticut's leading promoters and match-makers, every assurance of support and when dates were discussed it was settled that the show in Hartford would be held in January and the show in New Haven in February.

Donohue said that he would make an attempt to have the National Boxing association, of which he is a former president, sanction benefit shows throughout the country, the proceeds to be given to the fund sponsored by the National Sports Alliance, whose headquarters are in New York city. This fund, it is said, now amounts to more than $50,000 and its disbursement is directed by a board of trustees headed by William Muldoon.

It was made plain by both Weill and Hurley that the shows would not be exhibition affairs and that every effort would be made to engage the leading fighters in the east to show their wares. An effort will made to secure the state armory here and the New Haven Arena as the site for these shows.

Samuel P. Atkins, sportsman and merchant of Hartford, will act as treasurer of the fund from Connecticut and will probably present this state's contribution to Muldoon, to be placed in the coffers of the National Sports Alliance.

DIAMONDS FAVORED FOR FINE TOOLING

DETROIT (AP)—To the average motorist, diamonds and motorcars have little in common excepting as an outward evidence of a certain affluence.

In the manufacture of automobiles, however, diamonds figure as an important factor.

Although the figuratively alchemists of the industry have succeeded in producing a substance that approximates the diamond in hardness and in cutting power, the original gem still holds first place in the favor of the engineers having to do with the production of drilling and cutting tools.

The diamonds are particularly effective in drilling and otherwise machining aluminum and brass, both "stringy" metals which chip and shred under steel tools.

Virtually all the larger automobile plants have a stock of diamonds always on hand. One large plant that specializes in high grade products keeps a stock of from $60,000 to $100,000 worth of the gems.

The most commonly used is the Brown Bortz. Others are black, lead-colored, yellow and clear white. The white diamonds have varbon spot flaws that make them better for cutting than a diamond without a flaw. The average size is about 2½ karats, although some weigh as much as four and five karats.

The diamonds are mounted in the ends of metal rods by drilling holes the size of the stones in the end of the rod and setting the jewel in melted metal, something like zinc solder.

All the plants have their specialists in fine tools and diamonds, invariably each is "Diamond Dick" to the shop employes. He not only has charge of the stones, but he also selects the stones, needed for different operations in the plant and passes upon the quality of the stock purchased each month.

RECREATION COMMISSION FOSTERS WINTER SPORTS; COASTERS PROTECTED

Over 25 boys and girls took advantage of the sliding on Union street hill under police protection Tuesday evening. From 7 until 9 o'clock the use of the street was reserved for the enjoyment of the children. Old sleds, new sleds, large sleds and small sleds were seen on the hill during the evening and the children who slid merrily down the hill ranged in age from six and seven to about 18 years.

The recreation commission was in co-operation with the police department in seeing that the sliding was under safe conditions, Officer Patrick Shahan was stationed at Union square to direct automobile traffic and to keep the children "in bounds." The children were given the free use of the hill as far as Union square during the two hour period.

Broadway, a one way street north, was opened to two way traffic during the two hour period, in order to keep automobiles off Union street, which is a one-way street, south. The latter was the only street reserved for sliding under police protection. However, children were sliding on a number of the hilly streets of the city Tuesday evening. West Main street hill, Perkins avenue, Jail Hill and the Thamesville hill were among the streets on which the younger generation was seen sliding. Union street will be reserved for sliding from 7 until 9 p. m. daily while the snow lasts.

It is intended also by the recreation commission to provide for sliding through the winter, with police protection, whenever conditions are right, on the Boswell avenue hill in the Greeneville section, on Fox hill in the East Side section and on Elizabeth street in the West Side section.

COMMISSION DEFENDS ACTS ON CROSSINGS ELIMINATIONS

Unusually extended discussion of grade crossings in Connecticut, parts of which can be construed as a defense by the public utilities commission against the movement for its ousting started by Professor Albert Levitt, features the annual report of the commission, made public at Hartford. "The elimination of the maximum annual statutory requirement has for the past number of years been financially impossible for the railroad companies," the report says, while the Levitt petition for ouster proceedings against the commission charges the failure of the commission to force eliminations at the rate of one a year for each 50 miles of track constitutes "material neglect of duty." The commission report makes no direct reference to the Levitt petition.

Deputy Attorney General Ernest L. Averill has had before him for some weeks the petition of Professor Levitt and 100 others for ouster proceedings against the commission, and has just returned an opinion denying the Levitt petition.

If Colonel Averill's estimate of the conduct of the commission is the same as that which the commission makes of its own activity in the report, his communication to Professor Levitt probably will be a refusal to act on the petition. In such a situation, it is believed the way would be open for Professor Levitt to apply for a writ of mandamus against the attorney general, and in this way require the state's legal authorities to justify in court their denial of the ouster petition. The other alternative for Colonel Averill is to disagree with the commission's estimate, and to file in the superior court a complaint to secure removal of the commission.

The Levitt petition bases its charges against the commission on section 3710 of the general statutes, providing railroads operating in this state must remove one grade crossing each year for every 50 miles of track they have in the state, and, if the railroads fail to act, that the commission itself shall cause the elimination of the required number of crossings at the expense of the railroad, if, in the opinion of the commission, the financial condition of the railroads warrants such action.

The report of the commission points out that section 3710, which has been in force since 1911, would require the New Haven road to eliminate 17 grade crossings each year. The Central Vermont railroad has only 56 miles of track in the state. From 1889 to 1914 the report says, 391 crossings were eliminated, an average of 16 a year. Following 1914, the report says, the financial condition of the railroads, particularly the New Haven, "did not warrant and would not permit the maximum grade crossing eliminations."

"The total elimination of all grade crossings within a comparatively short time is physically and financially impossible," the report says, and "the elimination of the maximum annual statutory requirement has for the past number of years been financially impossible for the railroad companies."

The commission reports that some of the earlier eliminations of grade crossings, bring about a condition deemed safe in an era of horse-drawn conveyances, have become such hazards with speedier transportation that since 1924 dangerous conditions at 11 such eliminations have been removed by further changes.

JOINT SCOUT CAMP BY NORWICH AND HARTFORD

The Boy Scouts of America have blazed the trail of camping and other outdoor activities for boys, declares Dr. R. R. Agnew, chairman of camping of the Eastern Connecticut Scout council. Winter camps and all-weather hikes are a comparatively new phase of scouting, but they have grown so rapidly in interest that some communities report more boys in short term and winter camps during the school year than in all the outdoor activities of the summer vacation period.

Put yourself in the place of the scout for a moment—when full of enthusiasm, imagination, and wonderful ideas, he joined the troop. He joined expecting to find scouting what he had dreamed it to be, an adventure in the out-of-doors—and woke up in the troop to find parlor scouting. It is the out-door troop that does real scouting, the scouting of character building, and citizenship training, as well as the scouting of cooking, trailing and taking care of one's self in the open.

There are many advantages that the winter camp has over the summer camp. Many problems of sanitation disappear. The charm of winter sports is undeniable. When properly directed they open new avenues through which to appeal to boys and school them in vigorous endeavor.

Through the courtesy of Hartford council, a joint winter camp with Norwich may be conducted if sufficient boys enroll for the week from December 26th through January 1. Field Scout Executive Arthur Adams of Hartford, recently of Norwich, and Scout Executive Sellman will be in charge of the camp. The charge will be actual cost. All enrollments must be received before December 21. Full details of the camp have been sent to troops in Troop bulletins.

$20,000 SUIT ON TRIAL BEFORE JURY AND JUDGE

The suit is the outcome of an automobile crash in Rye, N. Y., on Oct. 3, 1928, at about 3:30 a. m., when the truck owned by H. J. MORE THAN 200 MOTOR TRUCKS FOR SNOW REMOVAL

All Connecticut's trunkline and state aid highways were cleared of the snow and opened for traffic in both directions at an early hour Tuesday morning, according to a statement issued by Highway Commissioner John A. Macdonald.

More than 200 motor trucks equipped with plows and each bearing crews of half a dozen men armed with shovels were employed in the task of freeing the highways of the snow, which varied in depth from three and one half to seven inches. The first of the trucks began the attack on the heavy, wet fall shortly after 3 o'clock Monday afternoon and by 6 o'clock highway crews from every district headquarters and garage in the state were at work.

The highway department encountered the worst conditions in Litchfield and Middlesex counties where the snow reached its greatest depth. Due to the fact that there was no high wind to cause drifts, however, the trunkline and state aid roads in those territories were cleared almost as rapidly as those in the less severely hit sections of the state.

Dangerous ice and snow conditions were found on the steeper grades in the state, such as the Southington and Avon Mountain roads and on Plymouth hill in Thomaston. Some truck crews were dispatched to find these hills late Monday afternoon, and after the snow had been swept from all highways in neighboring districts other crews were sent to assist in the work of making the grades safe for travel.

Unless another storm should set in immediately following Monday's fall Commissioner Macdonald said, there will be little danger in highway travel although all motorists should exercise caution in avoiding the thin sheets of ice which are apt to form on all roads in case of a thaw followed by a quick drop in temperature.

GIVES ENDORSEMENT TO CHRISTMAS SEAL SALES

An endorsement of the sales of Christmas seals is given by Rt. Rev. Msgr. M. H. May, pastor of St. Patrick's church, as follows:

"The campaign of the National Tuberculosis association to secure funds to combat the tuberculosis disease should be encouraged and brought to a successful issue. The object is a most worthy one. From an economic and social standpoint it calls for our sympathetic and generous support.

"We should not be callous or indifferent to the calls of humanity. Reason, the dictate of our conscience and the pulses of benevolence and pity prompt us to aid our afflicted fellow beings and urge us to alleviate their sufferings.

"We have not only the will of God, as contained in the Old Testament, for our enlightenment and direction, but also the words and example of the Saviour, who bade us love our neighbors as ourselves. He made the standards of charity and benevolence more attractive by impressing on us that whatever kindness we showed our afflicted brethren in the flesh He would account as done to Himself in person.

"I can speak for the people of St. Patrick's parish and I know that they will contribute with their usual good will and generosity in making a success of the Christmas seal campaign to enable this organization to carry on the great work against tubercular disease."

The party was given under the auspices of the senior class, the committee in charge being Miss Patricia Young, chairman, Miss Ethel Donch and Miss Rosalie Kane. Forty of the nurses enjoyed the ride, Miss Grace E. Anslow, acting as chaperone of the party.

Through the courtesy of the Levine Bros. their cottage at the lake was the scene of great festivity. Dancing was enjoyed to an unusually good radio programme, after which a hot dog roast was held before the open fire-place. The remainder of the evening was spent in singing and general merry-making.

Everything combined to produce an ideal evening for the ride, the night was cold and clear with just enough snow to make a picturesque setting and add zest to the party. The nurses returned home about midnight in high spirits, declaring this to be one of the most successful parties of the year.

HOOVER ASKS $3,830,445,231 FOR FED. FISCAL YEAR 1931, EXCLUSIVE OF FARM FUND

Farm Board Fund is Estimated at About $200,000,000—Chief Executive Yesterday Submitted to Congress a Table Showing the Amounts Allotted to Each Department—Increased Sums Are Requested For the Army, the Navy, Rivers and Harbors, Flood Control, Indian Care and Forest Protection.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—(AP) — To carry forward the manifold activities of the government, President Hoover in his first annual budget message today asked congress to set aside $3,830,445,231 for the next fiscal year.

At the same time he declared the nation's finances to be in a sound condition and renewed his plea for a speedy reduction in taxes, due on 1929 incomes. He based this request on an estimated surplus of over $225,000,000 for the current fiscal year and past experiences which he said showed such slash in tax levies to have been followed by increased revenues.

The appropriations actually requested, while $145,696,000 less than for this year, were $272,493,469 less than estimated expenditures for the year 1930-31, at the end of which period a surplus of $122,000,000 was anticipated.

A $200,000,000 appropriation for the federal farm board, to be submitted later, and a carry-over of $75,000,000 from this year's appropriations, would make up the difference, the message said.

Coincident with the reading of the budget message in the house, the senate listening referred this formality for the time being. Secretary Mellon made his annual report to congress bolstering the administration's arguments for a tax cut of $160,000,000 and forecasting a bright business condition for 1930.

One of the largest items in the budget was $380,392,526 for the navy. This is an increase of $16,349,000 over the amount spent this year for this service branch. Part of it will be used to carry forward the 15 cruiser building program, which is subject to modification as a result of any limitation agreement at the forthcoming London conference affecting cruisers.

For the war department, the total estimate was $466,626,332, including funds required for the Panama canal, which was an increase of more than $1,000,000 over this year's appropriations.

For both the land and sea service branches, provision was made for carrying out the five year aviation building program, the army being given $36,766,825 and the navy $32,230,000.

No estimate was made of the specific amount needed for prohibition enforcement, this being covered in the total allotted to the treasury.

HOOVER'S BRIGHT PICTURE ON NATIONAL FINANCES

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4—(AP)—President Hoover today laid before congress a recommendation for tax reduction, a request for $3,830,445,231 for governmental use next year, and a bright picture of the state of the nation's finances.

Drawing a lesson from the lowering of taxes in the past, the president said that there was no doubt that increased revenues had always followed and that the stimulus given to business was partly responsible for these upwards turns in receipts.

In his first budget message he estimated the treasury's outlay for the 12 months beginning next July at $4,102,228,700 and figured there would be a $122,000,000 surplus at the end of that period.

The difference between appropriations asked and expenditures forecast was explained as being due to the fact that the president had not included any amount for the revolving fund of the federal farm board because it had not been determined how much would be necessary. In the estimate of outgo however, the amount was placed at $200,000,000. A further difference of $72,000,000 was due to a carryover of appropriations from the present year which be available next year. As submitted, the request was for $145,696,000 less than for this year.

The tax reduction suggestion followed the previously announced program of the administration which desires a decrease of from 12 to 11 per cent. In corporation income levies and reductions of one per cent on normal individual incomes, making those rates range from 1-2 per cent to 4 per cent.

In addition to the appropriations asked $760,479,577 will be needed for the post office department, but, inasmuch as this government activity pays the larger amount of its cost out of its own revenues, the treasury will be concerned only with the deficit.

The president called for increased funds for a number of government efforts and organizations, including the army, the navy, rivers and harbors, flood control, Indian care, and forest protection. Congress was informed that the treasury would expend $53,109,000 in the present year in carrying on the huge government building program and that it planned to lay out an additional $30,000,000 for next year. In addition he will submit later a request for $5,000,000 more for this purpose.

A total of $380,392,526 was asked for the navy, which is $16,359,000 more than last year.

Alterations on battleships, safety and salvage operations for submarines, increased navy pay, improvements to air stations, ammunition storage facilities, aviation, the construction of the two new dirigibles and other items were listed as contributing to the increase. As to the cruiser construction program, the president said:

"For the 15 cruisers and one aircraft carrier authorized by the act of February 13, 1929, provision is made to carry forward work on two cruisers already laid down, for 3 cruisers and the aircraft carrier to be laid down late in the fiscal year 1930, and for the remaining 10 cruisers to be commenced late in the fiscal year."

The war department's total estimate was $466,626,332, including the funds needed for the Panama canal. This is $8,173,000 more than was required last year. Provision was made for carrying out the five-year building program of both the army and the navy aviation branches, the army being allotted $36,766,825 for this purpose and the navy $32,230,000. No estimate was submitted for Boulder dam construction, the details not having been ready in time for inclusion.

In his discussion of taxes Mr. Hoover said the government would have a surplus of $225,581,584 at the end of the present 1930) fiscal year.

"For the current fiscal year 1930 there is a marked improvement over the financial situation as estimated in the budget for 1930, transmitted to congress in December 1928" he said. "Compared with the estimate of one

TREND OF WORKMEN IS AWAY FROM CHURCH

CHICAGO, Dec. 4—(AP)—Protestant churches in most cities of the country, were likely to be found in greater numbers on "the comfortable side of town," James Myers, industrial secretary of the federal council of churches of Christ in America, said at the council's annual executive committee meeting, today. Myers, recently returned from the textile areas of the south, warned that danger of a trend of industrial workers away from the church was by no means confined to that section.

The same danger of a trend of the working classes away from the church he said, was found in the mining fields of Pennsylvania and Colorado and in the big cities where contact was lacking between labor and church.

MADE PLEA FOR "SANE CENSORSHIP OF BOOKS"

BOSTON, Dec. 4—(AP)—A plea for "sane censorship of books," was made today by Father Spence Burton, head of the Episcopal Order of Cowley Fathers, speaking before a meeting of the Massachusetts committee for the revision of the book law. He and other speakers asked that a book be judged in its entirety and not by isolated passages, as has been done under present statutes in Boston.

"If the present prudish manner of censorship persists," he said, "we shall soon have to bootleg bibles from Canada."

Father Burton, who was formerly chaplain of San Quentin penitentiary, assailed "spiritual snobbery" and "moral priggishness" and a tendency which he said existed to believe moral efforms could be brought about by legislation.

Stimson Explains China-Russia Note

Was Sent in Spirit of Good Will to Promote Peace—No "Unfriendly Motive."

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—(AP)—Taking notice of the Russian memorandum to the United States as reported in the press, Secretary Stimson said today that the message of the American government was sent to China and Russia "not from unfriendly motives but because this government regards the pact of Paris as a covenant which has profoundly modified the attitude of the world toward peace."

"The message of the American government," the text of Stimson's statement continued, "was sent not from unfriendly motives but because this government regards the pact of Paris as a covenant which has profoundly modified the attitude of the world toward peace and because this government intends to shape its own policy accordingly.

"In the language of the joint statement issued by the president of the United States and the prime minister of Great Britain on October 10th last, 'both our governments resolved to accept the peace pact not only as a declaration of good intentions but as a positive obligation to direct national police in accordance with its pledge.'

"The present declaration of the authorities of Russia that they are now proceeding with direct negotiations which will make possible the settlement of the conflict is not the least significant evidence to show that the public opinion of the world is a live factor which can be promptly mobilized and which has become a factor of prime importance in the solution of problems and controversies which may arise between nations."

LORDS AGAINST DIPLOMATIC RELATIONS WITH RUSSIA

LONDON, Dec. 4.—(AP)—The house of lords today registered strong disapproval of the labor government's efforts to resume diplomatic relations with the Soviet union. The house voted 43 to 21 in support of a motion introduced by Lord Birkenhead "that diplomatic recognition of the soviet government is not desirable."

It was the second defeat for the government in the house of lords within three days, but as in the first instance, the vote of the upper chamber was not expected to alter materially the government program.

Lord Birkenhead used as his chief argument that attitude of the United States and of "Secretaries of state from Colby to Kellogg." He also accused Soviet revolutionary propaganda of "a hideous attempt to provoke native insurrections in South Africa."

Lord Thomson was the chief speaker for the government. He said the object of resuming diplomatic relations was to maintain world peace and to expand British trade.

Vote Str[illegible] of 45,000 Ga[illegible]nt Workers

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Dec. 4.—(AP)—Delegates to the convention of the International Ladies Garment Workers union, voted autnorization here today of a strike of 45,000 members in New York city, effective January 1, and tonight were considering resolutions for other strikes in Cleveland, Boston, Chicago, Baltimore, Philadelphia and Toledo, Ohio.

Votes on the latter resolution probably will be taken tomorrow. They have been favorably acted upon in committee.

Approximately 100,000 members of the union will be affected if strikes are authorized in all of the seven cities where strikes were requested.

The convention, which about 200 delegates are attending, was awaiting tonight the arrival of three of America's foremost labor leaders, William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor; Mathew Woll, vice president of the federation, and Morris Hillquit, national chairman of the socialist party.

Abraham Snyder, manager of local No. 62, New York, will be unable to attend the convention. Delegates said he had to remain in New York to deal with what they called a serious menace to the women's garment trades by competition of cheap labor in the Philippines and Porto Rico.

GREEN WARNS LABOR AGAINST SPECULATION

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4—(AP)— A warning to labor against speculation was broadcast tonight by William Green, president of the American federation of labor, in a speech over the National broadcasting chain.

Touching upon economic changes which he said had brought living standards to a higher plane, Green said there had been an amazing increase in the number of persons who had bought and owned securities.

But, he said, along with the social and economic changes had come the problem of investment, and pointing to othe recent stock market crash, he said:

"I would advise against speculation or gambling. Think first of the safety of your investment. Be convinced and certain that you are really investing. In choosing a really safe investment take into account its earnings and its safety. Safety and sudden wealth do not go together.

"Before you make an investment satisfy your self that you are dealing with a strictly reliable firm, one that has established itself in business and one that has a high class record for honesty and for the sale of high grade investments."

BODIES OF ELOPERS DRAGGED FROM RIVER

HISKORY, N. C., Dec. 4—(AP)—Clasped in each other's arms, as had been foretold by the youth, the bodies of Elsie Poovey, 18, Lenoir-Rhyne college co-ed, and her sweetheart, Luther Turner, today were dragged from the bottom of the Catawba river, near here.

They were found in Turner's automobile, which apparently had been deliberately run off the river bank into deep water. Men who brought the bodies to the surface said they were clinging to one another.

Whether it was a suicide pact or murder and suicide none could say, but officials inclined toward the latter theory. A brother of Turner, shortly after the couple disappeared Sunday from highlands, received a note saying:

"You will find our bodies in the Catawba river at the new steel bridge. I cannot live without Elsie and we will die in each other's arms."

The bodies were brought to Hickory.

A primary object of the heads of enterprise who are assembling is the creation of a permanent economic council, which President Hoover has suggested might maintain a continuing watch over the progress of national production and distribution of wealth.

At the conclusion of the open meeting, various committees are expected to study this suggestion and also any developments forthcoming in the assembly.

While the original list of invitations was confined to about 150 persons, the great interest indicated in the affair and its purpose by business men in all sections of the country forced an increased attendance. There were indications tonight that even the number of 400 announced by the chamber would be exceeded before the close of the gathering.

SENATE COMMITTEE VOTES W. S. VARE ELECTED SENATOR

Minority Report Will Contend That Vare's Election Was Void Because of Fraud—Vare in the Senate Defended His Expenditure of $785,000 For His Ticket in the Primary as Necessary—Today the Senate is Expected to Vote on Resolution Which Would Exclude Vare on Account of His Expenditures.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4—(AP)—The bitterly contested campaign for the senatorship from Pennsylvania in 1926 lived again today in the senate as William S. Vare, worn by illness, defended his right to a seat after hearing himself and the politics of his state renounced by Senator Norris of Nebraska.

The Nebraskan had used the strongest language at his command in demanding adoption of his resolution to deny the oath of office to the senator-elect.

Using a cane and accompanied by his physician, Vare slowly entered the chamber as the republican independent from the northwest contended the primary and election of three years ago "wreaked with dishonesty and corruption."

The 62-year-old Pennsylvanian replied by reading a prepared statement, which defended expenditure of $785,000 for his ticket in the primary as necessary.

Looking down from the gallery was the white-haired William B. Wilson, democratic opponent of Vare in the 1926 election who has waged a long fight for Vare's seat. Across the chamber in the member's gallery sat Mrs. Vare and their daughter, Mrs. William Kipp. Near them was Mrs. Gifford Pinchot, whose husband, as governor of Pennsylvania, was defeated for the republican senatorial nomination by Vare.

As the day ended, the senate elections committee decided by a strictly party division, seven to four, that Vare had been elected in 1926.

The committee was unanimous in declaring that Wilson had not been elected. The democratic minority, however, will submit a supplementary report declaring Wilson was not elected but that Vare's election was void because of fraud.

Tomorrow the senate is expected to reach a vote on both the Norris resolution which would exclude Vare on account of his expenditures in the primary campaign and on the Wilson-Vare election contest.

Senator Reed, republican, Pennsylvania, forced the adjournment until tomorrow in order that the report of the elections committee into the Wilson-Vare contest might be available to the senate before it decides the Vare case in any instance.

Chairman Shortridge, of the elections committee, announced tonight that he would ask that the senate vote first on the election contest. The decision in that case would be whether Vare was legally elected or whether there was no election. No attempt is expected to be made to seat Wilson.

The decision on the Norris resolution will be whether Vare's expenditures in the three-cornerer race for the republican senatorial nomination were excessive and whether his primary campaign was involved in fraud.

Submission of the report of the long investigation into the 1926 election has been demanded by Senator Reed as prerequisite to a determination of the Norris resolution. When a final vote was sought late in the day on the Norris resolution, Reed threatened to talk until adjournment to permit submission of this report tomorrow.

Senator Norris carried on the attempt to exclude Vare single-handed but those ready to vote against the Philadelphia republican leader were confident of the votes to bar him and appeared content to reach a roll call.

After Senator-Elect Vare had read his statement, Senator Reed bitterly assailed those who would exclude Vare on account of the $785,000 campaign fund and denied vigorously the charge of Senator Norris that the Pennsylvania campaign "wreaked with dishonesty and corruption."

After Reed had declared some states had regarded the 14th and 15th amendments to the constitution, relating to suffrage, as "scraps of paper," Senator Glass, democrat, Virginia, denied that his state violated these amendments and challenged anyone who thought so to seek the expulsion of the Virginia senators.

Senator Norris shouted that Tammany hall compared with the Vare machine was a "white robed angel."

Denouncing the payment of watchers at the polls in Pennsylvania, Norris said he could not conceive of a man "running for office spending $100,000 to employ watchers in one city alone unless he wanted to buy the election."

Reed insisted that the employment of watchers at the polls in Pennsylvania was an old custom sanctioned by law, although he said it was a practice which was making it very hard for poor men to run for office.

In his statement, Vare compared the costs of his primary campaign to those per vote and per district in other states in the last election and said that in many instances senators sitting before him had spent more per vote than he had. He recalled that his opponents in the republican senatorial nomination spent more than he did.

A crowded chamber listened attentively to the halting words of Vare, who summoned all his strength to put emphasis into his speech. Members of the house crowded about the rear of the chamber.

Twice Vare interrupted the debate after he had spoken to answer questions relating to him.

He told Senator Wheeler, democrat, Montana, that his personal expenses in the senatorial race were $71,000. He told Senator Schall, republican, Minn., that he had paid for impounding the ballot boxes in 31 counties but had been reimbursed later by the government. A recount of these ballots was denied him.

Vare arose the second time over the protest of his physician and against a restraining arm placed on him by the physician. He sat in the chamber for more than two hours and later returned to await the conclusion of debate.

PARTNER IN BASEBALL POOL FOUND GUILTY

NEW YORK, Dec. 4.—(AP)—A federal jury today returned a verdict of guilty against James J. Otto, former partner of the Albany baseball and stock market pool, charged with perjury for having given false testimony last February before the grand jury which was investigating the affairs of the pool.

The verdict was returned 15 minutes after the jury had sent a note to Judge Alfred E. Coxe saying it was unable to agree. The judge, after a conference with Charles H. Tuttle, U. S. attorney, and George Z. Medalie, counsel for Otto, sent the jurors a message urging them to reach a decision if possible.

Otto was accused of giving false and evasive testimony before the grand jury in an effort to conceal the identity of "higher ups" alleged by the government to have been connected with the Albany pool.

The conviction carries a maximum sentence of five years or a $2,000 fine or both.

Framingham police arrested Mrs. Pearce on a secret indictment warrant. She was released after she had furnished $2,000 bail for appearance in superior court tomorrow.

BANDIT "JERSEY KID" CAPTURED IN NEW YORK

NEW YORK, Dec. 4.—(AP)—"The Jersey Kid," whose true name became lost long ago in an interminable maze of aliases, and who is wanted, police say, for two murders in New Jersey and one in Chicago, gave himself up today.

Barricaded in an uptown apartment, with a pretty, red-haired girl companion, "The Jersey Kid" started to shoot it out with the police. There was a price of $25,000 on his head.

But when they told him they were going to throw in tear bombs if he did not come out in five minutes, he poked his gun, stock first, out through a crack in the door, and meekly surrendered.

Tattooed on his arm s he wore the legend "Death before dishonor" and the names "Jack Murray," "Frank McBryand" and "Jersey Kid."

But after his arrest he suilenly denied he was either Murray, McBryand or "The Jersey Kid." He said his name was Charles Davis—an alias which, the police said, he had used before.

As "Frank McBrien," the prisoner is wanted in Newark for the murder of a motor bus terminal cashier, and in Bradley Beach, N. J., for the murder of a bank messenger. Both murders were committed during holdups.

He is wanted in Chicago, too, for murder, the police said, but they declined to give any details.

And as "Frank McBryand," he is wanted in Philadelphia for two holdups that totaled nearly $75,000.

ONE-ACT PLAY FEATURES WOMAN'S CLUB MEETING

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Dec. 4—The presentation of a one-act comedy, The Kleptomaniac by Margaret Cameron, proved a feature of a delightful afternoon of dramatics enjoyed by members of the Woman's club at the Model school auditorium Tuesday afternoon. Mrs. Albert E Welch as Mrs. Burton took the leading part in the play which had been coached by Frederic W. Staebner. Other characters were: Mrs. Frederick R. Noble as Mrs. Valerie Armsby, a young widow; Mrs. Edmund Hurley as Mrs. Preston Ashley; Miss Elizabeth M. Case as Mrs. Charles Dover; Miss Sarah H. Abbe as Miss Freda Dixon; Mrs. William S. Congdon as Miss Evelyn Evans and Miss Nellie Harbison as Katie, Mrs. Burton's maid.

Willard B. Rogers of Manchester and Hartford and member of the New England Council's publicity staff in the present campaign to better develop industrial conditions in New England, was the speaker at one of the most interesting meetings of the year of the Willimantic Exchange club Tuesday evening. The session was held with a dinner in the Nathan Hale hotel and convened by Attorney E. Frank Buzzee who called on R. G. Remington, program chairman, to introduce the speaker. Mr. Rogers spoke on Industrial Development in New England, telling particularly of the functions of the New England council with a review of the calibre of men who are leaders in the industrial movement. A survey was made in 1928 in 262 communities with a population of 5,558,274, or about 95 per cent of the total urban population of New England. These 262 communities reported the acquisition of 544 new manufacturing concerns employing 29,762 workers. These same communities reported the loss of 333 manufacturing concerns, employing 20,419 workers, thus showing a gain of 251 industries and 9,343 employes. In dollars and cents, New England's industrial supremacy is revealed in the fact that our annual products exceed nine billion dollars, said the speaker. Mr. Rogers claimed that the three new E's—good roads, rural free delivery, and radio have eliminated the one-time objectionable features of living in the agricultural areas. Much has been done by the council in promoting New England agriculture.

Justice of the Peace Mrs. Fannie Dixon Welch today handed down her decision in the case of Theodore Sorokolit of Hop River, town of Columbia charged with having in his possession pelts of fur bearing animals taken out of season. The decision imposed a fine of $10 and costs, with the fine remitted, leaving the costs of the case, $10.53. The case, after several continuances, was heard in the Columbia town court last week. It aroused considerable interest hereabouts inasmuch as Sorokolit was charged with a violation actually committed by his young son. Game Warden Wraight of Rockville found the boy in the possession of skunk and other pelts on the Sokorolit farm. The father had been at work in Andover and claimed that he did not have knowledge of the killing of the animals or the presence of the pelts on his premises. Owing to the boy's tender age the charge was lodged against the father on the grounds that he was responsible for the actions of his son.

The breaking of the pole allowed several wires, charged with electricity, to fall to the ground from the adjoining pole on Union street, opposite the J. C. Lincoln Furniture store. Officer Leo Piche directed traffic at this point until the wires were lifted to a new pole that was quickly installed by Foreman Robert A. Hanna and the construction men of the lighting company. DANIELSON

INJURIES PROVE FATAL TO CHARLES WEBB

DANIELSON, Dec. 4—Charles Webb, injured Thanksgiving eve when he was knocked off the bicycle he was riding along the state highway on the West side by an automobile driven by Herbert Parker of Brooklyn, died suddenly at 11:30 this morning at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Webb, in the Allen Hill section of Brooklyn.

At the time he was hurt Mr. Webb's injuries appeared to be superficial but upon being returned to his home he went to bed and had since remained there. For several days past it had been apparent that he was more seriously hurt than was first indicated. However, this morning when the attending physician visited him to give special attention to a wound in his head he appeared to be about the same as he has been since the first of the week.

Shortly after the doctor left the injured man said to his father "I can't stand this much longer," and within a very few minutes thereafter he was dead.

The sad and unexpected happening drew the attention of Coroner Arthur G. Bill, who said this afternoon that he had arranged for an autopsy to determine the exact cause of death. It is believed that Mr. Webb died of internal injuries. While he was bruised from head to foot, there was no outward indication of the seriousness of his condition. The body was removed this afternoon to L. E. Kennedy's funeral home.

Mr. Webb, who passed his 49th birthday last month, was born in the house in which he died and had always lived on the farm operated by his father, a former member of the legislature from Brooklyn.

Many persons were at the vestry of the Westfield Congregational church this afternoon to attend the shawl pageant arranged by the Killingly Women's club. Mrs. J. Arthur Atwood of Wauregan was chairman of the committee that arranged the event. Those presented in the pageant were: Mrs. Harold A. Roberts, Indian Maiden; Miss Helen Perkins, Mother Machree; Mrs. Harding W. Gaylord, Barbara Frietchie; Mrs. Arthur W. Logee, Black Mammy; with baby Jacqueline Roberts; Mrs. Cecil Garcin, Spanish girl; Mrs. H. B. Atwood, Annie Laurie; Mrs. J. C. Chadbourne, Beatrice D'Este; Mrs. Oswald C. Street, Irene Castle.

A trio composed of Miss Helen Perkins, flutist, Miss Edna Mann, violinist, and Mrs. William Levin, pianist, played during the afternoon. Vocal soloists were Mrs. Earl Bragg and Mrs. Albert Abbott.

The forecast is that a large number of the members of Quinebaug Pomona grange will be at Plainfield Saturday for the December meeting of the organization. The morning session is to open at 11 a. m. with reports of officers to be given during the course of a business session. Dinner is to be served at noon by members of Plainfield grange. The afternoon session will begin at 1:30, with a program arranged by the lecturer. Members of Plainfield grange will play instrumental numbers, there are to be readings by Ella Bennington of Ekonk grange and by George Ingalls of Brooklyn grange. Louis G. Tolles, overseer of the Connecticut State grange will be present and is expected to make an address. Frederick Midgely is to give a talk on Near East Relief.

CHADWICK ATTACKS POLICE ON PARKING ENFORCEMENT

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Dec. 4.—Four councilors of the 1928-29 administration of city government were not at their desks Tuesday evening as the present council took up the business of its last executive session of the term. One of the absent was the late Edmund Dubois, alderman from ward two, who succumbed to a heart attack two weeks ago.

Alderman Robert T. Chadwick, ward one, started a verbal skirmish in which every city official from mayor to the police and fire chiefs participated when he openly charged that parking ordinances of the city charter were being broken by the public and infractions being overlooked by the police. Alderman Chadwick asserted that violations of the parking rules, revised some months ago by the committee on rules and ordinances, prevail to such an extent that danger lurks on every principal thoroughfare in the city. If the practice is allowed to continue, the alderman pointed out, the result will be a serious catastrophe that will confront the common council with serious consequences, since the members of the council are authors of the present code of parking regulations.

"On upper Main street on both sides of the street, from the Putnam Savings bank to Bugbee's square, cars parked four deep is a common occurrence," Alderman Chadwick said. "At times it is impossible for fire apparatus at the Central station to weave its way through the clogged traffic lanes." Mr. Chadwick continued. In concluding his remarks Mr. Chadwick said, "It is time something is done to improve this situation, either enforce or remove the ordinances from the books."

Captain of Police William J. Jarvis assumed a defensive role, making a vain attempt to hurl back the offensive remarks uttered by every member of the republican side of the council. In addressing Mayor Charles A. Richard, Captain Jarvis said, "Please, gentlemen, do not assume that we, the police department, are unfamiliar with conditions uptown. Only a small number of car owners can legally park their cars in that space mentioned by Alderman Chadwick and hundreds wish to stop in that vicinity to trade. Those who park outside the realm of city law, do so only for a brief interval and, since the street is so wide, I cannot see where hazard exists."

Captain Jarvis continued by pointing out that he did not wish to drive the buying public off the streets, since their presence in the shopping center is of vital importance to the merchants there. He concluded, "But, gentlemen, don't think that we cannot drive them away and we will if an order to that effect is forthcoming from his honor and members of the council."

Alderman Chadwick differed with Captain Jarvis' contention that no fire hazard exists by the carelessness and unlawful parking of cars in the business section when he stated, "I can't agree, there is a hazard. Two to three minutes mean everything in the world to a fire engine. We are not making laws, but are doing what we feel is the best thing for the city and if anything happens the common council will be responsible."

Captain Jarvis in a further explanation said that the hours of the city's day patrolmen are occupied with the investigating of burglaries, rendering it impossible for them to note traffic violations. At this time, Mayor Richard entered the heated debate, saying "I agree with Alderman Chadwick that the ordinances relative to parking should be enforced or changed. Investigations are not a daily occurrence and I see no reason why the police cannot handle the situation." With the mayor's expression, Captain Jarvis withdrew from all further participation in the verbal brawl concerning the department under his supervision.

Alderman Chadwick said that City Court Judge M. H. Geissler suggested as a solution of the problem, the republishing of the revised code of laws appended with a notice that on and after Monday, Dec. 9, offenders of the laws would be subjected to court procedure as a penalty for their unthoughtful and deliberate violations. A vote was unanimously passed ordering that the code of parking regulations be published according to the suggestion of Judge Geissler.

With Mayor Richard's assertion, "the townspeople are the greatest violators; and councilmen taking advantage of their prestige, don't help," the controversy of an hour's duration was brought to a close.

Resolutions on the death of Alderman Edmund Dubois were read by Alderman Chadwick, chairman of the resolutions committee. It was voted that the resolutions adopted be published and a copy mailed to the members of the late councilor's family.

With the granting of building permits, approving of the tax collector's application to be empowered to rebate certain tax lists in order to close books for the year, and a report that technical details of the water reconstruction programme were complete, the retiring council completed its last session of the year, adjourning until Monday evening, Jan. 6, when the new administration will take office, preceded by retiring ceremony of the present governing body.

The municipal expense of the biennial city election of Monday was $159 in the campaign for nomination and election to city office. The cost of the various caucuses and election was revealed Tuesday evening when statements of Hermon G. Carver and George Potvin, registrars of voters, were read by Alderman-at-Large Warren S. Ames, shortly before the close of the December session of the common council.

CAPT. JARVIS GIVES ORDERS TO ENFORCE PARKING LAWS

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Dec. 4.—In a statement to The Bulletin today, Captain of Police William J. Jarvis, who was sternly rebuked by members of the common council Tuesday evening because of the alleged ragged methods used by the police in the enforcement of the city parking and traffic regulations, said that, effective Monday morning, the police will insist upon the motoring public complying with the rules and regulations laid down by the council in regards to parking. Captain Jarvis said the officers under his supervision will be instructed to check up every parking code infraction with a view of adjusting "hazardous" conditions as are said to be existing by certain members of the council. Only courtesy will be used by the police in coping with the public, Captain Jarvis said, which, coupled with cooperation of the public, will eliminate the necessity of drastic action being taken by the police in their effort to bring about an immediate remedy of the unsatisfactory parking conditions in the shopping district—so called by the council.

Engineers of the Norwood Engineering Co. of Florence, Mass., are engaged in the installing of water filters at the pumping station of the city water company in Harrisville. Ralph E. Thurston, chairman of the board of water commissioners, said today that the work will not be completed for several days yet. When the additional filter beds are pressed into service, the efficiency of the filtration plant will be increased, enabling the water department to cope with any unforeseen emergency which may arise.

The matter of floating a $65,000 bond issue, which shall be used to finance the reconstruction of the city water system according to plans and specifications approved by Mayor Charles A. Richard and members of the board of water commissioners, is being subjected to careful consideration by Mayor Richard and members of the special water committee of the council. Mayor Richard said that this delicate subject must be dealt with with extreme care and tactfulness. In view of this fact, several weeks will be required from the date negotiations are begun until the issue is floated, should the council decide to give bonds.

Vice-President Alexander Gilman presided at the weekly meeting of the local Rotary club held today at the Putnam Inn. The members were favored by the presence of District Governor Vernon H. Hodges of New Haven, Mr. Hodges attended the luncheon today in connection with his annual visitation to the local club. In his address he discussed the extension of Rotary in 40 nations with 3,000 clubs in existence with a combined membership of 150,000. He told of Rotary's stellar role in promoting international peace and good will among the nations of the universe. The forthcoming conferences and conventions of the organization were touched upon by Governor Hodges in which he called the attention of his Rotarian listeners to the 1930 international convention to be held in Chicago and the convention of 1931 to take place in Vienna, Austria. Mr. Hodges complimented the local club on its activities, social accomplishments and community services, concluding his remarks with a prophesy of continued prosperity for the Putnam club.

Visitors at today's luncheon, besides the district governor, included Irwin L. Bartlett of Turners Falls, Mass. and Frank W. Barber of Springfield, Mass., all of whom were presented with a souvenir book of the local organization by virtue of their trips, over 50 miles in length, in order to be present at luncheon. Henry Dubuc of Danielson was also a visitor at Wednesday's Rotary session.

Christmas seals, otherwise known as Health seals, were distributed in the mails to the public today by the Putnam chapter of Red Cross. The proceeds derived from the sale of the Christmas stickers will be used in the nation-wide effort to stamp out tuberculosis.

Thirty adult students were present at the opening session of a specially arranged course in public speaking, which took place last evening at Putnam high school. Professor Denlinger of Connecticut Agricultural college is conducting the course. Dr. Denlinger charmed his group with his pleasing personality, and knowledge of the subject in which he is instructing.

Local ice dealers have abandoned all hope of an early-season ice harvest, with a six-inch blanket of snow covering all ponds in the city. The sudden cold snap which preceded Monday's snowfall gave rise to the belief that harvesting could be completed before the new year. It will be remembered that ice shortages occurred hereabouts last year because of unseasonal winter months.

TWO SISTERS INJURED—A THIRD IN HOSPITAL

Mrs. Abraham Zegeer received word Tuesday that her two sisters living in Malone, N. Y., had been struck by an automobile, one sister having both legs broken, and the other being badly bruised. They were standing on the sidewalks when an automobile ran into another machine, pushing the latter car up on the walk, pinning the two women against a house. Two months ago, another sister in Worcester was struck by an automobile and sustained such serious injuries that she has been a patient in Worcester hospital for weeks.

MISSIONARY SOCIETY PRESENTS ORIGINAL PROGRAM

The Baptist Missionary society held its annual Christmas party in the vestry Tuesday afternoon. The program was most informative as to the standard of excellence required by the northern Baptist conference. The president of the society, Mrs. A. M. Brown, had arranged the program and composed a missionary play—Making the Standard Live—which was splendidly given. Mrs Brown, as Mrs. Missionary, converted Mrs. B. R. Gardner, who represented Mrs. Club Woman to the interesting, broad and vital missionary work, by depicting through living characters, the different helpful phases of the standard which is being carried out by the churches. The first was Prayer, represented by Mrs John Davis, in a white robe and wearing a crown. Eight women having head and shoulder bands inscribed with a month for each program and the name of the program, with Mrs. Lewis Hewlitt spokeswoman, were: Mrs. Hewlitt as book report; Mrs. Thomas Brown, dramatization; Mrs. E. M. Gray, missionary quiz; Mrs. Edward Raney, stewardship; Mrs. E. E. Gilbert, stereoptican; Mrs. J. P. Post, address; Mrs. Leonard McBroome, thank offering, and Mildred Gilbert, prayer. Missionary education was represented by Mrs. C. E. Gardner, in college cap and gown. Miss Reading Contest was Mrs. G. H. Prior; Miss Mission was Mrs. R. A. Wilbur, whose costume, including the hat, was made of pages of the Mission magazine. Mrs. E. E. Scates dressed in a nurse's uniform, represented the White Cross work. The most taking feature was the part Marjorie MacLean took with her mother, Mrs. John MacLean, who represented Christian Americanization. The little girl, in foreign costume and holding her baby Rosy, was inimitable in her part, as she was taught to speak English names, enjoying her teacher's visit to the utmost and being anxious to learn.

Miss Alice Brown told about the college councillor's work; Winifred Scates, the World Wide Guild Girls' president, gave an outline of their work, and the Children's World Crusade was represented by Marian Wilbur. Mrs. Associational Secretary Director was Mrs. Mary Y. Brewster, and Mrs. Brown told of the duties of the local society presidents. During the talks given by these representatives, it was noted that two children's names from the Baptist church had received mention in the Mission magazine—Marian Wilbur winning in a poster coloring contest, and Roy Perry being given honorable mention by four teachers at Camp Woodstock last summer. He was one of two boys out of sixty to receive this flattering mention for excellence in the points required at the camp.

In the ladies' parlor was a lighted Christmas tree surrounded by gifts to be sent at Christmas time to a mission hospital. The entire company gathered in a circle and sang, Blest be the Tie That Binds, which was followed by prayer by Mrs. Scates. A delicious supper was served by the members of the society. One of the noticeable features of the program was the drawings of books done by Mrs. Brown, the titles being clearly printed, denoting the books to be read in the reading contest.

Names to be added to the Red Cross roll are: Charles Donahue, Joseph Malek, Mrs. Joseph Malek, Norman Parkhurst, Isadore Rosen, Philomen Dupres, Patrick Clarke, J. Boynton, Mrs. J. Boynton, Nicholas Sarazerick, John Thompson, Bonita Pion, Edmond Boucher, Mrs. Frank Stanley, Kasper Drobiak, Thomas Grenier, Wojt Sareshiewicz, Eli Laviere, William Clark. From Voluntown: Margaret Tanner, Walter Tanner, Mrs. Walter Tanner, G. T. Briggs, Mrs. G. T. Briggs, Marion Briggs, John Herbert, Mrs. Fred Bray, Mrs. Louis Ritchotte, Bertha Stanley, Regina O'Neil, Lionel Marion, Albert Dupont, Edward McGuire, Mrs. Alexander Tanner, George Sheldon, Clara Deschamps, Mrs. Louis Lachapelle, Mrs. Martin Wilyer, Mrs. Anna Laine, Mrs. Rose Koisteney, Lotrell Kinnie, Myron Kinnie, Amelia Palmer, Benjamin Gallup.

A bridge and whist for the benefit of Faith chapter, O. E. S., was held at the home of Mrs. James G. Blair Tuesday afternoon, Miss Margery Brewster, Mrs. O. F. Durfey and Mrs. Dona Ballou assisting in the arrangements. There were five tables of bridge and one of whist. The first bridge prize was taken by Mrs. Henry Olson and the first prize in whist by Mrs. N. B. Parkhurst. The consolation award in bridge went to Mrs. W. H. Payne and in whist to Mrs. Abraham Zegeer. Refreshments were served and a social time followed. Among those present were Mrs. Alice Blair Matheson of East Brimfield and Mrs. F. A. Skinner, of Southbridge.

At the annual meeting of Mt. Vernon lodge, No. 75, A. F. and A. M. held Tuesday evening, the following officers were elected: Worshipful master, Walter A. Field; senior warden, Walter L. Benjamin; junior warden, J. Howard Davis; treasurer, Everett H. Hiscox; secretary, George H. Prior.

PREPARE FOR CENSUS

It will not be long now before the work of taking the census will be started. In anticipation of that time and for the purpose of having the people give the necessary amount of preliminary thought to it, President Hoover has asked that they cooperate thoroughly with the census bureau in making the enumeration a success.

It is always well that there should be sufficient advance information in regard to the census to have the people fully advised as to its meaning and what is expected of them. There will always be those who will not get that information and who will shy at the efforts of the census taker. Some will do it, anyway, so that a certain amount of obstruction to the enumerator can be anticipated, but preparation has its fine points and it will do much to remove suspicions and stubbornness.

It should be understood in the first place that there is nothing about the census to be feared. Those engaged in taking it are not satisfying their own desires by the questions they ask. They are complying with government requirements and the information obtained will remain a secret as far as the individual answers are concerned. It is quite important that the people should be prepared to answer the questions fully and intelligently. It isn't guesswork that is wanted but as accurate a report of the population of the country as can be obtained and it is possible for the individual to contribute his assistance.

In the coming census congress has called for the inclusion of questions which will disclose the unemployment situation and from the answers it is expected to obtain a clear idea of the resources of the country. There is nothing in the questions that will harm anyone and no use can be made of any answers for such a purpose.

It is wrong to harbor the idea that the questions ought to be avoided instead of answered. The simplest and best thing is to give every possible assistance; give the enumerator a cordial welcome and send him on his way as quickly as possible with a complete and helpful report concerning yourself or your household. There is no good reason for doing otherwise.

THIN ICE TRAGEDIES

Three children, the oldest nine, could not resist the temptation to venture on the ice of a Rhode Island pond. They found out too late that the ice would not support them and they were struggling in the icy water when seen by a nearby resident. He hurried to their aid and with other assistance they were gotten out of the water and hurried home.

One might suppose that such an experience would be a valuable lesson in that vicinity, or anywhere else where the facts became known, but there is no assurance that others will not do the same thing many times before the season of thin ice is over in the early winter or early spring.

There is no doubt as to the fascination that a child has for the first field of ice. Too often they are not of sufficiently mature minds to sense the danger. The result is that they take desperate risks without appreciating the seriousness of the danger and thus cause many cases of needless drowning and an untold amount of distress and sorrow.

Further than that, they impose obligations upon others who feel duty bound to do everything possible to effect a rescue under such circumstances. This may be as serious for those offering help as for those whose disregard for safety has placed them in dire peril. One of the three in Rhode Island was pulled into the water, trying to aid another, while the adults who finally succeeded in getting the children out were subjected to conditions which might easily have caused pneumonia and death. They were glad to be able to render the necessary assistance but they would have been more thankful if there had been no circumstances calling for such rescue work.

It is perfectly apparent that children are thinking most of the time about pleasure rather than about safety. They are not disposed to give the needed attention to precautions where thin ice is concerned unless it has been drilled into them and even then they like to take chances as well as their elders. Nevertheless, there is a parental responsibility that cannot be dodged and the fathers and mothers should be liberally engaged in the prevention of the thin ice tragedies and near-tragedies.

NATIONWIDE TOLL ROAD

Some discussion is centering about the idea of building a highway from the Atlantic to the Pacific across this country and it has been estimated by one backer of such a proposition that it could be constructed for the sum of $500,000,000. It is a matter that could easily be advocated at this time as a means of contributing to construction activity and through that to the continued prosperity of the nation. It could be pointed to as furthering the proposal recently made by President Hoover in regard to new projects, except that it should be remembered that the president called for the prudent expenditure of funds. Opinions would certainly differ as to whether such a plan and such an expense would be prudent at this time.

It isn't the purpose of the president to encourage the launching of a lot of wildcat propositions for the purpose of stimulating a false situation. It would be better that such propositions should be eliminated entirely than to have them eventually produce a wrong influence on the situation.

The coast-to-coast highway idea is not so far away from the proposition that was before the last session of the general assembly. Then the idea was advanced of giving a charter to a company to build a toll road across Connecticut that would eventually run from New York to Boston. It was urged as an aid to traffic and a relief to the congested highways, but it didn't get very far.

Probably the Connecticut or New England proposition got farther than the coast-to-coast highway would. There are many things involved which would require action by the respective states through which the projected road would run and occupy so much time that it would be years before anything could be accomplished even if it should get favorable action. Such a road might be of much benefit in certain localities and absolutely useless in others. That it will not eventually get a hearing and favorable consideration none would dare to claim but there is doubt about sentiment favoring anything of the kind at the present time.

THE IMPORTANCE OF RADIO

If someone should seriously ask the question as to whether we could get along without the radio there would be a strong and convincing chorus in the negative. Radio has come to play such an important part in our everyday life that we could not think of abandoning it. On the other hand, we are demanding more and more of it.

During every severe storm we have occasion to note the great aid that it gives to shipping in distress. Within the past few days how much more serious the position of those vessels which have received rough treatment off the Newfoundland coast would have been had there been no means of communicating their position and their condition to other vessels or to the shore. There probably has been loss of life and there has certainly been suffering and uncertainty but the radio has given real hope to disabled and battered vessels which would not have been possible before the radio was perfected, or before Marconi demonstrated from the Newfoundland coast that he could communicate through the air across the Atlantic.

Another vivid demonstration of the far-reaching benefits of the radio has been given in connection with the Byrd expedition. While this party has gone to the extreme lower end of the world, far from civilization, it has been in constant touch with the rest of the world and its accomplishments quickly disclosed.

We can better appreciate what a help it would have been in connection with other expeditions, whether they went to the polar regions or to other far distant and little frequented localities.

Could we think of getting along with and adjusting ourselves to conditions before the radio? Would we even be willing to deny ourselves the pleasure and entertainment that comes from its presence in so many homes? We can hear a steadily swelling tide of opposition to any thought of such a thing.

A FINE GOAL

One of the government problems for a long period has been the care of the Indians, a service that has rested on the shoulders of the Indian bureau in the department of the interior. It has not been an easy task, but regardless of the difficulties there have developed conditions which have not always been satisfactory. This has developed the desirability of getting rid of such a responsibility, but it can be appreciated that that is out of the question until it can be done right.

Secretary Wilbur of the interior department believes, nevertheless, that it can be done. It will take some time and the carrying out of a consistent policy looking to the placing of greater responsibilities upon the Indians themselves, but he has the idea that another quarter of a century can bring about such changes as to make it possible for the Indian bureau to be eliminated.

There is the need in the first place of establishing such a goal and then working persistently toward it. That will include the fitting of the Indians to take care of themselves and join with the rest of the citizens of the country in following other than tribal practices and making life something more than an existence. Many of them have furnished excellent demonstrations that it can be done. Inspiration will help more of them to do the same thing and to take a leading part in helping others. There should be nothing more gratifying to the Indians, especially the younger generations, than to bear their share of the responsibilities in bringing about the goal of the secretary of the interior.

IN THE CLUTCH OF THE LAW

He looked as though he should have been working on stage 4, Boomsky Brothers, Hollywood lot, with the Klieg lights pointing out his brawny good looks as he rescued the fainting girl or defied the villain. However, he had chosen instead to be an upholder of the law and on the Michigan avenue corner he was god of traffic.

He held up a hand as the little one-seater trundled over the cross street carefully. After wavering in apparent bewilderment the car obediently crept over to the curb.

"I saw you," Officer Tracy informed its driver, placing one foot on the running board and thrusting out his chin. Miss Delia Shancy, about as big as a minute and with perpetually round, appealing eyes, turned pale.

"Did you?" she gasped. Plainly she considered it a calamity. Officer Tracy leaned closer. His scrutiny was open and direct and what he saw appeared to satisfy him.

"They're blue," he remarked happily. "As lakes. I knew it. What do you—what do you mean, I say"—he apparently forgot the drift of his remarks and continued staring. His prisoner gulped.

"I don't understand you," she got out with the defiance of a perky sparrow. "I was going just as slow—oh, maybe that's it. I guess maybe I was obstructing traffic—is that the trouble?" Officer Tracy removed his right foot from the running board and replaced it with his left one. "No," he said with a touch of gloom. "You haven't hit it, young lady. I've seen you every morning for the last month driving along here like—like a—where you headed for, anyway?"

"Smitz, Pilfer & Smitz," she answered tremulously. "I've got a job taking samples around to customers and if I'm late they'll fire me. What have I done?"

"Plenty," he informed her promptly. He got out his notebook and pencil and frowned. "Perhaps I won't give you a ticket after all."

Miss Shancy straightened her hat in great agitation. Mechanically she sought and found her vanity case. Officer Tracy leaned closer over the side of the car.

"Still," he went on. "It might be a good thing—driving the way you do. It's a crime."

"What's the matter with my driving?" Miss Shancy retorted with reviving spirit. It is wonderful what fresh lipstick and a touch of rouge will do for feminine morale. "My brother says I learned very fast. He taught me last month, I couldn't get my job unless I could drive a car."

"Oh—it was your brother who taught you, was it?" Officer Tracy commented with great cheer. "I would have supposed it was one of your beaus did it—hey?"

"Beaus!" repeated Miss Shancy obsently. She had just looked fully and meetingly at the law and what she saw seemed to hypnotize her. "What time have I for beaus—I'm a business woman! I shan't be long, though, unless you let me go."

"Business woman!" scoffed Officer Tracy. He seemed irritated at the idea. "Anyhow, you can't drive down my street disturbing traffic—"

"What!" cried Delia Shancy indignantly. Officer Tracy riffled his notebook. "Anyhow, you disturbed me," he muttered. "Where did you say you lived, now?"

"At 2332 3d avenue." Miss Shancy responded with meekness. She did not look meek any more, however. There was an excited tilt to her head and her cheeks were turning pink.

"Name?" Officer Tracy proceeded sternly. She told him. She grasped her steering wheel and looked down and her lashes were quite wonderful. Officer Tracy apparently was enthralled by them. "H'm," he said.

She looked up, and for a long half minute they regarded one another.

"Hrrrp," he said, removing his foot from the running board. "Well, I'm going to let you go this time, Miss Delia Shancy, but your driving has got to be kept track of. I think about tomorrow night—it's my day off—I've got to drop around to your address and see if you're carrying on all right or not. It's my duty to the public. What say?"

"Of course it is," Miss Shancy trilled, starting her little car. Her eyes sparkled. "I expect I might have killed somebody, doing all of twenty miles an hour as I was. I'm simply terrible!"

"I'll tell you what you are," Officer Tracy promised happily, "tomorrow night—at 8 sharp!"—Exchange.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Lacking In Common Decency To The Dead

Mr. Editor: My attention has been called to the fact that the town of Norwich is apparently so lacking in public spirit and right thinking that the town fathers have allowed the First Burying Ground to become neglected, desecrated and sold off for building lots!

It is hard to believe that a town so honored and respected and looked up to as a fine example of New England culture and spirit, should be so lacking in common decency towards its dead. Especially when it means those valiant souls who fought the hardships of the first 40 years to leave something to be loved and enjoyed by future generations are ignored.

I am descended through my father, Edward Huntington Tracy, born in Norwich in 1817, from Lt. Thomas Tracy and Christopher Huntington, both buried in this plot of ground neglected for years by a succession of town fathers. The neglect is hard to believe, but it is nothing compared to the last disgrace of selling off the land for building lots.

How can there be any question about the right thing to do? Undo the wrong as far as possible, restore and preserve.

YOUR HEALTH

Tell Them Why!

By William Rankin, M. D.
Keokuk, Iowa.
(From Gorgas Memorial Institute)

Children, even quite young ones, are capable not only of learning simple health rules but of grasping the reasons for them. The children in past generations were given sulphur and molasses or sassafras tea each spring and may not have understood why. But in the present time a young child can easily be taught what it is all about.

For example, he soon grasps why it is to his benefit to go to a physician in the spring. The parents should have approached the visit without too much talking beforehand and had the attitude that it was "a matter of course" that in the spring the child be looked over to see if any illnesses of the past winter had left traces which needed correction or watching. The child does not have to be told about infected tonsils, dental caries, enlarged glands, abnormal hearts or diseased kidneys. The parents can know that such things are possible and plan accordingly. But the child soon gets to feel that Doctor Smith is a very fine friend who wants to see how he is growing; and it is not hard to understand that play in the sunshine is good for him as well as great fun.

A child's cooperation can be obtained if in a simple way he is told that wearing sandals prevents rusty nails and bits of glass from getting into his feet and causing serious infections. If father says: "Oh, let him alone, make him tough, not a baby," then Johnnie is not going to be quite so agreeable as if the case were made: "Of course you don't want to wear a lot of clothes for your sun bath but we have to filter the sun for the tenderer skin."

Mary will have doubts about eating her vegetables if mother says: "You ought to eat spinach," but never touches it herself. Yet in this motor age any child can understand that regular meals of milk and cooked vegetables make him strong and are just as important as gas, oil and water to a good automobile. If parents would take the time to explain this simply, they might be surprised that it had taken no more time to teach Johnnie what was best for him than to let him do the selecting. If he really is too little to understand, then he is too little to do the selecting; at such a tender age you would not let him select his new coat, and neither should he select his food.

A child can be taught to brush his teeth from the time he is old enough to watch you brush yours at least each morning and evening. Long before he goes to school, he can learn that flies and mosquitoes carry disease and can be avoided by cleanliness. Soap as the leader of civilization can be put into a story that a child of three can grasp. If very early in the life regular habits of excretion are formed for him as well as regular habits of eating, he soon understands that his not feeling well probably is caused by his failing to observe the time he should have gone to the toilet.

If you are trying to bring up healthy children, remember that they have the capacity to understand health rules and the canniness to know whether or not you are preaching something to them that you are not practicing in your own lives.

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4—Some aspiring politician evidently is going to find a Hoover cabinet portfolio in his Christmas stocking.

It will be the war department berth vacated by the death of Jim Good; and an ample number of folks seem to think they rate the job.

Whether the president's purpose of deferring his announcement of Good's successor until after the 30-day period of official mourning for the Iowan ends is a special mark of personal affection for Good or establishes a Hoover custom is not certain.

It will serve to bring word of the new assignment to public attention, however, just before Christmas.

The immediate twist given gossip as to who probably would be selected turned a spotlight on Pat Hurley of Oklahoma, now assistant war secretary and acting head of the department.

There can be no question of his already well established popularity in the war department. That, coupled with the fact that he is a world war veteran of fine overseas record and a personal friend of the president, seemed to be the main reason for gossip centering on him.

A Full Field.

But Mr. Hurley is not the only political lad with military experience in the picture.

There is the Hon. John Q. Tilson of Connecticut, for instance, republican leader in the house, and a member of the house "big three" which virtually did all the functioning for that branch of congress in the farm relief special session.

With Speaker Longworth and Chairman Snell of the rules committee, Tilson composed the works of the house for that period, so to speak.

John Tilson is doing his ninth congressional term. Back in the exciting period of the world war, he was an important member of the military committee

It was a natural assignment for him, since he began a military career in Spanish war days as a second "loole" in a federal volunteer infantry regiment, and from the close of that war to the end of 1916 was a Connecticut national guardsman.

He was colonel of the 2nd Connecticut infantry at the time of the Mexican border mobilization.

May Turn to West.

Still, the political situation for Mr. Hoover would seem to indicate a farm belt, or at least western, cabinet selection, which may block Tilson's hopes.

Hurley might fill that bill; or there is Walter Brown, now postmaster general and an Ohioan.

At the time of Senator Burton's death Brown hastened to Ohio, being the only missing member of the presidential cabinet family at the Burton funeral ceremonies.

There was talk then that he might be seeking appointment to fill out Burton's term, in which event the gossipers were satisfied Walter Newton of Minnesota, who resigned from congress at the peak of his political career to take a secretarial job at the white house, would get the postoffice department.

Now some observers think Brown might be transferred to war, opening the way for Newton as postmaster general. Or Newton might get war himself. There seems to be a feeling that Mr. Hoover owes him a better job than on the White House secretariat.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORY

A Scheming Pair.

By Thornton W. Burgess.

To realize that of which you dream,
You frequently must plot and scheme.
—Reddy Fox.

Reddy Fox chuckled. "That suits me," said he. "It may take time to get one, but we'll get one sooner or later. There is nothing like being right on the job all the time. Turkeys roam around in the fields a good deal. Who knows but that we may be able to get one in daylight?"

"I don't care when we get one, whether it is in daylight or at night, as long as we get it," replied Mrs. Reddy. "My mouth has been watering ever since I laid eyes on those turkeys. I suppose we might hide behind this old barn until daylight. Perhaps they will come down and we can get one and run away."

"It won't do any harm to try," replied Reddy. "There's a dog up at that house."

"How do you know?" asked Mrs Reddy.

"I smelled his tracks last night," replied Reddy.

"I hope he isn't a hound," said Mrs Reddy.

"I'm sorry to tell you that he is," replied Reddy. "That means that we have got to be extra careful."

"Perhaps," replied Mrs. Reddy. "On the other hand, perhaps it is a good thing."

"I don't see how you make that out," said Reddy.

"Listen, Reddy," replied Mrs. Reddy. "There are two of us, aren't there?"

Reddy nodded. "Of course," said he.

"Well, why shouldn't one of us lead the dog away while the other one gets a turkey?" said Mrs. Reddy.

Reddy looked at Mrs. Reddy admiringly "My dear," said he, "that is an excellent idea. No one will ever think of two foxes being around at the same time. We'll let that dog see one of us and then lead him away off, while the other one remains hidden. Those turkeys are sure to come down and the one who is hidden will have plenty of chance to catch one."

"The question is, who will lead the dog away?" said Mrs. Reddy.

"The question is, who will lead the dog away?" said Mrs. Reddy.

"It doesn't make a bit of difference to me," replied Reddy, "I'll lead the dog away and you can catch the turkey. Or you can lead the dog away and I'll catch the turkey."

"Where will the one who catches the turkey take it to? One of those big birds will be pretty heavy to carry far," said Mrs. Reddy.

Reddy looked thoughtful. "That's so," said he. "Neither of us can run very far with one of those big birds. I'll tell you what it is, my dear, we must prepare."

"What do you mean by preparing?" asked Mrs. Reddy.

"We must find a place to hide that turkey—a place where no one else will find it. Then we can come back when the way is clear and get it," said Reddy.

"Right you are, my dear, right you are," replied Mrs. Reddy. "Let's look around now for a place to hide that turkey. We must know just what we are going to do. By the way, suppose I lead the dog off while you catch the turkey?"

So Reddy and Mrs. Reddy began to explore thoroughly the farmyard and the nearest woods, looking for a place where they might safely leave a turkey if they should get one.

Stories That Recall Others

Every Ten Years

Bill, the neighborhood cutup, remarked: "I'm going to give my dog a census bath tomorrow."

Charles, always curious, asked: "What's a census bath?" giving Bill his desired chance to explain that "It's one taken every ten years, and count the inhabitants!"

Ride For Mother?

Martha, age four, who is very fond of her mother, was out for a walk one day with her aunt and brother when they saw a drunken man arrested and taken away in the new patrol wagon. She had never before seen the wagon and was impressed by it enough to say:

"Oh, isn't it beautiful; I wonder if mother will ever get to ride in it."

CHILD TRAINING

Counteracting Hannah.

Hazel M. Cliffgard.

"My family think it is foolish," said Mrs. Roberts, "to worry about three-year-old Jackie's grammar, when there are real phases of character development to be considered. Just the same, it seems too bad to allow him to use double negatives."

"You are quite right," sympathized her friend. "I should say a careless way of doing anything, whether talking or eating or dressing, would have some kind of bearing on one's future personality. All habits would wouldn't they?"

"Yes, I suppose so. Practically all the new books on child culture stress the very first influences, too. Nevertheless, I scarcely know how to proceed. Jackie is so impatient when he is corrected. And his little neighbors talk like children of the backwoods. You were lucky not to have had these troubles with Richard."

"Oh, but I did," smiled Mrs. White, reminiscently. "Haven't you heard our Hannah talk? She never uses an "isn't" and not only does she told tenaciously to the least objectionable of its disreputable synonyms but she occasionally falls back upon the two worse ones."

"Good gracious!" gasped Mrs. Roberts, stopping a moment to recall what these were, "didn't you find it hard to keep her?"

Her companion nodded.

"For a while, I thought I should have to let her go, surely. But Hannah had been with us so long and was so fond of the children, I couldn't quite turn her off because she used the vernacular of her class and generation. I simply had to find some other way."

"But what else was there to do? Could you keep them away from her?"

"No, Marilyn was a baby, and Hannah had full charge of Richard all the morning, even taking him up when he awoke. I worried about that part most. Children are supposed to be so impressionable right after waking. And, sure enough, one day he did come out with one of Hannah's very worst barbarisms."

Mrs. Roberts sighed appreciatively. "I know exactly how you felt. Tell me what you did. I know you thought of something."

"Well, it seems almost too simple to tell. Of course I made mild corrections during the day—we all do that—but I was still haunted by the fear that those morning impressions might be more lasting than I knew. We had a learned professor who used to break into the commonest of speech when he became thoroughly absorbed in his subject."

"We knew a case like that," put in Mrs. Roberts.

"Yes. That was the sort of thing I feared. Consequently, I decided I should have to work up some kind of counteraction, and it occurred to me that if I remembered the worst mistakes Richard made during the day, I might be able to emphasize the correct form during the bedtime story hour. My best success came with rhymes which I concocted for the purpose and alternated with his other nursery verse. You would smile if you could have heard us repeating them over and over again."

"Oh, that was too clever for anything," Mrs. Roberts replied, a bit of disappointment in her voice, "but I'm not the least bit poetical."

"My dear!" exclaimed her companion impatiently. "I don't mean I did any epics. Listen to this—

'Isn't it funny
A dog has four legs
While we have only two?
Isn't it funny
A dog says, "Bow wow,"
While we say, "How do you do!"
Isn't it? Isn't it? Isn't it? Say!
We're almost as different as night is from day.'

Now,' continued Mrs. White, "anybody could do that, couldn't she? Perhaps you don't like the 'funny,' but I didn't find that objectionable, myself."

"No," answered Mrs. Roberts absently. "I suppose I could weave in something about—

"There isn't any butter in the cupboard.
There isn't any sugar in the sack.
I think I'll hurry to the grocery—'"

"I won't be any time in getting back," finished Mrs. White. "That's the idea, and the funnier the rhyme, the better Jackie will lie it."

"I shall certainly try out your system," mused her friend. "Mother Goose will have to look to her laurels from now on."

WIFE BLOCKS HUSBAND'S SUIT TO EJECT HER

A husband was restrained from ejecting his wife from their home as a trespasser Tuesday when their domestic tribulations were brought before Judge Hugh B. Baker in superior court at Providence.

Mrs. Mary F. Havens, wife of Col. George H. Havens, Beacon avenue, Providence, was granted an application for a preliminary injunction to enjoin her husband and his nephew, Billings F. S. Crandall, of Stoddards Wharf, Ledyard, respondents, from obtaining or serving any execution, or enforcing the judgment of the sixth district court in an action of trespass and ejectment.

Col. and Mrs. Havens have gone through extensive divorce proceedings in the past, but neither has been successful in divorcing the other. Soon after their marriage, Col. Havens, a retired druggist, made his wife joint owner with him in the Beacon avenue property. Following the divorce litigation, he instituted a partition suit and the property was sold at public auction to Mr. Crandall for $15,000. Col. Havens took back a mortgage for $15,000, the full purchase price. Mrs. Havens received about $6,300 as her share of the proceeds. Crandall then brought his trespass and ejectment suit to oust Mrs. Havens and obtain decision in the district courts.

Mrs. Havens retaliated with an injunction suit, seeking to have the court determine her inchoate right of dower in the property, contending the property actually belongs to her husband, though in his nephew's name. She says she is still the wife of Col. Havens but he provides no support for her and has provided her with no other home. She has continued to live in the Beacon avenue home, her husband having departed from there early in their marital troubles.

Judge Baker, ruling that law points can only be determined upon final hearing, and in order to hold the matter in status quo until that time, granted the temporary relief, holding up further proceedings to oust Mrs. Havens. The law does not favor actions of this nature between husband and wife, the court ruled, the law considering such proceedings as inconsistent with the marriage relation.

CLAIMED AUTOMOBILE THAT WAS PARKED ALL NIGHT

About a half hour after a model T Ford sedan had been towed to police headquarters, Wednesday evening, from Water street, as an abandoned machine, James McGregor of No. 21 Hill street, appeared at the station house and informed the police that the car was his. He was booked on a charge of parking the machine all night on Water street.

Officer Henry Fenton had reported to headquarters that the sedan had been parked on Water street, near the Auditorium hotel, all night Tuesday and that it was still there Wednesday evening. Officer Patrick Shahan and Officer Fenton towed the machine to police headquarters.

McGregor, appearing to claim the machine, told the police that he had let some one take the machine Tuesday. He admitted that it had been left on the street all night Tuesday. He claimed he had used the machine late Wednesday afternoon and had left it in the same place about 6 o'clock Wednesday evening while he went to the skating rink in the Olympic building. After leaving the skating rink he learned that the machine was gone. The machine was towed to police headquarters about 9:30 o'clock.

$2,000 DAMAGE IN WILLIMANTIC FIRE

WILLIMANTIC, Dec. 4.—Fire believed to have been caused by an overheated wood stove broke out about 9.15 o'clock tonight in the two-tenement house at 265-263 Main street, owned by the American Thread company and occupied by Mrs. Gideon Roy and Mrs. Ovila Boisvert and family. The damage was roughly estimated tonight at $2,000 to the building and contents. The fire broke out near a wood stove in the upstairs part of the Roy tenement, being discovered by Mrs. Roy. Her son, Oscar, rang in an alarm from Box 51, bringing a quick response by the full complement of permanent and call members in charge of Acting Chief Michael J. English. The firemen fought blindly against the blaze beneath a fireproof roof. The recall was sounded within 45 minutes. Two lines of hose were played on the blaze. The fire was confined to the interior of the building, where the firemen were forced to chop walls in order to gain access to the elusive blaze. The walls and furniture on the lower floor were damaged by water.

SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA TRIUMPHS IN MITCHELL MEMORIAL CONCERT

The Mitchell memorial concert, given at Slater hall Wednesday evening by the Norwich Symphony orchestra under direction of Dr. Frank Drago, was a brilliant success. Norwich music lovers, in honor to the memory of Archibald Mitchell who did much to enhance the love for music and musical education in Norwich, filled Slater hall with an audience of over 500, who visibly enjoyed the fine concert.

The program opened with Mozart's Symphony in G Minor which was a gem of grace, lyricism, and piquant rhythm, all in true Mozartian spirit, a well chosen composition for this particular occasion. The Mozart Symphony, and the works that followed, proved that Dr. Drago has a good instrument at his disposal, well balanced, sonorous and colorful. The excellent work of the orchestra was warmly received. Dr. Drago combines authoritative knowledge and meticulous care with a sympathetic and intelligent grasp of a composers' thought and intention. He has no small amount of personal magnetism, and has the orchestra under perfect control at all times.

The brilliant popular Symphonie Espagnole, by Lalo, was next on the list, with Hugo Kortschak, violinist, as the soloist. Mr. Kortschak is in charge of the violin department at Yale School of Music and there was much interest in hearing him, for his reputation as an artist of the highest rank is well established both in America and Europe, and he had never before been heard in this city. He unites in one person all the excellent qualities which an executive artist can possess in so high a degree. He crowns all these qualities with his poetic faculty, by means of which he makes everything that comes to his hand so beautiful and attractive, that his listeners can give themselves up to undisturbed enjoyment. In the Symphonie Espagnole these qualities were much in evidence and the result was a performance of striking power and beauty.

The allegro non troppo was delivered with firmness and vigor and the characteristic Spanish rhythm well established. The sublime andante found in Mr. Kortschak a most devoted and poetical exponent who brought out all the subtle, mystic charm its ideal performance requires. The Rondo (allegro) was brilliantly executed and presented with an undisturbed rhythmic sureness. At the conclusion Mr. Kortschak received a rousing ovation.

Audience Pays Memorial Tribute

Rev. Alexander H. Abbott followed Mr. Kortschak and delivered an eulogy in memory of Archibald Mitchell which made a deep impression upon the audience. "As we meet here tonight," said Rev. Mr. Abbott, "we would do honor to the memory of Mr. Archibald Mitchell. His delight in music and musicians, and his fostering of the art in Norwich are well known to all of us. It is not enough that one man should attempt to speak for the music-lovers of this community, as a mark of our respect; the members of such an audience as this would prefer to speak for themselves. Let us, then, at this moment, rise and observe a moment or two of silence, as an act of memory."

All present rose and paid tribute to the memory of Mr. Mitchell. As the audience was seated again Rev. Mr. Abbott added: "This action of ours is evidence of our gratitude to Mr. Mitchell's benefaction to the music of Norwich."

In keeping with the atmosphere created by the remarks of Rev. Alexander H. Abbott, the string choir of the orchestra gave a beautiful interpretation of the Andante Cantabile from Tschaikowsky's String Quartet Op. 11. Dr. Drago brought forth from the strings a tone of imposing depth and scintillating, polished mellowness.

As this selection was concluded, Charles J. Dyer, president of the Norwich Symphony society, came to the front and, grasping Dr. Drago by the hand, spoke with unfeigned admiration of the wonderfully fine performance given by the orchestra. "They help us, and we ought to help them," said Mr. Dyer. "We ought to support those who do the beautiful things for us. It is indeed wonderful that Dr. Drago and his personnel composed of Norwich men and women give their time and effort entirely free to give us this beautiful concert. We ought to be thankful to them and help them continue the symphony in Norwich."

A graceful and spirited performance by the orchestra of Mozart's Menuetto from the Symphony in E flat followed.

Mr. Kortschak next presented a group of four pieces: Air by Goldmark, Burlesca by Suk, Nocturne by Boullanger, and the brilliant Zapateado (Spanish dance) by Sarasate. In this group Mr. Kortschak's gifts as an interpretative musician were again in evidence and he proved to have at his command all the technical resources of the violin. Mr. Kortschak was assisted at the piano by Felix Hupka, a Viennese musician, recently come to America. Mr. Hupka's work was of the highest order, displaying insight and cooperative understanding.

The orchestra followed with the lovely and popular Blue Danube Waltz by Strauss. One never seems to tire of listening to this idealized dance poem, particularly as Dr. Drago gave it a fresh performance of marked color, and no lack of brilliance.

A lively and brilliant rendition of Mozart's Overture to the opera "Le Nozze di Figaro" brought the concert to a successful conclusion. Dr. Drago shared with the orchestra the well merited ovation given to them by the audience.

Bible Study at Local Y. M. C. A.

The weekly Bible study hour for men was held at the association building Wednesday evening, and an interesting session was held. The topic of discussion was "Ideals to Strive for," and the scripture used was the 13th chapter of first Corinthians.

Among the points brought out in the study were the following:

A man has no moral right to be indifferent to the needs of others. Most of the indifference is thoughtless rather than deliberate. Paul in the chapter places great emphasis on love. While Paul did not attempt to define love, he did suggest some of its ingredients, among which are the following: Patience, kindness, absence of envy, humility, courteous, unselfishness, a controlled temper. Love is not suspicious; seeks the good in people not the bad.

SPOKE TO ROTARIANS ON JAPANESE RELATIONS

The Relationship Between Japan and the United States was the topic of a very interesting address by M. T. Yamamoto, editor of The Japan Times of Tokyo, at the meeting of the Norwich Rotary club on Wednesday noon at the Wauregan hotel. Mr. Yamamoto was introduced by Arthur M. Brown, in charge of the program for December.

In his talk Mr. Yamamoto said in part:

The United States and Japan are very closely related in the way of commerce, but they must understand each other to promote and get the best results of this relationship. There are 21 nations bordering on the Pacific ocean and to America and Japan it is an obligation to cooperate in preserving peace among them. You know that imaginary talk of war oft times leads to real war. The hands are guided by the heart and poisoned hearts make violent hands.

It is idle to deny that there existed a misunderstanding between Japan and America prior to the Washington conference of 1921-22. But the result of this conference was a better understanding between the two nations, America and Japan, and between Japan and China. Japan immediately following the conference restored Shantung to China with all its sovereign power. Japan withdrew her troops from eastern Siberia; cared for several thousand Russian refugees driven out by the bolshevists, not from any political reason but for purely humanitarian reasons. Japan then cut her navy by 30,000 men, scrapped some old ships, and released 2,800 officers. One of the most notable things was the changing of the text books in Japanese schools. The old books were thrown out and modern textbooks put into the schools.

On Sept. 1, 1923 came the earthquake which was the worst disaster in the history of Japan. The U. S. gave $11,000,000 to aid the nation. This made a very profound impression on the Japanese. Then a $1,500,000 hospital was built which stands as not only a monument to American generosity but to the brotherhood of mankind.

This feeling was impaired by the exclusion of the Japanese from America in 1924 but with others in Japan feel that this will be reconsidered and a solution satisfactory to both countries will be made. The Japanese did not mind the exclusion so much as the way in which it was done.

In the Sino-Russian controversy Japan is maintaining a strictly neutral position. She is not entering into the Eastern Railway difficulty at all, although the railroad was originally planned for the Russians to get quick access to Japan. Japan wants peace in Russia for that country takes 27 per cent. of the Japanese products. Japan is endeavoring to promote peace all through the far east and is doing all in her power toward this end. The greatest promotion for this peace is education and the principles of brotherly love taught at the home fireside.

In conclusion Mr. Yamamoto said that he hoped that in a short time the principles of the Geneva, Paris and Washington conference would be realities.

At the business session, F. Russel Smith presided in the absence of President Frank R. Murdy. Lucius Briggs and C. A. Gager were the energetic song leaders. The club voted the usual contribution to the Christmas seal fund.

The meeting closed with the singing of The Star Spangled Banner.

EXTENDS ELIGIBILITY TIME FOR $1,000 TAX EXEMPTION

According to an opinion handed down by Town Counsel H. H. Pettis, any person who served with the United States forces during the Word war, between April 6, 1917 and July 2, 1921, is entitled to a $1,000 property tax exemption in Norwich. The opinion by the town counsel was issued at the request of the board of assessors. Having received the opinion, the board of assessors are unanimous in their decision to allow ex-service men and women the $1,000 exemption if they served betwen April 6, 1917 and July 2, 1920, instead of between April 6, 1917 and November 11, 1918.

Persons desiring the $1,000 exemption are requested to record their discharge papers with Town Clerk Harold S. Burt before November 1, 1930. Only those who recorded their discharge papers prior to Nov. 1, 1929, will be allowed the exemption for this year. It is understood that there are a number of men in Norwich who were in the service of the United States during the period between the date of the Armistice and that of the official signing of the treaty of peace, who will benefit by the opinion.

In response to your request for my opinion as to whether a person enlisting in the United States army subsequent to Nov. 11, 1918, but prior to the treaty of peace, between the United States and Germany, was entitled to have his property to the amount of $1,000 exempt from taxation under the provisions of the general statutes, I would say as follows:

The armistice between this country and Germany was signed on Nov. 11th, 1918, but no definite treaty of peace was entered into until July 2nd, 1921. During this interval, our armed forces were not engaged in any hostilities so far as I am aware with the exception of a force of some two of three thousand men who during a portion of this period were in Russia. The language used by our statute is "In time of war." The question therefore is whether war was continuing in a legal sense during this interval between the armistice and the signing of the treaty. The federal courts have considered this question on a number of occasions, though never so far as I am aware with reference to a claim for tax exemption. It also has been considered a number of times by various state courts but so far as I know the supreme court of this state has never had this question before it for decision. While the question is not free from doubt, I am, on the whole, of the opinion that until the signing of the treaty, the United States was legally at war and that the expression "in time of war" should be held to include this interim. If I am correct in this it necessarily follows that any person enlisting in the army, navy, marine corps or revenue marine service, during the interim would be entitled to the $1,000 exemption under our statute. It does not however necessarily follow from this that any person who has paid taxes heretofore should now be entitled to recover them back as this question would depend upon other considerations.

Trusting that this will answer your question, I remain,

Your very truly,
HENRY H. PETTIS,
Town Counsel.

BOY SCOUTS HOLD MODEL PROGRAM FOR SCOUTLEADERS

Two interesting features of the seventh session of the Scout leaders' training course held Wednesday night were a talk by William A. Collins, assistant scoutmaster of Troop 12, on map making and a model program by the scouts of Troop 1. The session opened at 7.30 p. m. in Room 216, Thayer building, with a game on safety first. Following the game Mr. Collins led an interesting discussion on map making. The badge committee composed of John Hill and Howard Ludlow elected by the scoutmasters at the scoutmasters' campfire reported that they had discussed badge awards with several scoutmasters and were reporting in favor of the boy and troop paying for a boy's badge. Badges therefore awarded at the next court of honor will be collected for in advance at the cort.

Announcements were made concerning the winter camp and court of honor. Every scoutleader plans to attend the court and have as many scouts and parents present as is possible. It was announced that Arthur Adams, field scout executive of Hartford, will show moving pictures of the camp at the court.

At 8.10 the group of leaders hiked to the Community house on Church street where they observed for the remainder of the evening a model troop program put on by the scouts of Troop 1. The program included scout oath and law, pledge of allegiance to the flag, payment of dues, business meeting, patrol instruction and project work, games and scout benediction. Following the meeting refreshments were served and the scout men had a short discussion of good and bad points in the meeting observed. Some points stressed were: Variety, alternate game with instruction, something new each meeting, instruction given by games, few commands, plenty of action, boy participation, boys instructing boys, little business, beginning and closing on time; more cooperation shown by parents.

William M. Wyman, deputy scout commissioner, gave a short talk to the scouts on first aid and Scoutmaster Walter Weldman gave a word of thanks on behalf of the scoutmasters. Scoutmaster Howard Ludlow led a most interesting game of "Murphy Says." A. L. Peale and Assistant Scoutmaster Cecil Wetherbee were in charge of the troop.

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 4—Sedrick Kennett, of East Lyme, 25, undoubtedly possessed of a criminal mind, was arrested today by Capt. William P. Conley, Lieut. David Marks and Sergeants John McAuliffe and John McGrath, New Haven railroad special agents, charged with attempted train wrecking. Kennett was taken into custody after a boulder had been placed on the railroad tracks intended to wreck the Bar Harbor east-bound express. It was struck instead by the east bound Cannon Ball freight train. The arrest of Kennett was not until an all night search had been made for him and resulted when he returned to where he had placed the huge rock on the tracks.

Kennett, who has been under suspicion by the state police of being criminally inclined went to the tracks in East Lyme probably about 10.30 last night and succeeded in rolling the boulder to the east-bound tracks. He then hid himself in the bushes and awaited the arrival of the train. The express had passed through East Lyme a short time before Kennett placed the boulder on the tracks, having arrived in New London at 11.20 o'clock. The next train to come along was the fast express freight and as the boulder had been placed on a section of the track where there is a curve, it was not seen by the engineer with the result that the locomootive struck it with great force. The engine was not thrown from the tracks, but it was disabled. As soon as the engine crew realized that an attempt had been made to wreck a train, the information was telephoned to the office of the special agents here. Police officials at New Haven were also notified. Capt. Conley and Sergeant McAuliffe coming to New London and then going to East Lyme where they joined Lieut. Marks and Sergeant McGrath. An all-night search for Kennett did not result in his being found, but when he went to the site of the intended train wreck this forenoon he was arrested. Taken to the state police barracks, Kennett broke down under a long grilling and declared that he had intended to wreck a passenger train and rob the passengers. Kennett was armed, for when being questioned before he was taken to Groton, he made an attempt to pull a .38 calibre revolver, but he was disarmed by the officers.

The arrest of Kennett also revealed that earlier in the evening he had attempted a holdup on the Boston Post road in East Lyme. Kennett leaped to the side of the highway when an automobile in which Samuel J. Cooper and Miss Anita Henderson, both of Boston, were passengers and signaled Cooper to stop. Instead of heeding the command, Cooper speeded the engine and as the car was about to pass where Kennett was standing the latter hurled a stone through the windshield. Cooper and Miss Henderson were cut by the flying glass. On the auto arriving at a gas station, Cooper told the story of the attempted holdup to the state police. Officer William E. MacKenzie was detailed to make a search for the holdup man and after questioning Cooper the officer arrived at the conclusion that Kennett was the man wanted. The officer went to Kennett's home, but the young man was not there. After a wait of two hours, the officer left the house and joined his associate officers who were searching for Kennett for the attempted holdup. After the state police had returned to the barracks Kennett appeared at the location of the attempted train wreck and his arrest resulted.

Kennett was presented in the justice court of East Lyme late this afternoon and was held for trial before the next term of the superior court. In default of bail Kennett was committed to jail.

Broadway Theatre.

Side-splitting comedy, enthralling music, intricate and graceful dancing, Shakespeare and burlesque, vie with one another for honors in the all-star "Hollywood Revue," the massive production showing today and tomorrow for the last times on the Broadway screen. John Gilbert heads the cast of 25 stars from the Hollywood firmament, including the dramatic, comedy and singing and dancing favorites. Jack Benny and Conrad Nagel are rivals for the crown of master of ceremonies, and honors are even until the final flicker. The chorus numbers are exceptionally brilliant, with the huge M-G-M ensemble of over 200 trained dancers, augmented by the famous Rasch ballet, in scenes photographed in natural colors. A symphony orchestra of 100 musicians plays the entire show which lasts nearly two hours. The latest Fox movie-tone news is an added feature. For Saturday's evening the Broadway has in preparation "The Great Gabbo," a tense drama of a man overcome by his own self-love. Erich von Stroheim, known as "the man you love to hate," has the leading role, with Betty Compson heading a supporting cast of over 500.

Cupid is responsible for a lot of earthly misery by being elsewhere when wanted.

POETRY

Compensation

When my luck seems all out
And I'm down at the mouth,
When I'm stuck in the North,
And I want to go South;
When the world seems a blank
And there's no one I love,
And it seems even God's
Not in Heaven above,
I've a cure for my grouth
And it works like a shot—
I just think of the things
That I'm glad I am not;
A bird in a cage
A fish in a bowl,
A pig in a pen,
A fox in a hole,
A bear in a pit,
A wolf in a trip,
A fowl on a spit,
A rug on a lap,
A horse in a stable,
A cow in a shed,
A plate on a table,
The sheet on a bed,
The case on a pillow,
A bell on a door,
A branch on a willow,
A mat on the floor,
When I think of the hundreds of things
I might be,
I get down on my knees and thank God that I'm me.
Then my blues disappear, when I think what I've got,
And quite soon I've forgotten the things
I have not.

—Elsie Janis, in the Cosmopolitan.

Can't Scare My Dreams Away

You cannot scare my dreams away—
They come to me by night, by day.
Though everything I have is gone
And life seems scarce worth living on
Quiet moments come when troubles fold
Their wings engulfed in sunset's gold
And every worry, every care
Seems vanished in the twilight air.

Beside a city window dim
I nod; my fancy seems to skim
Beyond the blackened chimney pots
Fair fields of sweet forget-me-nots.
And daisies by a laughing stream
Of home and mother then I dream.
Of childish faith and innocence
And wild rose nodding by a fence.
Oh, Fate, strange pranks you like to play
But you can't take my dreams away.

—Florida Times-Union.

It was Friday and the pupils were due to recite various things they had learned during the week. Dorothy said she would give a proverb, and when her turn came stood up and solemnly said "Susie Adam forgets Susie Adam."

The teacher gasped and called her back. "What on earth is that?" "Quotation!" said Dorothy proudly. "Say it again!" "Susie Adam forgets Susie Adam." "But," said the teacher, "when did we have that?" "Monday." The teacher turned to her diary and saw for Monday: "Enthusiasm begets enthusiasm."—Exchange.

The tale of two hunters who went after ducks only to have their car nearly wrecked by a big moose was told at Rice Lake, Wis., recently. The hunters were Dr. A. S. White and Ray Fitch, who displayed their damaged automobile as proof of their story. The men were driving along an untraveled highway, they said, when a giant moose jumped from the side of the road and ran head on into their car. The windshield of the car was broken, one headlight was torn off, a hole was gouged in the top and the radiator was punctured in the peculiar accident. The moose rolled from the hood of the car and disappeared in roadside undergrowth apparently not seriously hurt.

Said to play with an uncanny human touch, a mechanical violin has been invented by two engineers in France. It has a number of keys which press the strings like the left hand of a player, and a revolving bow which permits different degrees of pressure. The violin is driven by two motors. One takes the place of the player's arm and the other imparts the swift movements of the wrist.

At Canaan, Conn., Mrs. Samuel A. Eddy is exhibiting an interesting plant which is a species of the balsam family. While traveling in the fall of 1925 on the island of Martinique, over the ruins wrought by the volcano, Mt. Pelee, in 1902, Mrs. Eddy gathered some seeds in the city of St. Pierre. She planted some of these seeds last summer and was surprised when they produced a plant bearing flame-colored blossoms, reminiscent of the volcanic fire which had all but destroyed their ancestors.

Palace Theatre

The romance of international intrigue and diplomacy as it centered around one of the greatest figures in English history is thrillingly portrayed in the new Vitaphone all-talking drama, "Disraeli," which with George Arliss starred, is now playing at the Palace theatre and will be continued there through Friday evening of this week. Arliss, who is acknowledged the world's greatest actor, takes the part of the British prime minister, the Jew who did so much for the empire during his incumbency.

Besides Arliss, we have in this superlative picture such well known and brilliant stars of the stage and screen as Joan Bennett, Florence Arliss, Anthony Bushell and David Torrence. With such an array of luminaries it can easily be seen why the play is such a success both as a stirring historical production and a flaming romance. When the picture was first shown last night Norwich got a thrill. The distinction of Arliss in the title role is something that will linger in the memory long after half a dozen other motion pictures have been completely forgotten?

Like the play from which it was so faithfully adapted, the picture concerns that part of Disraeli's career when he struggled to make England a world empire. Despite the fact that he had many politicians swaying the crowd in the opposite direction, he became prime minister and soon turned all his flaring energies toward getting for England the Suez canal, that highly important neck of water which is now such an indispensable link in the high road of Britain's long line of imperial communications.

Beginning Saturday the Palace presents Pauline Frederick, native of Norwich, in her latest triumph, "The Sacred Flame," a Warner Brothers drama of love and intrigue that will keep the audience gripping the chairs of the theatre.

BRADFORD STRIKERS HEAR JOSEPH SYLVIA, PROVIDENCE

Burdick Hall, Bradford, was filled Wednesday afternoon by the striking employes of the Bradford Dyeing association. The mass meeting of strikers was called at 2 p. m. to hear Joseph Sylvia, secretary of the Rhode Island Textile union, of Providence. The next meeting of the strikers is called for next Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock, when the strikers will be addressed by John Powers, International vice president of the Textile union.

There was an unconfirmed rumor Wednesday afternoon among the strikers that the management of the Bradford association had two representatives of the Burns Detective agency in Bradford Wednesday when they escorted two alleged strikebreakers to the Bradford plant. Flood lights have been in operation at the plant at night when two representatives of the Westerly police force have been on duty. One policeman of the Westerly force is on duty daytimes. There were no outbreaks or disorders reported Wednesday among the strikers or sympathizers.

SEPTIC SORE THROAT CAUSES SCHOOL GIRL'S DEATH

Rosanna Patricia Holliday, in her 13th year, daughter of Francis L. and Julia Holliday, died at the home of her parents, 140 Granite street, Wednesday at 11:15 a. m after two weeks' illness, starting with a cold and terminating in sceptic sore throat. From the fact that she was in the store of her father on Granite street she was favorably known by many patrons of the store. She attended Elm street grammar school. Besides her parents she leaves a sister and three brothers, she having been the eldest of five children. Although deaths from septic sore throat have occurred in other parts of Rhode Island recently, this is the first case in Westerly to terminate fatally for some time.

TANK STEAMER ABLE TO NEGOTIATE CHANNEL

Oswego Socony, the 265-foot Standard Oil tank steamer, after discharging its cargo of oil, left the Pawcatuck river and its mooring at the lower Pawcatuck plant of the Standard Oil Co. shortly after 8 o'clock Wednesday morning and navigated the crooked channel without mishap to the waters of Long Island sound on its return to New York. It is expected that this tanker will return here Friday next with another cargo of oil and will take advantage of a high tide to again reach the headwaters of the Pawcatuck. It was stated by one of the officials on board the boat that the Oswego has been up in the Great Lakes and has been in many streams that it had found more difficult to navigate than the Pawcatuck. One port, where the Oswego delivers gas, it is necessary to back up a distance of five miles, before leaving the stream and getting open water.

BULLISH DEMONSTRATIONS SAVED STOCK MARKET FROM GOING ASTRAY

NEW YORK, Dec. 4—(AP)—Spectacular bullish demonstrations in selected issues saved the revived forward movement in share prices from going astray in today's market. Profit taking caused considerable hesitancy during the early hours of the session, but spirited bidding for the utilities and several chemical issues, oils, food and specialty issues sent some two-score issues sharply higher before the close.

The definite turning of the tide was accomplished only with a sharp quickening of trading. Total sales were 4,437,160 shares, more than 1,000,000 transfer hands in the last hour. This was the largest turnover since mid-November, and contrasted with 3,650,000 yesterday. Closing quotations displayed a wide sprinkling of gains of 1 to 12 points. The Standard Statistics and Associated Press price indices of 90 stocks, however, indicated that the average gain was only about two-thirds of yesterday's.

Further constructive news from Washington was the dominant factor in the rally. Secretary Mellon's estimate of a treasury surplus of $225,000,000 for the current fiscal year, and his statement that indications point to still favorable business conditions in 1930, provided fuel for the bullish enthusiasm engendered by President Hoover's message to Congress yesterday. The day brought forth another assortment of weekly statistics and trade reports, nevertheless, indicating that business and industrial operations are undergoing pronounced recession. Freight car loadings as reported for the latest week showed a drop of about 22,000 cars from the previous week, and approximately 79,000 from the same week of last year. The decline from the previous week may be regarded as primarily seasonal, and the usual movement at this time last year was abnormally large. Iron Age reported a sharp reduction in pig iron output last month to the lowest level since September, 1928. It reported little change in steel production, however, and stated that both iron and steel mills are keeping unemployment at a minimum. Credit conditions showed signs of tightening up after the steady ease of the past two months, reflecting the beginning of the holiday flow of funds to the interior. Time money was quoted at 4 1-2 to 4 3-4 per cent. Renewal at the rate of 4 1-2 yesterday, was made officially at 4 1-2, and money in it was again quoted as low as 3 1-2 in the outside market, little was said to have been available at that figure.

Of particular interest in the money market and banking circles was a rise in sterling to the approximate gold-export point. While the federal reserve is prepared for a moderate outflow of the yellow metal, any large movement would be viewed as unfavorable, particularly at this time of year.

The utility shares again led the advance, stimulated by renewed merger rumors, payment of a special cash dividend of $1 by American Superpower, optimistic statements by Samuel Insull, and constructive interpretations placed on President Hoover's remarks regarding private operation and government supervision of power companies. American Water Works and North American moved up 12 and 11 points, and Detroit Edison sold up 19.

Columbian Carbon was again a high flier, mounting 22 points, and closing up 17. General Electric, Allied Chemical, A. M. Byers, Continental Baking A, Hershey Chocolate, Houston Oil, Atchison, Mack, Norfolk and Western and Pittsburgh mounted about 5 to 10 points. U. S. Steel sold up nearly 3 points, but closed up only 2-4.

Radios rose nearly 3 in a heavy turnover but lost about half its gain. American Can closed about 2 and Standard of N. J., 3 points higher.

Commodity markets mostly eased. Wheat futures lost about 1 3-4 cents on similar export demand and favorable reports coming in from the west. Corn lost nearly a cent with large Iowa offerings. Cotton neared 30 to 75 cents a bale, reflecting larger private crop reports.

A new mark for the year in the sterling cable rate, which touched $4.88 1-8, featured the steady to firm foreign exchanges.

BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, Dec. 4—(AP)—Strength of the railroad issues featured the bond market today. The increasing scarcity of high grade and secondary carriers was apparent in the sharp upward price movement and nearly 20 issues made new highs for the year or longer.

The entire list showed strength, despite inconsequential selling in the industrials and utilities. Trading in United States governments was thin, but the first and fourth Liberty 4 1-2s and the Treasury 4s managed to squeeze into new high ground for 1929. The Treasury 3 3-8s, 1946-47, duplicated their previous maximum.

Chicago & Northwestern convertible 4 3-4s, admitted to the list a fortnight ago, took the leadership in volume, turning over to the extent of $3,100,000. One million-dollar block of the bonds changed hands at par. The close was 100 1-4, off 1-8 on the day.

Convertibles generally moved up, as was to be expected from the temper of the stock market, and some fair gains developed. American Telephone 4 1-2s had a net rise of 2 1-2 and International Telephone 4 1-2s advanced 1 1-2. The active Texas Corp. 5s held firm.

Gains of a point or more were numerous in the rails and the average for ten issues of secondary classification was marked up half a point. Among the carriers touching new highs were Baltimore & Ohio Southwestern Division 4s, Central Pacific Short Line 4s, Erie Four 5s, International Great Northern first 5s, Missouri Kansas Texas prior lien 4s, Missouri Pacific 5s, series F, Nickel Plate A 4s and 4 1-2s, New Haven 4 1-2s, Northern Pacific 5s, series D, St. Louis & San Francisco 4 1-2s, Union Pacific first 4s, Virginian 5s and West Shore 4s in most instances, only small blocks of bonds were available.

In the industrial division, Armour 4 1-2s made an extreme rise of 2 points, while fractional advances brought numerous other loans close to their best prices of the year. Inland Steel 4 1-2s touched a new maximum. International Paper refunding 5s yielded their recent gain.

Inquiry in the utility section was rather selective and volume lightened. Southern Bell Telephone first 5s rose a fraction to a record price.

European government and municipal loans, as well as the Chilean listings, were generally higher.

The day's bond news included announcement of a $30,000,000 offering of Province of Ontario Gold 5s, due in 1960, priced at 101 1-2. A syndicate headed by the National City Co., Ltd., is marketing the loan.

STATE NEARING END IN M'MANUS MURDER TRIAL

NEW YORK, Dec. 4—(AP)—The state neared the end of presentation of the case of murder it is attempting to prove against George McManus, today, with one of its "star" witnesses giving testimony exactly opposite from that it had expected her to give.

Bridget Farry, chambermaid at the Park Central hotel, who George N. Brothers said in his opening address to the jury would testify that she saw McManus in room 349 in the hotel, November 4, a year ago a few moments before they contend he shot Arnold Rothstein there, took the stand today and denied she had ever seen McManus in that room.

OIL LAND RECORDS IN INEXPENSIVE TRUNK

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 4—(AP)—A small, inexpensive trunk containing public records involving oil lands worth millions of dollars continued to hold the spotlight today in the government's suit to cancel leases held by the Pan-American Petroleum company on naval reserves at Elk Hills, Cal.

Throughout the court session, with E. C. Finney, former first assistant secretary of the interior during the Harding administration, on the witness stand, Chief Counsel Atlee Pomerene for the government read many of the trunk's contents.

These papers, which Finney identified, were principally letters between Edward L. Doheny Sr., one time president of the Pan-American, to his late son, Edward L. Doheny, Jr., and rear Admiral J. K. Robinson. They related to the part Doheny Sr., played in the advancement of the naval officer to the cost of rear admiral in 1921.

The government introduced one letter written to the late Edwin Denby, secretary of the navy under President Harding, by Albert B. Fall, secretary of the interior in the Harding administration, suggesting the exchange of crude oil royalties, paid to the navy for fuel oil and storage facilities. The suggestion later resulted in the building of fuel oil storage tanks by the Pan-American at Pearl Harbor, Honolulu.

The government seeks to show that the award of the Elks Hills leases to the former Doheny company by Fall was accomplished through fraud and illegal transfer of properties from the navy to the interior department. Fall recently was convicted of bribery for accepting $100,000 from Doheny which he claimed was a loan.

WHOLESALE RESIGNATIONS FROM THE REICHSTAG

BERLIN, Dec. 4—(AP)—Alfred Husenberg went down in defeat last week when the reichstag rejected his plebiscite bill against the Young plan but the full significance of his personal defeat was realized only today. There were wholesale resignations by members of the reichstag from the nationalist party which he heads.

At least 14, several of them recognized leaders, have withdrawn within 24 hours and 10 others are expected to do likewise. The developments even caused Count Westarp, nationalist leader in the reichstag, to relinquish that post although retaining party membership.

These events, which were regarded as unprecedented in the parliamentary history of the republic, so stirred all political circles that they overshadowed the violent tumult today in the reichstag during which 24 prominent communists were expelled for disturbing the proceedings during the first reading of the new bill for the protection of the republic.

Members of the reichstag withdrawing from the nationalist party are affiliating themselves with the Christian social party in open warfare on the policies of Husenberg.

JAMES P. NOONAN, PRESIDENT ELECTRICAL WORKERS, DEAD

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4—(AP)—James P. Noonan, president of the international Brotherhood of Electric Workers and a vice president of the American Federation of Labor, died today of burns sustained in a fire in his apartment during the night.

Noonan was found semi-conscious and badly burned on the floor by neighbors. The furniture in the adjoining living room was ablaze and firemen expressed the opinion that Noonan had fallen asleep smoking and had set fire to the couch he was on. He lived only a few hours after being taken to the hospital.

The labor chief is survived by his widow, now in Florida, and two sons who reside in St. Louis. He was 53 years old.

He was a member of the American committee at the world power conference held in London in 1924, and had served on the St Lawrence waterway commission, and the United States committee on seasonal employment in the building industry in 1924, of which President Hoover was a member.

He had been president of the electrical workers since 1919, and a member of the executive council of the Federation of Labor since 1924. He was also a member of the department of labor's executive council of the building trades.

HOOVER'S BRIGHT PICTURE OF NATIONAL FINANCES

year ago receipts show an increase of about $408,000,000 and the expenditures about $243,000,000. On the receipt side the increase in the estimate is reflected generally in the income tax $305,000,000, due to an abnormal increase in the incomes reported by individuals for 1928 and to this exceedingly prosperous business year.

"With an estimated surplus of over $225,000,000 this year and $122,000,000 next year it is felt that some measure of reduction in taxes is justified. Since the fiscal year 1921 four tax reductions have been made. Experience has shown that each reduction in taxes has resulted in revenue in excess of the mathematically computed return under the reduced rates.

"Undoubtedly an increase in the prosperity of business brought forth by tax reduction is partly responsible for this experience. Such reduction gives the tax payer correspondingly more for his own use and thus increases the capital available for general business. Under the present circumstances I am in favor of a reduction in income taxes to be effective on returns for the calendar year 1929 which will be due March 15, 1930. Payments under these returns will be made during the last half of the current fiscal year 1930 and the first half of the coming fiscal year 1931 so that the reduction will be reflected in the two years for which we now anticipate a surplus.

"I, therefore, recommend that taxes upon incomes for the calendar year 1929 be reduced in the approximate sum of $160,000,000. I would suggest to congress that this be effected, as recommended by the secretary of the treasury, by reducing by 1 per cent the rate of the normal tax on the incomes of individuals and corporations, applicable to 1929 incomes and payable in the calendar year 1930. This will afford either directly or indirectly relief to the maximum number of taxpayers. Our effort will be to conduct our financial requirements so as to continue the benefits of reduced taxation for succeeding years. It would not, however, at this time be safe to extend the period of the reduction. A year hence we will know more definitely whether the condition of our finances justifies a continuation or extension of the reduction.

"Our finances are in sound condition. The public debt which at its peak in August 1919, amounted to $26,596,000,000 stood at $16,931,000,000 on June 30, 1929. We are wisely committed to a policy which insures the further progressive reduction of the debt. We will reach in 1931 for the first time the period when the annual reduction received by law in the principal of the debt will be greater than the annual interest charges in the debt.

"We are also committed to the annual amortization of our other long term commitments—such as the adjusted service certificate of the veterans of the World war and our liability under the retirement laws affecting civilian personnel. Our estimated expenditures for this and the next year are well within our expected receipts. With the recommended reduction in taxes the margin between the two will be considerably lessened but to what extent we do not definitely know today. This situation emphasizes the necessity for a careful scrutiny of any proposed addition activities which would involve a material decrease in expenditures in order that we may not jeopardize either the balanced condition of the budget or the continuation of the benefits of reduced taxation."

The increases asked in appropriations for river and harbor improvement were $5,000,000; for Mississippi river flood control $6,000,000; for Indian care $4,100,000 and for forest protection $2,000,000. He did not mention the prohibition bureau appropriation in his accompanying message, and the amount for enforcement was left for coverage in the detailed budget figures submitted.

The local boxers, of which nearly half the Shyma club card for Friday night is composed, are in fine shape. Johnny Kop and Vic Darr, who have been training with the military boxing team at the state armory, wound up their intensive work last night as did Al Koziol, who is using the Army-Navy club gym at Taftville for training quarters

Koziol has worked during the past few weeks with the sole idea of getting into the best shape possible to knock out Leo Ledoux of Worcester, who holds a decision over him. The Norwich Cyclone is down close to the 128 pound mark and is fast as lightning. He intends to get Ledoux quick and have it over with, that is if Ledoux will stand up and fight. In the last meeting between Koziol and Ledoux, the Worcester boy did plenty of bicycling about the ring and Koziol made the mistake of trying to box him. Koziol does not need to box his best defense is his continual boring in and putting his opponent on the defensive.

LOU BROUILLARD

Johnny Kop, local boy, who, like Koziol, is going against a boy who holds a decision over him, is in much better condition than a month ago when he lost the decision. Kop, in his bout with Alex Tourain of New Haven at Hartford, had the New Haven lad almost out in the second round but had tired so rapidly that he could not finish the job. Excessive training to make 137 pounds had weakened the local lad so that he was unable to stand the pace. However, tomorrow night's bout will find Kop in prime condition. He expects to come in at 140 in the afternoon and his weight when he enters the ring will be a trifle over that. Kop looks mighty good, hitting hard and fast and showing plenty of speed.

Vic Darr, the third local boy who will box on the card, has put in some stiff work during the past two weeks in preparation for his bout with Ero Peterson. Darr realizes that this boy Peterson is no set-up and he has been taking his work seriously and is in mighty fine condition.

Reports from Worcester say that Dynamite Lou Brouillard, the Danielson boy, is ready for his slugging match with Joe Russo of Westerly. Brouillard has sent word that he expects to take Russo inside of three rounds. Russo, who is working out at Westerly, is just as confident that he can bang a K. O. on Brouillard. We shall see.

The Shyma club report that the sale of tickets is even larger than the advance sale for the last show. A new section of bleachers, seating approximately 200, have been erected over the stage at the end of the hall and will provide for many who were forced to stand at the last show.

Harper Declines Invitation

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Dec. 4.—(AP)—Wally Harper, Harvard fullback, today declined Andy Kerr's invitation to play on the all-eastern eleven which will clash with an all-western team in a charity game at San Francisco late this month.

Harper, though one of the highest ranking students at Harvard, refrained from asking permission to make the long trip because he thought the long absence from classes would be a serious detriment to his scholastic progress.

KNAPP ELECTED HEAD OF INTERNATIONAL LEAGUE

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., Dec. 4.—(AP)—Although the National Association of Professional Baseball leagues met in annual convention today, the bulk of the day's baseball news came from outside the convention hall.

Charles H. Knapp, Baltimore lawyer, was elected president of the International league by unanimous vote of the eight clubs, in the late afternoon while the morning brought to George Toporcer suspended Rochester, N. Y. infielder, the glad tidings that he would not have to remain out of baseball for a year but could play second base for the Red Wings as soon as he pays a fine of $500.

The election of Knapp broke a deadlock of long standing in the International league. Since the death of John Conway Toole the league has been unable to agree upon a successor and the affairs of the league has been in the hands of Knapp, assisted by an advisory committee of club presidents. Knapp had not been a candidate, but finally agreed to serve for one year.

Under the terms of today's election, the advisory committee will be abolished and the president will have full authority. The Baltimore attorney became president of the Baltimore club as executor of the estate of the late Jack Dunn.

The International league decided also to continue playing 168 games a season instead of reducing the number of games to 154.

Joe Tinker, famous Cub shortstop of other days, will return to baseball during the 1930 season as assistant to "Derby Day Bill" Clymer, manager of the Buffalo club of the International league.

John Murphy, former Fordham pitcher, was released by Albany of the Eastern league to St. Paul, the Albany club to get cash and a player.

Toronto sent Pitcher Abe Martin to the Beaumont club of the Texas league in exchange for Outfielder Petrie. Milwaukee sold Ivy Griffin, first baseman, to Atlanta and Louisville sold Dick Loftus, outfielder, to Reading.

The Louisville club of the American association sold Malcolm Moss, a left-handed pitcher, to the Chicago Cubs for a large sum of money and a pitcher to be named later. The amount of cash involved was not revealed but it was said to be between $35,000 and $40,000, a record price for this meeting.

Moss, a graduate of Vanderbilt university, is now a law student at the University of Chicago. He is 24 and six feet tall. He has been a member of the Louisville club three years

J. W. (Country) Davis, first baseman, was sold by Dallas of the Texas league to Reading of the International league.

Tony Cuccinello, hard hitting Columbus infielder, will join the Cincinnati Reds next year, the National league team announcing that it would promote the player from its American association farm. The Reds will send an infielder to Columbus to replace him. Pid Purdy, Cincinnati outfielder, will play for Buffalo next year.

Dan Howley will have the assistance of one of his former St. Louis coaches in the person of Otto Williams, who with Mike Doolan completes the Reds' coaching staff.

Reds Sell Zitzmann

CINCINNATI, Ohio, Dec. 4.—(AP)—Bill Zitzmann, utility outfielder of the Cincinnati Reds has been sold outright to the Newark International league club, Sidney Weil, Reds president, announced today.

The selling price was not announced but Weil said part of the cash was used to purchase Wes Kingdon, Newark shortstop, who will go to the Columbus American association club, a Cincinnati farm.

Seacrist and Booma Accept

HAMILTON, N. Y., Dec. 4.—(AP)—Two outstanding wingmen of the past season in the east today accepted invitations to join Andy Kerr's east eleven for the Shriners' hospital fund gyame, with the west at San Francisco, New Year's day They are Deb Seacrist, of Washington and Jefferson, and Hal Booma, of Dartmouth.

Susie Says

And now comes that heart-rending, nerve-racking and pocketbook-busting period of Xmas shopping.

Fortunate is the orphan or the person cast upon a desert island, they have no one to make presents to. Oh, glorious thought.

Don't think for a minute I don't like to give, but like everybody else it's what to give that causes the mental strain.

Didja ever go 'round and 'round the stores looking for things that would make suitable gifts to mother, dad, sister, brother and the aunts and uncles and all the rest.

Remember how you would look things over and over and then come home with nothing but a coupla rolls of crepe paper and some Christmas stickers.

Then you'd say to yourself that next year you'd be sure and remember what everybody would like or needed. Then you'd hear one of the folks say she hoped she'd get this or that for Christmas and you made a mental note of it.

And that's all you did, was make a mental note of it and then lost the note. Don't it get your goat when you ask somebody what he or she wants for Xmas to have them say, well, I don't know, anything will do.

Then you go out and buy something and it's a ten to one shot that it will be something they'll put away in the moth balls until next Christmas.

The only trouble with that is that you're liable to give last year's present to the one that gave it to you.

Anyway, it's a great season and a great custom.

PLAINFIELD BEATS PARKWOODS BEFORE SMALL CROWD

(Special to The Bulletin)

PLAINFIELD, Dec. 4.—The Plainfield Pros defeated the Parkwood Pros, of Springfield, by the score 29-19, before one of the smallest crowds ever seen on the home floor. Plainfield opened the scoring after the first few minutes of play and Springfield came back and tied the score and then the two teams played for six minutes without scoring, neither team being able to penetrate the other's defense. At the opening of the second half Plainfield started in whirlwind fashion and forged ahead to hold the lead till the final whistle. Plainfield went on the floor tonight and took the aggressive and fairly played the Springfield boys off their feet. Dissinger and Kasper easily starred for Plainfield while Smith of the Parkwoods brought the crowd to their feet with a beautiful shot from the middle of the floor.

The Plainfield Buddies continued on their winning streak by defeating Westerly 24 to 22. Allard starred for the winners. The Plainfield Buddies have yet to be beaten this year Next Wednesday night Plainfield plays their old rivals, the Boston Whirlwinds. The summary:

Siano Re-elected Captain

BARBER WAS LEADING SCORER OF ACADEMY ELEVEN IN DRAB SEASON

The Academy's 1929 football season, while not a decided failure, was neither a glorified success. By winning the last two games, the Wildcats brought their campaign from the depths to a fairly respectable ending.

The Academy boys won three, lost five and tied one. They beat Chapman Tech, Stonington and Bulkeley, all conference games, and tied New Britain, while losing to Bulkeley of Hartford, Warren Harding of Bridgeport, Windham, Westerly and West Hartford. The team scored 51 points against 84 for opponents.

The team played some miserable football during the year, especially in the Harding, Windham and West Hartford games but they made up for this, in part, by beating Bulkeley in New London for the first time in 13 years and finishing in a tie for second place in the Eastern Connecticut-Western Rhode Island conference. Westerly won the championship and Windham was in the deadlock with the Wildcats.

Two Bright Spots On Slate

The bright spots on the schedule can be called the New Britain game, when a much stronger team was held to a 12 to 12 tie, and the Bulkeley tilt. Two games were lost by a touchdown each, Westerly and Windham, which, if won, would have given the Wildcats their first football conference championship. Even if only Westerly had been beaten by the locals the title would have come the way of the Whitneymen, for Westerly lost to Chapman Tech in a conference battle later in the year and would have finished with two defeats against one for the Red and White

Barber Outstanding Performer

Frank Barber, fullback, was the outstanding player of the team, playing grand football in every game and also leading in scoring with 31 of the 51 points made by the entire eleven. Capt. Chet Berghinzo, end, who started out in brilliant fashion only to be hampered considerably by an injured shoulder in the second half of the campaign, scored 19 points, and Golembeskie, with one point, was the only other player to break into the scoring column. Barber made five touchdowns and Berghinzo three with each converting an extra point.

At the annual banquet of the team Saturday evening at the school gym, the 1930 captain is expected to be elected. "Fat" Stevens, guard, and Les Crowell tackle, are said to be the leading candidates for the honor.

ARMY-NAVY GAME IS SUPPLANTED BY NOTRE DAME

SOUTH BEND Ind., Dec. 4.—(AP)—The Army and Navy are not likely to resume football relations and the annual Army-Notre Dame classic is destined to replace it as one of the nation's traditional gridiron battles, Capt. Lawrence "Biff" Jones, retiring Army coach, believes.

Coach Jones, here for the Notre Dame football victory banquet tonight, said the Army-Notre Dame was amazing in its popularity.

"We could start the Army-Notre Dame game at 10 a. m. and fill the Yankee stadium, he said. "The teams then could retire for lunch and meet before another capacity crowd at 2 p. m. Topping that, they could play a night game before 85,000 more spectators, and still 100,000 fans would complain that they were unable to get tickets to any one of the three games."

Coach Jones said he will spend next year at an army commission school as a student, he said, and will be back coaching in 1931. He did not say whether he would return to West Point.

The combination of Georgetti and Debaets, the favorites of the crowd, stole a lap in the wild jamming just after the night sprints but they only could hold their margin a half hour before Letourner and Brocardo lapped the field to join them just before ten o'clock, the 73rd hour. Two more combinations, McNamara and Belloni and Spencer and Duelberg were tied for second place

DIEGEL HAS LITTLE TROUBLE TAKING HIS SECOND ROUND MATCH IN P. G. A.

By RUSSELL J. NEWLAND
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 4.—(AP)—Paced by two favorites, Leo Diegel, defending champion, and Walter Hagen five times holder of the title—contenders for the 1929 Professional Golfers association championship stroked their way today through a gruelling second round of 36 hole match play that saw the field narrowed down to eight.

Diegel swept through his match in easy fashion with Herman Barron, Port Chester, N Y., 10-9. Hagen's win was not as decisive but he eliminated Charles Guest, Los Angeles, 5 and 4.

The Agua Caliente, Mexico professional, won the first hole from Barron and was never pressed from that time on. At the ninth he was three up and had increased the lead to eight at the eighteenth. The match ended on the 27th with Diegel posting figures of 37-33—70 for the morning round, with a 34 on the third nine. Barron shot 40-38—78 and took 36 on the third nine.

Hagen had a 35-34—69, two under par, for the first eighteen and went out in the afternoon in 37; he was three up at the 27th. Guest had a 37-37—74 and 35 for his third nine.

Two former national open champions, Gene Sarazen and Johnny Farrell, advanced to the third round. Sarazen defeated Fred Morrison of Los Angeles, tournament medalist, 3 and 2, while Farrell eliminated Henry Culci, Bridgeport Conn., 2 and 1.

In the most bitter struggle of the day, Al Espinosa, Chicago, nosed out another veteran campaigner, William Mehlhorn, New York, on the 40th hole. They were even at the 9th; Mehlhorn picked off a one up advantage at the 18th and they were all square at the 27th. Espinosa had two rounds of 35-37—72, and 35-35—70; Mehlhorn carded 35-36—71 and 36-35—71. They halved the next three extra holes in 4, 3, 4 and Espinosa won the match on the next green with a par 5.

Craig Wood, young Bloomfield, N. J. star, entered the third round with a 3-2 win from Neil Christian, Portland, Ore.

Tomorrow's matches will pit Diegel against Sarazen in the outstanding test. Hagen will meet Manero in the other lower bracket play. Diegel and Hagen are the favorites and if they come through as expected, will face each other in the semi final classic Friday.

Second Round Finals

Johnny Farrell, New York, defeated Henry Culci, Bridgeport, Conn., 2 and 1.

Tony Manero, New York, defeated Eddie Schultz, Troy, N. Y., 6 and 5.

DOBIE WILL REMAIN AS CORNELL COACH

By ALAN GOULD
(Associated Press Sports Editor)

NEW YORK, Dec. 4.— (AP)— The shakeup in eastern football coaching ranks, although covering a wide range since the close of the college season, will not strike among the picturesque hills above Lake Cayuga, where Gil Dobie of Cornell holds forth with Scotch determination.

It can be said authoritatively now that Dobie, whose scalp was so cheerfully sought last spring by alumni seniors, to take the war path, will remain in charge of football at Cornell at least until his present contract expires in 1932.

So far as alumni criticism is concerned, it has dissolved into a report by "the committee of seventeen," made public today in the Cornell Alumni News. It treats the football situation somewhat mildly, voicing criticism of conditions under Dobie which have undergone a change, meanwhile, in connection with the rise of Cornell football fortunes in the season just completed.

Perhaps the most significant feature, so far as Dobie is concerned is a distinct change from the veteran coach's one-time pessimism to a degree of optimism almost startling by contrast. The popular appellation of "Doomy Gil" did not fit the coach who prefaced the game with Dartmouth and Pennsylvania by asserting confidence in "a fighting Cornell team."

Cornell lost both of these games but the Red forces were far from being routed. They beat Princeton and Columbia

"Cornell does not and never has possessed sufficient football atmosphere naturally to attract capable football material," notes the Alumni report, adding: The general attitude of Mr. Dobie or at least the popular conception of him, with his all pervading pessimism has not contributed to a betterment of the situation but has tended to aggravate it."

The report goes on to say that while regarding Dobie as a strict taskmaster, no substantiation was found of the many specific bitter charges made against him regarding his treatment of players. On the contrary, the committee after a "particularly close study" of the situation with men "who have been associated with Mr. Dobie since his advent at Cornell" finds a practically unanimous sentiment on the part of the men who have played under Mr. Dobie in favor of him as a man and of his methods."

The famous Carnegie report gave Cornell a "clean bill" so far as recruiting and subsidizing of athletes was concerned and the alumni report cites that "it has been one of the finest traditions of Cornell that there should be no proselyting of athletic material or other unethical overtures made to athletic prospects."

TAFTVILLE

"Salt Water Taffy," a comedy in three acts was presented by the members of the Dramatic club before an appreciative audience which completely filled Ponemah hall on the opening night of the annual fair of the Taftville Congregational church on Tuesday. The play, which was under the direction of Miss Flossie M. Meyer was enjoyable from the time the first curtain rose until the happy ending. Those taking part were exceptionally well cast, and a number of the parts were taken this year by new members of the club, who carried them to perfection.

Miss Mary Martin as Charlotte Bancroft, "Sugar"; Miss Helen Thoma as Irving Hastings, her best friend; Miss Jean Copeland, as Anita Thorndike, the cause of Ed's worry; Miss Mildred Lunion as Jane Oxford, chilly and much the highbrow; and Miss Gladys Thoma, as Betty Brooks, Ripley's sister, were all excellent in their respective roles. Other characters were Richard Oat, as Charles Dudley, "Chickie"; and Ronald Smith as Edwin Rowley, a bashful beau; while the parts of Jack Belmont and Ripley Brooks, two thirds of an irrepressible trio, were carried by Charles Heimboldt and Reginald Monty.

Before and after the entertainment there was a sale of home made food and fancy work. Delicious home made candy was sold at a booth presided over by Miss Mary Greenhalgh and Miss Elizabeth B. Houston. At the fancy work booth were Mrs. Charles T. Webster, Mrs. Elsie K. Pingree, Mrs. John Volkman and Mrs. John W. Seddon. Mrs. Clarence J. Nagle was chairman of the committee which had charge of the home cooking booth, and she was assisted by Mrs. Thomas Perkins Sears, Mrs. Malcolm Stinson, Mrs. Adolph Leupold and Mrs. John Seidel. Aprons were sold by Miss Hilda Troeger, Miss Eleanor Heinrich and Miss Gladys Thoma. The quick lunch counter was in charge of Allan Bogle, Edmund Mathewson and Earl Mathewson. Tickets were sold at the door by Gustave Hedler and Martin Wohlleben.

TO CHARGE JURY IN $20,000 AUTOMOBILE SUIT

Presentation of the evidence and arguments by counsel were concluded Wednesday in the superior court at New London before Judge Earnest C. Simpson and a jury in the $20,000 damage suit of Charles A. Lavoie of New London against the Ballou & Nagle Express, Inc., of Southington and John Furino of New Haven.

Defense witnesses included David W. Hall, Raymond W. Murphy, engineer, and Bernard Aagesin, a policeman, the latter two of Rye, N. Y.

The arguments were made by Attorneys Foster K. Sistare and Perry Hollanderskiy for the plaintiff and by Attorney Wells for the defendants.

Judge Simpson will deliver his charge of the jury when court comes in this (Thursday) morning.

The suit arose out of an automobile accident in Rye, N. Y., Oct. 3, 1928, at about 3:30 o'clock in the morning when a truck owned by H. J. Markle of Mystic, upon which the plaintiff was riding as an employe, crashed into a truck owned by the defendant company which was alleged to be parked in the highway with no lights. The plaintiff suffered concussion of the brain and other serious injuries.

FAITH TRUMBULL CHAPTER MADE OVER $500 FROM ENTERTAINMENT

Net proceeds of $501.44 from the entertainment called "The Womanless Wedding" which was given last month under the auspices of Faith Trumbull chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, for the benefit of the museum fund, were reported at the December meeting of the chapter which was held Wednesday afternoon at the Masonic temple.

After the usual business meeting at which the regent, Mrs. Albert M. Van Wagenen presided, an interesting address was given by Miss Jennie Loomis of Windsor, state treasurer, who commended Faith Trumbull chapter for the very fine way in which it entertained the fall meeting of the organization which was recently held here and went on to speak of the great growth of the work of the state treasurer's office while she had been holding that position for a number of years past.

Miss Loomis referred in some detail to the financial side of both the national and the state work and made mention of the quota plan which had been adopted by which there is a per capita of 80 cents upon the chapters. We often hear, she said, that money talks in ways of corruption and vice, but money talks as well in terms of patriotism, love of country and humanity and in brotherhood through the use that the Daughters of the American Revolution make of it.

Preceding the address by Miss Loomis, two contralto solos were finely rendered by Mrs. Helena M. T Church, for whom the piano accompaniments were played by Mrs. Charles A. Saxton. Her selections were The Bird and the Rose (Horrocks) and Jest Laxing Along (Terry). After Miss Loomis had spoken Mrs. Church sang again, her selections being That's All (Brahe) and Grandma (Sacks).

The meeting opened with the singing of two verses of the Star Spangled Banner led by Mrs. Louis A. Wheeler. This was followed with the salute to the flag led by Mrs. Albert J. Bailey, and the Lord's prayer.

The minutes of the November meeting were read by the secretary, Mrs. Adams P. Carroll, and officers' reports were given as follows: Treasurer, Mrs. Albert G. Comstock; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Wilbur S. Alling; registrar, Mrs. Herbert W. Gallup; historian, Mrs. Alfred N. H. Vaughn.

These reports were followed by the reports of the various committees as follows: Miss Bernice Willey, reporting for Americanism; Mrs. Charles C. Gildersleeve for conservation and research; Mrs. Roy D. Judd, for the magazine; Mrs. Herbert R. Kind, for membership; Mrs. W. Tyler Brown, for the museum; Mrs. Frank I. Royce, for patriotic education; Mrs. Albert J. Sinay, for program; Mrs. Richard P. Gregson, for ways and means.

The chapter voted to make several gifts of money for work in which they are especially interested. These included the following: $5 towards a scholarship to the American Indian institute at Wichita, Kansas; $5 towards a scholarship at the Kate Duncan Smith school at Grant, Alabama; $5 to be given as a prize in the night schools of Norwich to the person bringing in the most new pupils before Christmas.

It was voted to give $25 for the work of the Norwich Council of Religious Education, especially the work teaching girls to be better home makers.

It was also voted to send $50 for the work at the American International institute at Springfield.

Twenty-five dollars was voted to be used for the purchase of sheets, towels, etc., for a box to be sent to the Hindman school in Kentucky, and it is hoped that gifts of these articles will be contributed besides, so that the box may be a very worthwhile one. Mrs. Frank I. Royce, chairman of patriotic education, is making up the box.

It was also voted to empower the chairman of the lantern slides committee, Mrs. Louis A. Wheeler, to purchase the slides to be used in patriotic education work in the day and night schools of Norwich.

It was voted that the corresponding secretary send notes of thanks to the Gilbert Furniture company, the Porteous-Mitchell Co., Geduldig green houses and to the Glen Woolen Co. for courtesies extended to the museum committee at the time of the play "The Womanless Wedding."

Mrs. W. Tyler Brown reported $501.44 as the amount made on "The Womanless Wedding."

The ways and means committee spoke of the dance which is to be held after Christmas under the auspices of the ways and means committee of the chapter.

The regent spoke of a new committee called the house committee of which Mrs. Herbert M. Lerou has consented to be chairman.

Mrs. William Tyler Brown spoke of a book given by Mrs. Flora Robinson of Little Falls, New Jersey, to the museum of Faith Trumbull chapter. It is a book of hymns, printed in Norwich in 1811.

Many articles were brought to the meeting for the Ellis Island box which is being packed by the chairman of Ellis Island committee, Miss Amy Burlingame; it will be sent in December and anyone having anything more for the box was invited to send it to Miss Burlingame. Shirtings in 3-6-9-12 yd. lengths and material for knitting or rug making are especially desired.

The five-minute talk was given by Mrs. Henry H. Pettis, on the Founders of the Daughters of the American Revolution, their reason for organizing, and of the beautiful monument to the four founders, unveiled in Washington last spring.

Attention was called by the regent to the new Connecticut Daughter of the American Revolution student loan fund, whereby deserving young men and women may borrow money to help them through college. Mrs. George Maynard, Minor is chairman of the state committee covering this work.

Mrs. Van Wagenen told of visiting the night school classes at the Broadway school, and was most enthusiastic in her praise of this work. The evening she visited, many countries were represented, Russia, Germany, Italy, Austria, Poland, Portugal, Sweeden, Greece and one from Turkey and one from Cape Verde Islands, all trying to master the English language, and with the help of the very efficient teachers, making wonderful progress. Three classes are held in the Broadway school and others in other parts of the city, the pupils range in years from young men and women to men and women of middle life and past. The city and state may well be proud of a work of this kind, said Mrs. Van Wagenen.

NORWICH TOWN

There was an item in Tuesday's issue of the Bulletin concerning Rev. George H. Ewing, a former pastor of the Norwich Town Congregational church. Rev. Mr. Ewing has been absent from Norwich just eleven years the present month, his resignation from the Norwich Town church having taken place in December 1918, to enable him to take up Y. M. C. A. work in France. The Old First church, organized in 1660, was without a regular pastor (services being conducted by supplies) for nearly a year. The present pastor, Rev. Gurdon F. Bailey began his pastorate there Sunday, November 2nd, 1919, having just rounded out ten years of faithful service.

The December meeting of Home Chapter of the King's Daughters, to be held at the Johnson Home Monday afternoon, is to have a special program. The nominating committee will present the names of officers chosen to serve the chapter during 1930.

Tuesday afternoon the Intermediate and Junior C. E. societies of the Congregational church, united for the weekly meeting in the chapel. Robert Barber, a member of the Intermediate society was leader. The Juniors sang Jesus Bids Us Shine, Like A Little Candle Burning in the Night, also had a roll call of members. Of interest during the meeting, was the talk by Rev. Howard Bushnell, pastor of Goshen Congregational church. His subject was Books of the Bible, which were illustrated by candles. At the meeting next Tuesday afternoon members are to make articles to be given away at Christmas time. A request has been made for any one who cares to do so, to contribute something toward the stockings which are to be filled and distributed later, by these societies of boys and girls of all ages, with Miss Jessie E. Hyde as general leader.

The meeting of the C. E. society of the Methodist Episcopal church, scheduled for Monday evening, was omitted owing to the snowstorm.

After a few days visit at the home of the Misses Hyde and George F. Hyde of Washington street, Miss Gertrude Hyde, professor of art at Mount Holyoke college, South Hadley, Mass., and a friend, Miss Florence Foss, also of Mount Holyoke faculty, her guest for Thanksgiving, have returned. Miss Foss is having a year's leave of absence, during which time she is pursuing a special course of study at Radcliffe, the woman's department of Harvard university.

TRAINS SPEEDED UP ON NEW HAVEN ROAD

Average speed both of passenger and freight train service on the New Haven railroad has been considerably increased under the administration of President John J. Pelley, which began last March 1. Running time on several of the road's important passenger trains was materially cut in the last schedule compiled and recently Mr. Pelley announced that the present average number of miles per day movement of freight cars was 27, a figure that is ten miles per day greater than the speed estimated as ultimately possible in the famous Storrow report of a few years ago.

Running time of passenger trains has been particularly reduced on the Boston-New York route, the often described "Gateway to New England." The route has been put on a five-hour basis for practically all of the New Haven's limited express trains. Time of the New Haven's crack Florida train was cut five hours.

STATE PRISON SENTENCE FOR DIVORCE PERJURY

Mrs. Pearl White Ladone, 35, of Hartford, who came into superior court Sept. 27 to testify before Judge Allyn L. Brown in her uncontested action for divorce, stood before the same judge Tuesday afternoon and heard him sentence her to not less than one and not more than two and a half years in state's prison for perjury. She had pleaded guilty to the charge that some of her statements on the witness stand were false.

"It is a well known fact," said Judge Brown, pronouncing sentence, "that in uncontested divorce trials, particularly where there is no opportunity for investigation, perjury is altogether too common, and very seldom comes to the light of day." Referring to the prison term, he said: "It may be some deterrent to other aspirants for easy divorce."

TRAPPING CASE BROUGHT BEFORE PRESTON JUSTICE

Harold D. Bliven of Rhode Island, son-in-law of Lafayette F. Main of North Stonington, charged with illegal use of steel traps, was presented before Justice of the Peace Walter Tarbox in the Preston town court at 1 o'clock Wednesday afternoon. His case was continued to Monday, Dec. 9, at 4 o'clock.

Bliven is said to have secured a Connecticut license and procured written permission from Mr. Main to set traps on his land, but it is understood that he failed to abide by the laws governing the setting of traps. He is charged with setting traps on top of the ground in runways, which is a violation of the fish and game laws.

WELLS GOING DRY IN EAST HAMPTON REGION

Dwellers on the hills surrounding East Hampton are facing an acute water shortage. About 100 wells from which 400 or 500 persons obtain their water supply have gone dry.

Those who are unable to replenish empty buckets from friends living in lower sections are using ice, melted and boiled to render it pure.

The iceman, D. F. Willey, himself faces difficulties. The unprecedented demands on his storage houses long since exhausted his store and he daily hauls quantities from Portland, ten miles away.

CARBONIZED JOISTS BURST INTO FLAMES

About 10:15 o'clock Wednesday morning the fire department was called by telephone to No. 41 Peck street, occupied by Abraham Segal, to extinguish a chimney fire. The firemen discovered that sometime in the past a chimney hole had been covered by two small timbers which had been lathed over. Heat from the chimney had carbonized the joists and caused them to take fire. Engines No. 4 and No. 6, Squad A and Chief Henry R. Taft responded to the call.

TWO SHERESHEVSKY SISTERS MARRIED ON SUCCESSIVE DAYS

Two sisters, both former Norwich girls, were married on two successive days last week. They are Miss Bessie and Miss Anna Shereshevsky, the daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Moses Shereshevsky of 7 Aqueduct street.

Miss Bessie Shereshevsky was united in marriage with Milton Rubin of New York city on Tuesday night, Nov. 26. After the ceremony a reception and dinner was held at the residence of the bride. The bride is a graduate of Norwich Free Academy, class of 1921, and the bridegroom is an instructor of commercial law and commercial mathematics at James Monroe high school, New York city.

On the following night, Miss Anna Shereshevsky was united in marriage with Julius Silverstein of Brooklyn, N. Y. The ceremony and reception took place at the Washington palace in Brooklyn, N. Y. The bride is a graduate of Norwich commercial school and the bridegroom is the owner of an extensive sign painting business in Brooklyn, N. Y. Mr. and Mrs. Moses Shereshevsky and family made the trip to New York city and there was quite a number of Norwich people present in the large gathering that attended both ceremonies and receptions.

Both happy couples left on the following day, Thursday, on their honeymoon trip, the former couple going to Washington, D. C., and the latter couple to Lakewood, New Jersey.

FINED ON CHARGE OF CRUELTY TO ANIMALS

Found guilty of cruelty to animals, Ernest Barbeau, 54, of Brooklyn, this state, was fined $10 and costs in the city court Wednesday morning. It was alleged that on October 20 he took away an angora cat valued at $25 from Mrs. Elizabeth Cilley of No. 29 Treadway avenue. Barbeau, it is understood, remarked that he would like to own the cat and that it disappeared shortly afterwards. It was traced to his home by the state police, and Barbeau was arrested by State Police Officer Johnson. It is understood that the cruelty charge was based on the way Barbeau carried the cat away in a bag.

DISCUSS MERGING OF THREE WOOL CONCERNS

Possible merging of three well-known New England wool manufacturing enterprises is being discussed by officials, it was learned in Providence this week. The companies which are considering this step are the Dunn Worsted mills of Woonsocket, the Cyril Johnson Woolen company of Stafford Springs, Conn., and Strong-Hewat & company of North Adams, Mass.

Officials of the three concerns, while they would not discuss the merger report, admitted that such action was being contemplated but stated that no final negotiations have as yet been undertaken.

If a consolidation is effected, it would bring under one management over 300 looms and probably more than 1000 employes. The Dunn Worsted mill alone employ about 500 persons. The Dunn Worsted mills and the Cyril Johnson Woolen company are listed as being capitalized respectively for $300,000 and $500,000. No capitalization figures are available for Strong-Hewat & company. The three companies manufacture high-grade worsted and woolen suitings and overcoatings.

For COLDS

We all catch colds and they can make us miserable; but yours needn't last long if you will do this: Take two or three tablets of Bayer Aspirin just as soon as possible after a cold starts. Stay in the house if you can—keep warm. Repeat with another tablet or two of Bayer Aspirin every three or four hours, if those symptoms of cold persist. Take a good laxative when you retire, and keep bowels open. If throat is sore, dissolve three tablets in a quarter-glassful of water and gargle. This soothes inflammation and reduces infection. There is nothing like Bayer Aspirin for a cold, or sore throat. And it relieves aches and pains almost instantly. The genuine tablets, marked Bayer, are absolutely harmless to the heart.

PROSPECTS FOR BUSINESS IN 1930 ARE ENCOURAGING

Leaders of Scores of Industrial Associations and Corporations Assure President Hoover That They See a Great Opportunity to Expand the Business Prosperity of the Country Right Now—Constructions For Utilities During 1930 Will Involve $1,400,000,000—Maintenance Will Request $410,000,000 Additional—Federal, State and Community Building Programs Call For an Expenditure of Well Above $2,500,000,000 and Will Provide Employment For More Than 600,000 Men—Leading Employers Promise to Maintain Wages and Activity.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5— (AP) — American industry in all its immense ramifications took stock today of the prospects for business in 1930 and found them encouraging.

Leaders of its scores of industrial associations and corporations gathered to hear President Hoover outline briefly the reasons for their assembly and to give one by one the views they held as to the outlook in their particular field.

The president told them that the recent crash in the stock market had been followed first by a recovery of confidence in money markets, and second by a movement of leading employers to maintain wages and activity.

"The third line of action has been to undertake through voluntary organization of industry the continuity and expansion of the construction and maintenance work of the country," Mr. Hoover continued. "The extension and organization of this work are the purpose of this meeting."

He remarked that in preliminary meetings representatives of the country's leading business enterprises had "shown an unanimity I have seldom seen in our country" in the endeavor "to secure employment and to remove the fear of unemployment."

"The very fact that you gentlemen come together for these broad purposes represents an advance in the whole conception of the relationship of business to public welfare," he said. "You represent the business of the United States, undertaking through your own voluntary action to contribute something very definite to the advancement of stability and progress in our economic life. x x x Beyond this, a great responsibility for stability and prosperity rests with the whole people. I have no desire to preach. I may, however, mention one good old word—work."

After applause, the meeting heard in quick succession from Secretary Lamont, and his assistant secretary of commerce, Julius Klein, and elected Julius H. Barnes, its permanent chairman.

Lamont said the chief contribution business organizations could make to continued prosperity would lie in maintenance of their normal buying of materials and equipment. He pointed out that federal, state and community building programs for next year would involve the expenditure of "well above $2,500,000,000 and furnish employment to more than 600,000 men."

Any interruption to business prosperity, he predicted, would be of short volume. Klein spoke of the increased organization of American business and asserted that its possibilities of effective cooperation constituted a guarantee against recessions of importance.

Chairman Barnes then summoned a number of his more important representatives to answer an informal roll call as to what their program of activity for the coming year might show.

R. H. Ashton, chairman of the Association of Railway executives, estimated that the trunk line carriers had appropriated $1,050,000,000 for capital expenditures next year and that $400,000,000 of this would be spent in the first six months of 1930 as compared with $350,000,000 in the same period of 1929.

Expenditures for railroad supplies for the period he estimated at $1,300,000,000 while the railroad wage bill would be $3,000,000,000.

Matthew S. Sloan, president of the National Electric Light association, said public utilities were "in a healthy condition and there is no reason apparent why their business should not continue to grow during 1930."

He estimated that new construction for all forms of utilities in the United States would involve during 1930 $1,400,000,000 and that maintenance would require $410,000,000 additional.

Speaking conservatively, no business with a more brilliant future can be seen," he concluded.

J. A. Farrell, president of the United States Steel corporation, said he liked "this idea of cooperation between business and government," and "we have a great opportunity to expand the business prosperity of the country right now."

"I can assure you that there will be stable wages and prices in the steel industry next year," he continued. "If there are any people in the steel industry who think they'll pinch a few pennies off wages in 1930 the rest of the people in the industry will attend to their case, though I don't know how near this building is to the federal trade commission. I want to say that there will be a very early recovery in business in the United States."

He predicted further that "foreign trade in 1930 in all lines will be better than in 1929," and advised his auditors not to see any menace in increasing imports because "other countries have got to have a basis of exchange."

Alvan Macauley, president of the Packard Motor Car company and representative of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce, announced that "the country need not worry about the motor industry—we shall never be down seriously nor for long."

He said there was no likelihood of wage reductions, that 4,335,000 workers directly or indirectly were employed, and that a manufacturing output of 5,000,000 new cars per year could be considered normal.

A market for that number of machines was in sight for 1930, he asserted, because of replacement demands by present car operators for [illegible] because of export requirements for 1,000,000 vehicles and because of increased demand for trucks and buses and for natural growth.

RABBIT HUNTER FOUND BODY OF AIR PILOT NELSON

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Dec. 5.—(AP) — The mystery of the fate of Pilot Thomas P. Nelson, who disappeared in the darkness and snowstorm of early Monday while flying the air mail from Bellefonte, Pa., to Cleveland, was solved today, when Nelson's body and his badly wrecked plane was found in a ravine near Chagrin Falls, Ohio, 35 miles southeast of Cleveland.

Nelson, a pilot of the National Air Transport company, apparently had realized death was close at hand for his parachute was found partly opened, indicating he had made a belated effort to jump for his life.

Finding of the body ended one of the most intensive searches ever made for a missing flier today, 15 planes, led by Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, a former "buddy" of Nelson's, had carefully and systematically continued the search over 1200 square miles just east of Cleveland, and there were 26 planes assembled this afternoon for the same work, when the body was discovered.

Discovery of the body and wreckage was made by Joseph Vincent, of Cleveland, while he was hunting rabbits.

Nelson was 24 years old. He is survived by his widow, Helen Nelson, and a son, Thomas, Jr., of Plainfield, N. J. He had 2,900 flying hours to his credit and had flown an estimated 290,000 miles.

WOULD CLASSIFY WOMEN SMUGGLERS AS PIRATES

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5—(AP)—Women who smuggle jewelry and fine clothes into the United States should be classed as pirates and buccaneers in the opinion of Seymour Lowman, in charge of the customs service, who revealed tonight that milady returning from abroad was the chief offender in the smuggling of such articles.

A new fur coat, a glittering necklace and the like hold such attraction for many women that Lowman said some "seem unable to resist the impulse" to try and slip them past the stern customs agents. His supervision over customs results from his post as assistant secretary of the treasury. He set forth his views in an address before the First Presbyterian church, in which he also touched upon prohibition shootings.

Lowman said he was proud there had been so few killings in enforcement of the customs and prohibition laws since last January and said that the inflow of spirits was "as much exaggerated as the supposed flow of diplomatic liquor" in Washington.

Enforcement officers, he emphasized, were instructed to shoot only in self defense or to prevent a felony. He said there had been only eight deaths resulting from shooting by enforcement agents in 1929.

MARTIAL LAW TO DEAL WITH STRIKES IN HAITI

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5—(AP)—Widespread strikes in Haiti, starting with disturbances among students, has led to a declaration of martial law in that strife-torn West Indian republic.

This information was received today by the American government from its representatives at Port Au Prince and the situation was believed to have been discussed at a conference in mid-afternoon between President Hoover anw Charles Francis Adams, secretary of the navy.

American marines have occupied the republic since 1917 and martial law will be enforced by them and the Haitian police, which have been organized and trained by marine officers.

The student strike originated in protest against the allotment of scholarships by the minister of education in the Haitian government.

Disorders among the students, who number 13,000, resulted and the strike spread to industry with the dock workers the latest to join in what appears to have become a general strike movement.

Brigadier General John H. Russell, of the marine corps, is the American high commissioner to Haiti and as such is acting as minister as well as commanding officer of the marine forces.

CONSTRUCTING A SHRINE IN HOLY CROSS CEMETERY

MALDEN, Mass., Dec. 5.—(AP) — A shine is being constructed near All Souls chapel in Holy Cross cemetery here to house the body of Father Patrick J. Power, to whose grave hundreds of thousands of pilgrims flocked last month seeking miraculous cures.

The cemetery was closed one week ago last Monday pending an investigation by the Roman Catholic church on the order of Cardinal William O'Connell.

BOARD OF PARDONS DENIES CLEMENCY TO JOHN FELTOVIC

HARTFORD, Dec. 5— (AP) —The board of pardons this afternoon, after a hearing on a plea for clemency made by counsel, declined to commute the death sentence imposed upon John Feltovic, of Bridgeport, to life imprisonment.

The reprieve will expir eon December 10.

CABLED PARAGRAPHS

CENTOCELLE Italy, Dec. 5—(AP) —Sergeant Romagnoli and Pilot Susini were killed when two military airplanes collided at a height of 1,500 feet.

LONDON, Dec. 5—(AP)—Announcement that Francis Francis, wealthy young sub-lieutenant in the Royal Horse Guards is resigning his commission because of his engagement to "Sunny" Jarmann, American comedienne in accordance with the unwritten law that officers who marry actresses must resign, has started a violent controversy here over the justice of that rule.

LONDON, Dec. 5—(AP)—Geoffrey Gill, a star student in the Leyton high school, has been indefinitely suspended by the headmaster because he sought an autograph from the Prince of Wales when his highness opened the school last week. In notifying the father of the 15-year-old boy of the suspension, the headmaster said he had ben guilty of "gross impropriety" toward the prince.

LONDON, Dec. 5—(AP)—Terming the Armistice day speech of President Hoover "one of the most remarkable utterances ever made" on the subject of disarmament, David Lloyd George, liberal party leader told the house of commons that the labor government with the president of the United States behind it had the power to insist on something being done to terminate the present world situation of huge armies.

FIRST TIME IN HISTORY KING OF ITALY VISITED POPE

ROME, Dec. 5. — (AP) — A king of united Italy paid a visit to a pope today for the first time in history

Giving public evidence that the Lateran treaties, which settled the Roman question, had ended the difficulties between the papacy and the House of Savoy, King Victor Emanuel and Queen Helena went to the Vatican and were received by Pius XI in the throne room.

The royal trip from the Quirinal palace to the Vatican was made privately and without display in eight automobiles.

The pope and the sovereigns exchanged valuable presents at their interview, the king giving his holiness a pectoral cross studded with jewels and an ancient crucifix, while the pope gave the king a book about the Vatican coin collection and three commemorative medals. To Queen Helena, the pope gave a rosary of precious stones and a mosaic picture.

SENATE MAY CONTEST SEATING OF SULLIVAN

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5. —(AP)— Although a contest against seating Patrick Sullivan is in prospect next week when he presents himself as the appointed successor of the late Senator Warren of Wyoming, there appeared tonight to be much belief for his being seated.

The contest threatens to be based on the Wyoming statute adopted during the administration of a recent democratic governor, Mrs. Nellie Taylor Ross, which stipulates that the governor can fill a vacancy of congress only when it occurs during a session. Senator Warren died during the week's recess between the extra and the regular sessions. Sullivan was appointed by Governor Emerson, a republican.

Senator Walsh, of Montana, the assistant democratic leader and a noted lawyer, expressed the view today after an examination of the precedents that the weight of opinions favored the legality of Sullivan's appointment.

PRESIDENT-ELECT RUBIO OF MEX. FETED AT HOUSTON

HOUSTON, Tex., Dec. 5.—(AP)—Hailed as the representative of a new order in Mexico which relegates militarism to the background, Pascual Ortiz Rubio, president elect of Mexico, was feted here today by leaders of the city and prominent Mexicans, prior to his departure tonight for Hot Springs, Ark., for a rest.

At a banquet in honor of the president-elect, General Manuel Perez Trevino, head of the revolutionary party in the southern republic, pointed to Ortiz Rubio as typifying a transformation in Mexican affairs which places emphasis on social and political leadership rather than on military power.

Asked if he did not believe the proposed restrictions against foreign labor would keep foreign capital out of the republic, he replied: "I do not think so. I think capital will appreciate those laws."

VILUMINOUS RECORDS INVOLVING DOHENY AND FALL

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 5.—(AP)— A parade of court history involving alleged bribery and fraud in the leasing of millions of dollars worth of naval oil reserve lands was continued by the government today in its latest move against the Doheny-Fall scandals.

Edward C. Finney, former first assistant to Albert B. Fall when he was secretary of the interior in the last President Harding's cabinet, resumed the witness stand and neared the end of his task of identifying voluminous records of other proceedings involving Edward L. Doheny, oil muti-millionaire, and his old friend, Fall.

Through the records the government hopes to prove that the leasing to the Pan-American Petroleum company, which Doheny once headed, of $15,000,000 worth of oil lands at Elk Hills, California by Fall was fraudulent and brought about through bribery, and should be cancelled.

MOTHER AND THREE OF HER CHILDREN ASPHYXIATED

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 5.—(AP)— A young mother and three of her children were found dead in their home here tonight from gas. The woman was Mrs. Minerva Auerbach, 28, and the children were Bernard, 3; Carlton, 4, and Josephine, 7.

Gas was flowing from an open burner in the kitchen range and the jet of a gas stove it nhe cellar was open.

Police said preliminary investigation indicated that the mother had taken her own life and those of her children, but Charles Auerbach, husband and father, on returning home, expressed the belief that the deaths were accidental. He said his wife had no reason for committing suicide.

Nationalist Troops In China Mutiny

Many Thousands of Troops in Mutiny in Several Provinces—Bandits Active.

SHANGHAI, Nov. 5—(AP)—China's Nationalist government faced tonight one of the most serious crises in its brief and tempestuous existence.

Many thousands of its troops were in mutiny in several provinces, and disorders gripped almost the entire Yangtse valley in which live many millions. Organized communists and bandits were ravaging the countryside in at least five central and southern provinces.

Rebel forces, admittedly bribed by the Kuominchun, gave signs of again fighting government troops and southern rebel forces threatened the great city of Canton.

For the time being at least, Russian armed raids in Manchuria were halted by preliminary negotiations for peaceable settlement of the Chinese Eastern railway dispute.

The mutiny of government troops which began Tuesday at Pukow across the Yangtse river from the Nanking capital, was reported to have spread to many other localities. The original mutineers, rebelling against orders to proceed to Kwangtung to suppress the attack directed at Canton, looted Pukow and went northward by train to Pengpu. Joined by other rebel forces of Kiangsu and Shantung provinces, their numbers were said to have reached 50,000 along the Tienstin-Pukow railway, under command of Shih Yu-San, general of the twenty-fourth mutinous division.

President Chiang Kai-Shek sent three of his best divisions to Pukow to cope with the situation, and approximately 15,000 men crossed the Yangtse before nightfall. Twenty-five thousand others are expected to proceed to Pukow unless the insurrection ends quickly.

The Kuominchun rebel forces, whose fighting in Honan and Hupeh provinces ceased recently when their leaders were said to have been bribed with many millions of dollars by Nationalist government officials were said to be about to resume armed attack upon government forces.

Thousands of bandits and "communist armies" were actively looting the people of Fukien, Kiangsi, Honan and Hupeh provinces.

In Kwangtung province, the Nationalist government resorted to the "silver bullet" campaign against the rebels threatening Canton, hoping by this method of buying off the opposing soldiers to end the warfare in the south, as it had done in Honan and Hupeh.

In a battle in this area described as sharp, the Nationalists claimed success at a point thirty miles north of Canton, but a Nationalist gunboat commander was killed. The Nationalists, admitting that their activity in this region had been defensive, asserted they planned large scale offensive movements.

House Votes For Tax Reduction, 282 To 17

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5—(AP)—Showing its usual speed in disposing of administration legislation, the house today quickly adopted the $160,000,000 income tax reduction resolution by 282 to 17 and sent it to the senate.

An effort will be made there by the old guard republicans in the senate, to duplicate the celerity. Chairman Smoot had the finance committee together on the resolution today and called a meeting for tomorrow.

The slight opposition that developed from both sides of the house was easily overriden to send the measure that was introduced only four days ago safely past the halfway point of its legislative journey.

Backed by the administration and approved by party leaders in both houses, it was not expected to encounter much serious opposition in the senate. Smoot exepects early approval by his group and plans to bring it before the senate not later than next Monday, despite a democratic movement in the finance committee sponsored by Senator George, Georgia, to extend the reduction over two or more years instead of one.

Senator Simmons, of North Carolina, ranking democrat on the finance committee, said it would be better if a reduction could be made permanent, but agreed there was ground for apprehension by the treasury because of the possibility for creating a deficit. A majority of the democrats and the republican regulars, he predicted, would favor the administration program.

The only obstacle threatening interference with the republican leaders' plan for quick adoption of the resolution in the senate was the desire of the democratic-independent tariff coalition to delay action until disposition of the tariff bill. In a statement tonight through the democratic national committee, Simmons said the coalition favored continuing the tariff work after disposition of the Vare case.

SENATE WILL VOTE AT NOON ON THE EXCLUSION OF VARE

Friends of the Pennsylvanian Concede That Vare Will Be Denied Seat—If Predictions Hold Good the Seat Will Be Declared Vacant, Subject to Being Filled By Gov. Fisher of Pennsylvania—Elections Committee Has Unanimously Decided That Wilson, Vare's Opponent, Was Not Elected—Senate Will Vote on That Matter Today—Contest Has Lasted More Than Three Years at a Cost of Almost $200,000.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5.—(AP)— The senate votes tomorrow at noon on the right of Senator-elect William S. Vare, of Pennsylvania, to the seat for which he campaigned in 1926 at a cost of $785,000 and friends conceded privately tonight that he would be excluded.

Immediately after voting on the resolution of Senator Norris, republican, Nebraska, barring the Philadelphia republican leader, the senate will vote on the contest for this seat of William B. Wilson, democratic opponent of Vare in the 1926 election.

The elections committee unanimously has declared that Wilson was not elected. If the predictions of those who conducted polls today hold good, the Pennsylvania seat which has been in controversy for three years will be formally vacated by tomorrow and subject to being filled by Governor Fisher of Pennsylvania.

Senator Reed, republican, Pennsylvania, introduced the resolution late today declaring that Wilson was not elected and is not entitled to the seat and this resolution comes up immediately after the Norris resolution is disposed of, without further debate.

The agreement fixing the hour for a vote was reached after another long day of debate on the memorable 1926 Pennsylvania senatorial contest in which Wharton D. Pepper, then a senator, and Gifford Pinchot, then governor, were Vare's opponents for the republican nomination won by him.

Declaring that in the general elections Wilson had failed to prove his case against Vare, Chairman Waterman of the elections investigating committee, severely condemned former Governor Pinchot.

"We have squandered hundreds of thousands of dollars in ferreting and running this thing down." He said, "all occasioned by the indecent methods that were sponsored by Governor Pinchot and his class in Pennsylvania, not for the purpose of electing Mr. Wilson but for the purpose of exploiting at public expense and at the expense of the senate this man.

"I say that there never was such a fiasco brought to the attention of the senate as this has been shown to be. What is the result? It is that the contestant (Mr. Wilson) has not made good his case, and, in my judgment it results fairly in the conclusion that Mr. Vare was elected by a plurality of more than 120,000 legal votes."

Senators Carraway, Arkansas, and Bratton, New Mexico, the democratic members of the investigating committee, were just as severe in their denunciation of Vare's campaign. Both averred that his election was "saturated with fraud" and could not be allowed. They conceded that Wilson had not received a plurality of the legal votes and was not entitled to the seat.

The investigation into Vare's primary campaign and the subsequent inquiry into the election by senate committees has taken more than three years of study at almost $200,000 expense.

The attack by Senator Waterman, a Colorado republican, on the former republican Pennsylvania governor, Pinchot, took notice also of the certificates of election which Governor Pinchot issued for Vare, in which he stated that the nomination was "partly bought, and partly stolen."

"I say," continued Senator Waterman "that a man who would certify as Mr. Pinchot did, who attempted, by and through agencies created by him as governor, to transform the senate of the United States into a justice court, to try a contest created by him, is entitled to neither respect nor consideration nor decent treatment anywheer in civilized society. That is what I have to say about the governor.

"What do you say of a man holding the high office of governor, what do you say of a public official who signs his name to the certification of a falsity, a falsity demonstrated by the unanimous finding of a committee of this great body?"

HOUSE TO TAKE UP SUPPLY BILL FOR THE INTERIOR DEPT.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5.—(AP)— The annual supply bill for the interior department will be taken up tomorrow by the house, as the first phase of the yearly task of providing funds for federal operations.

The sum of $283,189,973, a decrease of $2,444,102 under this year's figure, and $200,000 less than that approved by the budget bureau for next year, was recommended today by the house appropriations committee.

The principal item provided was $235,099,400 for the pension office. This was a decrease of $8,111,600, caused by the regular decrease in pensioners.

Other large items were $19,736,129 for the Indian bureau, an increase of $3,122,913; $8,321,000 for the reclamation service and $8,070,935 for national parks, both increases over current appropriations.

HEAVY DAMAGE BY GALE IN GREAT BRITAIN

LONDON, Dec. 5.—(AP)—A tempest in which the wind at times blew at the rate of 100 miles an hour, swept Great Britain last night and most of today. Before it had spent its force, it had caused enormous damage on land and at sea.

The crowning tragedy of a day and night of destruction was the foundering of the steamship Frances Duncas, which was 2,384 tons off Lands End. Sixteen of her crew of 21 went down with her. The other five clung to bits of wreckage until the steamship Alice Marie, bound for Norwich, picked them up.

Torrential rains, which accompanied the gale, increased the already widespread flood damage in Wales.

All shipping in the English channel was halted and all London to Paris air service was cancelled for the day.

Her screams attracted Maynard Newland, a farmer, and the Negro fled. As word of the attempted attack spread, a mob formed.

Bloodhounds were placed on the Negro's trail.

M'MANUS ACQUITTED OF MURDER OF ROTHSTEIN

NEW YORK, Dec. 5.—(AP) — With George McManus cleared of the charge by court decision the question "Who killed Arnold Rothstein?" remained today as unanswerable as it was a year ago.

McManus, the smiling associate of the late king of Broadway gamblers, today won a directed verdict of "not guilty" in general sessions court after three weeks of trial on a charge of murder.

Judge Charles C. Nott, Jr., in directing the jury as to their verdict said that "it is not sufficient to prove that a man might have committed a crime. It is necessary to prove that he must have done so." That, he continued, the state had not done and he had no alternative than to throw the case out of court.

The verdict, which was not unexpected, came as an anti-climax to a case that had stirred the city for over a year, a case which had cost a police commissioner and several ranking policemen their jobs.

After three weeks of jury selection and testimony little more was known about the circumstances of the fatal shooting of Rothstein than had been known a year ago November 4.

The vertict ended for McManus a year of court appearances and police surveillance, four months in Tombs prison, next door to the building where his trial was held.

Three men remain under indictment for the murder, none of them in custody. They are: Hyman (Gilly) Biller, payoff man for McManus, and John Doe and Richard Roe.

District Attorney Joab H. Banton would not say today whether he would quash the indictments against them, but that course is expected.

GOBIN GUILTY OF CONCEALING CATTLE

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Dec. 5. — Oliver Gobin, of North Grosvenordale, was found guilty by a Windham county jury this afternoon of a charge of concealing property sold under a conditional bill of sale. After hearing the case during today's session of the December criminal term, the jury retired at 2:07, returning at 4:50 for further instructions. At 5:15 o'clock, the jury, through Foreman William A. Burleson of Windham, returned the verdict of guilty. The court suspended imposition of sentence until Friday morning at 10 o'clock at the request of defense counsel, Attorney Samuel B. Harvey.

The jury as empaneled by Judge Edward M. Yeomans was as follows: William A. Burleson, of Windham; William B. Carroll, of Putnam; Edward Zeller, of Ashford; Arthur E. James and Fred A. Card, of Brooklyn; Clinton E. Frink and Fred Hicks, of Canterbury; Clifford M. Burdick, of Chaplin; John Scott and Arthur Pearl, of Hampton; Fitz H. Paine, of Pomfret, and Gustave Hagstrom, of Thompson.

Gobin pleaded not guilty to an allegation that he had purchased six cows from Amedee J. Guillett, of Auburn, Mass., on conditional bill of sale and that on October 6 last, he had removed the cows beyond the control of Guillett. The sale price of each cow was $165, plus a ten per cent discount charge to be paid by Gobin, according to Guillett. Two cows owned by Gobin were involved in the transaction, leaving the monetary amount covering the balance of the purchase $325. Gobin gave ten monthly notes of $95.50 each.

Amedee Guillett, the complainant, was the first witness in a description of the terms of the transaction. Other state witnesses were: Everett E. Winch, an associate of Guillett; Mrs. Orelia Guillett, Constable Alexander Maitland, of Thompson, and State Policeman John T. Murphy of the Danielson barracks, who brought about the arrest of Gobin by the local officers in October.

Gobin, who is a retail milk dealer and proprietor of the Walnut Grove farm, North Grosvenordale, was the first witness for the defense. He was followed by his wife, Mrs. Annette Gobin, and Mrs. Byron Lewis. Testimony was that five of the six cows in question are now under attachment by Charles H. Kimball against Guillett, while the other cow died, death being caused by foot rot, according to the defense. State's Attorney Howard C. Bradford and Attorney Harvey eliminated rebuttals in presentation of the case.

Before court opened this morning Judge Yeomans announced a suspension of the one-year jail sentence imposed in the case of Ora L. Smart, of Woodstock on October 3 last, upon conviction of Smart on a charge of rape. Smart is to be placed on probation until October 3 of next year. The suspension of the sentence was made owing to the good behavior and ill health of the accused.

DANIELSON

CAUSE OF WEBB'S DEATH GIVEN AS MENINGITIS

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Dec. 5—This morning an autopsy was performed on the body of Charles Webb of the Allen Hill district of Brooklyn by Dr. Warren A. Tanner, medical examiner for the town of Brooklyn, and Dr. George M. Burroughs, medical examiner for Killingly.

Mr. Webb died unexpectedly Wednesday after having been confined to his bed since he was injured when knocked off his bicycle by an automobile operated by Herbert Parker of Brooklyn and in that town Thanksgiving eve.

The autopsy revealed that meningitis had developed directly beneath a scalp injury that Mr. Webb had sustained in the accident. The autopsy was made by direction of Coroner Arthur G. Bill, who said this afternoon that he has not determined as yet what action he may take in the case.

Danielson is listed among the communities scheduled to have new postoffice buildings under the provisions of an appropriation bill that will get consideration at the present session of congress. The government's lease on Danielson's present postal quarters in the town hall building expires next August. This fact together with the inadequate and over-crowded conditions under which the postal force now works here may be considerations tending to hurry along the program for giving Danielson a new postoffice building.

Such a structure for Danielson has been talked of for years, but appears nearer of realization now than ever before. However, Postmaster E. H. Keech pointed out this morning that getting such a building is a slow process, even though it is provided for in the appropriation bill.

It so happens that the Danielson postoffice is now doing the largest business in its history, and that the current year will be well ahead of any that has gone before. The growth of the business is due in large measure to the great volume of daily shipments made by Powdrell and Alexander, who forward to practically every town and city in the country.

Only routine business was transacted at the monthly meeting of the selectmen of Killingly yesterday afternoon. At their offices this afternoon it was said by Personal Tax Collector Arthur A. Dean that the personal tax money is coming in slowly. It so happens that there is only another week after this one in which these taxes may be paid without a penalty for delaying being imposed.

The rather harsh suggestion that hilly streets of the borough where young people have been coasting since the snow came be sanded was heard today from motorists fearful of becoming involved in an accident and fatally injuring or killing someone. This idea arises from the fact that there is no control over coasting, that it is unrestricted either day or night, and many are those who go sliding after dark.

This afternoon at 1:15 at A. F. Wood's funeral home on Mechanic street funeral services for Frederick Bennett, who died in Brooklyn, were conducted by Rev. Chester J. Armstrong of the Danielson Baptist church. Burial was in the cemetery at Pomfret Center. The bearers were relatives.

There is then respect, it was said to-day, that Danielson again will have a community Christmas tree on Davis park, following a custom of recent years. In the years recently past the tree has been sponsored by Leo J. L'Homme post, American Legion and on Christmas eve the gathering there has been a joy and a boon to large numbers of children, delighted with the illumination and with the remembrances they received.

As yet the government has no site for a postoffice building here, but some good ones are available. The fact that the lease of the present postal quarters has only about nine months to run is regarded as likely to have some bearing on hurrying along the project for a new building.

OBITUARY

Mrs. Henrietta Parker

Mrs. Henrietta Parker, 54, wife of William Parker of Killingly Center, died just before noon today at the Day Kimball hospital in Putnam. She had been in poor health a long time. Mr. and Mrs. Parker were residents of Danielson for a term of years, but during the present year purchased a home in the Killingly Center district of the town.

Lieut. Ross V. Urquhart, commanding officer at the Danielson barracks, and State Officer John Murphy were in Willimantic today in connection with a trial scheduled in the superior court of Oliver Gobin of North Grosvenordale, charged with concealing cows purchased on a conditional bill of sale from an owner in Auburn, Mass. Lieut. Urquhart and State Officer Murphy will be in Hartford Friday attending a meeting of the lieutenants of the state police department.

In keeping with the department's policy of constantly watching for overloaded trucks State Officer H. Theodore Strand of the Danielson barracks ordered Lloyd Miller of the town of Sterling to appear in a justice's court there to answer to an allegation that he was operating a motor truck more heavily loaded than permitted under its registration.

A test after dark of the colored electric lights that have been strung through the business section establishes that the area will be prettily illuminated during the holiday season. The lights will be turned on next Wednesday evening and will burn nightly thereafter until Jan. 2.

Mrs. Susie B. Hopkins of Danielson, formerly of Sterling, has purchased the former home of the late Congressman Charles A. Russell and which has been owned and occupied for several years past by Mrs. Flora E. Kennedy. Mrs. Kennedy retains ownership of the adjoining Bidwell property.

Receptacles are in place at various business houses in Danielson into which contributions of money may be dropped to build up a fund with which to purchase Christmas dinners and other holiday cheer for the worthy poor of the community.

Thousands of calendars are being made ready for distribution by local business houses. As yet, however, few are being given out in Danielson.

Christmas club releases by Danielsons' three banks will be made next Tuesday, and on the experience of the past will be the means of immediately boosting the holiday shopping.

Peter Grenier and Albert Dufault, both of Attleboro, were before Judge W. Fenner Woodward at this morning's session of the town court. Grenier, charged with intoxication, was fined $5 and costs. Being unable to pay, he was sent to jail. Dufault was given 30 days for having been intoxicated and 120 days for vagrancy.

There is sufficient ice on some of the ponds hereabouts at the present time to permit of fishing through the ice, a sport that tempted a number of pickerel fishermen out today.

The first term—16 weeks—of the current school year in Killingly will end December 20, when the schools will close for the Christmas vacation. The schools will reopen on December 30, but New Year's day will be a holiday.

PUTNAM

MERCHANTS FEAR PARKING RULES WILL HURT BUSINESS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PUTNAM, Dec. 5—If the edict of the common council issued to police yesterday, relative to the enforcement of the city parking regulations, is carried out on the scale approved by Mayor Charles A. Richard and members of the common council, the anticipated tide of Christmas shopping, expected to take place here during the remaining days to Christmas is certain to be curtailed, according to several merchants on Main street. Merchants along this thoroughfare hold that an efficient system of parking vehicles is of vital importance to the shopping area and any police interference which would tend to drive buyers to inconvenient parking spaces certainly will hamper business conditions.

Despite this fact, Captain of Police Wiliam J. Jarvis has received notice from the common council, and motorists have also been informed through notices published, that the existing ordinances contained in the city charter in regards to the parking of automobiles must be enforced in order to eliminate hazardous conditions caused by irregular and illegal parking of cars on principal streets. According to legal notices issued by the city clerk no cars may be left standing on the north side of Front street, between Main street and Livery street, nor under Front street bridge, nor on the southerly side of South Main street for a distance of 45 feet from the Front street bridge. On Main street cars must be parked parallel with the curbing. There is ample room for additional vehicles to park alongside the legally parked cars, but this the council maintains is contrary to sections of the ordinance and police must, after Monday, Dec. 9, take steps to prohibit such practice.

The fourth section of the city ordinance published for a second time today, makes provision for a penalty of $10 for each violation noted by the police. This clause, the council members emphasized, shall be used as a tooth in the law to bring about recognition of the ordinance.

Mr. and Mrs. Adelard Gravel of Willimantic were in this city today where they visited with Mrs. Gravel's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew P. Donovan of Lyons street.

An announcement certain to prove of interest to hundreds throughout New England, made today by Miss Beatrice Stevens of Pomfret, concerns Pomfret Nativity play far-famed throughout the six states, which will be given again this year at Pomfret hall in that town on Sunday evening, December 22. Following the custom adopted about two years ago, two performances will be given by the players in order to accommodate the crowds expected to seek admission.

A small group of school officials from this city and surrounding towns and others interested in modern methods of education gathered at the auditorium in Putnam high school Wednesday evening where they heard an address by F. W. Barber, former Putnam man, who is field service counselor for the Junior Achievement organization. The Junior Achievement league, as explained by Mr. Barber, carries the same objectives for urban children as the 4-H clubs strive for in the rural section. It is the intention of the league to organize a club in Putnam.

At the annual meeting of the Jessamine chapter, O. E. S., held at the Masonic temple Wednesday evening officers for the ensuing year elected were: Mrs. Rhoda D. Moss, worthy matron; Edwin E. Phillips, worthy patron; Mrs. Janet K. Smith, associate matron; Alexander Maitland, associate patron; Emma M. Robert, secretary; Mary C. Merriam, treasurer; Martha E. Phillips, conductress; Mrs. Elizabeth S. Maitland, associate conductress. Other officers of the chapter will be appointed at a later date and will be installed at the annual installation, to take place early in the year. Reports of the outgoing officers were read and accepted at this meeting.

According to C. J. Isbister, local railroad official provisions have been made for a better morning mail service for the city. Early morning mail from New York wil be taken out of Gotham on the State of Maine express in a sealed pouch. Opened pouches are to be made up on the railway post offices and mail from New Haven and Bridgeport are to be accepted and thrown off at Putnam at 12.50 p. m., delivered to the post office at 6 o'clock, thus insuring morning delivery for the bankers, manufacturers and business men, to whom prompt delivery of mail is important.

This service will be a decided improvement over the present mail delivery being rendered by Train No. 704, which has been arriving on a rather irregular schedule.

Following the appointment of his brother, the late Frank G. Letters, as postmaster, Mr. Letters entered the service of the post-office department and rose to the position of assistant postmaster. Some years after the death of his brother, he retired from the postal service to become game warden for the county. Mr. Letters was an ardent follower of all outdoor sports and especially those pertaining to the rod and reel.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Gertrude Arnold Letters and by two neices, Halford Letters and Miss Genevieve Letters, children of Mrs. Genevieve Letters.

KEEP THE HOME WHEELS TURNING

In the recent New England conference held at Boston, Henry D. Sharpe of Providence spoke upon a community's industrial development and made the recommendation that less money and effort be expended upon the small percentage of industries migrating from one place to another and the employment of more capital and energy in cultivating the large percentage of growth represented by industries that spring up within the communities themselves.

This is a point which many communities have come to realize. It is easy to chase a will o' the wisp, but it is not so often that desired results are obtained thereby. And yet while that is going on and nothing is being accomplished there are those industries right at home, those of long standing, possibly, which may have encountered difficulties in one way or another, and those trying to get onto their feet, which are entitled to assistance and fail to get it. Many an industry has left the place where it was started because no interest seemed to be forthcoming in regard to its welfare. And it is not difficult to point to such industries among those which have in later years become extensive manufacturing plants.

The cultivation of the home industries has been the success of many industrial cities. If new concerns want to take advantage of favorable facilities, or can be shown whereby it would be advantageous for them to change their location, no community will stand in the way of obtaining them, but industrial development can to a large extent begin at home by encouraging those that need help and keeping them from locating elsewhere or going out of business. A community thus inclined may well devote its efforts to making modern factory buildings available and making it possible for concerns which want to expand to get the necessary floor space. Funds made available for such a purpose would give a healthy appearance to the industrial situation in any city, and it is, in fact, the policy which has been employed with most commendable results in certain places.

Too much emphasis cannot be placed upon the idea of standing back of local industries whenever and wherever conditions justify it, instead of casting about for the illusory while permitting that which already exists and which is known, to drift along or go onto the rocks.

TIME FOR GREATER CARE

When the motor vehicle department calls attention to the effects of stormy weather, snow, ice and slush in combination with defective equipment of automobiles and the carelessness of drivers and pedestrians, it is placing emphasis upon a situation which not only prevails now but is likely to continue through the winter and early spring and which contributes greatly to the number of accidents and fatalities.

Even though these conditions prevail, and they are obvious to the drivers of autos and to pedestrians, there continues to be displayed by highway and street users practically the same attitude that existed when better conditions existed. Those at the wheel are driving in the same manner as if the roadbed was dependable, even though they may have had none too good control of their machines under the best of conditions. Those crossing streets are plunging ahead quite as if autos could be stopped as quickly in the snow and slush as they could with a good pavement under them. It is generally recognized that conditions are bad and yet the efforts to insure safety in spite of these bad conditions are too often lacking.

In the matter of driving, increased responsibility is thrust upon the man at the wheel when bad weather arrives. He should make up his mind to govern himself accordingly, for the welfare of others as well as himself. He needs to have that additional control that will prevent his machine from sliding into the one in front of him in case he has to stop suddenly, or that will avoid hitting a person who is crossing the street at a crosswalk. Allowances must also be made by the pedestrians for slippery conditions, the inability to make as much haste personally and the possibility of cars skidding.

There is no season of the year when it is more important that the equipment of the auto, as far as brakes, tires and chains are concerned, should be in first-class shape in order to meet the uncertainties of the highway. Nothing could be much worse than faulty equipment, bad judgment in the driver's seat and tricky street conditions, and it is the best time to put the proper amount of thought upon them before something happens that might easily be prevented with the proper amount of attention.

THAT "UNFRIENDLY" NOTE

When the soviet Russian government declared the United States note unfriendly it seems to have been piqued more by the fact that that government had not been recognized by the United States than by any expression of unfriendliness contained in the communication.

The soviet foreign minister in his response takes the view that the note was forwarded after it was known by this government that the invasion of Manchuria had been stopped and negotiations for a peaceful adjustment had been undertaken. Secretary Stimson quickly takes occasion to correct any such impression by setting forth that such was not the case, that the department had the best of information that attacks were still underway and it must have been perfectly evident from the note that the sole purpose of this country, which had the backing of other leading nations, was to bring about cessation of all strife that could easily lead to war, and encourage the settlement of the differences.

This country is interested in this disposition of the difficulty because it happens to be the nation sponsoring the Kellogg peace pact, which was signed by both Russia and China. During the summer there was occasion for calling the attention of both of the countries to their responsibilities under the pact without any satisfactory developments although they admitted that they were committed against warfare. When the Russian invasion of Manchuria was started, and it certainly looked as business-like as if there had been an open declaration of war, there was nothing illogical or unfriendly in calling their attention once more to the need of a peaceful adjustment.

Moscow couldn't understand why this country, which hasn't recognized the soviet government because that government hasn't met the requirements which we have established, should presume to advise it. It is certain that it would not if it was not participating in action which appeared to threaten international peace in the far east and it would have been glad to have given it the benefit of any doubt if it had been known that its peace negotiations had been started before the note was forwarded.

COMMISSION UPHELD

Insofar as the effort of Prof. Alfred Levitt is concerned at the present time the public utilities commission is not going to be fired. The professor sought this action of the attorney general on the claim that the commissioners had not forced the New Haven road to eliminate as many railroad crossings as he considered the law required.

From the attorney general's office comes an explanation of the law concerning the elimination of railroad crossings and the declaration that the commission is not required to force the New Haven road to remove a crossing for every 50 miles of road if it finds that the financial condition of the railroad is inadequate to meet it. It is a statement which makes a good impression.

In recent years the New Haven road has been going through some trying periods. It has not been financially able to do as much as it would have liked to do in many directions, and yet the grade crossing efforts have not been entirely disregarded. In permitting the road to delay work that might have been carried out if conditions had been different there is no question but what the sentiment of the state is with the commission. Even during the period of which the professor complains it is shown that the road has eliminated six on their own initiative and 37 others have been designated for removal.

When we stop to think of it, public welfare is quite extensively bound up in the successful operation of the New Haven road and when it comes to railroad crossings for the most part, if the public was as much concerned about its welfare as some of those who pretend to be acting for it there would be far fewer accidents at such places. The careful driving which is needed at grade crossings would not only reduce Connecticut's annual casualty list at such points but on the highways of the state in general.

THE FEDERAL BUDGET

In his budget message to congress, President Hoover has set forth what the various departments of the government can get along with during the next fiscal year, the year beginning with next July. He has been able to show where reduced appropriations can be made and there are places where he believes there should be increases, but with these changes he is able to present a budget that is lower than was anticipated.

What congress will do with the report and recommendations no man knoweth. It has reason to give it serious consideration and to endeavor to adhere to its provisions unless it can be shown that some other course should be followed. As it stands, an outlay of a little less than $3,321,000,000 is sought and it remains to be seen whether congress is guided by an extravagant or a good business policy.

It has been set forth that there is need for additional expenditures in certain directions to make up for delayed activity in the past. It is evident that there have been curtailments in some places and evidently the hope is that a further saving can be effected. Extras have been called for where it is believed they are needed and as has been apparent ever since the budget system was adopted congress is in possession of a guide as to probable outlays and probable income which should not be ignored. It can no longer say that it goes about the making of appropriations blindly.

One substantial item in the list includes the sum for the reduction of the federal debt, which has already been cut ten billion, but the steady lowering of which reduces the huge annual interest account and hastens the day when it can be crossed off the books. It is one of the provisions which sooner or later means a further cut in federal taxation.

INTERMITTANT ATTENTION

The inner office of the great eye specialist into which the woman patient has been ushered at last after a fifty-minute wait is austere and glittery. Though small, it has three closed doors leading into mysterious other rooms from which comes faint sounds. She sits some time staring at the chart reading from the large "E" down to the small "d" row. She taps her foot. There are ebbing and rising murmers of voices beyond.

Door No. 2 hursts open and the doctor, beaming mechanically, enters. He greets her as though it were she alone for whom he has been waiting through many weary years of dull patients. "Well, well, Mrs. Fooey!" he says heartily. "Glad to see you again!" He busies himself at the desk.

Patient, taking off her eyeglasses and shaking herself into position, sighs in relief that her long wait is over. "You see, my left eye has been acting so queerly——"

Door No. 1 opens and the immaculate secretary wafts in, murmuring into the doctor's ear. He frowns and hastens out after her. Time passes. Patient counts the thingamadoes on the first glass shelf near her. Door No. 3 half opens, wavers, closes again as voices rise. Finally the doctor bursts in once more and the patient sits up in the swivel chair, ready. "You see," she says, "I thought with my left eye acting this way——"

Doctor (consulting the chart)—"Well, well! Do you mean to say it has been three years since you were in to see us?Have you had any headaches?"

Patient (happy at getting his attention at last)—"I don't know that I could exactly call them headaches, but——"

Desk phone rings madly. Doctor listens, breathes hard. It seems that the pollywog or the xylophone was not X-rayed, as he had commanded, and now heaven knows what will happen to the suffering patient in room 313 in the hospital. Jams down the phone, muttering execrations on all internes. Looks at the chart again and then remembers something. "Excuse me just a minute," he offers cheerfully and darts out through door No. 1. There are clinks and rattles and conversation. He returns bearing an atomizer in one hand and calling back directions to be certain to return in one week for a second examination.

Patient (beginning to look grim)—"Doctor, I have to meet my mother in just half an hour, because I certainly thought I would be through here before——"

Doctor (beaming)—"Now, let's see. Just what has been the trouble, Mrs. Flooey? By the way, didn't you tell me that you once spent a winter in Nassau? I went down to Nassau this February and I must say——"

Door No. 3 pops open and white-crowned assistant relays the news that Mrs. Gabber is feeling very bad indeed and perhaps he had better lend his presence. He murmurs, "Excuse me a minute," and melts into the next room. Patient notes all the sharp instruments in the glass case and wonders what would happen should she select the sharpest and just let herself go and jab the doctor on his next return.

Mentally she bets that he'd stay awhile then. Perhaps. It seems that the left eye is beginning to ache. It never did that before. Wonders if she could have caught anything since she came in. Wishes she had listened to Mabelle Tightwad, who told her of a perfectly grand eye doctor who charged the most ridiculously small fees and was splendid.

Wonders disconsolately what her bill will be this time. Desk phone rings. She regards it savagely. Door No. 2 opens, wavers, opens farther, shuts. There are voices. She gets up to rest her muscles and the chair groans. Good—perhaps he'll hear it and think she is leaving. Nothing happens, so she sits down again.

"Oh, to be sure!" the doctor arrests, and jabbing a fiendish contraption on his own head with a tiny locomotive headlight in the front of it, he bores the light into her optic. Every time she tries to talk he tips her head at a different angle, thus choking off speech. Makes cabalistic marks on her chart, does a few quick stunts with prisms, and then tells her nothing in the world is the trouble with her eye and use some boric acid and forget it.

Nothing makes the normal woman madder than to be told she is quite well when she has fully decided that her symptoms point to positively fatal ending. The doctor is out through door No. 3 before she can tell him what she thinks of him.

"Well, well, Mrs. Spoonfums!" he is saying heartily. "What seems to be the trouble—excuse me a moment—I'm wanted on the outside phone!"—Exchange.

YOUR HEALTH

Unwashed Hands.

By O'Neil Kane, M. D.
Kane, Pa.
(From Gorgas Memorial Institute)

Few workingmen wash their hands before the noon meal. They must hurry to smoke first for they feel fagged and nervous. They are hungry, too, and time presses. "Fingers were made before forks," and so these latter implements are often neglected. Hands plunge into everything in the dinner pail except the hot coffee! Finger nails, long, broken and ragged are used as toothpicks after the repast. The workers conclude by wiping their mouths with the backs of their hands.

From early morning until this dinner meal they have, by force of habit, spat constantly into the palms of their hands in order that their implements, picks, shovels or broad-axes, for instance, shall not slip. These same tools have been used interchangably by fellow workmen sharing the job. The hands grasping them have been equally filthy, greasy and sweat-soaked. The callosities upon their furrowed palms in lieu of glove protection are prized for their firmness and, like the finger tips, this skin is only cast off by scaling and friction. The dirt under the nails is rich in bacteria. Thus ringworm and other parasites live about their roots and under them.

These strong hands did the farm chores or performed home duties or maybe odds and ends of house repairing before work, so that the skinned knuckles and small cuts and bruises are too sore to wash. But the fingers are not too sore to wipe the eyes and scratch a half-healed blister.

I am not exaggerating the conditions that render the worker's hands too dirty to eat dinner with. And remember that what the father is doing in his lunch hour, the children are probably doing as they eat their box lunches at school.

Employers should carefully instruct all workmen to wash their hands with hot soap and water before sitting down to eat and their bosses should be present at the time. The workmen should tell their children the same thing and teachers should see that it is done.

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5—Talk about beating swords into plowshares—what about turning airplane carriers into floating municipal power plants?

And that is precisely what Secretary Adams was asked to authorize to meet a power shortage emergency in two Washington cities, Seattle and Tacoma.

Navy folk were very fond of talking about the huge size of the turbo-electric generating plants aboard each of the two monster airplane carriers, Saratoga and Lexington, when they were designed.

To attain a speed of better than 30 knots with a ship about as long as the capitol building, nearly 800 feet, requires 190,000 horsepower.

Since the boats are electrically driven, as are all American navy big ships of anything like recent date, they actually furnish enough juice to light and turn the wheels of industry for a city of 2,000,000 folks or so. The pair of them could take over the job for New York City.

Help Wanted—Boat.

And with the Lexington loafing at Bremerton navy yard, say, and water shortage due to a dry season cramping the municipal hydro-electric power output of the two northwestern coast cities, what is more natural than to take the navy designers at their word and propose drafting the ship as an emergency power house?

Secretary Adams frowned upon the plan unless every power saving expedient was adopted in both cities and still more juice was needed.

Without question the navy would shudder at such a use of its fighting equipment. And also, without doubt, it would interfere seriously with training for war purposes. Nevertheless, the proposal has highly interesting aspects. The majestic Lexington would make an odd sight tied up to a Tacoma dock and gone into the power business.

For one thing, the Saratoga and Lexington are by far the most expensive ships to operate in the navy. Some suggestion that they are white elephants on the navy's hands for that reason has been noised about.

Whether the folks in Seattle and Tacoma considered that and reckoned with the cost of ship-generated power, the Bystander does not know.

A Problem.

Since boarding cutlasses were long ago abandoned aboard men-o'-war, converting their armament to peaceful uses even by the plowshare method does not seem to apply.

Nobody has ever suggested a gentle and pacific occupation for a 16-inch gun or a torpedo tube. Yet now comes a very definite plan for peace time emergency use of the most offensive type of naval weapon and it remains to be seen what ultimately will happen.

The Bystander recalls that navy personnel was once drafted for brush fire fighting purposes at San Francisco.

Mount Tamalpais, overlooking the bay from the north, was a-blaze and threatening destruction of towns and villages nestling on its flanks. It was the same situation that occurred this year with heavy property losses.

The sailors were hauled by rail to the mountain top. Then the admiral commanding ordered 'em back to their ships.

It cost Uncle Sam, he said, some thousands to train a naval gun pointer, and a brush fire combat zone was no suitable place for such expensive folks. And he got away with it.

IN DAY'S NEWS

Basel Wins International Bank

Basel, Switzerland's one and only port, has been selected for the home of the new international bank which will control war reparations funds.

"Basel stands, collossuslike, with a foot on each bank of the Rhine where that river leaves Switzerland," says a bulletin of the National Geographic society from its headquarters in Washington, D. C.

"The Rhine gives Switzerland its sole waterway to the sea. Boats and barges coming up the Rhine emerge into the inner harbor at Basel. Overhead cranes swing buckets of wheat out of barge holds. Ore trains move into position along the quay. In one recent year 230,000 tons of imports and exports were moved by water in this harbor. If the Rhine commission established by the Versailles treaty will improve the Rhine channel, guaranteeing a 6 1-2 foot epth the year around Basel merchants claim they can do a 2,000 ton freight business by water annually.

"Unless one is a shipper, a buyer of silk ribbon, dyes or chemicals, a lover of Holbein's art, or, now, an international banker, he might better visit Geneva or Zurich than Basel. Trade has put its mark upon Basel. Trade has given it a population of 135,000 and more rich men than any other city of Switzerland. Trade and lack of Alps on its doorstep, have sidetracked tourists from its gates. Sightseers hurry on to Lausanne, St. Morits and Lugano.

"The time to have visited Basel was in the heyday of Columbus, Balboa and Magellan. At the beginning of the sixteenth century three masters of three arts, literature, painting and printing, lived at Basel and lent their genius to joint enterprise. They were Hans Holbein, the younger, the painter; Erasmus, the Bernard Shaw of his day, and Froben, the master printer.

"Not one of them became rich. Erasmus thought he was well off when an Englishman settled 20 pounds ($100) a year on him! A single copy of Erasmus' 'Paraphrases' published by Froben sold in an American book auction a few years ago for $310. Froben brought Holbein to the city to decorate his books. Once in Basel, Holbein branched out into portraiture and altar decoration. The local public art gallery treasures many of Holbein's works. The art world's estimation of him may be judged by the price of $3,750 paid recently for one of the few Holbeins in the United States.

"Yet it is simpler to introduce an American to Holbein than any other member of Basel's trio. What art store, indeed, is so poor as not to offer for sale a Holbein print? Usually the print is a side face sketch of a plump German, done without color except for a tinge of pink on the cheek and a bit of blue in the eyes.

Holbein's men usually wear tams sliding rakishly over one ear. His genius lay in his ability to pack a person's character into a line. So, for a few dollars, anyone may buy the burgomaster, his wife, a dandy of the town, Erasmus himself, or Holbein's son, and enjoy the hearty companionship of these Basel worthies in one's own living room.

"Rivalry of certain twin cities of the United States has its counterpart in Basel. Since the Rhine divides the city, the left bank takes the title Gross Basel while the right bank must be Klein Basel. Bad feeling existed between the Basels, Klein and Gross, in times past. An ingenious artist of Gross Basel carved a figure, still to be seen in the museum of the famous University of Basel, which put out its tongue and rolled its eyes in derision at Klein Basel from an advantageous position on the bridge.

"Like most Swiss towns Basel has many spellings. The German spelling, Basel, is most acceptable because the town lies within the German-speaking cantons of Switzerland. Some English maps spell it Basle. In French Basel is Bale. In Italian Basel is Basilea.

"Basel is pronounced without the 's' like the unit of compressed hay with the 'a' broadened slightly."

BURGESS BEDTIME STORY

The Plot Thickens.

By Thornton W. Burgess.

Ever since the world began,
Scamps have loved to plot and plan.
—Old Mother Nature.

Reddy Fox and Mrs. Reddy did just as they had planned. They found a place where they could sleep during the day and not be likely to be disturbed. And it wasn't so far from the farm where the turkeys were but that they could keep an eye on what was going on when they were awake.

"We want to know everything we can about the people at that farm and about what the turkeys do during the day," exclaimed Reddy.

So they remained hidden behind the barn only until daylight. The turkeys did not come down out of the tree until after the farmer had come out of his house. When he came out a dog came out with him and it was a hound, just as Reddy had said.

"It is time for us to be going," whispered Reddy to Mrs. Reddy, and they stole away swiftly, keeping the barn between them and the house until they reached the woods.

"Now we're all right," said Reddy, "if that dog doesn't find our trail."

The dog didn't and so there was nothing to interfere with their plans. They remained hidden at the edge of the woods until they saw the turkeys come down from out of the tree. Then the turkeys went up to the farmyard, where they were fed. After this they just wandered around for a while. So Reddy and Mrs. Reddy went back to a snug hiding-place to sleep a while. You see, they had been up all night. After they had had a good nap they crept to another stone wall, along which bushes grew thickly. From behind this wall they could watch all that went on around that farm.

The turkeys were scattered and wandering around in the Old Orchard. Once it looked as if they were going over right near where Reddy and Mrs. Reddy were hiding. But the big birds didn't come quite near enough and the foxes were too clever to run the risk of frightening them and giving the alarm. The dog was in the house most of the time, much to the disappointment of Reddy and Mrs Reddy.

"We can't do anything until we get that dog out of the way," said Reddy. "If we should catch one of those turkeys and that dog should find our tracks, that turkey wouldn't do us any good. We must be patient and not spoil everything by doing the wrong thing."

"A turkey is worth a lot of patience," said Mrs. Reddy. "I can be just as patient as you can."

It was late afternoon before their chance came. Then the turkeys began to move up toward the Old Orchard. At the same time the dog trotted over to the barn and began to nose around.

"Now is my chance," said Mrs. Reddy. "I'll lead that dog away and you get one of those turkeys before they get up in that tree.

Mrs. Reddy slipped away and presently Reddy saw her running around the corner of the barn. It looked as if everything was going to work just as they had hoped it would work. It looked as if their plot was going to succeed.

INDIANS COLUMBUS FOUND ARE SOUGHT IN BAHAMAS

THREE RIVERS, Mich. —(AP)— George Fox, archeologist, plans a two-month walk through the Bahama islands in search of traces of the Indians Columbus found in 1492.

Virtually nothing is known of them. Fox, president of the Michigan Archeological society, hopes to find remains of the villages in which the Spanish said there lived 40,000 Indians. On previous trips Fox studied the ruins of Mayan cities in Yucatan.

PROSPECTORS NOW HUNT FOR BLACK MANGANESE

This metal is used in making steel and large quantities have been imported.

CREATION OF ILLUSIONS KEY TO RADIO DRAMA

CHICAGO—(AP)—Stimulating listeners to see in the plot and characters what they want to see, is the definition of John Gishon, chief continuity writer for WMAQ, for radio dramatization.

"It all depends on creating an illusion," he said. "An illusion that depends entirely upon sound."

Amos 'n' Andy, blackface comedians of WMAQ, permit only the announcer and musicians in their studio. They fear the illusion would be lost if fans saw them broadcast.

The decorations were in the holiday colors with red candles on the tables and favors of paper caps, whistles and horns. The decorations were in charge of the farm bureau, which also provided rosy-cheeked apples for the tables.

WALTER T. CLARK
County Agent

The supper was served by the Grange auxiliary, Mrs. Alida Boyens, president, and the menu was as follows: Grape fruit, roast turkey, dressing, mashed potatoes, cranberry sauce, celery, mashed turnip, rolls, butter, pumpkin pie, coffee.

Mrs. William S. Murray was in charge of the waitresses, who were: Mrs. William Bode, Jr., Miss Gussie Church, Mrs. Mary Austin, Mrs. Althea Brown, Mrs. Hattie Woodmansee, Mrs. Edith Smith, Mrs. Mary Buckley, Miss Marian Buckley, Mrs. Rose Carter, Mrs. Eva Jahn, Mrs. Christine Hummell, Mrs. Mabel Stebbins and Mrs. Mabel Fenton.

The business meeting was held in the hall and was called to order shortly after 8 by President Service. Secretary Arthur H. Davis read the minutes of the last meeting and the treasurer, Miss Margery Brewster of Griswold, presented her annual report which showed total receipts of $15,682.53 in the year, expenditures of $15,155.48, balance of $527.15 in the checking account and $8,262.15 in the savings account. Both reports were accepted.

Charles P. Bushnell presented the report for the nominating committee, recommending the list as named above, and these were elected by the secretary casting one ballot.

President Service then expressed appreciation of the support that had been given him in the past year and went on to speak of some of the problems of the agriculturist, among which he mentioned roads, taxation, rural schools, and the community and the church. He said that under the present policy of building hard-surfaced roads the towns were getting less than a mile a year and only about 15 per cent of the roads are fit to drive over. Of the taxes paid, about one-third goes to support the schools and but a small proportion comes back to the town for that expenditure. That makes another problem for the rural towns. It is the city and the industries that are getting the benefit from the taxes paid and the logical thing would be to shift more of the burden to them, he said.

Then there is the marketing problem. The day of the individual is past. It is co-operation now. We are to solve our problems through organization, and that organization means the farm bureau, which is insurance for the agriculturalist.

President Service called attention to the membership campaign which is to be carried on next week and urged that the farm bureau membership be raised to 400 or 500.

He was followed by Director W. L. Slate of the Agricultural Experiment station at New Haven, who gave a general description of the lines of work which this branch of service for the agriculturalist carries on at New Haven and at Storrs.

Farm Bureau Work In Play

A report of the farm bureau work in the past year was presented in a brief way through a play which was cleverly carried out in three scenes.

Joseph Clark of Ledyard took the character of a farmer who was in despair over keeping his accounts and knowing how he came out at the end of the year. Mrs. Clark was the farmer's wife who was worried over the apparently hopeless struggle they were having to get along. Katherine Sheridan of Norwich and Alfred Clark of Ledyard were their two children who were equally disgusted over the lack of interesting things in their lives.

After Albert Beckwith, who was in the character of a farm bureau member induces Clark to "take a chance" and spend $5 for a farm bureau membership, the play proceeded to show how County Agent Walter T. Clark, Home Demonstration Agent Ruth T. Russell, Assistant County Club Agent Elizabeth Grover and County Club Agent Randolph Whaples come to the family and by the aid they give to father, mother and children change the whole aspect of their lives. The different farm bureau officers carried out their parts in a very natural way and imparted much information as to the work of the past year in their conversation with the aided family.

A movie of farm life, The Legacy, was shown and the evening closed with dancing. A. J. Brundage was song leader between the scenes of the play and Miss Dorothy Messler, who is secretary in the farm bureau office, was at the piano.

WHAT CHRISTMAS SEAL SALES FUNDS ACCOMPLISH

Writing on the Christmas seal campaign, Kate M. MacKenzie, superintendent of the United Workers public health nursing department says:

The town of Norwich depends on the money raised by the Christmas seal sale for the preventive tuberculosis nursing done here. As you already know, your seven public health nurses are financed almost wholly by the United Workers of Norwich. There has never been a drive nor a tag day nor a town appropriation for the public health nursing department. Part payment of one nurse's salary is contributed by the tuberculosis seals sale committee. The original cost and the exchange on one of the two automobiles used by the nurses is paid with the money raised by the sale of seals. The running expense of the automobile is assumed by the United Workers.

Tuberculosis work is done by all seven nurses, not alone by the nurse whose salary is partially paid with the seal money. It seems right that the people of Norwich go a bit deeper into pockets and buy more seals this year. Why not support a full time nurse and thus make available more money for preventive work?

The value of a vacation period, however short, is recognized by everybody! For undernourished contact children of tuberculous people nothing is more satisfactory than a vacation, properly planned and freely given. Each year the people of Norwich are good to the stranger children from New York and must continue to be so. The Christmas fund this year was able to give two children a week each in a fresh air camp. A full time, properly supervised fresh air vacation camp would cost a lot of money especially for the first year, but it is worth every cent invested. The dividends will be happy boys and girls.

What else has been done with the seal money collected during the year? Milk has been given to nine families where tuberculosis has been active. In some cases one parent has died as a result of tuberculosis. Over 700 quarts have been delivered to these families each month, or for the year, about 8,500 quarts. We could double the output of milk if we had the money.

We have been obliged to use seal money for board at Sanatoria for Norwich patients. There is a town tuberculosis appropriation but not at any time has it been possible to have this fund care for all the patients. At the present time board for seven patients amounting to $120 a month, is being paid by the seal fund.

One can easily see that very little money is left for the many other demands made on the fund. Recommendations for improvements in the physical condition of our clinic children must be very carefully considered. Special shoes are necessary for several children, far too expensive for the patients to buy unless helped out. The ways for spending money are many and were it not for the splendid backing this department has from every other welfare organization in the town, some of the demands could never be granted, with what the seals bring to us yearly. Increase the sale of seals to $5,000. Please remember as you buy seals this year that your help is needed in reducing the waiting list for admission to the state sanatoria. There are not beds enough to care for those who ought to be taking the cure.

Due to the intensive educational campaigns carried on by the national, the state and the local tuberculosis committees more people are realizing the need for early treatment and for prolonged treatment in order that a complete recovery be effected. Hence the long waiting list! Buy! Buy! Buy!

ORCHESTRA LEADER SPEAKER AT LIONS MEETING

With President Charles W. Cassidy in the chair, a very enthusiastic and largely-attended meeting of the Norwich Lions' club was held at the Wauregan hotel at 12:15 o'clock Thursday noon. Melvin Worth was the song leader. Louis Smith and James Young were welcomed to membership.

Dr. Frank Drago, conductor of the Norwich Symphony orchestra, was the guest of honor and addressed the club. Dr. Drago thanked the club members for their interest in the symphony club concert held Wednesday evening and stated that several members of the club have done a great deal in assisting the orchestra.

Dr. Drago pointed out the symphony orchestra in Norwich makes possible for the musicians of the city, and particularly the young people who study music, a wonderful opportunity of learning and practicing musical harmony and coordination, and he also said that if people would attend these concerts more often they would eventually learn to love and take great interest in symphonic music. Dr. Drago pointed out that Norwich is fortunate in having a choral society, a musical organization, a symphony orchestra and recently the newly-organized Norwich Symphony society, which are interested in sponsoring and encouraging all of these things. All these added, Dr. Drago said are accomplishments and assets which a large city like Hartford, and even larger cities, cannot boast of. He finished his remarks by saying that he was indeed very happy to have come to Norwich, and that at no place wherever he was, had he made so many friends or received such hearty cooperation as in this city. This cooperative and appreciative spirit, said Dr. Drago, seems to be the impression which Norwich has made upon Hugo Kortschak and Mr. Hupka, who were profuse in their praise for the warmth in which they were received. Dr. Drago's remarks were received with generous applause, and the president ordered Louis Fontaine to give the Lions roar in honor of the visitors.

WOMEN'S UNION MET AT LEFFINGWELL CHURCH

The December meeting of the Woman's union of the Leffingwell church was held at the church Wednesday afternoon at 3 o'clock. The women met for White Cross work. The meeting was called to order at 5 o'clock. Mrs. John Rathbone read the second chapter of Matthew, speaking of the "Vision of Giving." All repeated the Lord's Prayer together. During the business session the secretary's report for October and November was read and approved. The treasurer reported $317 in the bank and she was instructed to pay all bills before Jan. 1. The Friendly committee were empowered to prepare Christmas cheer for the shut-ins. The White Cross committee has sent the overland quota to Miss Ethel Ryan at the Hope Indian mission, Arizona. The committee is now preparing 8-inch blocks for the Indians of Montana. The standard of excellence was on display with 12 of the 16 points reached; thus placing the union as an Honor society for the year 1929-30. The women were all urged to enroll in the January reading of the Transit. Announcement was given of the mid-year associational meeting to be held at New London Jan. 29. The nominating committee presented the same officers to serve for the ensuing year. The annual meeting will be held at the parsonage Jan. 8, at which time there will be the election of officers and the reports of the officers and committees.

At 6:30 supper was served under the direction of Mrs. A. H. Beebe, chairman of the work committee. Rev. G. W. Borden asked the blessing. About 35 attended the supper, including the men, who were guests of the union.

The program committee, Mrs. S. W. Leffingwell, presented as the surprise feature for the evening William Kendall of Norwich, who showed pictures of the west taken by him on his western trips. At the conclusion a rising vote of thanks was extended Mr. Kendall for his very interesting pictures.

The meeting closed with the singing of America and prayer by the pastor.

SILVERMAN-REINES ENGAGEMENT ANNOUNCED

Rabbi and Mrs. Abraham B. Reines announce the engagement of their daughter, Avalah (Helen) Reines, to Menahem Isaac Silverman, principal of the Norwich Hebrew institute.

Miss Reines is a granddaughter of Rabbi Isaac Jacob Reines, of Lida, Poland, who was one of the outstanding leaders among the rabbis of Russia from 1876 to 1916. He was the strongest advocate of combining an academical education in the rabbinical seminaries. He organized such a rabbinical academy at Lida under the name of Torah Wodaath, this title indicating the academic-rabbinical seminary and he continued as dean until the day of his death in 1916. In 1901 he founded the orthodox Zionist organization, Mizrachi, which is now the orthodox branch of the world Zionist organization. The Reines family is one of the oldest Jewish families, originally of Padua, Italy. The young lady's father is rabbi of Adath Israel Congregation, Flatbush, N. Y. Miss Reines is a graduate of Moscow Royal Gymnasia. In 1923 she went to Berlin to continue her studies and in 1925 to London for further study. At present she is a student at New York Hebrew seminary Hertzliah.

Principal Silverman comes of a family in which the rabbinical succession has been maintained continuously from father to son since 1427 with residence in Florence, Italy, Frankfort-on-Main, Koenigsburg, Prussia, Lemberg, Wilna Lida and Horodno, Poland, and Sheffield, England.

Mr. Silverman has been principal of the Hebrew institute here for the last thirteen years.

THAMES BANK MAILS HOLIDAY CLUB CHECKS

That the Christmas club has become a popular form of saving is evidenced in the increased number of checks, amounting to about $45,000, which were sent out in the mail Thursday by the Thames Bank and Trust Co. to the members of the club of the Bankers Trust Co., now merged with the Thames and doing business under the new name. There were 80 members of the club this year as compared with 40 in 1928 and the total sum received by them is $15,000 more than in 1928. The club is in charge of Russell E. Crowell.

The club money this year was mailed out earlier than in previous years as an accommodation to the members and the merchants, who will benefit somewhat from the savings. The club is to be continued again next year on the same basis, a 50-week period, with payments of varying amounts made weekly, with interest, the amount depending upon what is paid weekly. A special window for Christmas savings will be maintained at the bank next year.

CLOVER CLUB MEMBERS RECEIVE CERTIFICATES

Eight members of the Clover club, who have successfully completed the requirements in first year 4-H club work, were awarded achievement certificates at an achievement programme meeting held Wednesday evening at the home of Mrs. Randolph Whaples, Orchard street. BRAIN GROWS UNTIL 60 IS BELIEF OF SCIENTIST

CLEVELAND —(AP)— Belief that man's brain continues to grow until the age of 60 is expressed by Prof. T. Wingate Todd of Western University in a report to the Brush Foundation for the Betterment of Human stock.

"It is doubtful," he says, "if that part of the brain which registers experience has reached its limit of growth before 60.

"The area of the cranium which covers the part of the brain devoted to imagination and originality shows its maximum growth between four and seven years.

"The part covering the growing brain area, which stores memory and experience begins to grow at seven years and continues until 19.

"Thereafter another part, of which we understand very little—the silent area, it is called—shows possibility of expansion in human beings alone of all living creatures until late in life."

BELL FOR RADIO SET DEVELOPED IN BERLIN

BERLIN—(AP)—Captain A. Ristow of Berlin police headquarters has developed a "radio bell" that will ring like a telephone bell when a station call is broadcast.

In several months of experiments between the radio stations at Berlin and Cassel, Ristow's apparatus has proved 98 per cent reliable in responding to a station call. The model constructed under the captain's plans can be adjusted to any radio receiver.

In the opinion of experts here, the further development of the instrument so that it will ring when any given broadcast program begins present no insurmountable difficulties.

LITTLE PARIS OF BALKANS MAY BECOME A SEAPORT

"Little Paris of the Balkans" may become a seaport, according to reports from Bucharest. A bill has been introduced in the Rumanian parliament providing for the construction of a canal connecting Bucharest with the Danube river, about 60 miles south.

"'Little Paris' is not a misnomer for Bucharest," says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic society, "for it has many 'earmarks' of the French capital.

"One of its wide tree-lined thoroughfares is called the "Little Champs Elysee' and there is an Arc de Triomphe, both of which suggest the atmosphere of Paris. The bridle paths flanking the thoroughfare constantly resound with the thud of hoofs of blooded horses, mounted by smart looking beau and belle; and the seemingly endless mass of pedestrians strolls in a gay mood with no apparent destination.

"Here and on other fine thoroughfares lined with palatial residences and fine church and government buildings a sad countenance is out of place. However, this portion of the city has no corner on smiles for the doorways of the humblest Bucharest homes in the cobbled by-ways of the poorer section of the city are filled with smiling, chattering parents while their 'ragamuffins' boisterously run here and there while playing native games. The meat vender with whole slaughtered animals swinging on the end of a long pole, venders of sweet meats, and even some of the multitude of beggars are a cheerful lot.

"Bucharest impresses the traveler from the time he emerges from one of its modern hotels downtown. Shops as fine as can be found in most capitals of the world line the business streets. Behind large plate-glass windows the American traveler finds such familiar articles as American-made flashlights, radios and phonographs.

"It is not necessary to find an automobile salesroom where American automobiles are on display. The streets are full of them. In front of a hotel or business building six to eight of a dozen automobiles are popular American makes and across the street a billboard is plastered with an advertisement of a popular car made in Michigan. The doorways of the large movie or cinema houses display bright colored advertisements with the names of American actresses emblazoned in large letters.

"The automobile has not yet driven the old Bucharest victorias from the streets and travelers frequently prefer to see the city behind two sleek, coal black, high-stepping horses, driven by a native coachman whose long, well-trimmed beard hides his thick neck and a large part of the front of his voluminous velvet coat. Although they do not speak English, Bucharest 'cabbies' are accustomed to driving foreigners so they wrap a sash about their waists with the two ends hanging over the back of the seat. A tug on the right end signals that the visitor desires a right turn; a tug on the left end signals a turn to the left.

"Throughout the city in the slow-moving vehicle, one notices the prevalence of Paris fashions with a sprinkling of nattily clad Rumanian military officers. Now and then a gypsy in a costume including all the colors of the rainbow recalls that Rumania is the home of the wandering tribes of Romany. Many of the Bucharest gypsies live in small huts just outside of the town. When a gypsy man works, which is as seldom as possible, he is usually employed as a mason on building construction jobs. He takes his wife along with him to mix his mortar and to act as hod carrier.

"In the market place, the traveler gets a glimpse of the rural folk who cluster about stands of vegetables which they bring to the city from the rolling farm land nearby. Here the men seem to display no particular type of costume, most of them wearing European coats and trousers and there are as many derbies as there are caps and soft hats and fez-shaped woolen head coverings. On the other hand the women folk blaze forth in bright-colored shawls which cover the head and shoulders, and aprons with stripes of a half dozen unblending colors. Their dresses are just short enough to reveal in the summer time that all feet are not shod."

TONIGHT'S CARD

Three Star Bouts of Eight Rounds

Al Koziol of Norwich vs. Leo Ledoux at 138 lbs.

Preliminary Six Rounds

Vic Darr of Norwich vs. Ero Peterson of Worcester at 140 lbs.

Preliminary Four Rounds

Young Lizzio of Westerly vs. Frankie Neil of Worcester at 120 lbs.

Kid Francis of Hartford takes Johnny Kop's place in one of the three star bouts at Parish hall in Taftville this evening. Kop cracked a bone in his hand Wednesday night in his final workout and will be unable to box for several months. Johnny was just finishing his training and was punching the heavy bag when he slipped and his fist crashed against a brick wall. He thought nothing of it until it began to pain him later in the night. An x-ray taken Thursday revealed the fracture.

With Kop off the card, Matchmaker Leo P. Flynn was in a quandary who to send against Alex Tourain of New Haven. He finally located Kid Francis of Hartford and signed him, which assures the fans of a real good bout. Of course, it takes some of the local interest from the bout but does not detract materially from the card as Francis is one of the leading lightweights of the state. Francis has met some good boys in the state, including Red Knight and Tommy Jarrett and others. Francis fights on the same style as Kop and is a stiff puncher and rugged fighter.

Al Koziol of Norwich meets Leo Ledoux of Worcester in a renewal of their feud which started in Providence a couple of months ago. Ledoux outboxed Koziol to a decision that night and the Norwich Cyclone has been anxious for another shot at the Worcester lad. Koziol is confident that the bout will not go farther than did his bout with Johnny Mack, three weeks ago, when he kayoed the New Haven boy in the third round. Koziol is in the pink of condition and is just rarin' to get in the ring with Ledoux. This should be a whirlwind for action while it lasts.

What looks like the slam-bang, knock-down and drag-out fight of the evening is the bout between Joe Russo of Westerly and Dynamite Lou Brouillard of Danielson. This is one of the three star bouts of the evening and brings together two two-fisted boys who begin punching and punch until the final bell. There is no sparring between these boys, they simply slug until one or the other goes down. Neither has ever been knocked from his feet but each has kayoed opponents in wholesale quantities. It is safe to say that one or the other hits the floor in this bout, and maybe both will.

Vic Darr of Norwich, the local boy with the unique style of fighting, goes against Ero Peterson of Worcester, a clever kid in his own right. This bout holds plenty of local interest for, besides Darr being a home product, Peterson has fought here in the amateurs as a big favorite.

The opener finds Young Lizzio of Westerly swapping punches with Frankie Neil of Worcester. A fast bout should result if Lizzio boxes with the same determination that he did on the last card.

FARRELL-WATROUS IN UPPER HALF OF SEMI-FINALS; HAGEN-DIEGEL IN LOWER

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 5.—(AP)—Over the knolls and valleys of Hill Crest today raced the two "greyhounds" of the field—Leo Diegel and Walter Hagen—to turn in decisive victories, but the real golfing thrills of the day traced their source to a former open titleholder who fought his way out of the shadows of defeat to stay in the running for the National Professional Golfers' association championship.

While Diegel, defending champion, and Hagen, chief challenger, were sailing through an easy third round of 36-hole match play, smiling Johnny Farrell of New York met and matched a stern golfing test, to come from behind and nose out Craig Wood on the 37th.

Trailing from the start of the morning's round, Farrell was two down at the 15th and in the same position at the 27th. On the 31st, Wood stymied his opponent to win the hole and to go into a three up lead. With the score 3 and 5 the gallery of several thousand persons sensed victory for the Bloomfield, N. J., youngster, but instead, were treated to a "comeback" as spectacular as any witnessed on this course.

Farrell won back the 32nd and 33rd; halved the 34th and squared the match on the 35th. The 36th was halved and Farrell's birdie three on the 37th clinched a great win and brought a tremendous ovation from the throng of spectators who had followed him through two grueling rounds.

Diegel and Hagen clubbed their way to the semi-finals without much effort. Gene Sarazen of New York, a former open golf champion, fell a victim to Diegel's shots, 3 and 2, while Hagen disposed of Tony Manero of New York, 6 and 5.

The finals Saturday will produce a national titleholder in the "pro" ranks but the golfing classic of the week will be carved into the fairways of the Hill Crest layout tomorrow.

Keenest rivals in a field of stars, Diegel and Hagen will renew a golfing duel that last year saw Hagen's hopes for a sixth P. G. A. championship shattered in the third round. Diegel won and continued on to capture the title. Fates of the draw placed the pair in the lower bracket this year and tomorrow they will match strokes for the right to enter the finals. It will be their fourth meeting in P. G. A. competition. Hagen won in the first two matches and the Agua Caliente, Mexico, professional came out on top in 1928.

In the upper bracket, Farrell will oppose Al Watrous, Detroit, tomorrow. Watrous worked his way into the semi-finals by defeating Al Espinosa, Chicago, today, two up.

Farrell's comeback started on the 32nd after he had lost the 31st to go three down. He was stymied on the 31st, and tried to jump Wood's ball but landed on top, skidding over the hole. The New York entrant snared a birdie four on the 32nd and dropped a ten-foot putt on the 33rd for a birdie three and another win. He evened the match on the 35th after a great shot out of a trap. His pitch sailed 40 yards to the green for a five-foot putt and a birdie three. Farrell sank a ten footer on the 36th for a half. On the extra hole, he was outdriven but dropped a beautiful approach shot five feet from the pin that gave him a birdie three. Wood's approach was short of the green and his chip shot went wide.

Diegel removed Sarazen from the ranks of contenders with the same steady brand of golf that has marked his play from the start. After Sarazen had won the second hole, Diegel evened the match on the fifth and went into a lead at the seventh. He never was headed. At the 18th he was three up and at the 27th two up.

Hagen had his own way with Manero, who was nervous from the first. Twice Manero missed putts of less than two feet to lose the holes. At the 18th, Hagen had increased his margin to three up. He was six up at the 27th.

The Watrous-Espinosa tilt was close all the way. Watrous held a one-up advantage at the 18th but they were all square at the 27th. One up and one to go, Watrous won the 36th with a birdie four to finish two up.

JOE FABER HAS GOOD SEASON WITH OMAHA

Joe Faber, local boy, who played with Omaha in the Western league last season, turned in a good year, according to the averages recently released. Joe was at shortstop and played in every one of the 154 games. Faber had been traded to this club from Montreal in the International league at the start of the campaign.

He batted for .305, getting 193 hits for 254 bases, including two home runs, six triples and 43 doubles. He stole 30 bases, being among the leaders in this respect. He also was third in the matter of runs scored with 143.

Joe was third among the regulars in fielding, having a mark of .943, on 442 assists, 351 putouts with 48 errors.

ANDRES NAMED CAPTAIN OF DARTMOUTH ELEVEN

HANOVER, N. H., Dec. 5— (AP) — Haroid Andres, of Newton, Mass., was elected captain of the 1930 Dartmouth varsity football team here, today, by the lettermen. He has been the varsity center for the past two seasons and has also been a member of the Green's baseball and hockey squads.

Gay Bromberg, of New Britain, Conn., varsity guard and Dartmouth's outstanding lingeman, was also eligible for the honor. He like Andres, saw service in every game during the past season.

Every now and then you see where this old man has stepped in and taken a fall outa some ball player, football star or boxer.

A baseball player boots a couple in a crucial series, his hitting falls off or he gets a bone smashed in his hand or ankle and the blame is laid at the door of the well-known Mr. Jinx.

A football player fumbles a punt, misses a pass or gets a rib busted or a knee wrenched and the sports writers all say that Old Man Jinx ran rampant over the field.

A boxer takes one on the chin, comes into the ring overweight and fatty, splinters a bone in his hand or does something else and the wail goes up that The Jinx is doing his stuff.

There's more blame placed on the shoulders of Old Man Jinx than there is on the devil himself. And it's more certain to be that the trouble lies with the athlete rather than with the abused old man.

Then you hear about Lady Luck, the feminine opposite of Old Man Jinx. If things go right she gets the credit. These two form the greatest brother and sister act in the sport world.

But just the same whether it was Old Man Jinx or not it sure was a tough break that Johnny Kop got when he broke a bone in his hand the night before his return bout with Alex Tourain.

I imagine Johnny feels like the kid who gets sick the day before the Fourth of July and has to let somebody else shoot off his firecrackers. Johnny was working hard for this bout, as it meant a whole lot to him.

Johnny sure has run into some tough breaks and this is the third bout that he has been forced out of through misfortune. Now it will be several months before the local boy can do any more boxing.

It's a shame Johnny won't be on the card tonight but it's going to be a fast one just the same. See you folks up there.

MONTVILLE ACES WIN SECOND GAME OF SEASON

The Montville Aces won their second game in as many night when they defeated the Fishers Island Pirates in Fishers Island last night.

At half time the Pirates were leading 17 to 13 and kept increasing their lead through the third period.

A great finishing spurt by Moss and McDermott in the last few minutes of play enabled the Aces to pull the game out of the fire, to bring home the bacon, by the score of 33 to 25.

Edwards was the big gun of the game making practically all of Fishers Islands points. The summary:

TRACK AND SWIMMING TEAMS START PRACTICE

Winter activities at the Academy have gotten underway this week with calling of practice for the indoor track team and a meeting of the swimming team. The indoor track stars started work Monday at the state armory, while a meeting of the swimming candidates was held Thursday and first practice will be held this afternoon at the Y pool.

This will be the first year for both of these sports at the school and, although no sensational success is expected, still prospects are fairly bright and the Wildcats expect to hold their own. An election will probably be held soon to choose a captain for the swimmers while Sam Berkman is the leader of the track men.

John P. Murphy, former member of the Holy Cross track team, is coaching both sports. He has about 30 candidates working out for track and expects about 20 swimming candidates to report today.

Meets have been arranged with all the leading schools in the state and Massachusetts. A ten-meet slate is planned in swimming and one of 12 in indoor track. Without basketball at the school this winter, this leaves the field to these two infant sports.

DRAFT RESOLUTION DEFEATED AT MEETING OF BASEBALL MANAGERS

By BRIAN BELL
(Associated Press Sports Writer.)

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., Dec. 5—(AP)—The minor leagues of baseball met an old friend today for a few hours in the form of a draft resolution, but after half a dozen speeches, an effort by William G. Bramham, president of three leagues, to amend the draft rules, failed for the want of a three-fourths majority.

Mr. Bramham, who is president of the South Atlantic association, the Piedmont and Eastern Carolina leagues, mustered a two-thirds vote in favor of his plan to amend the constitution so that players shall not be subject to draft until they shall have been officially credited with participation in 200 games on clubs of the National Association of Professional Baseball leagues, but he fell shy of the number needed to amend the constitution.

Montreal, Que., won the 1930 convention without serious opposition, only Springfield, Mass., and Washington, D. C., pressing invitations after West Baden, Ind., withdrew. To accept the invitation from either West Baden or Washington would have involved an amendment to the constitution as the law requires that the convention be held in cities represented in minor league baseball.

William L. Veeck, president, and Joe McCarthy, manager of the Chicago Cubs, returned home today but before they left they engineered another deal by which a promising young pitcher will become a Cub. Norman McMillan, infielder, and a pitcher to be named before the opening of the next season, with a considerable sum of cash will go to Kansas City for the release of Lynn Nelson.

The National Association in its second convention session today progressed well on the road to the completion of its business and a meeting tomorrow will end it.

At today's session, the question of outdoor advertising was discussed at length and Byrd Douglass, baseball coach at Princeton university, made a plea against professional baseball clubs seeking to sign college and school players to contracts or options while they remain in college or school. Douglass, who is a Nashville lawyer, urged the baseball men to declare tampering with such players by scouts or even their own coaches unethical. These topics will be discussed again tomorrow. An effort to reduce the option price from $100 to $1 failed.

Two minor league managers were named, Nick Allen signing to manage Jersey City in the International and Billy Webb coming to terms with Binghamton, in the New York-Pennsylvania league. Allen led the pennant winning Tulsa club of the Western league last year. Webb played third base for Toronto and will be a playing manager at Binghamton.

The annual banquet was held tonight with K. M. Landis, baseball commissioner, the guest of honor.

Leo Dixon, a catcher, was released by Cincinnati to Columbus.

Mobile bought the release of Tex McCall, a pitcher from Akron, Ohio, and Little Rock traded Hugh Willingham, infielder, to Dallas for Fred Koster, outfielder, who played last season for Akron.

Bob Harper, a catcher formerly with Independence, Kans., was signed by Asheville, N. C.

C. A. (Runt) Marr announced today that he would be president and manager of the Fort Smith club of the Western association, succeeding Johnny Cimpl, who has been the manager.

Ike Danning, catcher, who played with New Haven, Conn., last year but was the property of the St. Louis Browns, was sold to Baltimore.

Little Rock sold a battery to Reading, Ernie Woolfolk, pitcher, and Rod Whitney, catcher.

FRENCH TEAM STEALS LEAD IN BIKE RACE

NEW YORK, Dec. 5.— (AP) — The French "Red Devils," Paul Brocardo and Alfred Letourner, gained undisputed possession of first place in New York's 47th international six-day bicycle race in Madison Square Garden tonight.

The Frenchmen, who had been tied with Reggie McNamara and Gaetano Belloni, caught the field napping shortly after the night sprints began and gained a lap. Jam followed jam thereafter but the Frenchmen were equal to every thurst. When the sprints were over at 10 p. m. they held a lap lead over the McNamara-Belloni and Franco Georgetti-Gerard Debaets combinations. The leaders have covered 1514 miles, 9 laps at 10 p. m., 97th hour of the race. The record for that hour is 1924 miles, 4 laps, made by Goullet and Grenda in 1914.

HARVARD TO ROW IN FOUR REGATTAS NEXT YEAR

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Dec. 5—(AP)—The coach-less Harvard varsity crew will participate in four regatttas next spring, it was announced here today. The Crimson carsmen will open their season by engaging the M. I. T. crew here, on the Charles river on April 26. On May 17, the Crimson will hold a quadrangular regatta on the Charles, rowing against Navy, Pennsylvania and M. I. T.

Harvard will go to Ithaca, N. Y., on May 24 to race against Cornell and Syracuse and to New London, on June 20 for the annual Thames regatta with Yale.

It is likely that William J. Bingham, director of athletics, will soon be in a position to announced a successor for Ed Brown, who resigned as varsity coach, early this fall. Bert Haines, freshman coach, had charge of the varsity crew's fall practice.

VARSITY CLUB FORMED AT PLAINFIELD HIGH

At a gathering of all lettermen at Plainfield high, a Varsity club was organized. Officers elected: Edward Bellavance, president; Frank Polewaczik, secretary and treasurer. A committee of three, John Dodge, Wallace Burns and Paul Shippee, was appointed to collect all records of all sports at P. H. S. These records are to be placed in the school library. Stanley Baldyga and Edward Bellavance were appointed publicity editors of sports at this school.

At a meeting of the club, the members voted to give a banquet in honor of the new members, who have earned their letter in football this fall. At this banquet the letters will be awarded, and prominent men of the town of Plainfield and Central Village and Moosup, will speak on the past and present sports at the school. The purpose of these speakers, is to renew the interest in sports at P. H. S.

HARTFORD, Dec. 5.—(AP)—In what was scheduled as for the lightweight championship of Connecticut, Bobby Mays, 134 1-4, New London, won a 15-round decision over Mickey Flahive, 135, Hartford, at Foot Guard hall tonight.

Kid Como, 128 3-4, New York, won on a technical knockout over Nick Christy, 126 1-4, Bristol in the seventh round of the scheduled eight round semi-final bout. Christy claimed an injured thumb prevented him from answering the bell of the seventh round.

Frankie Martin, 128 1-2, Pittsfield, who had substituted for Roland Roche, of Holyoke, won a six round decision over Vin LaBella, 126 1-2, Middletown. After taking a five count in the opening round, Martin got up and held on until the bell had saved him, previous to that knockdown Martin had LaBella down for a short count also.

In the opening four round bout Johnny Mastro, 133 1-2, Hartford, lost on a technical knockout in the third round to Johnny Londos, 135, New London when he claimed he could not continue after the second round.

LIGHT WEIGHT ELEVEN RETAINS ITS TITLE

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va., Dec. 5.—(AP)—The Fives of Charlottesville maintained their claim to the national hundred pound football championship this afternoon, with a 27 to 0 victory over the Kent, Ohio, Bearcats in a game played at the University of Virginia.

By winning the game for the national midget championship, the Fives remain undefeated in ten contests against hundred pound teams. They have scored 342 points against their opponents' 55.

A court in London, England, has been called upon to decide whether a couple married outside legal hours under daylight saving, but within the limit by standard time, is truly wedded. Under the English Marriage Act of 1823, still in force, legal marriages can be contracted only between 8 a. m. and 3 p. m. In this case the clergyman did not arrive until nearly 4 o'clock. He hurried through the ceremony before the hour struck and assured the couple that it was all right as they had been married before 3 p. m. sun time.

TWO ACADEMY PLAYERS NAMED ON BULLETIN'S ALL-CONFERENCE ELEVEN.

The Bulletin's annual All-Interscholastic conference football team, announced today, contains the names of two Academy players, three from the champion Westerly team, two from Stonington, two from Windham and one each from Chapman Tech and Bulkeley, which about shows the standing of the teams in the conference race.

Frankie Barber, fullback, and Hertz, tackle, are the two Wildcats named, this being the lowest number of Academy players ever named on one of these teams.

There were few outstanding players in the conference this year. Barber, Capt. Artie Meikle, of Windham, Capt. Powers of Stonington and Bernie Stenhouse of Westerly are probably the only boys to come under the extra-good classification this year. Most of the conference games were close tilts, won by a touchdown or two and individual starring efforts were not numerous. Long runs or spectacular passes were infrequent during the campaign.

Two teams have been named with ten other players for honorable mention. This is naming 32 boys out of a total of about 150 players on the squads of the six conference schools.

FURY OF LIGHTNING NEARLY CONQUERED

Where four and five power lines now are maintained between important cities because of the menace of lightning, the sidetracking plans would have one line sufficient.

Part of the research pointing toward this switching of the wild element from the summer sky is done in an odd appearing little house here, surrounded by a high mesh fence because of its perils to life, and hedged about and above by a seemingly nonsensical criss-cross of wires. Its doors and windows are labeled "Danger."

This house is closed for the winter, for the destructive lightning hits only in summer, a circumstance that, while a boon to power consumers, slows down the progress of the lightning engineers.

The station is maintained by the Westinghouse, Public Service of Northern Illinois, Northern Indiana Public Service, Commonwealth Edison and Middlewest Utilities companies.

The heart of the thunderbolt catching appartus is an oscillograph, an instrument that combines the sensitivity of electrical recording, the speed of electrons and photographic plates to record the surges of power passing over the lines when lightning strikes.

With it the engineers know the power of the element they will have to divert to keep their lines from being burned up by the chance strokes.

It will require time to figure out methodes and apparatus to make the switch for a bearable expense possibly several years, but the scientific men expect to succeed.

POETRY

The First Snowfall.

The snow had begun in the gloaming,
And busily all the night
Had been heaping field and highway
With a silence deep and white.

Every pine and fir and hemlock
Wore ermine too dear for an earl,
And the poorest twig on the elm tree
Was ridged inch deep with pearl.

From sheds new-roofed with Carrara
Came Chanticleer's muffled crow,
The stiff rails were softened to swan's down
And still fluttered down the snow.

I stood and watched by the window
The noiseless work of the sky,
And the sudden flurries of snow-birds
Like brown leaves whirling by.

I thought of a mound in sweet Auburn
Where a little headstone stood,
How the flakes were folding it gently,
As did robins the babes in the wood.

Up spoke our own little Mabel
Saying, "Father who makes it snow?"
And I told of the good All-Father
Who cares for us here below.

Again I looked at the snowfall,
And thought of the leaden sky
That arched o'er our first great sorrow
When that mound was heaper so high.

I remembered the gradual patience
That fell from that cloud like snow,
Flake by flake, healing and hiding
The scar of our deep-plunged woe.

And again to the child I whispered,
"The snow that husheth all,
Darling, the merciful Father
Alone can make it fall!"

Then, with eyes that saw not, I kissed her;
And she, kissing back, could not know
That my kiss was given to her sister
Folded close under deepening snow.

—James Russell Lowell.

The Christmas Club Check.

This year I joined a Christmas club
And every Saturday,
Though it was hard, I paid the bank
What I'd agreed to pay.
For well I knew that Christmas time
Would mean a great expense,
And Christmas week a year ago
I had but sixty cents.

My savings grew week after week,
And much to my delight
I saw my Christmas fund increase—
The idea was all right.
I calculated with much care
How much I'd have to spend
If I should give, when Christmas came,
A gift to every friend.

But oh! alas! alas! alack
My credit was too good!
I should have had much less stuff charged
If I had understood,
I could not buy a Christmas gift
I missed the giver's thrills!
I had to save my Christmas fund
To pay my New Year's bills!

WHY?

Why do we keep on striving after things beyond our reach?
Why do we scorn the lessons that experience should teach?
Why do we fret and worry about the future's ills?
Why aren't we all more eager to pay our little bills?
Why do we talk and talk and talk and talk and talk and talk?
Why don't we take more exercise, and walk and walk and walk?
Why don't we do a great deal more to benefit our friends?
Why do we labor chiefly to achieve our selfish ends?
Why do we eat so many things that do us little good?
Why don't we always try to do exactly as we should?
Why do we bleat to others about our woes and cares?
Why do we turn from others when they want to bleat of theirs?
Why do we envy others who may be envying us?
Why do we follow fashions though they are ridiculous?
Why do we boast so much of what we're going to do?
Why do we quit discouraged when we are halfway through?
Why do we make ourselves unhappy, seeking happiness?
Why do we—well, because we're common folks, I guess!

WEATHER PROPHET CLAIMS HE PREDICTED COLD WAVE

Weather Guesser Carl Ashcraft is all smiles since the cold wave came up from Long Island sound, for he had told the world that the icemen will fill their houses before the first of the year. His short nose was smelling the wind and he was telling a group gathered about Jane Carson's stove near a red hot fire that there will be a heavy frost. And the Sheep-skin club will need their sheep-skin coats for the winter is now here. Some days will be warm but not enough to leave off the sheep-skin. Automobiles were frozen up Saturday and had to be towed around town. It was the season's coldest day for November in 12 years. Jack Ellis was telling what happened down at his house, with the cold wind singing around the doors. He has some nice hens, and he one trained. It seems when Jack is home, the trained hen, Pat, knows it. Around the hour of 6 o'clock, he heard Pat crying with the cold. But he rolled over in bed until his eggs were turned over and the coffee hot. "It was around 7:30 when I got out of bed," he said. "After my breakfast I went out to see if my automobile was all right, for I forgot and left the hood up. Getting in there I saw my trained hen in where the engine is, fast asleep and warm. How did she get out of the coop and know where that warm spot was? I could not find out how she got into the garage. I let Pat finish her beauty sleep. I looked and saw how the rest of the flock was and found one dead from the cold wind, the first time in my life that I saw hens stake with the cold and cry. So I had a parade and led them into the cellar, near the furnace and gave them their breakfast. You never saw such a happy flock of hens in all your life! They almost smiled. The glass, at the back door, read 5 above zero; that is cold for November". Guesser Ashcraft said the water was rolling high with a skim of ice. The fishing fleet had to come back home. It was too cold. I think why we got this cold wave so quickly was because we were out fishing the first part of the week, and I saw a shark that looked like a man-eater, chasing the fish right in to the shore, and the fish were jumping and doing a fast 100-yards. Then I said look out for the cold wave and wind so I think that I was not far off.

Another fellow told about a cold day when he was in the navy up around Russia. It was in October. Soon the black, white and blue clouds came up and the captain of the ship put to the dock extra heavy lines, and was ready for the storm. It snowed with the sun out, rained, then came hail stones as large as golf balls. The wind blew about a 45-mile gale and as to cold, it was about 24 below zero. It was so cold that my buddy got out his shaving set to get off a few cat hairs or a base ball nine and even the water froze between the barrel on deck to his room so that he had to break ice about one-half inch thick; he had to go without a shave. It was the coldest October Russia ever saw. It was around 1900, or so. I lost the date of the year but remember it around 1900. That is the worst cold weather I ever saw, for it came up so quick and it lasted for two weeks."

The Weather Guesser said, "We are in for a hard winter—snow, ice and cold weather. Since the bubble broke at Wall street, in New York, where many men are on their last pair of shoes, and cannot find work, what are they to do when the snow is about a foot deep? We will have two snow storms in December. Guessing the weather I might be wrong, once in a while, but I have hit it quite often." The gang around the store gave him a big cheer for his talk.

"This letter is marked 'Dictated but not read.'"

"Well, if he didn't consider it worth reading, why should I?"— Louisville Courier-Journal.

PUTTING ASIDE SOMETHING FOR FUTURE NEEDS

(Written Specially for The Bulletin)

Some one who has been keeping tabs on such things recently reported that, between now and Dec. 25, the banks of the country would pay out to various "Christmas clubs" between two and three hundred million dollars.

The idea of the "Christmas club" is born of the fact that practically everyone wants to give away more, at Christmas, than he has to spare. The wave of Christmas generosity takes the vast majority as unpreparedly as if it was an entirely new thing, and had never submerged anybody before.

The average man or woman, while dimly realising that there is such a thing as Christmas coming, doesn't wake up to its impending nearness till about a week before it is due to arrive. By which time it is entirely too late to scrape up money enough to buy and forward all the gifts either actual desire or subservience to convention dictate shall be bought.

This results in a far from pretty how-de-do. Everybody's trying to borrow money from somebody to meet holiday needs, and nobody has money enough to attend to his own.

What ought to pass as a gay and joyous season is turned into one of worry and fuss and scrimping and making believe—all because Mr. Average Man and Mrs. Average Woman hadn't gumption and grace enough to look ahead beyond their noses or plan ahead beyond one day.

If he hadn't bought that set of books which he didn't really need, last October, Mr. Average Man might have had money enough to buy something real snappy for Aunt Jane and Cousin Gladys and all the other aunts and cousins "whom he reckons up by dozens." If Mrs. Average Woman hadn't fallen, three weeks ago, for that $40 new hat, which she now sees she could have got along without, she would have had plenty to buy all the slippers and neckties and such things which she hankers to distribute. Neither of the Averagers thought so far ahead and now they're "strapped" with Christmas only a block away and already turning the corner.

What to do? What to do?

That's where the bank's Christmas club comes in with a pocket-satisfying answer.

As each Christmas passes, you vow you'll never allow yourself to be caught napping by another one. You'll get ready for it in ample time; you'll make sure of enough money laid by to fill the bill; you'll show some sense. That's what you promise yourself.

But you won't; not if you're Mr. Average Man or Mrs. Average Woman. You'll do just about the same this year that you did last year and will do next year. That is, you'll start in with a vim on the 26th of December; you'll keep it up with steadily lessening interest till about the middle of April; then you'll forget all about it till the 23rd of December, when you'll suddenly rouse up to the same old worry over what-on-earth you're going to get for Jim and Julia and how-on-earth you're going to pay for the things.

Unless you joined a Christmas club at the bank, last December, and were prodded into making your regular deposits every following week. In that case, your worries can be dismissed as fast as they come up.

All the year long you've paid in your weekly half dollar or dollar, with the distinct understanding that these deposits were to accumulate, undrawn upon, till the following Christmas. So, when that season approaches, you know that you have subject to your call $25 or $50 or $100, according to the size of your weekly deposits, with a dollar or two of interest added. You haven't missed the small weekly deposits, amounting to only a trifling sum at any one time. Yet, like the "little drops of water" of the Sunday school hymn, they make up, when added together, a tidy and very comfortable reserve to fall back on.

I don't know, nor do I care, whether the banker who first suggested and put into practice the Christmas club idea was actuated by a spirit of philanthropy or a desire to swell the assets of his institution. In either case, he showed how to take care of a big and bothersome problem in a very simple and easy way.

He did more than that—if only Mr. Average Man has sense enough to see it. He showed, by his method of preparing for Christmas beforehand, how similarly simple and easy it would be to prepare for the more serious emergencies of life beforehand.

Christmas comes every year with practical certainty. So the proverbial "rainy day" comes into every life with practical certainty.

No matter how brightly the sun of prosperity may be shining on you, just now, it's about as sure as fate that the clouds will loom, sooner or later, and the rain fall and the wind blow, and you'll surely need a prepared shelter to protect you from the storm.

No matter how good wages you're getting now; no matter how much money your business is bringing in, the time is fairly sure to come when your earning power will diminish or cease, temporarily, and your profits will dwindle to the vanishing point.

If you have taken advantage of the sunshine not only to make your hay but to store some of it away in rainproof barns you can meet the stormy weather with complacency.

If, on the other hand, you've been living "from hand to mouth," spending all your income as fast as you get it, laying by nothing for emergencies, then the accident or the illness or the happening of any sort which cuts you off from your gainful occupation, even temporarily, is a mighty serious matter.

If a Christmas club with its small weekly deposits is a big help in meeting the holiday season's demands, then why isn't a "Rainy Day club" with small but regular deposits, persistently made year after year, a big help towards meeting the larger demands sure to be made by sickness or accident or age or business panic?

If it is wise to save up money weekly by week to buy Christmas gifts with, why isn't it even wiser to save up money week by week to pay doctor's bills or hospital fees, or various other emergencies which are fairly certain to come into every life, sooner or later?

And that is exactly what savings banks are for, to keep safely and profitably the excess earnings or profits of today's work in instant readiness for the distress signal which usually comes just when it is least expected.

One doesn't need to join a Christmas club to save money either for Christmas or for any other emergency. Every savings bank is a big All-the-Year club, organized and managed to help you and me and everybody else prepare beforehand for possible or probable future needs.

The Christmas club is a good thing—as far as it goes. The saving up, during the summer, of money enough to meet Christmas bills is a wise procedure—as far as it goes.

But why stop there? Why save for one foreseen demand and not save for others, quite as easily visible and virtually as certain?

If you find it possible to save, regularly and persistently, for the sake of making a holiday splurge, it is certainly possible for you to save, as regularly and as persistently, for the time when you'll be flat on your back, unable to earn a cent, but having to spend dollars.

If it is possible to save for Christmas's sake, it is quite as possible to save for thrift's own sake.

Of course, some "off horse" will kick against any attempt to keep him in the traces. Some average critter will declare that it takes all he can rake and scrape just to live. He hasn't any overplus to save.

That, to speak mildly, is just tommyrot. Anybody with a job or a business can save something—if the inducement is great enough. It may be very little, but every little counts. It is pennies which make pounds and dimes which make dollars.

Such savings as ordinary people can make are not urged as a means for getting rich. They are simply the storing up, ahead, of ammunition with which to fight the devil of necessity when he starts his raid on you.

Lots of people find the assurance of having some Christmas money inducement enough to make them sacrifice present desires for future pleasure.

What is to prevent lots of others from seeing even more potent inducement in the assurance that there is a reserve to take care of wife and kiddies when they themselves are out of work or invalided?

It takes a certain amount of self-denial and self-sacrifice to save money for even a Christmas club. That's all that is required to save money for much more important purposes.

I once knew a man who never earned over a dollar a day, but who saved enough in the course of years to buy and pay for his own home I know today, men who are getting five or six dollars a day, and who are spending every cent of it, and then complaining that they can't make both ends meet.

It isn't in the amount one gets, it's in the spirit with which one uses it, that the difference lies.

Where there's a will there's generally a way.

Outside of paupers and hoboes, there are mighty few who can't lay up a little something today against tomorrow's needs.

Mrs. Clarence Wickham of Hartford, state chairman of the Patriotic Education committee of the Connecticut D. A. R., spoke very interestingly on the 16 approved schools of the organization. Following this address, Misses Ruth Andrews and Julia Avery of New London, delighted all present with two violin duets. They were accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Treffly Morgan. It was decided to have eight tables of bridge-whist for the benefit of the chapter, at the home of Mrs. May E. Leonard, at a later date. Articles were brought in for a box which is packed for Ellis Island each year. Owing to the slippery walking, there was not a large attendance, so it was decided to hold the box open for a few days. The box is in charge of Mrs. C. C. McGaughey, chairman of the Ellis island committee. Refreshments were served by the committee at the close of the meeting.

No More Sore Aching Joints

No Matter What the Weather Rheuma Is Guaranteed to Relieve All Your Rheumatic Aches and Pains or It Costs You Nothing.

Refuse to be one of the vast army of men and women whose joints swell, stiffen and throb with nasty, twitchy, shooting pains every time the weather changes. For they are the unlucky people who through neglect let their rheumatic condition become chronic.

Any time you feel the slightest pain or discontent in your knee, elbow or wrist, in your fingers or in any muscle in your body, go right away to the handiest drugstore for a bottle of Rheuma—a wonderful pain destroyer that contains no narcotics or habit-forming drugs.

There is nothing like Rheuma to drive out the poisons before they have a chance to settle in the joints and muscles. Yes, Rheuma drives them out three ways—through the pores, the kidneys and the bowels. It stops rheumatic aches and pains the first day and quickly brings about a complete recovery.

If your attack is already under full headway and the least movement of the affected parts is an aching torture, and you face days, weeks or even months of crippling pain and incapacity for work, by all means try Rheuma. It's just the thing to stop the hot, feverish, throbbing pains and cut short the length and severity of the attack.

Rheuma is a scientific, up-to-date combination of powerful ingredients whose effectiveness in the relief of joint and muscle infections is well known to the medical profession. Remember that Rheuma is not an external relief, but an internal remedy that is sold by Lee and Osgood and all good druggists with guarantee that it will end all your rheumatic suffering or it costs you nothing.

REFRIGERATION is a year round NECESSITY

Every General Electric Refrigerator is hermetically sealed.

It may be chilly outside but there's a steaming stove in the kitchen. And it's the temperature indoors that counts.

When the temperature in your refrigerator rises above 50 degrees, foods deteriorate. If you throw them away they are a wasteful loss. But if you eat them they may endanger your family's health.

The General Electric Refrigerator automatically keeps your food safely below 50 degrees. It makes a generous supply of ice cubes and has an accessible freezing regulator. Its cabinet is all-steel and warp-proof.

No other refrigerator has all its mechanism hermetically sealed in a steel casing, and permanently oiled. Come in and ask about our conveniently spaced payment plan.

If you like really good music tune in on the General Electric Hour broadcast every Saturday evening.

SAILOR WHO STRUCK NEW LONDON CAR SHOWS HUMOR AS WELL AS NERVE

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 5.—Ewald Brandt, 502 Vauxhall street, made complaint to the police tonight that while his automobile was parked on Main street, it was struck and damaged by a car carrying Connecticut registration L—3468. The complaint disclosed that the colliding automobile is owned by Sumner L. Gillespie, submarine base. Gillespie left a note in Brandt's auto telling the latter that the crash "broke your bumper."

To Safeguard Danger Spot

An automatic traffic signal is to be erected within a day or two at one of the most dangerous intersections in the city, Ocean and Glenwood avenues. The signal has arrived and is of the 24-hour type. At midnight the signal will be regulated so that only a flashing of either the caution or danger flash will prevail as a warning to autoists until daylight. It is also planned to cause one of this type of signals to be erected at the corner of Main and Church streets.

RADIO DEEMED NUISANCE—OWNER ORDERED TO STOP IT

As a result of complaint having been made yesterday to Prosecuting Attorney Max Boyer against the operation of a radio continuously at the Triangle store, 324 State street, the police today instructed the management of the store to discontinue the practice which, the complaint said, was the cause of much annoyance to owners of business houses in the vicinity. It has been the practice of the store manager to have the radio broadcast mornings and afternoons and sometimes during the evenings.

Charles Oliver, 23, of New Bedford, Mass., arrested Tuesday at the request of the New Bedford police on a charge of non-support, was taken to the Massachusetts city today by an officer who came here for that purpose. Oliver, who was at liberty on bail, waived extradition.

DRIVER'S MEAN TRICK SETS POLICE ON HIS TRAIL

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 5.—The police tonight are seeking an auto driver on a charge of evasion of responsibility, for the machine collided with two other cars and damaged both. The state police have also been requested to arrest the driver, who is running a car carrying Connecticut registration, L—3094. The car was driven by a sailor and he had a companion. Both, according to the owner of one machine damaged, were intoxicated. The first auto hit was that of Mrs. Ida Morris, of 214 Huntington street, and was struck on Crystal avenue, between Main and Winthrop streets. The driver did not stop, but continued across the Thames highway bridge to Groton. The machine was then driven back to New London and at the approach to the bridge it struck a car driven by John Bartolotta, U. S. Coast Guard academy. The driver of the colliding auto agreed to accompany Bartolotta to a service station for the purpose of determining the extent of damage occasioned, but at the corner of Main and Crystal avenue the offending motorist turned north on Main street and disappeared.

Employes of the city's street department are not friends of children, at least, that is the way the kiddies look at it, for within the past two days quantities of sand have been placed on highways where coasting is considered dangerous. As a result many of the youngsters have been deprived of their favorite out-door pastime in the winter.

Duncan Linsley, son of Dr. J. R. Linsley, of this city, with Mrs. Linsley and their child, sailed yesterday from Bremen, Germany, on the steamship Bremen for New York to spend Christmas. Mr. Linsley has been in Berlin during the past year, representing a New York bond house, with which he has been associated for about seven years.

A resident of Maple avenue reported to the police that children were coasting on Willetts avenue and because of the many automobiles passing through the avenue were in danger of injury. Automobile Patrol Officer George Cockell was sent to put a stop to the children's pastime.

SAILOR FATALLY BURNED WHILE AMUSING HIS MATES

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 5—Archie McClung, 21, United States Coast Guard sailor, was fatally burned in a strange manner late yesterday. He died from his burns today at Lawrence-Memorial hospital. McClung was literally roasted to death for the burns extended from his shoulders to his ankles. His home was in Phoenix City, Ala., where his mother resides and to that city the body will be forwarded.

McClung conceived the idea of entertaining some of his mates in the recreation hall during the late afternoon and to amuse them he donned flimsy attire to perform a hula hula dance when he discovered that a new talking machine installed in the building had a Hawaiian record. McClung danced about the hall to the amusement of his friends. Suddenly, without warning and from an unexplained cause, the paper-like costume burst into flames. Instead of trying to smother the flames, McClung leaped through a window and ran at top speed about the reservation, causing the flames to burn the more furiously. When other sailors overtook McClung the latter was suffering intense pain. McClung was taken to the sick bay and given emergency treatment, then transferred to the hospital where he expired at 1:15 this morning.

The mass of requiem was celebrated by Rev. William C. Fitzsimons. As a waiting hymn, Edward F. Murray sang, "There's a Beautiful Land on High." The bearers were Salvatore Grillo, Joseph Calendo, Mariana Syracuse, Frank Gambro, Achillo Scalia and Charles Yaiulla. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery.

John M. Rankin

The funeral of John M. Rankin, formerly of New London and whose death occurred Tuesday at his home in New Britain, was held in that city this morning. This afternoon, the body, accompanied by mourners, was brought to New London for burial in the family plot in St. Mary's cemetery.

Tony Ragonese, 36 Moore avenue, reported to the police last midnight that his son, Ilio, 16, was missing from home and requested that a search be made for him. Ragonese said that his son disappeared from home about 8 o'clock Wednesday afternoon and all trace of him had been lost.

Sailor and Woman Fined

Connie Burt, Negress, residing at 16 Hill street, was tried in the police court this morning charged with conducting a disorderly house. Barbara Kenney and Frances Rowlis, also colored and Hosea Tanner, white sailor, were charged with frequenting. The Burt woman was fined $50 and costs. The other women and Tanner were fined $5 and costs each. Shortly after 11 o'clock last night, when it was known that the sailor had gone to the house, Automobile Patrol Officers George Cockell and Clarence Martin went to the house, which had been under surveillance for some time, and finding the Negresses and the white sailor there, arrested the quartet. The Burt woman was arrested several months ago, on the same charge.

Struck Waitress—In Jail

Dennis Bickey, Greek restaurant waiter, residing at 21 Golden street, was charged with breach of the peace in attacking and striking Peggy Huff, a waitress residing at 98 Green street. He pleaded not guilty, but the evidence was such that the court imposed a fine of $25 and costs. Bickey could not pay so was remanded to jail. Bickey and the Huff young woman have been friends for some time and recently the latter declined further attention from Bickey. However, when Bickey went to the young woman's place of employment late last night, he accompanied her home. Arriving at the house the pair entered and a quarrel began which ended when Bickey struck the young woman several blows. Peggy made complaint to Patrolman Frank Linehan, who arrested the waiter.

Bickey admitted some parts of his sweetheart's testimony, but refused to admit that he struck her. He declared that when they arrived at the rooming house, Peggy requested that he enter and escorted him to her room.

Flapper Mother Goes Free

The continued case of Mrs. Lucille Litwin, 7 Prest street, charged with lascivious carriage was disposed of by a nolle being ordered. The woman, who is the mother of several children, was arrested Nov. 5 at a Green street rooming house where she was sharing a room with Lawrence Flake. In court the next day, the woman's case was continued until today, but Flake's case was disposed of by a sentence of 60 days in jail being imposed, execution of which was suspended.

I. C. C. OPINION ON THE CONTROL OF RAILROADS

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5—(AP)—The interstate commerce commission believes large holding corporations may, through the purchase of competing railroads, defeat the purpose of the plan for "orderly" consolidation of lines upon which the commission is working and expects to complete soon.

Naming specifically the Alleghany corporation, a Van Sweringen organization, and the Pennroad corporation, majority stock of which is owned by stockholders of the Pennsylvania railroad, as two companies apparently effecting virtual consolidation "through common control of affiliation," the commission recommended to congress today in its annual report legislation to deal with these companies.

"It seems clear," the report said, "that the acquisition of control of an amount of stock sufficient to influence the policies of competing railroads, either by individuals or by non-carrier corporations, may result in the suppression of competition in a manner no less harmful than if such control be exercised directly by one carried over another."

WOMAN RESEMBLES MISSING MRS. CROUSE

ST. CLAIRSVILLE, O. Dec. 5—(AP)—A woman whose appearance answered closely a description of Mrs Beecher Crouse, missing wife of a wealthy Utica, N. Y. banker, was located today at the Belmont county infirmary near here, but officials who investigated said they were virtually convinced that she is not Mrs. Crouse.

The woman herself denied that she is the banker's missing wife. She gave her name as Mrs. Elizabeth McCullogh and inquiry by police at Bellaire, in this county, revealed that she had been in that city several times during the last year. Mrs. Crouse disappeared only five weeks ago.

If a lawyer's succes depended wholly upon the gift of gab there would be more woman lawyers.

SCREEN GRID

Stromberg-Carlson

No. 846 Stromberg-Carlson. Employs 10 tubes, 3 of them Screen Grid.

Price, without tubes . $347.50

Check--how many more programs you can tune in at a single traverse of the dial. Then, make a note that the reason is, three screen grid tubes all in the R. F. stages.

Observe how much more distinctly stations are separated by Stromberg-Carlson selectivity, particularly on the crowded lower wave lengths. Again make a note, "Linear" Power Detection is the cause because it lets the tremendous power necessary to bring far off stations close up, through to the loud speaker without choking, rattling or other distortion Test how loudly you can tune the strongest nearby stations in without their becoming noisy, and how faintly you can tune them down without hearing a sign of a hum. Make a memo that this means a humless Electro-Dynamic Speaker plus perfect detection.

With the above facts in mind you will be in no danger of over estimating any other receiver ever made. We'll gladly acquaint you with every feature of Stromberg-Carlson Screen Grid Radio.

No. 642 Stromberg-Carlson. Uses 3 UY-224 (Screen Grid,) 1 UY-227, 1 UX-245 and 1 UX 280 Radiotrons.

Price, without tubes . $259.00

No. 642 Table model, similar operating unit to No. 642.

Price, less tubes and Speaker $155

AFTER EARLY GAINS LEADING STOCKS LARGELY CLOSED MODERATELY LOWER

NEW YORK, Dec. 5—(AP)—Wall street was inclined to temper its renewed confidence with conservatism today, and the latest bull movement in stocks became bogged with profit-taking and bear selling.

The market opened with distinct easing tendencies, but further vigorous operations for the advance in the utilities soon turned the price movement upward, and a wide assortment of shares reached new high ground for the recovery. Bulls lost control of the movement in the last hour, however, and leading stocks largely closed moderately lower.

Traders sensed a change in the tenor of the flow of news from Washington, a change of a character to restrain excessive optimism. President Hoover, in his address before the conference held by the United States chamber of commerce, stressed the word "work." Dr. Julius Klein, assistant secretary of commerce, urged business to get down to "brass tack realities." These advices, while still indicating confidence in fundamental industrial stability, dispelled hasty illusions of a new golden era of prosperity in the immediate offing. Dr. Klein pointed out that readjustments will take time.

Furthermore, indications that the declining curve of money rates has reached its low were more pronounced. Call money held officially at 4 1-2 per cent, and was unavailable in the outside market below 4, compared to 3 recently. Two bankers acceptance dealers increased their buying rates. The Bank of England made no reduction in its discount rate, leaving it still one per cent above the New York federal reserve rate, and further firmness of sterling foreshadowed loss of gold to London, while an additional shipment to France, amounting to $2,000,000 was arranged.

The weekly federal reserve brokers loans figures, showed a further reduction of $58,000,000, which was unexpectedly favorable, as they covered but three specific market trading days, and days of moderately rising prices. It was notable that the out-of-town banks were again placing funds in the market, increasing their loans by $42,000,000, while New York banks and others withdrew about $100,000,000. The federal reserve system condition statement displayed a reduction in rediscounting approximately $40,000,000 outside of the New York district.

The National Automobile chamber of commerce estimate of automobile production in November showed a sharp curtailment from October, and a moderate curtailment from November, 1928. Despite the consequent slack in the steel industry, however, Wall street estimates indicated that U. S. Steel's unfilled tonnage figures for Nov. 30 would show little change from the previous month. Favorable reports of November sales were returned by the Woolworth and Kresge store chains.

The action of U. S. Steel was indicative of the general price trend. It sold up about a point, and closed off 1 3-4. American Telephone mounted more than 4 points, but closed 1 lower. Columbian Carbon ran up nearly 15 points, then lost nearly all its gain.

Utilities, although losing much of their maximum gains of the day, generally closed higher. Stone and Webster mounted 8 points, reflecting the initial dividend of $2, and closed up 6.

Peoples Gas, a mercurial issue, ran up 2 1-2 points and retained its gain. Rails were inclined to sag, with the exception of the Van Sweringen group. Allegheny Corp. closed a point higher, despite the interstate commerce commission's recommendation in its consideration of holding companies, and Chesapeake and Ohio closed up nearly 3 points.

General Electric was down 6 points at the close, and such shares as American Can, Johns Manville, Kennecott, Montgomery Ward, Sears Roebuck, New York Central, Radio and U. S. Industrial Alcohol, were off about 1 to 3 points.

Commodity markets were generally heavy. Wheat futures lost about 2 1-2 cents, reflecting larger Argentine estimates, and corn sagged about 1 cent. Cotton sagged 65 to 95 cents a bale.

In the foreign exchanges, sterling cable moved up 1-16 of a cent more to $4.88 3-16, another new peak for the year. The discount on the Canadian dollar was reduced to 5-8 of a cent.

WALL STREET BRIEFS

NEW YORK, Dec. 5—(AP)—Structural steel awards during the past week amounted to 12,000 tons, the lowest figure for any week this year, compared with 22,000 tons for the previous week. Inquiries totaled 47,000 tons, as against 66,000 tons a week ago.

Arrangements have been made for the sale of a membership in the New York Curb exchange for $200,000, an increase of $50,000 from the last previous sale.

A preliminary report issued by the Central Aguirre Associates, operators of sugar plantations in Porto Rico, says that the company will show profits for the year ending July 31, last of about $200,000. Damage amounting to about $2,000,000 was caused by the hurricane last year.

WESTERLY

LEWIS SOLOMON STRUCK —WRIST IS FRACTURED

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WESTERLY, Dec. 5—Lewis Solomon, of 25 Elm street, proprietor of a department store on Broad street, was knocked down Thursday about 5:30 p. m., as he started to cross Dixon square by an automobile operated by Leonard Wells, of Westerly. Mr. Solomon was struck on the right side and thrown to the highway with such force that he fractured his left wrist and cut his leg. He was attended by Dr. J. Gordon Anderson, who had X-rays taken.

Wells was ordered to appear before Judge Oliver H. Williams in Third District court Friday morning.

SPECIALIST INVESTIGATES HOLLIDAY GIRL'S DEATH

Epidemiologist Dr. A. G. Gizzer of the Rhode Island state board of health was in Westerly Thursday afternoon to investigate the circumstances connected with the death of Rosanna Holliday, 12-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Holliday, at the home of her parents, 140 Granite street, Wednesday, following ten days' illness. Dr. Gizzer, accompanied by Dr. Samuel C. Webster, health officer of Westerly, and Dr. Michael H. Scanlon and Dr. J. DeVera Barber visited the Holliday home for the purpose of examining the body. They pronounced death due to septic sore throat, but declared there was no epidemic of the disease and there was no cause for alarm. As a precaution usually taken in such cases, the body was ordered placed in a sealed casket and the funeral will be private. Dr. Gizzer said there had been one other case of death in Rhode Island caused by septic sore throat, that of a man in Burrillville. The report that there had been two deaths in that town, he said, was not true.

"Septic sore throat," he said, "may result either from infection with the epidemic form of the disease, or from a bad turn in an ordinary tonsilitis case."

The Holliday girl was born in Westerly in 1916, and on the 19th of this month would have celebrated her 15th birthday. She was a member of the eighth grade at Elm street school, popular with classmate sand teachers. Besides her parents, she leaves two sisters Betty and Priscilla, and three brothers, Francis, William and Joseph.

Sale of Work By the Blind

This (Friday) morning Miss Mary E. French and Miss Fannie A. Kimball, home teachers for the blind in Rhode Island, and Miss Susan Todd, sales manager for the state board of education of the blind in Connecticut, will be in Westerly to set up the exhibit of work for the blind which is to be held in the vacant store in the Brooks building, the week of Dec. 9. Useful articles made by the blind in their homes have been collected from all parts of Rhode Island and Connecticut. Miss Kimball comes here occasionally to teach blind pupils. She has spoken at meetings of the Lions' club. Miss Kimball and Miss French are blind. Miss Todd, who has been making some of the preliminary plans, reports a fine spirit of co-operation on the part of Westerly people. Lodges, churches and women's organizations have responded most generously and Miss Todd anticipates a week that will be notably successful.

The following has been recorded with Westerly town clerk: Dec. 5. Lease. Frank Robbins of Worcester, Mass., lessor, to James Agras of Westerly, lessee, store in the Briggs building on the westerly side of Main street, known as No. 7 Main street for a five year term, Nov. 1, 1929, through Oct. 31, 1934.

Men who have been making repairs to the tall flagpole in front of Westerly high school building, have completed the work. The topmast has been raised into position with a gilded ball on the top in place of the former wooden eagle weathervane.

A large force of men in the employ of the Western Union Telegraph Co., has been engaged in replacing telegraph poles along Railroad avenue, the poles being taken from flat cars in the freight yard of the Westerly station and distributed along the railroad right of way.

George S. Gadbois, commander, Osborne W. Rogers, captain-general and Fred A. Beebe, treasurer, members of Palestine Commandery, No. 6, K. T., of New London were among the speakers at the venison supper Wednesday evening in the armory banquet hall of Narragansett commandery, of Westerly, following the December conclave.

Col. Arthur N. Nash was confined to his home on Elm street Wednesday by illness.

Linemen were busy Thursday in removing overhead wiring on High street which has been replaced by wires in cables in the underground conduits.

D. L. CRANDALL PRESIDENT OF MUSICIANS' UNION

At the annual meeting of the local organization, No. 611, of the American Federation of Musicians, Wednesday night, Daniel L. Crandall was elected president for the fourth time. The meeting was held in the Westerly band rooms. The other officers elected were: Vice president, Charles Cushman; treasurer, Hobart Livingston; secretary, Frank Greenman.

The condition of Edward J. Butler, a patient at the Westerly hospital for several weeks, was not so favorable Thursday.

Pawcatuck lodge, No. 90, A. F. and A. M., Robert D. Vennard, master, held a special communication Thursday evening in Masonic hall, when the Master Mason degree was conferred on a class.

During the Christmas rush of shopping, parking spaces are to be provided for autos under police protection on both sides of the Pawcatuck river.

COAST GUARD RECORDED 4,375 LIVES SAVED

The coast guard saved or rescued from peril at sea 4,375 persons for the fiscal year 1929, according to the annual report of Secretary of the Treasury Andrew W. Mellon. This is an increase of 392 over the previous year.

A table summarizing the principal operations of the coast guard for the past year, as compared with the work of this service for the previous year, is included in Secretary Mellon's report as follows:

1929—Lives saved or persons rescued from peril, 4,375; persons on board vessels assisted, 18,725; persons in distress cared for, 879; vessels boarded and papers examined, 89,263; vessels seized or reported for violations of law, 2,571; fines and penalties incurred by vessels reported, $424,725; regattas and marine parades patrolled, 104; instances of lives saved and vessels assisted, 4,419; instances of miscellaneous assistance, 4,867; derelicts and other obstructions to navigation removed or destroyed, 267; value of derelicts recovered and delivered to owners, $33,200; value of vessels assisted (including cargoes), $49,128,375; persons examined for certificates as lifeboat men, 4,271.

The report continues as follows:

The duties of the coast guard in connection with the enforcement of the customs laws of the country and of the navigation and motor boat laws were satisfactorily performed. The law enforcement work for the prevention of smuggling of liquor into the United States from the sea continued to be satisfactory. Some liquor smuggling is still going on along the seaboard and there remains a considerable amount of such smuggling on the Great Lakes. The service is doing all that is possible with its present resources, but the matter continues to be one requiring utmost vigilance and attention.

In March, 1929, the coast guard was called into action during a disastrous flood in Alabama, Georgia, Florida, and a small section of Mississippi. Acting in cooperation with the Red Cross, the state and local authorities, the army and citizens, the coast guard sent personnel and boats into the flooded areas up the Chectawhatchee river, and aided in rescuing individuals, in transporting them to places of safety, in delivering supplies, in setting up means of communication, and in other forms of relief work.

Coast Checking System

On May 1, 1929, the first link was established in the coastal checking system designed to assist aircraft using coastal routes, and in particular to note the departure and arrival of aircraft making extended flights over the coastal estuaries. Through this system any pilot or owner may have a plane or planes under almost instant observation from New York to Miami, Fla., if such planes follow the coastal route, and in case of accident may be assured of prompt assistance from the nearest coast guard station. This service has been developed without additional cost to the government. Such service is of great value, and with the growth of commercial avation its extension to the entire coast line of the country would be advisable.

During the year, five of the ten cutters authorized by the act of June 10, 1926, were completed and placed in commission. Contract was entered into for the construction and equipment of three more of the ten cutters and the work is progressing satisfactorily. Preparations have been made to commence the ninth of the ten cutters. The design plans and specifications are under way.

The secretary of the treasury awarded during the year 57 life-saving medals of honor and one second service silver bar in recognition of bravery displayed in the rescue, or attempted rescue, of persons from drowning in waters over which the United States has jurisdiction, or upon an American vessel.

JUDGES ISSUE RULES FOR SMALL CLAIMS COURTS

The judges of the superior court, in accordance with a small claims enabling act passed at the last session of the legislature, have promulgated rules of procedure for small claims courts, which may be established under the bill. The rules for the hearing and determination of small claims as set up by the superior court judges follow closely the rules established by courts that are now functioning very successfully in Stamford, Hartford and Greenwich. They became effective Tuesday.

The purpose of the courts will be "to secure the prompt and inexpensive hearing and determination of small claims by simplified procedure." The Connecticut chamber of commerce has furnished the local chambers in the state with copies of these rules for their information and guidance.

Under the new law any city, town or borough may now, by ordinance or by-law, set up a small claims court, provided such community already has a court of civil jurisdiction established by special act. The advantages of such small claims courts are: (1) that any action, except tort action, claiming money damages not in excess of $100, may be brought without the formality of writ or the requirement of pleading other than a written or oral statement to a clerk and upon the payment of only a small entry fee of $1.50 and the judge has the power for good cause to dispense with such fee in whole or in part; (2) cases are usually reached and tried in a few weeks after being filed; and (3) while the services of a lawyer are permissible, they are not obligatory.

The state-wide small claims enabling law passed by the 1929 legislature was sponsored and introduced into that legislature by a special committee of the Connecticut chamber of commerce. The small claims court is of distinct value to merchants, laborers and the average citizen in the settlement of controversies involving small sums. It will relieve some of the congestion in our courts and speed up the administration of justice.

A number of communities in Connecticut, with the necessary existing courts, are planning to avail themselves of the advantages of the small claims court. Members of the state bar association have offered their assistance in the establishment of such courts.

In Willimantic a drive for a small claims court has been inaugurated and it is expected that early in January the court of common council will be asked to pass an ordinance providing for the establishment of such a tribunal. A large committee, composed of Willimantic merchants, members of the chamber of commerce and other civic organizations, recently witnessed the operation of a small claims court, and made a complete examination of its records and were so impressed with the success of the court that, immediately upon their return to their home city, they began to lay plans for a similar court in Willimantic and the plans have now progressed to the point where all that is needed to make the court effective is action by the city council.

PLANS FOR PRISON AT WOMEN'S FARM APPROVED

The state board of finance and control has approved plans for a prison for women at the Connecticut State Farm for Women at Niantic, and contractors are now figuring on the plans and specifications. This building will be erected out of an appropriation of $250,000 made by the 1929 general assembly.

The building designed to house Connecticut's women prisoners, who are now at Wethersfield to the number of 12 or 13, will be a fireproof structure, two stories and basement, with brick walls, concrete floors and a slate roof.

The main building will be 172 by 40 feet with a wing, 35 by 40 feet. It will contain no cells, but there will be 29 rooms, each to be provided with a bed, chair and dresser. There will also be quarters for the matron. Construction will probably be started in January and completed some time in next summer.

Three other buildings are now in process of construction at the state farm in Niantic; they are a receiving building, for which $130,000 has been appropriated; an industrial building to cost $75,000; and an office building to cost $35,000. These buildings will be of fireproof construction, with brick walls and cast stone trim.

Work on these three buildings was started about six weeks ago.

These projects are part of a program authorized by the 1929 legislature and were included in the list of building operations by the state on which Governor Trumbull reported to President Hoover last week in response to the president's request for information on Connecticut's ability to aid in staving off a business depression.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Palace Theatre

Maurice Taylor, of the Royal Flying corps of Britain, is injured in the plane in which he had planned to take his recently-married bride on their honeymoon. For three years he lies stricken and she proves faithful to him, devoting all her time to his care, aided by a sinister nurse who, because she, too, loves Taylor, secretly hates the girl-wife. To this dramatic situation is added more spice and passion when Maurice's brother comes to see him from abroad, gets a glimpse of the devoted wife and plans to elope with her, until of a sudden, both realize what such an act would mean to the injured man.

That, in a nutshell, is the thrilling situation which sets the pace for the exciting and intensely emotional plot of "The Sacred Flame," the Warner Brothers classic which opens at the Palace theatre tomorrow with none less than the city's own Pauline Frederick cast in the he star role along with Lila Lee, William Courtenay and others. If you saw Pauline Frederick in "Evidence," you may imagine the dramatic treat again in store for the patrons of the Palace.

The plot thickens when that unfortunate man, Maurice, suddenly dies, apparently having taken an overdose of a sedative medicine. The nurse accuses the couple of having taken his life, and the results of her accusation are so startling that you will find yourself gripping the chair and mopping your brow. Yet the picture is steadily faithful to detail. It moves with a fascinating and inevitable march to its conclusion, a conclusion which for pathos and poignant acting is unsurpassed.

Today, for the last time the Palace presents that superlative actor, George Arliss, in his first great screen talking success, "Disraeli," a picture that nobody should even think of missing.

Breed Theatre.

A most attractive and alluring argument in favor of present day femininity and its witching ways is presented in "The Exalted Flapper," Fox Films production which heads the big double feature program at the Breed Theatre today and Saturday.

Dainty Sue Carol plays the title role in the new picture, centering about the adventures of a European princess who visits New York with her queen mother and abandons home style in favor of American modes.

Tony, the beautiful chestnut horse, who has galloped under Tom Mix, the noted Fox screen star, through peril after peril, has at last won his spurs as a star—if such a title may be conferred upon a horse—and his name will blaze in electric lights all over the country in "Just Tony," the added feature on this week's program.

For once in his picture career Tom Mix will play second fiddle, as it were to Tony, for the animal is to be the featured player in a screen production by Fox based on Max Brand's fine novel "Alcatraz." "Alcatraz" is the name of a horse in the Brand novel, and "Just Tony" is the screen adaptation.

Lotus Male Quartet.

The famous Lotus quartet of Boston, who always give an excellent concert, will appear at Masonic temple Tuesday evening, Dec. 10. They are not strangers in Norwich and have many friends here. Mr. Robert Martin, manager of the Lotus quartet, assures us that a very interesting and entertaining part of the program is the part contributed by the dramatic reader, a versatile and attractive young lady, a graduate of the Emerson School of Oratory, Boston.

Broadway Theatre.

So true to life is Erich von Stroheim's conception of the master ventriloquist, titular lead of "The Great Gabbo," the marvelous all-talking drama which opens at the Broadway tomorrow, that he has been made defendant in a damage suit brought by one of the most famous of the foreign artists. Known best to the movie world as "the man you love to hate," in this picture as "The Great Gabbo," von Stroheim is in one breath more arrogant than he was in "Foolish Wives," more cynical than in "Blind Husbands," and a more uniquely original lover than in "The Wedding March." Ben Hecht wrote this emotionally dramatic story of a man outwardly a ruthless taskmaster, breathing arrogance, skepticism and egotism, but inwardly a gentle and affectionate companion and tender lover. How his two natures clash, his own lips speaking his assumed attitude which has driven him by sheer brute force to the pinnacle of fame, but his true poetic self-finding expression only through the lips of his ventriloquist's dummy, "Little Otto," the wooden image speaking words that "The Great Gabbo" daren't even suggest, for fear of losing his beloved prestige, furnishes a plot of enthralling interest, emotional and thrilling to a degree. Lovely Betty Compson, as "Gabbo's" maid, is the innocent victim of "Gabbo's" strange dementia, and has one of the strongest roles of her successful career. An enormous cast of 500, lending color and life to the massive stage settings, furnish the true stage atmosphere for the drama. Prominent in the cast is Margie (Babe) Kane, romping and stomping her way through her several popular song hits. A full symphony orchestra of 125 talented musicians play the masterly score. The latest Paramount sound news, and "Our Gang" in their newest all-talking comedy, "Railroadin'," complete the long and interesting program. With today's performance the engagement of "The Hollywood Revue" comes to an end.

LIQUOR FROM RAIDS IS DESTROYED UNDER LAW

Liquor seized by the authorities in New London county is now being destroyed under an act passed by the 1929 general assembly. This act concerns the disposition of spirituous and intoxicating liquor and any property taken in connection with violation of the law regarding liquor.

Liquor and property now seized in liquor raids cannot be disposed of until the case has been tried. After the case has been disposed of in the courts, application must be made to the court of common pleas or the superior court for an order to destroy the contraband unless the proper authorities deem it of good quality so that it may be used for medicinal purposes.

The liquors seized in the recent raids at the places conducted by Mary Ferraco, Anthony Falcone, Joseph Neville and Wilfred Lariviere, have been destroyed in compliance with the provisions of the act. The order to destroy the liquor was issued by Judge Charles E. Waller of the court of common pleas.

Notice was served on the four above named persons of a hearing at which they would have the privilege if they so desired, to show cause why the liquors seized in their respective places should not be destroyed. None appeared at the hearings. It is understood that if they did appear at the hearing they would be taxed the costs.

The order instructed the state police to destroy the liquors and a return has been filed notifying the court that the liquor was destroyed in compliance with the order.

TO CONTINUE AS MANAGER OF SOUTHERN TARIFF ASS'N.

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 5.—(AP)—J. A. Arnold, secretary and manager of the Southern Tariff association, today withdrew his resignation on a vote of confidence given him by the association here and declared he would continue to serve as Washington representative of the association.

Mr. Arnold offered his resignation to John H. Kirby, president of the association, nearly a month ago, after Arnold had been charged with "lobbying" in the recent senate investigation brought about by Senator Brookhart.

"We endorse the official acts of our Washington representative, Mr. J. A. Arnold," said resolutions adopted by the association leaders, "and extend to him a vote of confidence and thanks for the service he has rendered to the south."

JEWETT CITY

FIRE, SMOKE, WATER DAMAGE $8,000, LIBERTY HALL BLOCK

(Special to The Bulletin)

JEWETT CITY, Dec. 5.—Chief Walter A. Field, Engine No. 1, and Chemical No. 1 responded to a whistle call at 7 a. m. Thursday from station 14 for a fire in the Liberty Hall block on Main street, owned by Charlie Arabek. The blaze started around the chimney which runs up in the partition between A. Dufresne's shoe shop and E. G. Lague's barber shop. On the second floor is stored a large quantity of miscellaneous merchandise, once the business stock of the Maple Leaf shop, owned by Miss Elizabeth Dealy, of Manchester, N. H. When the firemen arrived the stairs leading to the upper floor, this stock of mixed articles which have been stored there for more than ten years, with the walls and partitions, were ablaze, with a big start. Within ten minutes from the time the whistle blew, the smoke-eaters had the fire fully in control, although there was work for an hour before the blaze was out in the floors and partitions where it had worked into the attic. Four streams were used from the Main street hydrants as the fire was fought from the front and rear.

Damage by smoke and water to the business places on the street floor was heavy, E. G. Lague was the principal loser, his newly-fitted barber shop being practically ruined. The other stores where stock was damaged were A. Dufresne's shoe shop, Stanley Kury's jewelry and watch repairing store, and B. R. Gardner's news and stationery depot. The damage by fire was confined to the upper floors, and to Miss Dealy's stock. Losses to the building and that sustained by the five tenants will amount to around $5,000, all covered by insurance.

Hose lines were across the state road in several places and main line traffic was detoured for two hours. The borough linemen cut the light and power lines that entered the building early in the game. The firemen were badly handicapped by leaky and bad working hydrants. During the fire, Mrs. Michael Sheehan made hot coffee for the fire fighters, many of whom were soaked with water from the nozzles.

SIGHTSEEING IN TEXAS DESCRIBED BY MOTORIST

Writing to local friends, motor tourists south are heard from at The Texas, Fort Worth, under date of Nov. 29.

We were delayed one day in Texarkana. The Main street of Texarkana divides the states of Texas and Arkansas. (The natives call it Arkansaw). There is a black line in the middle of the street and you can step from one state to the other by moving six inches. There is a good deal of trouble about the city government, but the fire department is consolidated.

From Texarkana to Dallas we were in a cotton belt most of the time. In nearly every Negro's yard was a bale or two of cotton meaning the year's work for him. In some of the fields were small boys and girls picking some of the cotton that was left—gleaners—I think they have this cotton for themselves. The eastern part of Texas and western Arkansas the soil is red and automobiles coming off a side road are the color of Finn's block. Coming into Texas we noticed we did not see horses—all mules. These mules are nearly all black. Of course there were some white mules but they were usually old.

We passed a large mule market where there were hundreds of mules for sale. We met a drove of mules driven by cowboys. These cowboys were riding on fine horses. There were six or eight cowboys all wearing ten-gallon hats. They did not call to the mules the same as we do in driving cattle, they whistle to them and the tone of the whistle, I think, may mean something to the mule, for one splendid mule did not like our car and the cowboy that was near us gave a sharp whistle; the (spirited) mule gave a quick jump to one side and let us pass.

As we came to Greenville, Texas, the land became rolling country, with better houses and larger plantations.

In Greenville, hanging over the main street, was a banner with letters three feet tall, saying, "A black land for white people." In a few minutes we knew the reason. The soil west of Greenville to Dallas was black as the ink I am using, and here were mule teams plowing and when the plow turned over the soil it looked greasy. On one plantation we saw 16 plows, each drawn by three mules abreast. In this field there must have been more than 200 acres.

We did not see a tractor until west of Dallas. (On two farms, side by side in Lisbon, I know of two tractors).

On the side of the railroad we saw cattle yards and shipping platforms for loading cattle. There were a few cattle cars on the siding. As we kept going up grade, in this rolling country (about 1-2 of 1 per cent grade) reaching the top, a person can see for miles and miles as far as the eye can reach, this black land dotted with little white houses here and there.

On the top of one ridge there is no doubt we could have counted a hundred houses. These all meant homes, and around each house there was hundreds of acres of this black land. I wondered how deep this soil reached?—In a ditch being dug, the ditch was deeper than the height of the Negro, and the soil was still black. In a "draw" (a gulley) the soil was black to the bottom. We saw a great oil pipe line belonging to the Gulf Refining Co. with 12 or 15 large circular tanks; these were about 30 ft. high and a hundred feet in diameter.

The cities are very pretentious, some of them, like Dallas and this city, are marvels of progress. Dallas has more than a quarter of a million. This city, Fort Worth, has two hundred thousand. And to think only a few years ago this was an army post only!

In Dallas we had some trouble in finding rooms in a hotel on account of a state teachers' convention. The Adolphus, 800 rooms, could not take us in, the Baker, 700 rooms, was full.

In this hotel, 950 rooms, we managed to get two very good rooms, although they are now turning away would-be guests by the hundreds. The reason for the great number of people (mostly men) is there is a great football game here tomorrow between two college teams, neither of which has been defeated. I am not stuck on cities. Just before we reached Fort Worth we saw hundreds and hundreds of steers, ready for the market, all Herefords. You know the Herefords all have white faces. These steers were three years old; in a great field near the road were hundreds of two-year olds. These were in good condition but I think they were not fit for market. Farmers know that the greatest growth in one year is from two to three years old.

It will take us about four days to cross Texas as the road we take is 868 miles in Texas. If a person, say Dan. Finn, should start north from Jewett City and go that distance he would be about 600 miles north of Montreal.

Along the road, which is all cement, we saw a great many dead rabbits (jack rabits) killed at night by automobiles. The lights confuse them and they do not get out of the way. This road is a federal road and is marked No. 1. It is very easily followed as in Texas there is a five pointed star with the figure 1 in the center at every intersection of cross roads—The Lone Star state.

There seems to be a great deal of state pride in all these states and the combined pride of all the states, Connecticut included, makes this country a very proud country indeed.

Oh! in Dallas we saw the finest Baptist church (or any other denomination) we ever beheld. We did not have much of a chance to take a good view, as traffic was so great but I saw the pastor's name was Marshall.—Mr. Scates may know him.

The pride some of us have in Connecticut is that the west (not all) was built with Connecticut money and trains.

In order to complete the pouring of the cement in the west abutment for the new Quinebaug bridge, the contractors are building a set of steam radiators. These will be arranged along the sides of the big mould. Then, regardless of low temperature the work can go on.

The sale of Christmas seals by the school children began Wednesday. Some of the children call them Red Cross seals, and naturally so perhaps, because of the double-barred red cross on the seal. But the seals have no connection with the Red Cross and might well be called health seals. The double-barred red cross is the tuberculosis health emblem.

Forzese—LaLiberte

Fred Forzese, of Lawrence, Mass., and Eva Mondor LaLiberte were married Wednesday morning at the Congregational parsonage by Rev. G. F. Goodenough. They were attended by relatives.

At Patchaug grange benefit whist Tuesday evening the women's prizes went to Mrs. Eva Purdon, Mrs. W B. Montgomery and Mrs. Alice Smith. The men's prizes were won by Chester Geer, LeRoy Holmes and Robert Bitgood. Refreshments were served.

A THREE DAYS' COUGH IS YOUR DANGER SIGNAL

Coughs from colds may lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for coughs from colds and bronchial irritations. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs from colds, bronchitis and minor forms of bronchial irritations, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if not relished after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

The depositing of the votes at the Palace theatre booster ballot box enables the Red Arrow club to tabulate the votes and credit them to the account of the contestants.

MEMORIAL TRIBUTE TO THE LATE ARCHIBALD MITCHELL

The following was the memorial tribute contained on the program for the Mitchell memorial concert Wednesday evening by the Norwich Symphony orchestra:

With reverence and affection the Norwich Symphony Society dedicates this concert to the memory of Mr. Archibald Mitchell. It is a small tribute in appreciation of a great service. It has also more personal implications. Between Mr. Mitchell and every lover of good music there seemed to be an individual bond. His sparkling geniality, his keen interest in life, found their readiest expression in the medium of music, and anyone who was interested in music had a claim on his personal sympathy and friendliness.

In musical activities, as in many other fields he was an organizer and a leader, always contributing freely of his time, his talents and his means. Mr Mitchell was always interested in the violin as a work of art, and at one time had a very large collection of noted violins. Among those which have been in his possession at various times are: The Bott Strad, 1723, at one time owned by the Duke of Cambridge and afterwards by Lewis Spohr and left by him to one of his pupils, John Bott. This violin is well known in the United States. The Earl Strad, 1722, purchased in 1820 by the founder of the London Academy of Music, the Earl of Westmoreland, when he was ambassador at Vienna. The Jarnowick Strad, 1741, which is the contemporary of the Paganini Guarnerius, 1743; the Jarnowick is one of the last of the master's violins. The Healy Strad, 1717, which is one of the few perfect Strads in existence.

These wonderful instruments Mr. Mitchell generously loaned to talented students, giving them inspiration and advantages that their means did not permit.

Visiting artists, among them Eugene Ysaye, the great Belgian violinist, spent many delightful hours at the home of Mr. Mitchell playing on his famous violins.

Mr. Mitchell was a pioneer in the development of music culture in Norwich and his name will long remain a cherished memory in the city he loved.

JUDGE WARNER'S DAUGHTERS CONTINUE LITERARY SUCCESS

The two gifted daughters of Mrs. Warner and the late Judge Edgar M. Warner, of 166 South Main street, Putnam, continue to make a success of their writing and to demonstrate their cleverness along their chosen lines.

Frances Lester Warner (Mrs. Mayo D. Hersey), who has written a number of high grade books, has now tried her skill on a Christmas booklet with the fetching title, "To The People We Like—A Toast and a Bouquet."

Her younger sister, Miss Gertrude Carpenter Warner, is announced as winner of the third prize in a travel contest sponsored by the educational magazine, The Normal Instructor, for the best accounts of summer travel at home or abroad. This competition was open to all teachers and superintendents and one of the judges was Edward Hungerford, of the New York Central railroad. Miss Warner's prize was $75.

The clever sisters are nieces of the late Mrs. Frances Lester Robinson Sibley, for years librarian at the Otis library, Norwich, and were frequent visitors here. Their father, until the time of his death, was clerk of the superior court for Windham county and when a young man was a teacher in New London. Their mother was Miss Jane Carpenter, daughter of a Putnam attorney.

Gertrude Warner has been especially successful as a writer of books for children.

GAVE ENTERTAINMENT FOR VISITING LUTHER LEAGUES

Members of the Luther Leagues of South Manchester and Webster, Mass., to the number of 40, were royally entertained at a Christmas social Thursday evening at the church school rooms by the Luther league of the First Evangelical Lutheran church, Franklin street. The visitors were transported to the city in special buses and upon their arrival at the church were greeted with a welcome song, How Do You Do, by the local members. The welcome address was delivered by Miss Anna Retkovske, president.

The rooms that were prettily decorated with Christmas trimmings had a gathering of about 100, who were entertained with various games, a laugh-provoking sketch, Vit-a-minit, which was put on by Miss Anna Retkovske and Albert Werth, who portrayed the roles in fine style. The sketch was enthusiastically received by a delighted audience. There was also group singing and several pleasing solos by Miss Olga Zachae, accompanied on the piano by Miss Anna Werth.

Delicious refreshments were served at tables effectively trimmed with lighted candles and favors. The affair was in charge of the social committee of the local league.

TAFTVILLE

A snappy and well-staged minstrel show was the entertainment for the second night of the annual Taftville Congregational church fair Wednesday evening at Ponemah hall. The members of the Dramatic club have become so popular for their past presentations that the hall was crowded to capacity and standing room was at a premium. As it was, many had to be turned away for lack of room. The stage setting represented a cabaret in a provincial French town at the time of the World war, and the curtain rose to the opening chorus of "Madelon," sung by the entire company. Pretty girls in quaint French costumes, and men attired in soldier and sailor uniforms sat at tables about the room watching a French dance, done by Jack Houston and Miss Melba Monty.

Throughout the play, the endmen, Edward Thoma, James Heap, George Stewart and Joseph E. Heselton, kept the audience in an uproar with their crossfire of funny stories and jokes, including many local hits. Edwin Heap made a first class interlocutor, and the big crowd responded to the blackface comedy with generous and appreciative applause.

The musical numbers were all well sung, special mention being made of Clayton Sharples, who brought down the house with his "Do Something." He was called back for plenty of encores. Sharing honors with him was Miss Mary Martin, who starred as a solo dancer.

The program was as follows: Opening chorus, Madelon; Mechanical Man, Miss Dorothy Hunt; Deep Night, Walter Hoefer; Little Pal, Reginald Monty; All I Want is Sympathy, Miss Jean Copeland; Of All My Wife's Relations I Like Myself the Best, James Heap and Jack Houston; At the End of the Road, Mrs. Elsie K. Pingree; Weary River, Richard Oat; Do Something, Clayton Sharples; Song of the Nile, Walter Hoefer and Richard Oat; Miss You, Miss Gladys Thoma; "Wrigley" Dance, Miss Mary Martin; Outside, Edward Thoma; closing chorus, Singing in the Rain, entire company.

The members of the chorus included Curtis A. Heydler, Leonard M. Pingree, Ronald Smith, Edmund Mathewson, Philip Gagnon, Laughlin Houston, Miss Mary Greenhalgh, Miss Fidelis Krodel, Miss Helen Thoma and Miss Gladys Kinder. Miss Edith L. Heap was at the piano and she was assisted by James Heap and Miss Gladys Thoma for novelty numbers.

Business at the booths continued brisk, many reported being sold out early in the evening. There is no doubt but what the fair will be most successful financially this year, as it has been in former years.

Miss Annie Volkmar of Norwich avenue has returned from spending a week in Hartford.

Joseph E. Benac, and the Misses Delia and Azilda Benac of Pratte avenue and Miss Yvonne Benac, of the Academy of the Holy Family at Baltic, have returned from a motor trip to Burlington, Vt., where they visited Mr. Benac's son, Theodore, who is a student at St. Michael's college at Burlington.

A meeting of the members of St Veronica's society was held Wednesday evening in their rooms on Providence street.

The Taftville Radio club which was recently organized is to hold a meeting and discussion next Monday evening at the Army and Navy club. Outside speakers have been secured to address the membership on methods of suppressing radio noises. Other business will be the election of officers to serve for the coming year.

Coasting has been the premiere sport in the village for the past few days. Dangerous as Postoffice Hill is (it has been the scene of a fatality), the children still use it. The North Third avenue and South Second avenue sections continue to be popular, and the big lot north of North B street furnishes a safe place for the youngsters.
